Manoeuvres of Fleet Show Britain's Naval Strength

Numbers One Hundred and Ten Ships From Home Squadron.

Reserves Not Called Upon — Great Display of Britain's Naval Power —Squadron Is Larger Than Available Resources of Any Other Two Nations—Dreadnought Not Present—"Mosquito Fleet" Busy.

London, Oct. 15.—There is now assembling in the North Sea and the English Channel for manoeuvres, under the command of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, a fleet of British warships, representing an aggregation of naval power surpassing all the immediate available resources of any two other countries of Europe, and yet not a single ship of this fleet has been drawn from the reserves, the Mediterranean fleet, or the Devonshire or Portsmouth divisions. The home fleet, which is now assembling, consists merely of those ships maintained in the vicinity of the British Isles, and which throughout the year have been engaged in war training.

It numbers 110 pennants, and is composed of 26 battleships, 15 armored cruisers, various auxiliary vessels and 48 torpedo vessels. The battleship Dreadnought is not taking part in the manoeuvres, as she is being fitted with a new steering engine before further sea trials, which, it is hoped, will prove of assistance in determining the design of future large battleships.

The first section of the coming naval manoeuvres, covering four days, will be of a tactical description, and the final days will be devoted to studying the problem of defending ships against torpedo attacks.

With the "mosquito fleet" attacking the large warships, and all the land stations manned, the coming operations are expected to be most interesting.

POWER SOLELY FOR PEOPLE.

Hon. Adam Beck Addresses Large Meeting at Chatham.

Chatham, Oct. 15.—Hon. Adam Beck, the power Minister of the Legislature, addressed a large meeting of the Board of Trade in this city last night, on the question of Niagara power.

The Minister went very fully into the question from every standpoint, showing the progress which has been made by the Power Commission since they have been given the consideration of this important question.

He pointed out the fact that there is now being developed at Niagara more power than is required for the needs of the whole province, and intimated that the Government would take immediate steps to have this power distributed to all of the cities in the province which apply for it.

In speaking of the fact that the Government is not at present developing power at the Falls, he gave as a reason that there is in the agreement made by the old Government and the companies now developing the power, that the Government shall not develop power at the Falls. The Government feels that they are in duty bound to live up to this agreement.

He, however, pointed out that the commission had asked for tenders for the development work. Mr. Beck, throughout his whole speech, strongly and repeatedly emphasized his opinion that the power question should be controlled solely by the people and for the people.

800 GIRLS ON STRIKE.

Employes of Paris Firm Refuse Offer of Compromise.

Paris, Ont., Oct. 15.—Eight hundred girls employed by the Penman Co. are on strike.

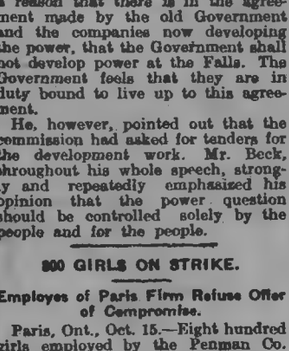
At a meeting last night Manager Thompson offered the girls 10 minutes on the last hour to wash up and prepare for the street. Three meetings were held in all yesterday, but the girls would not listen to the manager's proposition and the strike is still on.

For some time there has been an agitation among the Penman employes for Saturday afternoon off the full year around instead of the summer months only. Saturday was the day set by the management for the commencement of the longer hours, and notices were posted to that effect.

Fully three-fourths of the employes remained away, and practically no work was done on Saturday afternoon. The employes' intentions were to return to work yesterday, but notices were tacked up to the effect that all who remained away would have to report at the general office and be re-engaged before being allowed to return to work.

On the Big Jobs.

In New York city alone the great works of tunnels under city and river, railway terminals and depots, water supply and other similar enterprises now in progress aggregate the enormous sum of $625,000,000, or more than four Panama canals, says Popular Mechanics, while three of the undertakings amount to $100,000,000 each.



POST OFFICE ROBBED.

Package of Money Containing $3,500 Missing at North Sydney.

Halifax, Oct. 15.—It is stated here that a daring robbery has taken place in the postoffice at North Sydney, C. B. A package of money containing $3,500, mailed by the Bank of Nova Scotia, on the 8th inst., is missing.

It was addressed to the bank's head office at Halifax, and has not been received there. Should the money not be recovered the losers will be the Maritime Insurance Co., with whom the money was insured.

Postoffice Inspector McLellan is investigating the matter.

GREAT STRIKE IMMINENT.

British Railway Companies Refuse to Recognize Employes Union.

London, Oct. 15.—Richard Bell, M. P., general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, announced yesterday that the railway companies had sent an unfavorable reply to the society's demand for the recognition of their unions.

The ballot so far received from the men on the advisability of declaring a general strike are largely in favor of a general strike.

Good Word for Redmond.

Dublin, Oct. 15.—John Dillon, member of Parliament from East Mayo, has returned to political activity, and in a letter addressed to The Tyrone Nationalist declares himself thoroughly in sympathy with John Redmond and his party. He declared the criticism of Redmond was without foundation and said that Redmond acted with the greatest possible independence, courage and judgment, and that the Irish cause had made more progress in the last two years than in any two years during the thirty years of his political life. When the facts about the Council Bill become fully known, he declared that Redmond and his party will be triumphantly vindicated.

Ross Check Returned.

London, Oct. 15.—The Canadian Associated Press has been told that Dugald Ross sailed on the Deutschland, but his name does not appear on the list of either first or second-class passengers. Ross purchased one horse here, paying, he said, £130. For the same horse a firm of horse dealers on Brompton road offered him £50. A check on the Metropolitan Bank, Streetsville, for £14, given a firm by Ross, has been returned unpaid. It is thought that he sailed on the Donaldson liner Athenia from Glasgow Saturday. The Athenia carries second-class passengers only.

London Labor Candidate.

London, Oct. 15.—John D. Jacobs, iron moulder, employe of the McClary Manufacturing Co., was last night nominated by the Labor party of London to be the candidate at the coming bye-election for the Commons. Upwards of 80 delegates attended.

There was much enthusiasm, Jacobs is well-known as a labor man and in military circles, having until recently been color-sergeant of the 7th Regiment.

Guilty With Intent.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 15.—The Green Hill case, for assault upon Lily Lynn in July, was closed yesterday afternoon. The jury brought in a verdict of assault with intent to murder. They were out only five minutes. Sentence will be pronounced on the last day of the term.

Struck by Express.

London, Oct. 15.—John Lamont, watchman at Colborne street crossing of the Grand Trunk, was instantly killed at that crossing last night.

He stepped in front of the cars being shunted and was ground to pieces.

Twenty-Five Injured.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 15.—Twenty-five persons were more or less seriously injured here late last night in a trolley car collision.

NEW CHANNEL OPENED

Big Undertaking Now Completed in St. Mary's River.

Cut Through Solid Rock — Boon to Sailors of Heavily-Laden Down-Bound Craft From the Soo—Water Turned on Yesterday—Open For Navigation Next Spring — Cost Over $3,000,000.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 15.—Water was turned into the new channel of the St. Mary's River at the West Neebish on Sunday, marking the completion of one of the biggest projects undertaken on the great lakes since the building of the Poe lock. The new channel is over two miles in length, 9,000 feet of which is cut through solid rock. The channel is 3,000 feet in width, with a depth at minimum stage of water of 22 feet. It will not be formally opened to navigation until spring. The project has cost upwards of $3,000,000.

It is located 18 miles below the Soo, and lies to the west of Neebish Island, the present channel being to the east of the island. This old channel will hereafter be used solely for upbound boats, the heavily-laden downbound craft using the new waterway, which has none of the sharp turns which are embarrassing to the modern 600-foot freighter.

MUST HAVE OPERATION.

Minister of Justice Suffering From Deafness—Cannot Attend Session.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—A serious impairment of Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's hearing may make it impossible for the Minister of Justice to attend the next session of Parliament.

A visit to New York, or even to Vienna will be necessary before Mr. Aylesworth will be able to resume his affairs.

Over twenty years ago Mr. Aylesworth lost the use of one ear. Last July the other ear became affected, and has proved a serious impediment to him in his official duties. Recently the trouble became in some way aggravated so that, at times, Mr. Aylesworth was practically deaf.

Dr. Cortland of Ottawa was consulted, and discovered an obstruction in the Eustachian tube. He removed a small piece of cartilage, and during the past week a considerable improvement has been noted.

Before a permanent relief can be assured, however, it will be necessary for Mr. Aylesworth to undergo a more radical operation. A visit to one of the aural specialists of New York or Vienna will almost certainly be required before the Minister of Justice will be seen on the floor of the House of Commons.

Killed by Live Wire.

Stratford, Oct. 15.—George Ritz, aged 35, an employe of the Whyte Packing Co., met terrible death here last night, being almost instantly killed by shock from a live electric wire. In company with Mr. Irvine he drove up to the old Stratford Hotel. Rits jumped out to tie the horse and coming in contact with a live wire dropped to the ground, while the flesh of his hands still clung to the wire. He died about three minutes later.

How the wire was hanging so low is a mystery which will likely be cleared up by the coroner's jury.

Herbert Fletcher, who arrived a few minutes after the accident, attempted to tie his horse and also received terrible shock, but survived. Rits had only been married about two years.

Settling Vancouver Claims.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, left last night for Vancouver to adjust the claims arising out of the recent riot. He has notified the Japanese vice-consul at Vancouver to have advertisements inserted in the newspapers calling upon those who have claims for damages to register them at once with the Japanese vice-consul, and they will be dealt with by Mr. King at the office of the former on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The Canadian commissioner travels by way of Toronto. He is accompanied by his secretary, F. W. Giddens.

Mr. Birge's Splendid Gift.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.—Cyrus A. Birge, ex-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and president of the Canada Screw Co. of this city has given $50,000 to Victoria University. Mr. Birge has not yet completed all arrangements as to conditions, but the details will soon be worked out, and Andrew Carnegie's gift of $50,000, providing that another $50,000 was raised, will have then been earned.

Boy Fell Thirty Feet.

Belleville, Oct. 15.—Leo Barrett, a young fellow of this city, went out on Sunday to gather hickory nuts. He climbed a tree and stood on a branch 30 feet from the ground. The branch broke and young Barrett got a bad fall. He was unconscious for a time, but was brought to the city and will recover.

Emperor Joseph Better.

Vienna, Oct. 15.—Emperor Francis Joseph was better last night. His fever was lower; his appetite had increased, and he was in better spirits. The doctors consider that the danger has passed, unless complications set in.

An Arrest at Tupperville.

Chatham, Oct. 15.—William Hewitt, an immigrant, was arrested at Tupperville last night on a charge of wife deserting. His wife has been at the Rankin House here for several days, having recently given birth to a child.

Operators Return to Work.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 15.—All the striking telegraph operators here have applied for reinstatement. The president of the local union formally called the strike off yesterday.

A prominent Liberal, in touch with his party managers, says W. R. Rogers, will be Toronto's next postmaster.

INCENDIARISM AT BLIND RIVER.

Fire Chief Alleged to Have Been Seen Running Away.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 15.—The municipality of Blind River has just concluded an investigation into the origin of the many fires that have occurred in that town during the last two months. The investigation was held on Friday and Saturday before Dr. Bird, coroner, and was most thorough in its character. Oriah McFadden of Sault Ste. Marie conducted the examination for the town.

It appears that eight fires have occurred during the last eight weeks, nearly all of them occurring on a Wednesday night, and in close proximity to the fire hall, the fires for the most part being in vacant houses, the last, however, being in a store and restaurant.

Fourteen witnesses were examined. The evidence was most conclusive that the fires were of an incendiary origin. The chief of the fire brigade was identified as the man seen running away from the Hawkins Building previous to its destruction. He was heard to exclaim by Charles Rogers, clerk at the Huronic Hotel, "They are on our tracks and we must be careful."

Following the verdict of the jury, which was to the effect that the fires under investigation were of an incendiary nature, pointing to the implication of George Raymond, chief of the fire brigade, Raymond, Lablanc and two others were placed under arrest. Lablanc threatened, it is alleged, to burn the Edwards restaurant, afterwards consumed.

District Crown Attorney McFadden left yesterday for Blind River to conduct the examination for the crown.

TO BRAND DRUNKARDS.

Will Display Their Portraits In Saloons of Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The Hyde Park Liquor Dealers' Association, as a matter of self-protection, has started a crusade against those who overimbibe. Notices have been sent out by the secretary of the association requesting each bartender to ask for the photograph of every drunkard from his wife or family in case complaint about giving him liquor is made.

The pictures then are to be sent to the secretary of the association, who will have copies made and sent to every member of the association. These pictures then are to be pasted on the mirror behind the bar, so that a dispenser of drinks may see at a glance that he is selling liquor to a drunkard.

Two members of the association have been prosecuted by indignant wives for having sold intoxicating drinks to their husbands. This caused the movement to brand the drunkards.

Looks For Missing Wife.

Chatham, Oct. 15.—Coming to the city with a sorrowful tale of wife desertion, Henry Mayers, who works on the farm of Fred Leach, River road, Raleigh Township, had an interested audience at the police station yesterday.

Mayers' opinion about his wife was based on the fact that on Saturday she and one Louis Wiltmott, who lived in the same house, had disappeared, and until now had failed to put in an appearance. He desired to lay some kind of an information, mentioning desertion as a probable plea, but the police informed him that such a recourse was not open to him. However, they offered to keep a lookout for his spouse. Mayers stated that he and his wife came to this country from England in 1906. They have four children, the eldest being six years old. All went well on the farm until some time ago, when Wiltmott was introduced as a highly respectable man. Up to Saturday he had no reason to suspect anything unusual, but now harbors all sorts of opinions.

The Vote of Neepawa.

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—The wiping out of local option in the Neepawa district after an experience of more than twenty years is declared in the west to be a blow to prohibition that will practically destroy for all time the law in Western Canada.

Of 403 ballots cast, 67 per cent. were opposed to local option. Sixty per cent. had to be registered against the law to bring the saloon back.

Ministers and temperance workers assert that they are unable to account for the rejection of the law. It seemed to have worked in a satisfactory manner, though the traveling public complained that no hotel accommodation was available in the city.

As a result, there is now no such thing as local option in force west of the lakes in Canada.

Ask Small to Resign.

New York, Oct. 15.—Late yesterday the telegraphers held a meeting, at which resolutions were adopted calling upon President Small to immediately resign his office.

A number of speeches were made and there was considerable discussion over the resolution, a few of the telegraphers declaring that President Small was guilty of nothing more than a tactical error and should not be so severely censured.

Crown Prince at Work.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—Crown Prince Frederick William yesterday began a year's work in the Prussian Ministry of the Interior, as part of his preparation for assuming the crown in due course of time. It is understood that the crown prince will successively serve in each important Ministry. He has been relieved from military duty for a year.

Almost Asphyxiated.

Stratford, Oct. 15.—M. J. Dewey, job printer, had a narrow escape from death by asphyxiation. He was found in his shop overcome by gas and was with difficulty resuscitated.

King Edward to Meet Czar.

Copenhagen, Oct. 15.—A meeting between King Edward and the Czar has been arranged to take place here, according to the Berlin correspondent of The Politiken.

This Liberal campaign in Britain for the restriction of the power of the House of Lords is now in full swing throughout the country.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED

Sad Triple Fatality on Railway Track Near Amherst.

Brother and Sister Get Fast Caught In Cattleguard — Freight Train Bore Down Upon Them Just as Their Aunt Was Releasing Them—She Also Received Fatal Injuries—Collapse of Trestle.

Lorain, O., Oct. 15.—Matthew Glovesky, five years old, and his sister, Lucy, 11 years old, were run down by a Lake Shore train and killed Sunday night, near Amherst, and their aunt, Miss Sophia Glovesky, was fatally hurt.

The three were walking on the track when the boy's foot became fastened in a cattle-guard. In attempting to rescue him, his sister also caught her foot in the guard. Their aunt was unable to pull the children's feet from the cattle-guard and was unlacing the little boy's shoe when a freight train bore down upon them. The children were killed instantly, and the aunt fatally hurt.

One Killed; Nineteen Injured.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 15.—One man was killed and nineteen others injured, three fatally, yesterday, by the collapsing of a 400-foot trestle used in railroad construction work near Stony Ford.

Sixteen work cars which were on the trestle went down in the crash.

PROSECUTION OF M. C. R.

Mr. Justice Riddell Congratulated at Opening of Assizes.

Windsor, Oct. 15.—Justice Riddell opened the Fall Assizes yesterday afternoon at Sandwich. This being his first visit here since his elevation to the bench he was welcomed and congratulated by H. Clarke, K. C., on behalf of the bar. As there were no prisoners to be tried at this court the sheriff presented his lordship with the customary pair of white gloves.

In his charge to the grand jury Justice Riddell outlined their duties with respect to the criminal prosecution of the Michigan Central for the Essex explosion, and adverted to the alarming number of so-called accidents which were becoming notorious, and were due in many cases to sheer carelessness.

The railway has been trying to have the prosecution postponed, but the authorities are determined to press the case. Crown Prosecutor Meredith of London will try to have the company indicted on three counts. It is intimated that no indictments will be prepared against any of the railway employes.

Mrs. Chadwick's Funeral.

Woodstock, Oct. 15.—"The remains of my sister, Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, will be quietly interred at the Anglican cemetery in the city on Wednesday afternoon, and Rev. F. W. Thompson, pastor of College avenue Methodist church, will conduct the services," was what Mrs. D. A. Campbell of East Dundas street told the managing editors of the local papers late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Campbell has very carefully evaded reporters, and would not trust them with the news that she herself conveyed to the head newspaper men in town.

The remains are being held until Wednesday, awaiting the arrival of relatives and friends from Ohio and other parts of the United States who will attend the funeral. Who these relatives and friends are Mrs. Campbell refused to say.

The funeral will be strictly private, not even Mrs. Campbell's most intimate friends are being allowed to view the remains, which are encased in a sealed casket.

Buffalo Man Suicides.

Chippawa, Oct. 15.—Early yesterday morning two fishermen in Niagara River above Navy Island discovered on the Canadian shore an overturned skiff and near by the body of a man aged about 40 years.

From letters the body was identified as N. G. Swen of No. 490 Herkimer street, Buffalo. He had committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. A revolver was found near the corpse.

The letter said, "No hope for me; no work, no money. Good-bye." His hands were toil-hardened and his clothing was of cheap stock.

Prince Albert Election.

Prince Albert, Oct. 15.—The result of the Prince Albert election is still in doubt. Both sides claim to have won, and both celebrated the victory Saturday night with torchlight processions. The uncontested ballots were counted at the close of the polls by the deputy returning officers, and gave Bradshaw 334, Turgeon, 338, with 339 votes tied up.

Worst In Twenty Years.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 15.—Fisheries along Labrador coast line this year are reported by the fleet which has just returned to be the worst in the past twenty years. Failure was caused by bad weather conditions.

Fisheries on Newfoundland coast proper are, however, reported to be the best in the past five years.

Six Months For Druggist.

New York, Oct. 15.—Severe punishment for druggists who sell cocaine is advocated by Dr. Darlington, head of the city health department, and as a result of his efforts a druggist convicted of making a sale of the poison was sentenced yesterday to six months imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Killed at Barrie.

Barrie, Oct. 15.—Another railroad man was fatally injured in the yards here on Sunday. Conductor Louis Dewitt, jumping from his train, had his coat caught on the van and was pulled under the wheels. One leg was badly crushed, and Dewitt died 12 hours later from shock and hemorrhage.

The ocean liner, Mariposa, with 118 crew and passengers is lying helpless and without fuel in the Pacific, nine-

"He mustn't go," growled the old fellow.

"Come, colonel, you mean that I should be in Mr. Rassendyll's debt if"—

"Oh, aye, wrap it up in the right way," said Sapt, hauling a great pipe out of his pocket.

"Enough, sire," said I. "I'll leave Ruritania today."

"Now, by thunder, you shan't, and that's sans phrase, as Sapt likes it. For you shall dine with me tonight, happen what will afterward. Come, man, you don't meet a new relative every day!"

"We dine sparingly tonight," said Fritz von Tarlenheim.

"Not we, with our new cousin for a guest!" cried the king, and as Fritz shrugged his shoulders he added, "Oh, I'll remember our early start, Fritz."

"So will I—tomorrow morning," said old Sapt, pulling at his pipe.

"Oh, wise old Sapt!" cried the king. "Come, Mr. Rassendyll. By the way, what name did they give you?"

"Your majesty's," I answered, bowing.

"Well, that shows they weren't ashamed of us," he laughed. "Come, then, cousin Rudolf. I've got no house of my own here, but my dear brother Michael lends us a place of his, and we'll make shift to entertain you there." And he put his arm through mine and, signing to the others to accompany us, walked me off westerly through the forest.

We walked for more than half an hour, and the king smoked cigarettes and chattered incessantly. He was full of interest in my family, laughed heartily when I told him of the portraits with Elphberg hair in our galleries and yet more heartily when he heard that my expedition to Ruritania was a secret one.

"You have to visit your disreputable cousin on the sly, have you?" said he.

Suddenly emerging from the wood, we came on a small and rude shooting lodge. It was a one story building, a sort of bungalow, built entirely of wood. As we approached it a little man in a plain livery came out to meet us. The only other person I saw about the place was a fat, elderly woman, whom I afterward discovered to be the mother of Johann, the duke's keeper.

"Well, is dinner ready, Josef?" asked the king.

The little servant informed us that it was, and we soon sat down to a plentiful meal. The fare was plain enough. The king ate heartily, Fritz von Tarlenheim delicately, old Sapt voraciously. I played a good knife and fork, as my custom is. The king noticed my performance with approval.

"We're all good trenchermen, we Elphbergs," said he. "But what?—we're eating dry! Wine, Josef; wipe, man! Are we beasts to eat without drinking? Are we cattle, Josef?"

At this reproof Josef hastened to load the table with bottles.

"Remember tomorrow!" said Fritz.

"Aye, tomorrow!" said old Sapt.

The king drained a bumper to his "Cousin Rudolf," as he was gracious—or merry—enough to call me, and I drank its fellow to the "Elphberg red," whereat he laughed loudly.

Now, be the meat what it might, the wine we drank was beyond all price or praise, and we did it justice. Fritz ventured once to stay the king's hand.

"What?" cried the king. "Remember you start before I do, Master Fritz—you must be more sparing by two hours than I."

Fritz saw that I did not understand.

"The colonel and I," he explained, "leave here at 6. We ride down to Zenda and return with the guard of honor to fetch the king at 8, and then we all ride together to the station."

"Hang that same guard!" growled Sapt.

"Oh, it's very civil of my brother to ask the honor for his regiment," said the king. "Come, cousin, you need not start early. Another bottle, man!"

I had another bottle, or, rather, a part of one, for the larger half traveled quickly down his majesty's throat. Fritz gave up his attempts at persuasion. From persuading he fell to being persuaded, and soon we were all of us as full of wine as we had any right to be. The king began talking of what he would do in the future, old Sapt of what he had done in the past, Fritz of some beautiful girl or other, and I of the wonderful merits of the Elphberg dynasty. We all talked at once and followed to the letter Sapt's exhortation to let the morrow take care of itself.

At last the king set down his glass and leaned back in his chair.

"I have drunk enough," said he.

"Far be it from me to contradict the king," said I.

Indeed his remark was most absolutely true—so far as it went.

While I yet spoke Josef came and set before the king a marvelous old wicker covered flagon. It had lain so long in some darkened cellar that it seemed to blink in the candlelight.

"His highness the Duke of Strelsau bade me set this wine before the king when the king was weary of all other wines and pray the king to drink for the love that he bears his brother."

"Well done, Black Michael!" said the king. "Out with the cork, Josef! Hang him! Did he think I'd flinch from his bottle?"

The bottle was opened, and Josef filled the king's glass. The king tasted it. Then, with a solemnity born of the hour and his own condition, he looked round on us.

"Gentlemen, my friends—Rudolf, my cousin ('tis a scandalous story, Rudolf, on my honor!)—everything is yours to the half of Ruritania. But ask me not for a single drop of this divine bottle, which I will drink to the health of that—that sly knave, my brother, Black Michael."

And the king seized the bottle and turned it over his mouth and drained it and flung it from him and laid his head on his arms on the table.

And we drank pleasant dreams to his majesty—and that is all I remember of the evening. Perhaps it is enough.

CHAPTER IV.

WHETHER I had slept a minute or a year I knew not. I awoke with a start and a shiver. My face, hair and clothes dripped water, and opposite me stood old Sapt, a sneering smile on his face and an empty bucket in his hand. On the table by him sat Fritz von Tarlenheim, pale as a ghost and black as a crow under the eyes.

I leaped to my feet in anger.

"Your joke goes too far, sir!" I cried.

"Tut, man, we've no time for quarreling. Nothing else would rouse you. It's 5 o'clock."

"I'll thank you, Colonel Sapt"— I began again, hot in spirit, though I was uncommonly cold in body.

"Rassendyll," interrupted Fritz, getting down from the table and taking my arm, "look here."

The king lay full length on the floor. His face was red as his hair, and he breathed heavily. Sapt, the disrespectful old dog, kicked him sharply. He did not stir, nor was there any break in his breathing. I saw that his face and head were wet with water, as were mine.

"We've spent half an hour on him," said Fritz.

"He drank three times what either of you did," growled Sapt.

I knelt down and felt his pulse. It was alarmingly languid and slow. We three looked at one another.

"Was it drugged—that last bottle?" I asked in a whisper.

"I don't know," said Sapt.

"We must get a doctor."

"There's none within ten miles, and a thousand doctors wouldn't take him to Strelsau today. I know the look of it. He'll not move for six or seven hours yet."

"Was it drugged?"

"But the coronation!" I cried in horror.

Fritz shrugged his shoulders, as I began to see was his habit on most occasions.

"We must send word that he's ill," he said.

"I suppose so," said I.

Old Sapt, who seemed as fresh as a daisy, had lit his pipe and was puffing hard at it.

"If he's not crowned today," said he, "I'll lay a crown he's never crowned."

"But, heavens, why?"

"The whole nation's there to meet him—half the army, aye, and Black Michael at the head. Shall we send word that the king's drunk?"

"That he's ill," said I in correction.

"Ill!" echoed Sapt, with a scornful laugh. "They know his illnesses too well. He's been 'ill' before."

"Well, we must chance what they think," said Fritz helplessly. "I'll carry the news and make the best of it."

Sapt raised his hand.

"Tell me," said he, "do you think the king was drugged?"

"I do," said I.

"And who drugged him?"

"That d——d hound, Black Michael," said Fritz between his teeth.

"Aye," said Sapt, "that he might not come to be crowned. Rassendyll here doesn't know our pretty Michael. What think you, Fritz—has Michael no king ready? Has half Strelsau no other candidate? As God's alive, man, the throne's lost if the king show himself not in Strelsau today. I know Black Michael."

"We could carry him there," said I.

"And a very pretty picture he makes!" sneered Sapt.

Fritz von Tarlenheim buried his face in his hands. The king breathed loudly and heavily. Sapt stirred him again with his foot.

"The drunken dog!" he said. "But he's an Elphberg and the son of his father, and may I rot before Black Michael sits in his place!"

For a moment or two we were all silent. Then Sapt, knitting his bushy gray brows, took his pipe from his mouth and said to me:

"As a man grows old he believes in Fate. Fate sent you here. Fate sends you now to Strelsau."

I staggered back, murmuring, "Good God!"

Fritz looked up with an eager, bewildered gaze.

"Impossible!" I muttered. "I should be known."

"It's a risk—against a certainty," said Sapt. "If you shave, I'll wager you'll not be known. Are you afraid?"

"Sir!"

"Come, lad—there, there. But it's your life, you know, if you're known—and mine—and Fritz's here. But if you don't go I swear to you Black Michael will sit tonight on the throne and the king lie in prison or his grave."

"The king would never forgive it," I stammered.

"Are we women? Who cares for his forgiveness?"

The clock ticked fifty times, and sixty and seventy times, as I stood in thought. Then I suppose a look came over my face, for old Sapt caught me by the hand, crying:

"You'll go?"

"Yes; I'll go," said I, and I turned my eyes on the prostrate figure of the king on the floor.

"Tonight," Sapt went on in a hasty whisper, "we are to lodge in the palace. The moment they leave us you and I will mount our horses—Fritz must stay here and guard the king's room—and ride here at a gallop. The king will be ready—Josef will tell him—and he must ride back with me to Strelsau, and you ride as if the devil were behind you to the frontier."

I took it all in in a second and nodded my head.

"There's a chance," said Fritz, with his first sign of hopefulness.

"If I escape detection," said I.

"If we're detected," said Sapt, "I'll send Black Michael down below before I go myself, so help me heaven! Sit in that chair, man."

I obeyed him.

He darted from the room, calling, "Josef, Josef!" In three minutes he was back, and Josef with him. The latter carried a jug of hot water, soap and razors. He was trembling as Sapt told him how the land lay and bade him shave me.

Suddenly Fritz smote on his thigh:

"But the guard! They'll know! They'll know!"

"Pooh! We shan't wait for the guard. We'll ride to Hofban and catch a train there. When they come the bird 'll be flown."

"But the king?"

"The king will be in the wine cellar. I'm going to carry him there now."

"If they find him?"

"They won't. How should they? Josef will put them off."

"But"—

Sapt stamped his foot.

"We're not playing," he roared. "Don't I know the risk? If they do find him he's no worse off than if he isn't crowned today in Strelsau."

So speaking, he flung the door open and, stooping, put forth a strength I did not dream he had and lifted the king in his hands. And as he did so the old woman, Johann, the keeper's mother, stood in the doorway. For a moment she stood, then she turned on her heel without a sign of surprise and clattered down the passage.

"Has she heard?" cried Fritz.

"I'll shut her mouth!" said Sapt grimly, and he bore off the king in his arms.

For me, I sat down in an armchair, and as I sat there, half dazed, Josef clipped and scraped me till my mustache and imperial were things of the past and my face was as bare as the king's. And when Fritz saw me thus he drew a long breath and exclaimed:

"By Jove, we shall do it!"

It was 6 o'clock now, and we had no time to lose. Sapt hurried me into the king's room, and I dressed myself in the uniform of a colonel of the guard, finding time as I slipped on the king's boots to ask Sapt what he had done with the old woman.

"She swore she'd heard nothing," said he, "but to make sure I tied her legs together and put a handkerchief in her mouth and bound her hands and locked her up in the coal cellar next door to the king. Josef 'll look after them both later on."

Then I burst out laughing, and even old Sapt grimly smiled.

"I fancy," said he, "that when Josef tells them the king is gone they'll think it is because we smelt a rat. For you may swear Black Michael doesn't expect to see him in Strelsau today."

I put the king's helmet on my head. Old Sapt handed me the king's sword, looking at me long and carefully.

"Thank God, he shaved his beard!" he exclaimed.

"Why did he?" I asked.

"Because Princess Flavia said he grazed her cheek when he was graciously pleased to give her a cousinly kiss. Come, though, we must ride."

"Is all safe here?"

"Nothing's safe anywhere," said Sapt, "but we can make it no safer."

Fritz now rejoined us in the uniform of a captain in the same regiment as that to which my dress belonged. In four minutes Sapt had arrayed himself in his uniform. Josef called that the horses were ready. We jumped on their backs and started at a rapid trot. The game had begun. What would the issue of it be?

The cool morning air cleared my head, and I was able to take in all Sapt said to me. He was wonderful. Fritz hardly spoke, riding like a man asleep, but Sapt, without another word for the king, began at once to instruct me most minutely in the history of my past life, of my family, of my tastes, pursuits, weaknesses, friends, companions and servants. He told me the etiquette of the Ruritania court, promising to be constantly at my elbow to point out everybody whom I ought to know and give me hints with what degree of favor to greet them.

"By the way," he said, "you are a Catholic, I suppose?"

"Not I," I answered.

"Lord, he's a heretic!" groaned Sapt, and forthwith he fell to a rudimentary lesson in the practices and observances of the Romish faith.

"Luckily," said he, "you won't be expected to know much, for the king's notoriously lax and careless about such matters. But you must be as civil as butter to the cardinal. We hope to win him over because he and Michael have a standing quarrel about their precedence."

We were by now at the station. Fritz had recovered nerve enough to explain to the astonished station master that the king had changed his plans. The train steamed up. We got into a first class carriage, and Sapt, leaning back on the cushions, went on with his lesson. I looked at my watch—the king's watch it was, of course. It was just 8.

"I wonder if they've gone to look for us," I said.

"I hope they won't find the king," said Fritz nervously, and this time it was Sapt who shrugged his shoulders.

The train traveled well, and at half-past 9, looking out of the window, I saw the towers and spires of a great city.

"Your capital, my liege," grinned old Sapt, with a wave of his hand, and, leaning forward, he laid his finger on my pulse. "A little too quick," said he in his grumbling tone.

MADE OF NORMAL-CALF

Improvement Number Two

The way "Normal-Calf" is made.

The foot is one of the tenderest members of the body. Of course the ball and heel are tough, but no human part, excepting the eye, is more delicate than the top and pit of the foot.

If you subject that tender top to the rough ravages of hard, stiff, lifeless calfskin, you're sending a helpless, tender weakling to ignominious defeat at the hands of a rubbing, pinching, blistering foe whose battle scars can be seen on nine feet out of every ten.

"Normal-Calf" is a new leather invention, devised, patented and exclusively controlled by the Foot-rite makers. No matter what retailers may tell you, "Normal-Calf" can be found only in Foot-rite Shoes. This leather is tanned and curried by a new process which preserves nearly all of the soft, clothy suppleness of the live calf's skin.

Tanning is merely rendering animal skin undecayable. This is accomplished by soaking the skin in tannic acid. The tannic acid chemically combines with the skin's chief component part—gelatine—forming tanno-gelatin, or leather which is insoluble and unputrefiable.

The tannic acid is secured from various tree barks. Hemlock is used principally because it's cheapest, but it fills up the pores, destroys the fibre and deadens the skin, forming leather as stiff and hard as tin. This is the foot-rubbing, foot-pinching, foot-blistering calfskin used in nearly all shoes. It's not worthy the name "leather." It's merely pickled calf hide, more suitable for sandpaper than for shoes.

"Normal-Calf" is rendered undecayable with scarce and expensive tannic acid extracted from oaktree bark, so accurately and scientifically administrated that the pores and fibre remain natural; stiffening of the skin is avoided; and almost the original, soft, clothy suppleness of the live calf's hide is retained.

Then it's put through a new and special Foot-rite process of shaving, scraping, drying, oiling and annealing, which further enchances its suppleness.

The same price in Canada, Great Britain and the United States $4, $5 and $6.

Every pair made by the wonderful Goodyear process—making them strong, pliable, flexible.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions o society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity for earning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than than do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business in times of stress, and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

Captain Rogers Visits the City

Occupies Important Post in Service of Imperial Government

Captain R. S. Rogers, R. E., of London, Eng., is here on a flying visit to his father, Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster of Peterborough. It is fourteen years since his last visit to the city, and he notes great changes and improvements in this thriving centre.

Captain Rogers in February last received from the Imperial Authorities the responsible appointment of Government Surveyor of Prisons in England and Wales.

Before entering upon his duties he crossed the ocean with his wife and family and was joined by Colonel Rogers. They went to Victoria, B. C., where they spent a month. Captain Rogers left his wife and two sons in Victoria, and came to Canada on the present occasion to accompany them home. They sailed from Liverpool of August 23rd, and in just ten days time arrived in the capital of the Pacific province. It is remarkably fast travelling when the broad expanse of an ocean and a continent can be covered in a week and three days. Captain Rogers' many old friends are pleased to meet him. He will leave tomorrow on his return to England, along with Mrs. Rogers and family.

Engineer Disregarded Orders; Awful Wreck at Shrewsbury

Sixteen Persons Killed by Derailment of Express at Sharp Curve.--Disaster in Old Country Similar to Recent Caledon Mountain Catastrophe in Ontario.

Special to the Review.

Shrewsbury, England, Oct. 15. — A train made up of passenger coaches bound from Scotland and the north of England to Bristol, left the rails as it was entering the station here early this morning.

Sixteen persons, including ten passengers were killed and many others were injured.

The London and North Western railway on which the train was running, curves sharply as it nears Shrewsbury and there is a standing order that engineers must not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour at this point.

Disregard of the order is believed to have been the cause of the accident. Fortunately the wreck did not catch fire.

The killed included the engineer and fireman and the girls and clerks

Will Proceed to Call Pastor; St. Paul's Church to Hold Meeting

Congregational Meeting Will be Held on Monday, October 28th--It is Reported That Rev. Mr. Pogue, of Philadelphia, Will be Invited to Accept the Charge.

A meeting of the session of St. Paul's church, was held last evening, Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, who is the interim moderator, presided.

The session considered the advisability of taking immediate steps to call a minister. It would seem from this general expression of opinion that the congregation is now favorable to a call.

A general meeting will be held on Monday, Oct. 28th, when a call will be extended. Notice to this effect will be read from the pulpit on Sunday next. It is stated that Rev. Robert Pogue of Bethany church, Philadelphia, who preached so acceptably at both services on Sunday will receive an almost unanimous invitation to become the next minister of St. Paul's.

The sermon in the house was from John 14, 1-2, "The Home of Many Mansions." This was made doubly impressive by a solo very sweetly rendered by Mrs. Steuernagel, wife of the pastor of Bethany Tabernacle. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved young husband.

THOUGHT BULBS WERE ONIONS

And Young Lady Put Them in Gravy to Fry

The news that the local Horticultural Society, has received five thousand bulbs from Holland, recalls to mind the story about a Peterborough young lady whose knowledge of things botanical was not deep enough to tide her over an incident that arose in her domestic career. The story goes that one Sunday morning the family all went to church, leaving the young lady at home to prepare dinner. Wishing to show them what she could do in the culinary line she decided to prepare for them a treat in the form of beef steak and onions. She soon had the steak ready, and then set about to secure the onions. She was exactly sure where they were but she soon came across some objects in the cellar that she thought were onions, so straightway she cut them up and put them in the gravy to fry. She was somewhat surprised that they gave off no odor while cooking but she discovered nothing until the family came home from church and informed her that she was frying hyacinth bulbs. She is now a member of the Horticultural Society.

Home Again After Trip Covering Over 8000 Miles

Mr. W. G. Morrow, Who Accompanied Hon. Senator Cox on His Western Tour, Talks About the Country—Great Progress is Being Made—A Visit to Prince Rupert.

After a trip embracing about 8,000 miles, Mr. W. G. Morrow, manager of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, arrived home last night and brings back with him the most favorable impressions of the great Canadian West. Mr Morrow travelled in company with Hon. Senator Cox, and Mr. H. L. Watt, treasurer of the Canada Life Assurance Company and the visit to the West was largely in the interests of these two concerns. Senator Cox, Mr. Morrow and Mr. Watt left for the West on August 31st, and on the journey westward visited Port Arthur, Fort Frances, and other towns in the Rainy River district. Crossing to the American side they stopped at Virginia where there are extensive iron mines, the United States Steel Co. securing their material there. The trip westward was then continued by way of Duluth, Minnesota, Winnipeg, Brandon, etc. Stops were made at those places and also at Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Fernie, Vancouver, Victoria, Edmonton, Saskatoon, and other points along the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways. One of the most interesting features of the trip was a visit to Prince Rupert, the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is expected that Prince Rupert will be a great city some day and, although it bears some resemblance to a mining camp at the present time, already extensive improvements are under way, and the path being prepared for future greatness. While Mr. Morrow was at Prince Rupert, the first police court ever held there was in session. Four Indians were on the carpet, three of them for being drunk and the other for selling them the wherewithal to get on the jag. Strange to say, the Indian agent, who was the presiding magistrate bore the name of George W. Morrow, which sounded somewhat familiar to Mr. Morrow from Peterborough.

Over 8,000 miles were covered by Senator Cox, and Messrs. Morrow and Watt, during their seven weeks' trip and they saw many interesting, and at times, strange sights.

Mr. Morrow states that the West is making great progress, so great in fact, that one cannot realize it until the country is visited.

SENATOR COX TALKS

Hon. Senator Cox has given out the following statement regarding this Western tour.:

"During the last twenty-five years I have made periodical visits to the Pacific Coast, and upon no previous occasion have I been so favorably impressed with the future prospects of our Western Provinces as I was on this occasion.

"It is three years since my last visit, and I was surprised and delighted by the great improvement that has taken place during that time. Accompanied by Mr. W. G. Morrow, of Peterborough, manager of the Toronto Savings & Loan Co., and Mr. H. L. Watt, treasurer of the Canada Life Assurance Co., my visit was largely in the interest of those two corporations, and for the purpose of looking into their investments in the West.

The Canada Life Assurance Company has now about seven million dollars in mortgage loans and municipal debentures, invested in the four Western Provinces, and after spending over six weeks at or in the vicinity of Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Fernie, Vancouver, Victoria, Edmonton, Saskatoon and other points on the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways, I am more than ever convinced that our western country affords a safe and profitable field in which to loan money, and I shall recommend the directors of the Canada Life to largely increase their loans in that direction.

"It is true that the results of the present harvest will in some localities, and in some respects, be disappointing, but in many localities, the crops are highly satisfactory, both as to quantity and quality, and when it is taken into consideration that even the lowest grades this year are selling at a higher price than the best grades last year, it is quite safe to say that the farmers of the West will have quite as large cash returns from this year's crop as they had last season.

"The railway companies are, I am satisfied, much better equipped for the movement of this year's crop than they were last year. Both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern have made very large additions to their rolling stock, and in other respects greatly improved their lines, and before another year's crop has to be moved, the Grand Trunk Pacific trains will be running between Edmonton and Port William.

"One of the most interesting features of our journey was a pleasant trip up the Pacific Coast by the C. P.R. steamer Princess May for a distance of 550 miles to the future city of Prince Rupert, the western terminus of the new transcontinental line. In conversation with several of the captains and officers of steamers plying on the Pacific, the harbor of Prince Rupert was pronounced by them to be one of the very finest they had ever seen. Extensive docks and other harbor improvements are being pushed forward to completion, and in the near future trains from the east will be connecting at this point with steamers for the Orient.

"The chief difficulty to be contended with, in the early completion of this line is, the all-absorbing question of labor, and this difficulty extends not only to railway building, but to the more rapid development of the coal and copper mines, the operation of the smelters, the extension of the fisheries, and other branches of industry. It is to be hoped that the best efforts of all classes of the community will be directed to the solution of this difficulty in a manner satisfactory to all concerned."

There are Big Spots on Sun

Which are Causing Several Magnetic Disturbances

Rev. Dr. Marsh reports that there are more spots or disturbances on the surface of the sun. Dr. Marsh has photographed these spots and they will be shown by limelight to-morrow evening at his residence in Springville when the members of the local Astronomical Society will be entertained. Busses to convey the members to Springville will leave the Y.M.C.A. building at 6.45 o'clock in the evening. The spot on the western limb of the sun is 75,300 miles long and 15,000 miles wide. The disturbance on the eastern limb is 100,500 miles long and 17,000 wide. Between these spots on the eastern and western solar limbs are three beautiful disturbances measuring from 8,000 to 12,000 miles in diameter. These have caused magnetic disturbances which result in the aurora borealis or northern lights being unusually brilliant. Last night they were surprisingly vivid and assumed very attractive positions at times resembling a stream of light, a curtain of darting flame or a pillar of fire.

Another thing particularly noticeable last night was the proximity of Mars to the moon.

Fred Whitcroft is Manager And Captain of Edmonton Team

Will Leave for West on Friday to Arrange Matters in Connection With Selection and Management of Team—One of Most Popular Athletes in Peterboro' Gets Responsible Appointment.

Mr. Fred Whitcroft will leave the city on Friday, for Edmonton, Alta., where he has been given the position of manager and captain of the Edmonton Hockey team, in the Northwest Professional League, at one of the largest salaries ever paid a player manager.

Last winter Major Stewart of Edmonton, saw Whitcroft play in Winnipeg, and evidently took a decided fancy to him, as he is the one who communicated with him, and forwarded the contract for him to sign. Major Stewart is one of the most enthusiastic advocates of the formation of the new league, and one of the most influential members of the Edmonton Club.

The task that "Whitty" has undertaken is no light one, as he will have to select the members of the team as well as manage and captain the seven. Those who know his executive and playing ability, however, have not the least doubt that he will be able to satisfactorily fulfill the responsibilities in connection with the discharge of the important work entrusted him. He has already signed two or three players, but thinks it is too premature to make mention of their names through the medium of the press.

Whitcroft first broke into the game in Peterborough six years ago, when he played with the Colts in the junior O.H.A. series. Since then he has figured on four championship teams, three in Peterborough, and on the Kenora septette last winter, when that team won the world's championship. He is prounbly the fastest forward ever seen on local ice, and was considered the star of last year's Kenora team. He has been doing considerable apparatus work at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, during the past two weeks and has also done quite a bit of road work. He will be in the best of condition to play the game when the season opens. A number of old Peterborough boys are preparing to give him a right royal welcome when he arrives in the western city. He is being congratulated by his host of friends and admirers in this city on his appointment and will be followed by their best wishes for a successful season for both himself and his team. "Whitty" is universally liked and is one of the most popular players that ever chased a puck on local ice.

Jury Says Frank O'Brien's Death Was Purely Accidental

Verdict Given at Hamilton Last Night--None of the Witnesses Saw the Accident Occur.

Special to the Review.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.—Five witnesses were examined at the inquest last evening, into the case of Frank O'Brien, the Peterborough young man who was killed at the steel plant last Thursday morning. None of the witnesses saw the accident occur, but their opinion was that O'Brien while standing on the top of the car, which was being shunted, shifted his position and in doing so fell. The car wheels passed over his head causing instant death. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to any person.

Grain is Soaring in Price; Crop Shortage is the Cause

Wheat per bushel, $1.00.

Barley, per bushel, 65 to 75 cents.

Oats, per bushel, 50 cents.

The price of grain, like a good many other things, has advanced greatly during the past week or so. The foregoing figures show the prices local dealers are paying.

Today's Toronto dailies give figures much higher than these, as the prices being paid in the Queen City. A prominent Peterborough man, well acquainted with the local grain conditions stated to the Review, that these were only street prices, and were not the proper quotations to go by. A week ago wheat was selling here at 95 cents, and barley at 60 cents, and until yesterday oats were 48 cents. Not more than $1.00 per bushel can be received from wheat shipped from Peterborough. There is none coming in from other places and the dealer observed that he would be very glad if he could purchase a couple of cars of Manitoba wheat. It is not to be procured. Any wheat that Peterborough dealers are handling is from the local market.

It is believed that there is a crop shortage throughout the Dominion this year, and owing to the great demand for grain, the prices have soared.

The two former are for distribution among the members, each of whom will receive six hyacinths and twelve jonquils. They are now being delivered to the members of the society. They may be planted outdoors, or in pots in the house. If outdoors, plant in good, mellow earth three inches below the surface, and before hard frost, cover with a few inches of leaves; if indoors, they may be planted—3 jonquils, in a 5-inch pot; the hyacinths may be grown in water, just touching it, or in pots. Keep in a cool dark place, until roots reach the bottom; then bring to the light.

One Charge Was Dismissed; Another Sustained by Court

Hotel Proprietor Fined $100 and Costs for Violation of Liquor License Act--Case of Having Common Gaming House Dismissed.

His Worship Magistrate Dumble gave judgment in the cases against the National hotel this morning, one being against Ambrose Regan, for keeping a common gaming, house, and the other against J. A. Lawless for selling liquor after prohibited hours on Sunday, October 6.

The charge against Mr. Regan was dismissed.

A fine of one hundred dollars and costs, amounting to $108.55 was imposed on Mr. Lawless for a second breach of the Liquor License Act. His Worship held that the first offence should be sustained.

THE DECISION.

The judgment of His Worship in the case against Mr. Regan, is as follows;

This is a charge of keeping a disorderly house, a common gaming house, laid under Section 228 of the Criminal Code.

I find that a number of men at night and early morning, of Sunday, October 6th, were engaged in poker playing for money, and enjoying some bottled ale, in a room at the National hotel. Now, to play cards for money, with or without liquid accompaniments, is not an offence at law, and is only made such, by statute, when the playing is in a common gaming house. Section 227 of the Code defines a common gaming house as a house, room, or place kept by any person for gain, to which persons resort for the purpose of playing at any game of chance or at any mixed game of chance and skill. The question is, was the room in question kept for gain, for the purpose of gaining. The evidence disclosed that the liquor was supplied from the bar, and if there was any gain to the proprietor or Manager Regan, it was out of the ale supplied, but a more serious objection is that there was no evidence that the room was kept for the purpose of gaming. One use of the room does not imply or prove that it was set apart or kept continuously or commonly for that purpose, or that persons frequently resorted to it for the purpose. The decisions reported all decide that to prove the room was kept for the purpose something more than one use must be proved. On this point the evidence failed. The amendment to the Code of 1900 makes the presence of cards or other instruments for gaming, prima facie evidence that the place is a gaming house, but only where such evidence is found by officers who entered the place under a judge's order or warrant, which was not the case here. It is true that the parties caught in the act of playing were all fined, but it was because they saw fit to plead guilty which removed the necessity of giving any evidence. Had evidence been taken, it is not probable that the evidence to prove the house a gaming house would have been elicited. The charge is dismissed.

Board of Works Short Session

Several Matters That Required Attention Dealt With Last Night

The Board of Works held a short session last night, when several minor matters were disposed of. Those present were Ald. Duncan, chairman; Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Johnston, McIntyre, Morgan and Bradburn, City Engineer Hay and Street Commissioner Evans. The order paper was light, although it was necessary that some of the matters should be dealt with at once.

One of the questions that came up was the tangle about the lines on St. Joseph's street, the Board refusing to grant the request of Mr. Thomas Moore for a sidewalk until the street lines are definitely located. It was decided last night to leave the matter in the hands of the city engineer.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, it was decided to pay Martin Neary $100 for the time he has been laid up since meeting with his accident. Mr. Neary was injured while in charge of a sewer construction gang about six weeks ago, and has not been able to work since.

The Mayor moved that the engineer take such steps as he may deem necessary to have the lines of St. Joseph's street properly settled. The motion was seconded by Ald. Johnston and carried.

Ald. Morgan drew the attention of the Board to the bad condition of the sidewalks on Maria and Mark streets in Ashburnham. The walks on these thoroughfares, he said, were in a terrible condition. A lady had been injured on one of them and others would result if something was not done.

It was decided to grant the request of Street Commissioner Evans for two weeks' holidays, commencing November 1st.

Ald. Johnston brought up several matters in connection with the work of the Board, principally as regards improvements to streets and sidewalks, and notes of them were taken by the city engineer.

Boy Possesses a Sixth Sense

Clairvoyant Feats of Norwegian Lad—Some Alleged Successful Tests

London, Oct. 13.—Extremely interesting facts, regarding Johann Fluettum, a boy clairvoyant, of whom all Norway are talking, are narrated by Sir Henry Seton-Karr, who has just returned to London from that country.

Sir Henry has an elk forest, near Sing-Sing, the native place of this boy with a sixth sense, and so interested was he by the well authenticated stories told him by Norwegians of all classes that he invited the lad to his shooting lodge.

"Let me first relate some of the cases reported to me on the spot," said Sir Henry to an Express representative.

"Last season many farmers complained of mysterious losses of sheep. So serious did these disappearances become that it was finally decided to consult young Fluettum.

"The boy at once stated that the sheep had been shot and eaten by Norwegian 'ryper' shooters who needed a change of diet. The 'ryper' is an ordinary red grouse, and there is a certain class of shooters, who live on what they can bring down.

"It is an extraordinary fact that after the boys' statement was noised abroad, no more sheep were missed.

"Another case is that of a little girl who was lost in the woods two years ago, near Aalesund. It was suggested that she had been carried away by an eagle, or had been starved to death.

MISSING GIRL FOUND.

"Fluettum was consulted this spring, and with his eyes closed, deliberated minutely a 'sceter' or mountain farm, where a man lived with three children. He went on to 'see' one of the children, who was picking berries, wander away through the woods, lose her way, and finally fall into the river.

"The body, he said, lay under a certain waterfall, and there sure enough, the remains were found two years after the accident.

Fluettum was equally successful in tracing the body of a mentally afflicted man, which was found in a deep pool. In a very recent case he described the exact spot in the snow where a man had lost his watch and the article was promptly recovered.

"At present two hundred men are searching with the aid of the clues given them by Fluettum, for a girl who was taken by tramps from Christiana to the coast. The boy described a cave in the mountains near Storen, and stated that the girl was alive but very emaciated. When I left Norway, this cave had been discovered, but not properly explored.

"To come to my own experiences with Fluettum, I may say, that they came about through elk hunting and a certain amount of 'chaff' in regard to a big bull elk which I wounded four years ago, in my forest, but could not trace, and whose head I much desired to find.

"There was snow on the ground at the time, and although I followed the trail of blood for a whole day, I never found the beast, and often wondered at its immense staying powers. The rain which followed completely spoilt the trail for the dogs.

TRACING THE ELK.

"Recently I invited young Fluettum to take coffee with me, and discuss that big bull elk. He is an intelligent type of Norwegian boy, about fourteen years of age, with sharp features, and a rather long nose. There is no affectation about him, and when he is asked a question, he puts his elbows on the table covers his eyes with his hands, and describes minutely what he sees.

"I talk Norwegian, and I explained to him where I had started from. Then I drew a rough map for him, and asked him to describe the trail of the elk.

"This he did with his eyes closed. It was an amazingly circuitous trail, ending at a pool, where, he said, the elk's head and leg bones now lie.

"I next asked him to draw a straight line from the spot where I shot the elk to the pool. This was the most amazing part of the performance. Without a moment's hesitation he drew a straight line from one spot to the other, with his eyes closed, marking off with his pencil intervals of one hundred yards. He informed me that the spot where the head lies is exactly 4,800 yards, as the crow flies, from the spot where I shot the animal.

"One of the 'intervals' was a trifle shorter than the others. When I asked him the reason for this, he explained that he was taking into account a sharp dip in the ground at this spot. This particular dip I knew well, and I was more impressed by this little detail in the boy's drawing than by anything else.

"Of course, I am having the spot explored and in a few days I shall hear if the elk's head is where the boy say it. I should certainly not be surprised if it were."

Hundreds of letters from all parts of the world reach the boy every week, and quite recently he received a very tempting offer to display his powers in London.

HYDRANT FOR ENGLEBURN AVE

Fire, Water and Light Committee Decides to Grant Request—Other Matters Dealt With

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last night after the Board of Works had adjourned, Ald. Johnston, chairman, presiding. It was decided to grant a request for a hydrant on Engleburn Avenue, the feeling being that it would be well to encourage the building up of that part of the city, which is a very desirable residential section. Requests for light on Lansdowne street, Weir street, Gladstone avenue, and Munro avenue, were also granted.

A request was received from Mr. R. A. Elliott, asking for a hydrant on Engleburn avenue. Mr. J. W. Blakey also sent in a similar request.

On motion of Ald. Morgan, seconded by the mayor it was decided to grant the request, provided the Water Works Department make the necessary extension of the water works. Mr. Elliott and Mr. Blakey also asked for four incandescent lights on Engleburn avenue, but the request was not granted for the present time at least.

The City Clerk was instructed, on motion of Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Light and Power Co. and ask them to make the changes in certain lights they had promised the committee to do.

A communication was received from several residents on Lansdowne street asking for a light on that street. The letter stated that the sidewalk was bad and the light was badly needed. Ald. Duncan moved that two incandescent lights be placed on Lansdowne, one on Gladstone avenue and one on Weir street, near the cemetery. Ald. Morgan seconded the motion with the provision that two lights be put in on Munroe Ave. or Knox street in Ward 5, as the chairman may designate. Carried.

No Town or City in Province Can Compare With Peterboro'

As Regards Percentage of Increase in Population for the Past Year—Statistics That Will be Read With Interest.

According to the assessment returns for the present year, the increase in population in Peterborough is greater than that of any of the larger towns and cities in Ontario. This is something of which citizens may well feel proud as it goes to show that Peterborough is the most progressive centre in the province. Not only is the increase in population, or rather, the percentage of increase, greater, but there is a comfortable margin to spare, as will be seen below.

The population of Peterborough, according to this year's returns, is 16,000, as compared with 14,962 for last year, a again of 1,038, or 6.9 per cent.

Waterloo has the next highest percentage of increase, 4.6, while Brantford is third with 4.2 per cent.

The following statistics regarding other towns and cities in the Province will prove of interest:—

The assessment figures for 1908 give Hamilton a population of 63,-756, an increase of 2,313, and a total assessment of $37,361,442—an increase of $2,653,214.

The percentages of increase in Hamilton are:—

Population, 1906 assessment, 61,443, a gain of 1,896, or 3.18 per cent.

Population, 1907, assessment, 63,-756, a gain of 2,313, or 3.76 per cent.

Brantford returns show a population of 19,836, an increase of 804 over the figures of 1906, or a trifle over 4.2 per cent.

Stratford reports 14,062 population, a gain of 843 in the year, or 6.37, per cent—on of the best showings of the lot.

Woodstock, with a population of 9,-601, counts a gain of 179 in 1906, or near 1.9 per cent.

Ottawa, which in 1906, reported a gain of over 1,706, or over 2.8 per cent, has this year a population of 65,-572, a gain of 361 in the year, or about .71 of 1 per cent of a gain.

London, which last year reported a gain of 1,412, or over 3.3 per cent. increase, has this year a reported population of 44,704, an increase of 1,050, or nearly 3.6 per cent.

Chatham's population is now 7,942, an increase of 243 in the year, or 2.5 per cent.

Waterloo has a population of 4,403, an increase of 195 over last year, or 4.6 per cent. The assessment has also increased by about $80,000.

Kingston reports a population of of 18,626, an increase of 202, or nearly 1.1 per cent.

Telescope to Circulate Among Members of Society

It will be pleasing news to the members of the local branch of the Royal Astronomical Society to learn that the president, Rev. Dr. Marsh has succeeded in getting a three inch telescope from the society at Toronto for the use of the members of the Peterborough branch. It is understood, that arrangements are being made, whereby the telescope will be circulated among the members, each one having it for a few days in order that they may become familiar with its workings and observe the heavens and learn for themselves.

The branch of the society in Toronto is a strong organization, and always willing to help along the newer and smaller branches. The telescope that has been lent the Peterborough branch is a fine instrument. It is three inches in diameter, and is very satisfactory for observation work. The members of the society are fortunate in having it at their disposal.

REV. MR. KEITH SPOKE ON INDIA

Gave Interesting Address Before Faithful Workers Mission Band.

A well attended meeting of the Faithful Workers' Mission Band of St. Paul's church, was held last evening. The special feature of last night was the address, illustrated by limelight views, on "India," by Rev. R. J. Keith, pastor of Knox church. The lecture kept the audience interested throughout, Mr. Keith relating many incidents experienced in his work in that country.

Dr. Malcolm McCullough, ably occupied the chair in addition to the lecture, Miss Jean Hill gave an instrumental solo. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Talling.

DENTISTS SEE NEWEST GOODS

Many Call Upon Traveller From London, England

Dr. Rose, a dental surgeon of London, England, was at the Oriental last night, being the travelling representative of the Ash Company, of London, manufacturers of dental goods. Dr. Rose was visited by nearly all the local dentists and demonstrated to them the goods of the firm he represents.

In view of the fact that everything has been going up in price, some people thought that the gathering of the dentists had something to do with increased prices, but happily, such is not the case.

Send in Appeals Without Delay

Only a Few Days to Protest Against Assessment

Only a few days remain in which to make appeals against the assessment for 1908 and those who are not satisfied with the valuation set upon their property by the assessors should hand in their appeals at once. A large number of protests have been received at the city clerk's office, and more are coming in steadily. Apparently the Court of Revision is going to have a busy time when it meets early in November. The Court this year is composed of Messrs. Wm. Langford, A. E. Dickson and Bernard Morrow.

International Y.M.C.A. Meeting

Preparations for Great Gathering to be Held at Washington Next Month

Washington, Oct. 15. — Arrangements are afoot for the thirty-sixth international convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, which is to assemble here on November 22 and continue its sessions for four consecutive days. The local committee of arrangements is one of the most influential and energetic that has been appointed for religious or other events, for some time, and, it has, in turn, been sub-divided into smaller working bodies, all of which are bustling within the limits of their respective lines of duty, with the evident determination of leaving nothing undone to bring about successful results, socially and otherwise.

It is noteworthy that this will be the first time that the international convention has been held in the capital of the American nation, since 1871, when in old Lincoln Hall it was warmly welcomed to the city by President Ulysses Grant, its presiding officer at that time being John Wanamaker, the merchant prince of Philadelphia, New York, and Paris, and who served later on in President Harrison's term, as postmaster-general, with conspicuous ability, and with material benefits to the international postal service.

CANADIAN SPEAKERS

The day sessions of the convention will be held in Continental Hall, Seventeenth street, and the evening sessions in Convention hall, Fifth and L streets, north west. A number of distinguished speakers will address the delegates. Among the speakers will be Ambassador James Bryce, William J. Bryan, J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe; Dr. Robert Johnston, of Montreal; Commissioner of Immigration Watchorn, of New York; Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, of New York; Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president Union Theological seminary, New York who has recently made a tour of the world; Dr. Seldon P. Spencer, of St Louis, Dean Edward L. Bosworth, of Oberlin College; Bishop C. H Brent, head of the Episcopal church work at Manila; Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, of Philadelphia; Bishop William F. McDowell, of Chicago; Robert E. Speer, and Alfred E. Marling, New York.

Arrangements are also being actively pushed providing for a series of vigorous evangelistic meetings for men, young and old, to be held in various sections of the city during the sessions of the convention, each of which will be addressed by men of international reputation.

That this great gathering will be one of the most important of recent years, may be noted from the significant fact that many foreign countries, outside of North America, will be represented by large bodies of delegates, of whom there will be considerably over 2,000. The world's committee, at Geneva, Switzerland, will be represented by its chairman, R. Farnsin-Warnery, and one of its general secretaries, Christian Phildius. Great Britain, France, Russia, China, Japan, India, Australia, Philippines, and at least two countries of South America, are among the countries from which delegates are already assured.

TOPICS ON PROGRAMME.

Among the noteworthy topics to be discussed at the convention, are the following; "What Constitutes a Nation's Greatness?" "Some Subtle Perils in the Pathway of Young Men in our Time." "The Call of the Nation." "The Nation's Need of Strong Christian Young Men." "Civic Responsibilities of Christian Young Men." "Social Responsibilities of Christian Young Men." "The Association a Challenge to Service." "The Application of the Truth of God to the Lives of Young Men the Secret of Power." "The Supremacy and Sufficiency of Jesus Christ to Meet all Needs of Young Men." "The Holy Spirit, the Source of Continued and Increasing Vitality of the Young Men's Christian Association." "The Young Man in his Daily Life as a Personal Representative of Jesus Christ." "The Type of Young Manhood to be Developed by the Association, to meet the needs of the Present Day." "The Fraternal Spirit of the Association." "The Association and the Immigrant." "The Association and the Workingman." "Religions Beyond, or Open Doors in the Work of the North American Associations." "Essential Unity of the Human Race Realized in Jesus Christ." "How Can the Young Men's Christian Association in The Future Render the Largest Service to the Church?"

BURNED BY STOVE WOOD

Organist's Tribute to Zam-Buk.

When you get a burn or a scald lose no time in putting on a little Zam-Buk balm. It soothes the pain at once and heals quickly. H. E. Jenner, organist of Carman, Man., writes:—"Some little time ago I took hold of a piece of wood in a box stove that I wished to move, thinking it had not caught fire. Unfortunately it was very hot and burned my thumb severely. I used some Zam-Buk handy and applied it, then bandaged up the thumb. The Zam-Buk took the fire out of the wound almost instantly and eased the pain. It seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the injury and give quick relief. I was very glad of this, because I had an engagement to play at an organ recital a few days later. Thanks to Zam-Buk I was able to keep the appointment.

Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price 3 boxes for $1.25.

A musical festival was held at the Salvation Army barracks last evening, and the large hall was well filled with an appreciative audience. The programme was of an exceedingly high order of merit and Bandmaster Greene is to be congratulated on the excellence of the music presented. The local S. A. Band is a credit to the city, and will compare favorably with those of the leading corps in Ontario. There are about forty members in the organization and, by constant practice, they have attained a high degree of efficiency.

THE ASSESSMENT

The assessment figures have been published and citizens are now afforded an opportunity of studying them.

The increase on the total taxable assessment is $1,936,632 and out of this ward, No. 1 yields $1,143,277. The question arises, have values in that district, in view of the rapid increase in population, and active building operations, elevated too high. The residents in the southern part of the corporation believe that they have. They contend that a jump averaging almost 44 per cent. is altogether out of reason. The advance in assessment in the ward alone is within $415,476 of being equal to that in the other four wards of the city. Conclusions should not be too speedily arrived at, however, and the Court of Revision should carefully investigate the whole matter of values.

The resolution carried at a public meeting a week ago, was not too radical. It was a fair expression of the views of residents gathered from all sections of the city, and was unanimously carried. It is well worth repeating and studying now that the assessment returns from each ward are to hand. Here it is:—

"That this meeting of citizens, called by the Board of Trade of the City of Peterborough, after hearing and discussing the assessment for 1908, and this large increase, and, as claimed, this unjust assessment, especially in wards 1 and 2, this meeting would respectfully impress on the members of the Court of Revision, the desirability of thoroughly investigating the conditions affecting the assessment of 1908, and if such assessment is unjust to any citizen of the city, we recommend such assessment should be equalized in the interests of both citizens and city."

In connection with the foregoing, study carefully the present total assessments in each ward. Here they are:—

Ward No. 1—$6,315,780.
Ward No. 2—$5,777,574.
Ward No. 3—$1,757,639.
Ward No. 4—$1,012,420.
Ward No. 5—$727,859.

The increase in assessment in each ward is,—

No. 1 Ward—$1,143,277.
No. 2 Ward—$667,511.
No. 3 Ward—$402,846.
No. 4 Ward—$208,136.
No. 5 Ward—$66,966.

THE CITY'S GROWTH

"Peterborough advance" seems to be a splendid motto, and the city is living up to it. In two years the gain in the number of inhabitants has been 1600. This is a pretty good record. In 1906 the advance was 571 and this year it is 1029, or nearly double the previous twelve months. Peterborough bids fair to keep on growing. The future is bright with promise. Indications clearly point to even greater prosperity in the future. When the Trent Canal is completed the new C.P.R. grain line from here to Victoria Harbor in operation and the Midland division doubled tracked our transportation facilities and communication will be greatly increased. Peterborough will then enjoy access by rail and boat which cannot be surpassed.

It is interesting to note that only three places in the whole province of Ontario, according to the returns handed in by the assessors in the different cities lead. Toronto, Hamilton and London are big cities and naturally grow rapidly. They show a greater lead than Peterborough as would be expected, but this city leads Ottawa, Brantford, Kingston and other places larger and older than we are. The exact figures will be found in another column of the Review. It is, therefore, not necessary to quote them here. Peterborough's expansion is natural. There has been no boom, no unusual rush of any kind, and what we have we are likely to hold. In another five years, or by 1912, it is confidently expected there will be 25,000 residents here. In fact this figure is regarded as a very conservative one. All the wards show an increase except ward four. The greatest advance is in ward No. 1, where the increase is 18 per cent., while the whole city has gone ahead nearly ten per cent. In the extreme southern ward the gain was 848. This district is certainly located in the booming portion and it looks as if the Board of Education made no mistake in placing the new King Edward school in that section, thus furnishing much needed accommodation and making ample provision for the future.

The churches are also on the move and are preparing to look after the spiritual requirements of the incoming residents. All Saints' church has begun excavation for a larger edifice. Park street Baptist are doing likewise and the Methodists are contemplating the erection of a new house of worship in this swiftly expanding portion of the city. Knox church has recently had its accommodation augmented by the addition of a gallery. These enlarged church structures and schools are timely and evidence wise foresight. The spiritual and educational needs of the many new families coming to Peterborough to reside will thus be faithfully and adequately met.

HEALTH OF CHILDREN

Toronto is dealing with the physical defects of the school children. The school authorities have adopted the New York plan. It is to have the principals and teachers so instructed that they can detect defects in eyes, teeth, noses, ears and report them to the home.

The teachers, it is argued, can sometimes make discoveries which the parent will not. The family physician is expected to follow up the report by personal treatment, and when the family physician is not called in, the health department will prescribe the treatment.

What the Kingston board will do about the report of Dr. Knight no one can say, but it certainly reveals conditions that are very surprising. Who would have supposed, that so many children are defective in eyes and teeth? The tests were confined to one school, and it is gratifying to know that the parents have favorably regarded this information which they received. They have shown this in the manner in which they have profited by it.

The damage to the teeth cannot be avoided in the school, but the sight can be protected by the better lighting of the schools. Long since it was established that cross lights—or lights between the scholars and the blackboards—were trying, if not injurious, to the sight, and in one or two schools are the windows so located in the buildings, and the desks so placed, in the class rooms, that the proper conditions may be attained.—Kingston Whig.

PEN POINTS

Just watch Peterborough grow!

How do you like your assessment?

It begins to look as if the harvest for the Court of Revision will be a heavy one.

The price of milk went ambling up,
Likewise the cost of bread,
And now the booze is climbing, too,
We'll cut it out, 'Nuff said.

We might have stood the advance in the price of bread, of milk, and of coal, but when it comes to whiskey going up ten cents per gallon patience ceases to be a virtue.

The weight of all bread in the future will be three pounds to a loaf. The only thing heavier about this article of daily consumption, is the price.

An increase of 1,033 in the city's population during the past year is something to shout over. Hats off, gentlemen! Now give three cheers and a tiger.

No. 1 Ward gained 848 in population during the past year, and $1,143,227 in assessment. The advance in population is about 18 per cent.; in valuation the gain is a little over 44 per cent.

This year the tax rate was 17 1-2 mills on the dollar. With an increase for 1908 of $1,936,632 in the taxable revenue of Peterborough, the rate should be materially reduced.

The assessment for next year is certainly high enough for the city council to reduce the tax rate by three or four mills on the dollar, and still have ample revenue to provide for all the civic departments.

Berlin is going to feed the "drummers" in recognition of the way they have boosted the town. Peterborough might well consider such a proposition. There are no less than 111 "drummers" permanently residing here, and they have never failed to speak a good word for this city.

The population of the province is steadily increasing in these prosperous times. Hamilton reports an increase of 2,609, Brantford 804, Stratford 843, London 1,050, Chatham 243, Waterloo 195, Kingston 202, Peterborough 1,033. Hurrah for Peterborough!

Just now, when bribery and corruption seem to be the order of the day, Canadian politicians and the people might turn their eyes towards Worcester in the Old Country. In that city partisans embarked on a policy of underhand work and were found out. They paid the penalty and a heavy one it was. One member lost his seat, some of the ringleaders were smartly fined, and a royal commission was appointed to cleanse the city of corruption. The result was that Worcester nearly crossed the line of disfranchisement, and now has to levy a stiff tax upon all householders to pay the cost of the commission. The many suffered for the sins of the few, but it is certain that the punishment will prove effective. If our legislature would inflict similar penalties Canada would hear less of bribery and corruption and get on the highway of election purity.

The Toronto Telegram declares that "it is the simple truth to say that the evil of drinking and the curse of drunkenness have enormously increased in Toronto in the last few years," and that 'untold harm' has been done by the surrender of posts in high places to the shoddy and vulgar superstition that a family cannot adequately celebrate the wedding of a daughter without feeding champagne by the bucketful to the sons, yes, and the daughters, of other families." This is a fearful indictment, and, though couched in somewhat exaggerated language, is no doubt true in the main. The Telegram admits that the increase of drinking has not been among the poor and lowly, who might be expected to fly to drink to soothe their sorrows, but among the so-called better class. No wonder Canon Welch spoke out in meeting the other Sunday. We should be loath to think that any such practice abounds among the better classes in Peterborough.

LIFE IN OLD LONDON.

Well-Dressed Women Go Into Selling Matches On Streets.

The London Daily News has the following article, which rather surprises readers in Canada, but it shows what conditions prevail in the congested districts of the British metropolis.

There are signs of a marked revival in the profession of street match-selling, it states. Experienced professors of the art are grumbling because they are now faced with a class of competition that it is difficult to meet. Most Londoners have become familiar with the ultra-respectable-looking young man in frock coat and blue eyeglasses, who was not long in learning the times of the day and night when mute appeals were likely to be most fruitful; but interested people received a shock recently when a well-dressed lady, in the person of Mrs. Baker, entered the humble profession quietly in the west end.

The regular vendors yesterday had another sharp twinge of surprise. Not only was Mrs. Baker still amiliingly awaiting the patronage of the nobility and others near the living statuary picture outside the London Pavilion, but almost exactly opposite, against the Criterion Restaurant, was a younger lady engaged in a similar attempt to accumulate coppers.

Mrs. Baker, over the way, chatted with the animation of an old hand as customer after customer came up; but the shy lady outside the Criterion seemed to shrink from the public eye when asked why she was match selling. Pleasant looking and clad attractively in neat black, with a fluffy grey boa, flowing white ribbons, and a picture hat, the tray of matchboxes slung from her shoulders made her a striking picture.

She was "doing it," she declared, because she had nothing else to do. She was a typist, and her parents, who knew nothing of her desperate enterprise, lived at Horsham.

"I have been in London," she said, "for three years, but six weeks ago I lost my situation as a typist because my employers found somebody else who was ready to take less money. I have tried very hard indeed to get another situation, but I have failed, and one of my girl friends suggested I should do this.

"I haven't got used to being stared at yet, and I am afraid I shall never make a fortune."

At the same time, she was determined not to give in on account of the stage fright.

DEIFIED ENGLISHMEN.

British Officers Enshrined as Japanese Gods.

In the great national shrine of Yasukuni, in Tokio, the annual ceremony of formally worshipping the spirit guardians of the Japanese empire has just taken place.

There are enshrined in this national pantheon the spirits of all who have rendered notable services to their country, the latest additions being of those who laid down their lives in the late war with Russia.

Among these future gods of the Japanese race are to be found the names of three Englishmen, the commander and two officers of the ill-fated transport ship Hitachi Maru, which, with more than 1,100 soldiers, was sunk in the Japan Sea by a Russian cruiser during the early part of the war. The official tablets deifying the spirits of these three Englishmen have now been formally set up among the illustrious names on the roll of fame.

The Mikado, the Crown Prince, and all the greatest personages of the country were present, and it was curious to see his Imperial Majesty in an attitude of worship before an invisible array of divinities, including the spirits of an alien race.

It is satisfactory and significant that the first race to be so honored should be our own, and the distinction should strengthen the bonds between us and our Far Eastern allies.

Even the Japanese themselves appeared to realize that the event stood for a new inter-racial feeling. "That a Japanese should die for his country," says one of the leading editors of the native press, "is in the nature of things, but that foreigners should have sacrificed themselves for Japan's sake is deserving of the profoundest recognition."

Between the Boards.

So keen has woman's competition with man become that she has actually taken to walking the streets between sandwich boards.

Miss Sheila Lascelles is the daring lady who has thus created another precedent for her sex, and her first essay was made on Monday, when she startled pedestrians in the West-end by appearing with the regulation bill boards.

Asked what induced her to take up her unusual task, Miss Lascelles said, "Nowadays one must be original, and one day as I passed a weary line of men carrying boards I suddenly thought, 'there has never been a lady sandwichman before.' Result, here I am."

Miss Lascelles has been a great traveler, and has also had considerable experience on the stage.

"I have played leading parts in London and all the big centres of Great Britain, as well as in Ireland, my native country," she says. "My experience, however, only includes drama, pantomime, and musical comedy. My desire is to get on the halls."

Watching Plants Grow.

Procure a little collomia seed. Take one of the seeds and with a razor cut off a very tiny slice, place it on a slide, cover with a glass and place under the microscope. The instrument must be in a vertical position. When it is well focused and lighted, moisten it with a drop of water. The seed will absorb the moisture and throw out a very large number of spiral fibers, giving the appearance of veritable germination. Beginners will find it easier if one applies the moisture while the other looks through the instrument.

The remains of Mrs. Cassie Chadwick have been brought to Woodstock for burial by relatives.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 12 were 4295 cattle, 2843 sheep and lambs, 4202 hogs and 806 calves, while the offerings this morning for local consumption consisted of 1400 cattle, 1250 sheep and lambs, 1900 hogs and 600 calves. There has been no new developments in the cattle situation since this day week. Supplies continue to come forward very freely, which consist largely of unfinished steers. Heifers and cows and choice beeves are very scarce on account of the fact that farmers will not feed them, owing to the scarcity of feedstuffs thruout the country and the very high prices ruling for the same, as compared with previous years. The local and outside demand was not so active as a week ago.

Sales of choice cattle here were made at 4¾c to 5c; good at 4c to 4¼c; fair at 3½c to 3¾c; common at 2½c to 3c, and canners at 1½c to 1¾c per lb.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were fully 600 head smaller than a week ago, and in consequence a stronger feeling developed in the market for the former, which resulted in prices being advanced ½c to ¾c per lb., but sheep values were firm and unchanged. The demand for local consumption and export account continues good and an active trade was done. Sheep sold at 4c to 4¼c, and lambs at 5½c to 6c per lb. The demand for calves was good, of which the offerings were fair. Choice stock sold at $12 to $15; good at $8 to $10; fair at $5 to $7, and common at $3 to $4 each.

In sympathy with the stronger cable advices on Canadian bacon, and the advance in prices of 1s to 2s per cwt., during the past week, in all the leading European markets, a firmer feeling prevailed in the local hog situation this morning, but prices show no change, as compared with those of a week ago, but they are a trifle higher than those paid last Wednesday. Receipts were large, for which the demand was good from local dealers and packers, and trade was active, with sales of small lots at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

DOCTOR DARE NOT SCORCH.

Urgent Call No Excuse for Excessive Speed, Says Magistrate.

New York, Oct. 15.—An interesting decision to the effect that a doctor has no right to exceed the automobile speed regulations, even though he is responding to a life and death call, was made by Police Magistrate Herrmann yesterday.

"Doctors have no right to race their automobiles when answering hurry calls," said the magistrate, "for they might kill a dozen people, while rushing to save the life of one."

The defendant in the case, a chauffeur for a physician, was fined $10.

Kingston, Oct. 15.—The death occurred yesterday morning at Clifton Springs, N. Y., of Judge John MacPherson Hamilton, formerly of Kingston. He was the eldest son of the late Hon. John Hamilton, Kingston, and his mother was a sister of the late Sir David MacPherson.

He studied at Upper Canada and Queen's colleges, and then entered the office of Sir John A. Macdonald as a law student. He practiced in partnership with Mr. Philpotts at Toronto until 1851, when he was appointed district attorney and clerk of the peace in the newly-organized judicial district of Algoma. In 1884 he was made Queen's counsel, and appointed judge of Thunder Bay district. In 1895 he became county judge of Halton. Five years ago superannuation was granted.

Priests Ejected in France.

Landerneau, Department of Finisterre, France, Oct. 15.—The priests of the Department of Finisterre having generally refused to quit their presbyteries, which reverted to the communes, under the church and state separation law, are now being expelled by the aid of gendarmes.

At many places resistance was encountered. At Relecq, the gendarmes were forced to break in the doors of the presbyteries in order to eject the priests, who were surrounded by weeping women, and at Penneran, after a tumultuous scene, the gendarmes took possession of the bell in the tower of the church in order to prevent the irate populace from arousing the people.

Stripped Engine of Brass.

Stratford, Oct. 15.—John Hall, 17 years old, was yesterday summoned to the Police Court on a serious charge of theft, that of stripping an engine in a cordage factory of all its brass valves and fixtures and disposing of them to junk dealers.

By Hall's act the engine was crippled and considerably damaged. He was remanded and will appear to-day.

Fast Professional Forward Gives Views on Hockey Situation

Does Not Think Outlook is Very Roseate in International League—Has Figured on Houghton and American Soo Sevens—Thinks Whitcroft is a Good One.

Mr. A. H. Baker, the well known professional centre forward, was in the city last night and expressed some opinions relative to the professional hockey outlook. Mr. Baker has figured on line oup of Houghton and the Michigan Soo, and is well posted in hockey matters. He does not look to weigh over 140 pounds, but is athetic and agile in appearance. He was with Houghton the first year that place had a team in the International League and has since played with the American Soo.

"What do you think of the prospects for a successful season in the International League," he was asked.

"Well, to tell the truth," he replied, "I don't think they are very bright. Last year all the teams wound up to the bad financially, and the public in many cities which have teams in the league seem to be losing interest. Houghton and Calumet went behind last winter to the extent of about $2000 each and all the other teams suffered to a greater or less extent."

"What team should you judge would have the best chance for the silverware?"

"From present indications the American Soo looks good to me, but as long as Houghton holds D'Arcy Regan and a few of the other good ones they should make a pretty strong bid. Of course this is only speculation and it's hard to tell what may develop before the season is over. The Canadian Soo is keeping under cover all matters in connection with the personnel of their team, and their plans for the season, and are liable to spring a surprise."

"How about the Western Manitoba league."

"Kenora apparently is going to have a good team, with some of last years stalwarts to fall back on. Edmonton has also the nucleus of a speedy bunch, but I am not very familiar with the arrangements made by the Portage La Prairie team in the matter of securing players. Talking about Edmonton, by the way, I believe that Fred Whitcroft is going to manage the team in that town. I saw him play with Midland against Victoria Harbor and he certainly is a speedy man. He was only developing then, however, and was not the star he is now."

Mr. Baker has also figured extensively in lacrosse and football, but has not been so prominent in these lines of sport as he has in hockey.

Just Hear What Lou Marsh Says

Feels Sore and Blue Because Vics. Lost Here on Saturday

The senior Victorias were beaten by Peterborough in the opening game of the senior O.R.F.U. series by 10—6 Saturday at Peterborough. The despatches say that the Vics were easy, but the Vics' management say that Peterborough hadn't anything on them as long as the game was football. When the Peterborough team found that the Vics were liable to give them serious trouble they roughed it up unmercifully," said the Vics' manager today. "The light back division were kneed, punched, and throttled into submission in the last of the first half, and after that it was all Peterborough. When 'Babe' Hewitt, who was playing centre half for the Vics, was laid out, the whole back division went to pieces. The culmination of an afternoon's brutality was when big Hurtubise, the Peterborough giant scrimmager, a man standing 6 feet 3 or 4, and weighing close to 195 pounds, deliberately punched 'Tiny' Hewitson, of the Vics, a youngster who weighs about 125 pounds, and knocked him down. Hurtubise got the rest of the game, about 4 minutes. Peterborough has one real good man, Coledge, their centre half. He is a grand punter, drop-kicker, and fine plunger. Our boys are pretty badly bruised up, but, with the exception of Hugh Brown, who was kicked in the side by Hurtubise, and Hewitt, who was put out by a punch over the heart, all will be there for the game here with Peterborough."—Toronto Star.

This is what Lou Marsh says in last night's Star. It is a nice thing in a way to work on a paper—nowadays—for one to in a position to air his views as they right or wrong, to a greater or less degree of his own satisfaction. The fact of the matter is that Marsh is sore. He isn't to be taken seriously, of course. No one that gets sore because he is squarely beaten, is. And if any team was ever beaten squarely, the Vics were on Saturday last, when the Peterborough fifteen trimmed them by a score of 10—6. It must not be thought for an instant that Marsh voices the sentiments of the Vics as a team, for they are good sports—win or lose. After the game was over on Saturday Marsh shook hands with Hurtubise and said he hoped there was no hard feelings, and yet he gives space to such childish dope in the columns of the paper to which he feebly contributes.

RUGBY

The Rugby Club will run an excursion to Toronto on Saturday next when the locals meet the Vics in the return senior O.R.F.U. game provided a large enough guarantee list can be secured to ensure the excursion being a financial success. As now it is held, the return fare will be $2.05 and the children's fare, $1.05. The train will leave here at the most convenient hour in the afternoon that can be arranged for, and will probably not leave Toronto until after 11 p.m. Thus giving those who go an opportunity of attending the theatre. All who wish to take in the trip will kindly leave their names at Mac's tobacco shop or at the uptown C.P.R. ticket office.

NEWS PRAISES COLLEDGE

Commenting on Saturday's game here, the Toronto News says;

"The principal feature of the afternoon was the drop-kicking of Colledge, who played centre-half for Peterborough. He scored four from the field, kicking one of them with his left foot. Colledge is one of the best halves that has ever played in the O.R.F.U. and is fit for a position in any company. He is a good tackle, and a hard man to get while his kicking was remarkable.

"The local team was much heavier than the visitors, and were in much better condition, standing the hard tackling without any apparent harm."

RUNNING

Alfred Shrubb, the English runner has written to the papers saying that the Ward Marathon course, that Longboat covered the other day in record breaking time, is not nineteen miles, and says he cannot understand how the distance was made in such remarkable time. He might have been able to though, had he been in the race.

A NEW PLAYER FOR CITY LEAGUE

Mr. Ernest Armstrong Formerly of Thessalon is in the City.

Mr. Ernest Armstrong, who has been in the city for about two months in the capacity of wine clerk at the Hotel National, will be a valuable addition to the City League ranks this coming winter. He has informed the Review that he intends to play with some team in the league but, said he was not in a position to definitely state what team it would be. Mr. Armstrong has had a wide experience in amateur hockey and has been identified with several fast teams. During the season of 1903-04 he played with Thessalon, which had a splendid intermediate seven, getting as far as the semi-finals, in the O.H.A., being defeated by Midland in Sudbury by a score of 4-2.

He played centre forward and he and McKay, the right wing, were responsible for the majority of the goals scored by Thessalon during the season.

PRACTICE AT 7.30 TO-NIGHT

New Signals for Saturday's Game Will be Rehearsed

There will be a practice of the rugby team tonight at 7.30 at Riverside Park, when the new code of signals for the game with the Vics in Toronto on Saturday, will be rehearsed and a general practice held. As the Toronto fifteen will be greatly strengthened for the match a full turnout of players is asked for. Those who are not on the line-up are asked to be on hand with the others, in order that the team may be given a good workout.

This afternoon he is presenting the scholastic prizes to the winners at Trinity College School, donated by himself.

The car was a very fine one and elegantly equipped.

Work Will Soon Start in Lindsay

Mr. W. H. Lytle, foreman of outside construction work, for the Canadian Machine Telephone Co., was in the city last night on business. He returned this morning to Brantford, where he has been for some time superintending the establishing of a machine 'phone system in that city and on Thursday will visit Lindsay to look after the work that will be commenced in the Sturgeon town, in connection with the installation of the system there. Nine hundred poles have been shipped to Lindsay, and everything is in readiness for the commencing of operations involved in the establishment of both overground and underground equipment.

Will Tax Rate be Reduced?

Likely to be Lower Than Last Year as Result of Increase in Assessment

Will the rate of taxation for 1908 be lowered as a result of the increase in the assessment. This is the question which everyone is asking since the assessment figures appeared yesterday and not without some reason. Last year the tax rate was 17 1-2 mills, but in view of the fact that there is an increase of almost two million dollars in the taxable assessment, there seems no reason why the rate should not be materially reduced. Of course more money will be needed for 1908 than for 1907 as a result of the new King Edward school, new Collegiate Institute and the improvements to the Queen Alexandra school, and other matters, but despite this it does not seem probable that a rate of 17 1-2 mills will have to be maintained.

A civic official stated this morning that he was sure the rate would be reduced as a result of the increase in assessment.

BASEBALL

Detroit, Oct. 15.—President Yawkey of the Detroit American League Baseball Club added $15,000 as a gift to his players for winning the American League pennant, to their share of the receipts from the world's series, making $36,973.36 The local players will divide.

The share of the Chicago National team in the world's series receipts is $32,960.03. The total attendance at the five games was 78,088, and the gross receipts $101,728.56. The receipts were divided as follows; The National commission, $10,172.85; Chicago and Detroit Baseball Clubs, $15,311.13 each; Chicago National League team, $32,960.04 and the Detroit American League team, $21,953.36.

Had the American League team been successful in the series just closed, and won the world's championship on top of their capture of the American League pennant, Mr Yawkey's gift, it was announced, would have been $50,000 instead of $15,000,

Great Day for Trinity School

Earl Grey Attended Speech Day at Port Hope

Port Hope, Oct. 15.—The visit of the Governor-General to attend the annual speech day of the Trinity College school was the occasion for the whole town making merry and conferring the occasion into a kind of general holiday. All along the route traversed by his Excellency streamers were hung across the streets, whilst in every part of the town flags and bunting were displayed. Visitors flocked to the town from the surrounding neighborhood, and the 9 a.m. train from Toronto was packed with parents and friends of the pupils in spite of the fact that additional cars were put on. "Everyone seems to be going to Port Hope this morning," was the remark made by one of the officials at the Union station, in reply to a fond parent anxious to get a seat during the journey.

His Excellency arrived here about ten o'clock on his special car, and was met by Mayor W. H. Giddy, representatives of the Board of Trade, and members of the County Council of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland. Amongst those present were Mr. H. T. Bush, Col. H. A. Ward, M.P., Col. McNachtan, R. A. Mulholland, T. B. Chalk, J. F. Clark, Harold Barrett, Mayor Munson, of Cobourg; Sheriff O. O. Proctor and Warden O. McNeil, of the United Counties; D. H. Minaker, town clerk of Cobourg, and J. W. Sanders, town clerk of Port Hope.

The Governor-General with his A.D.C.'s, Col. Hanbury Williams and Capt. Newton, drove to the drill hall, where he was met by a guard of honor, consisting of a company of the 46th Regiment, in command of Capt. W. J. Robertson. The interior of the armouries was elaborately decorated, and at one end of the building a large stand had been erected in which all the school children of the town were assembled, having previously made a tour of the principal streets. His Excellency was presented with three addresses, the first being read by Mayor Giddy, the second by H. D. Bush, on behalf of the Board of Trade, and the third by Col. McNachtan, on behalf of the United Counties.

SERMON ON INDIFFERENCE.

The Governor-General made suitable replies to the addresses and the children sang some appropriate songs. His Excellency was subsequently entertained at luncheon in the school and afterwards a service was held in the College Chapel, conducted by the Principal, Rev. Oswald Rigby, Bishop Pinkham, of Calgary, read the lessons and Archbishop Sweatman pronounced the benediction.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. DuMoulin, Dean of Chicago, a former pupil of the college who took as his subject, "Indifference." Indifference, said the preacher, in the course of an able address, was the greatest menace to civilization. In political life it was not the man who voted right, or the man who voted wrong, who was responsible for the faults in legislation, but it was the man who did not vote. It was the curse of civilization that men did not realize that duty must be one thing or the other, instead of remaining indifferent.

The event of this day was the distribution of prizes, which took place in the gymnasium in the presence of a distinguished company. Amongst those present, in addition to the Governor-General and Principal Rigby, were Archbishop and Mrs. Sweatman, Col. Ward, M.P., and Mrs. Ward, Mr. Boyce, M.P., Mr. Northrup, M.P., the Bishop of Calgary, Dean DuMoulin of Calgary, Provost Mackham, Rev. Canon Darling, Mrs. Rigby, E. T. Armour, Mr. D'Arcy Martin, Mrs. Martin, Mr. W. Ince, Mrs. Ince, Mrs. Johnson, Rev. W. C. Allen, Millbrook, Rev. A. J. T. Somerhays, Gore's Landing, Rev. E. A. Langsdeldt, Peterborough, Rev. E. Daniel, Port Hope, Rev. R. B. Grebb, Port Hope, Rev. S. Daw, Hamilton.

THE SCHEME IS NOT FEASIBLE

Milkman Comments on the Proposition That Grocers Should Sell Milk

Commenting on the item published in a local paper yesterday, that grocers might go into the milk business, a local milk vendor stated today that the scheme was not feasible. In the first place, he said, the grocers could not buy the milk any cheaper than the milk men, and as a result could not dispose of it at less money. The people will not pay as much for their milk at a grocery as they would to the milk man, who delivers it at their door. "It might work alright in the winter," concluded the Review's informant, "but the grocers couldn't handle the milk in the summer. Just let them try it and see."

Powder Mills Blown Up and Scores Meet Awful Death

Fifty Killed and Six Hundred Injured in Awful Explosion.

Town Practically Annihilated—40,000 Kegs of Powder Blew Up—Shock Felt Two Hundred Miles Away—Whole Business Blocks Destroyed—Wreckage Caught Fire — Scene Guarded by Soldiers.

Fontanet, Ind., Oct. 16.—Fontanet was practically destroyed yesterday by the explosion of the plant of the Dupont Powder Co. The dead number from 25 to 50. More than 600 persons were injured, and every building in the town was wholly or partially leveled to the ground.

Where stood a thriving and busy town of 1,000 people, last night there was ruin and scattered wreckage.

The dead and more seriously injured have been taken away. Five hundred inhabitants, all more or less injured, remain to gather their scattered household goods, and sleep under tents and on cots, guarded by soldiers of the state.

40,000 Kegs of Powder.

Without warning, the powder mills, seven in number, blew up at 9.15 yesterday morning. They employed 200 men, and of these, 75 were at work when the first explosion occurred in the press mill. In quick succession, the glazing mill, the two coining mills and the powder magazine blew up, followed by the cap mill. In the magazine, situated several hundred yards from the mills, were stored 40,000 kegs of powder. When it blew up, the concussion was felt nearly 200 miles away.

Farmhouses two miles away and schoolhouses equally distant were torn to pieces and their occupants injured. A passenger train on the Big Four Railroad, four miles away, had every coach window broken, and several passengers were injured by flying glass.

Wreckage In Flames.

The mills went up with three distinct explosions, following 90 minutes later by a fourth, even more serious than the others, when the magazine went up. Immediately following the explosions the wreckage caught fire, and the inhabitants of the town, who rushed to the rescue of the mill employes, were powerless to aid those in the ruins. They worked frantically, in constant danger from possible succeeding explosions, unmindful of their ruined homes. Dead and dying were consumed. Eighteen bodies, burned and mangled, were carted to a protected spot to await identification, while the badly injured, numbering upward of 50, were put on a special train and were taken to Terre Haute.

The mills were located one mile south of the town. With the first explosion the employes ran for safety, but most of them were killed or wounded by the quick following explosions in the other mills. When the heat from the burning mills exploded the giant powder magazine, practically destroying the town by the concussion, many of those engaged in rescue work were badly injured and several killed.

Churches In Ruin.

Among the buildings totally destroyed in the town were the Methodist and Christian churches, the depot, all business blocks including a large block just completed, a large warehouse and 500 homes. In many of them the fronts were blown away, while in others the roofs were torn off, the side blown out or they were left a confused mass of collapsed wreckage.

School Buildings Destroyed.

Three school buildings were destroyed, two at Fontanet, and one at Coalbluff, two miles away. All were filled with school children, and every one of them were more or less injured by the collapse of the buildings.

"A four-room schoolhouse was torn to pieces and not one of the two hundred children escaped unhurt. None were fatally hurt. The school building at Coalbluff was turned over and collapsed. The teacher and 90 pupils were more or less injured.

The force of the explosion destroyed all telephone communication with outside towns, and it was with great difficulty that aid was summoned.

Hurried Aid to Injured.

Terre Haute and Brazil sent physicians and nurses with supplies in carriages and automobiles across the country, while special trains were made up and run over the Big Four Railroad for the care of the injured.

Governor Hanly at Indianapolis ordered the Terre Haute Company of the Indiana National Guard here to patrol the ruined district, and protect life and property. The governor arrived last evening about the time the soldiers reached here. He brought with him seven hundred tents and cots for the use of the homeless.

Section Boss Killed.

Stratford, Oct. 16.—Christopher Murphy, G. T. R. section boss at Shakespeare, was struck by a passenger train going east last evening and instantly killed.

Murphy, it is thought, was standing on the track and did not hear the approach of the train. He was about to return home after his day's work. He was a married man and well-known by railroad men all along the line.

Burned by Molten Iron.

Stratford, Oct. 16.—George Munn, an employe of the Grand Trunk, was terribly burned at noon yesterday. While pouring molten metal, it splashed on his face, neck and arms, severely scorching him. His injuries were serious, but he will likely recover.

JAP RIOT IN 'FRISCO

Drunken Logger Crashed Into Window of Laundry.

Attempt to Arrest Him Leads to Furious Onslaught—Wounded Japs In Hospital—Whites Nursing Bruises—Police Fought Crowd With Batons—Many Heads Battered Before Disturbance Was Quelled.

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—As a result of an attack on a Japanese laundry Monday night, the proprietor and one of his employes are in a hospital, many whites are nursing bruises caused by the clubs of the police, and the exterior of the laundry is a wreck. The trouble was occasioned by Joseph King, an intoxicated logger, who crashed into the window of the laundry conducted by Umkekube at 422 Pearl street.

The proprietor and Omura rushed out and dragged King to a rear room, where he was placed in charge of a young Japanese, who stood guard armed with a section of gas pipe, while the other Japanese hurried to summon the police to arrest King. These intoxicated companions of King planned to rescue their friends. Other whites were called in, and there followed a combined attack on the laundry. The streets were soon filled by a large crowd, and a dozen Japanese on the inside sought to repel the invaders.

Policeman Thomas Collier attacked the crowd single-handed. Another officer soon arrived in an automobile, and a riot call brought strong reinforcements. The police charged the crowd with clubs, and many persons were hit. Umkekube and Omura were conveyed to a hospital, where it was found the former was cut about the head, while Omura sustained a fracture of the shoulder. King was found asleep in the rear room, innocent of the trouble he had caused. Attorney Walker of the Japanese Society of America is procuring evidence about the affair.

CAPTURED WITH GOODS.

Alleged Mail Robber Rounded Up at Prince Edward Island.

North Sydney, N. S., Oct. 16.—With $2,955 out of $3,500, two watches and a diamond ring in his possession, John S. Macdonald was arrested at Summerside, P. E. I., yesterday afternoon, charged with having committed the robbery of a postoffice bag containing $3,500 and four registered letters.

The arrest was made by Postmaster Wheat, Charlottetown, assisted by Detective Bradley of the same place. The prisoner was visiting his parents, who live near Summerside, and was totally unaware that the officers were after him. He took his arrest coolly and showed not the slightest resistance.

Postmaster Musgrave of North Sydney postoffice left here in the morning and arrived at Charlottetown at 9 o'clock last night.

Macdonald was taken to the city by the afternoon train and conveyed to the police station, where he will remain till 9 o'clock this morning, when he will be taken to North Sydney. The preliminary hearing will commence on Thursday.

The maximum penalty for mail robbery is life imprisonment.

MAY REMOVE SURTAX.

Germany Said to Have Made Approaches on the Subject.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Following the treaty of reciprocity which has recently been agreed upon between Canada and the French Republic, Canadian Ministers will next summer negotiate a preferential trade arrangement with Germany and with Italy.

Italy has been for some time desirous of improving its trade relations with Canada, and it is now said that Germany, too, has made approaches for the removal of the restrictions on trade that now exist between us and them.

The Germans are willing to reconsider their policy of retaliation against Canada if we are prepared to give them what they regard as a square deal.

Nationalization of Telegraphs.

London, Oct. 16.—The Morning Post says: "In order that the Empire may become a unit for telegraphic purposes, advantages whereof are infinitely greater than the advantage of cheap postage, an imperial girdle of state-owned cables is a vital object of Imperial statesmanship."

The Morning Post is glad, therefore, to note that the opposition party in Canada have placed the nationalization of telegraph lines upon their program.

Hanna After Moose.

Cobalt, Oct. 15.—The T. & N. O. private car Abitibi left Englehart for the north on the Muskeg Limited yesterday morning, bound for Hardpan Cut.

On board were Hon. Mr. Hanna and party of Sarnia friends on their annual moose hunt. The party was in charge of the well-known guides, Willie Friday and Will Moore. Moose are reported as being plentiful in that section.

French Families For Alberta.

London, Oct. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Archbishop of Douce, France, yesterday interviewed Mr. Bruce Walker regarding the emigration of 500 French families to the Province of Alberta next spring. The archbishop, it is expected, will shortly visit Alberta for the purpose of selecting land.

SPEAKER TO REMAIN.

Premier Whitney Denies Yarn That Mr. Crawford Will Retire.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—In respect to the report that Mr. Speaker Crawford would retire from political life upon the dissolution of the present House, and that on accepting the Speakership he had assured the Government he would not again be a candidate, Hon. Mr. Whitney yesterday said:

"To my knowledge nothing of the kind has occurred, and if it had occurred it would have come to my notice. I have no means of forming any opinion whatever as to Mr. Crawford's intentions in respect either to remaining in public life or retiring from it, but certainly no suggestion was ever made from any quarter in regard to what is in that story."

Thief Traced to Border.

Chatham, Oct. 16.—The man who robbed Let Edmunds of Blenheim at the Dresden Fair by deftly picking the well-known horseman's pockets for $350, has been discovered. His name is O'Brien and he belongs to a gang of fake fakirs and pickpockets in London.

Detective Skirving of the Pere Marquette has traced O'Brien as far as the border, but at Detroit last track of him. The authorities all along the Dominion border have been notified and will be on the look-out for O'Brien's return to the land of the maple.

Impudent Forgery.

St. Catharines, Oct. 16.—The name of W. J. L. McKay, County Crown Attorney of Orangeville, was forged to the register of the Village Inn at Grimsby and to a check for $40 in payment of Walter Northrope's hotel bill.

Northrope has been arrested for the deed, and will be given a hearing at Grimsby Thursday before William Allen, justice of the peace, and Reeve Mitchell.

Keep Yellow People Out.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Hon. Joseph Martin of Vancouver, commonly called "Fighting Joe," is in the city on Supreme Court business. He states he was in Vancouver at the time of the riots, and the newspaper reports were not at all exaggerated.

"There is only one solution to the Asiatic trouble on the coast, and that is to keep the yellow race out of the country," says Mr. Martin.

Only Hustlers Make Good.

London, Oct. 16.—Walter Hazell, M. P., who returned Saturday from Canada, said the central unemployed body of London had sent 5,400 men, women and children during the past year to Canada, and during his visit to Canada he had heard of none who wished to return to England.

Mr. Keir Hardie, writing to The Labor Leader, says for the quiet plodding sort of chap Canada is distinctly not the place to emigrate to.

Mr. E. Parks, M. P., in describing the ornate service of some Canadian Methodist churches, says that if he lived in Canada nothing would induce him to have such service.

Charles Allison, found dead in a suburban shack at Winnipeg, was murdered, the police believe.

Cure For The Blues

ONE MEDICINE THAT HAS NEVER FAILED

Health Fully Restored and the Joy of Life Regained.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture. It is usually this way:

She has been feeling "out of sorts"

Mme Josephine Rinville

for some time; head has ached and back also; has slept poorly, been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart-beats very fast; then that bearing-down feeling, and during her periods she is exceedingly despondent. Nothing pleases her. Her doctor says: "Cheer up: you have dyspepsia; you will be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right," and hope vanishes; then come the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES.

Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. See what it did for Madame Josephine Rinville, Mastai, Que. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered for four years with female troubles—inflammation of the stomach and fallopian tubes which caused me violent pain and often torture, so much so that I could not walk at times and attend to my daily duties. Life was misery to me. I was so blue and despondent I did not know which way to turn for relief. I had tried the doctors but they did not help me. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I bought a bottle. I am glad that I did so, for I am well and strong to-day and the world looks bright, for I have perfect health, thanks to your medicine."

If you have some derangement of the female organism write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice.

TRENTON TRAIN WRECK.

Jury Hold Railway Responsible—Had Not Used Proper Precautions.

Trenton, Oct. 16.—The inquest held by Coroner Dr. Earley to fix the responsibility for the death of the young jockey, William Reinhardt, resulting from the accident on the Grand Trunk line, before daylight on Thursday, was resumed Monday night, and the Town Hall was taxed to its utmost capacity, considerable interest being evinced on all sides in the proceedings.

The evidence of the train crews and others was taken and the jury brought in the following verdict:

"We, the jury empanelled to enquire into the cause of the death of William Reinhardt, find that he came to his death by being in a collision at the eastern switch of the Grand Trunk Railway at Trenton on Oct. 10, about 5 o'clock p. m., while in the discharge of his duties.

"The said collision was caused by the engineer, D. J. Kerr, and Brakeman T. Wilson, mistaking the eastern switch for the western one, the light on the western switch being out.

"And we find that the said Grand Trunk Railway is to blame for the collision by not using proper precaution in keeping their switch lights in good condition, and should have a permanent switch as such dangerous points.

PUT BULLET THROUGH THIEF.

Sensational Affair at Winnipeg Ends In Tragic Death.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—City Detective George Smith shot to death Oscar Gans, an alleged thief, as he was making a desperate effort to evade arrest.

The sensational climax of the chase was witnessed by a large number of people, who saw the fugitive leap from McFarlane's tailor shop at 335 Notre Dame avenue, pursued by the detective, rush west to the first corner, turn north for half a block and dash into a lane, turning east.

The officer shot him through the head as he was leaping over a fence, death being instantaneous. Smith had called on him to stop a number of times, but without avail, and fired a number of shots before the fatal one.

Gans appeared at McFarlane's store Monday evening. He had several fur coats with him, and asked Mr. McFarlane if he wished to buy them. McFarlane told Gans that he had no money to pay on the coats then, but stated to the man that he would arrange a sale if he came around next morning.

Detective Smith, who had been shadowing Gans, ascertained from Mr. McFarlane of Gans' visit to the store.

PRISONERS SKIDOO.

J. Burk and W. Grey Escape From Toronto Jail.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—John Burk and William Grey, prisoners at the jail, escaped yesterday morning and are still at large.

Both men were on kitchen duty carrying out slops with two other prisoners. They suddenly bolted through the steward's gate on Broadview avenue. Guard Frisby, who was in charge of them, raised the alarm. Steward McMillan made a dash and succeeded in capturing two of the men at his gate, but Burk and Grey got clear away, and sprinted up Broadview.

The men ran on and were lost in the Rosedale ravine.

The prisoners were "three months-ers." Burk was convicted of illegal liquor selling, Grey hails from Mount Albert, and was found guilty of stealing grain from farmers north of the city. They were waiting transfer to the Central Prison.

WILL ATTACK THE FRENCH.

Mulai Hafid's Army, 8,000 Strong, Is Marching on Casablanca.

Paris, Oct. 16.—In a despatch from Tangier, a correspondent of the Petit Journal says that Mulai Hafid's army, 8,000 strong, is marching on Casablanca with the direct intention of attacking. Gen. Drude, commander of the French forces at Casablanca, is making elaborate preparations for defence. The tribesmen, who recently attacked a French column near Oudja, also are re-forming and preparing for an attack.

Tangier, Oct. 16.—Judging from the latest semi-official declarations here, Sultan Abd-El-Aziz, during the conferences with the French Minister, M. Regnault, at Rabat, invited France to consider the question of establishing a protectorate over Morocco, including the immediate occupation of the entire coast.

The most disquieting feature of the general situation, with the exception of the reported request of the Sultan, that the ports be occupied by French troops, is the practical certainty that an attempt is now imminent to impose foreign military police upon the various seaports of Morocco, which, it is believed, will meet with fierce resistance upon the part of the natives.

The Franco-Spanish authorities have announced their intention of beginning the new international police service early in November, and, with the chief of police, Col. Muller, the ex-officer in the Swiss army, they are now organizing the force and planning its installation.

While professing warm devotion to France, Abd-El-Aziz informed the French Minister, now at Rabat, that, though he gratefully accepted the services of the foreign officers in the organization of the international police, and would pay for them, the actual police force must be composed of Moorish subjects if France and he continue to regard the Algeciras Convention as being binding. France, however, desires to utilize large numbers of the soldiers of the foreign legion, Spahis, and other Algerian troops, known as "The Butchers of Casablanca," which naturally is likely to excite the animosity of the natives.

The importance of the attitude of Abd-El-Aziz towards the proposed French protectorate over Morocco, and occupation of the ports cannot be over-estimated. According to the view taken in diplomatic circles here, it means not only European intervention, probably with a reconsideration of the terms of the Algeciras Convention, but the immediate and thorough resistance of the natives, who are now wrought to the highest pitch of excitement by the report that Abd-El-Aziz is delivering himself completely into the hands of the French.

The resumption of business and restoration of normal conditions at Casablanca, as reported by the pro-French press of Morocco, are disproved by reliable information received here from Mazagan, which says:

"Moors returning here from Casablanca, if caught by the Government troops have ropes put around their necks, and are beaten through the camp."

SAUSAGES AND PUDDING.

Queer Ground For Divorce — Many Suits Filed at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Oct. 16.—A wave of divorce suits has struck Pittsburg. Yesterday common pleas courts Nos. 1, 2 and 3 started to hear the woes of 126 mismated couples all of whom are desirous to be freed of their matrimonial ties. Of the cases that are being heard, wives have brought the action in eighty-two of them, while forty-four husbands have made charges against their wives. Each of the 126 cases was scheduled for trial yesterday morning.

Most of the women charged their husbands with cruelty and infidelity, while most of the men charged their wives with ungovernable tempers.

Mrs. Anna M. Hodge had the most peculiar grievance of any of the women. She said her husband would not give her anything to eat but sausages and rice pudding.

GIRLS VANISHED WITH MONEY.

Wealthy American Relieved of Pocketbook With $1,200.

Paris, Oct. 16.—A wealthy American during the lunch hour Monday of the dressmaking establishments on the Rue De La Paix, got into conversation with two pretty young women, whom he thought were dressmakers. He promised to send them some picture postal-cards from Milan, and drew out his pocketbook and placed a card on it for them to write their addresses. Suddenly the bell recalling the girls to work was heard, and the young women rushed indoors, taking the pocketbook with them. It contained $1,200. The police were notified and found that the girls were not known in any dressmaker's establishment in the neighborhood.

Mr. Aylesworth's Condition.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Hon. A. B. Aylesworth had intended to speak in North Wellington and East Northumberland during the bye-election campaigns, but is compelled by medical orders to forego the arrangement. The affection of the ear from which he is suffering is growing less acute and his hearing is improved. Hon. G. P. Graham intends to speak at both constituencies.

Baby Found In Sewer.

Stratford, Oct. 16.—An unknown baby, aged two months, was found in a sewer tile in front of Robert Burr's residence on Shakespeare street, about 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

The child, a girl, was wrapped in a black shawl, with no evidence to show who its inhuman mother is. It is being cared for at the hospital.

Cabbage His Downfall.

Woodstock, Oct. 16.—John O'Hanly, aged 63 years, was yesterday morning given six months in jail by Police Magistrate Ball. This is O'Hanly's 28th term in the Oxford jail.

His first crime was the theft of a cabbage 40 years ago.

The steam liner, Mariposa, with 118 crew and passengers is lying helpless and without food in the Pacific, ninety miles off Manzanillo.

R. J. SODEN

369 George Street

The Prisoner of Zenda

By... ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

"I'm not made of stone!" I exclaimed.

"You'll do," said he, with a nod. "We must say Fritz here has caught the ague. Drain your flask, Fritz, for heaven's sake, boy."

Fritz did as he was bid.

"We're an hour early," said Sapt. "We'll send word forward of your majesty's arrival, for there'll be no one here to meet us yet. And meanwhile"—

"Meanwhile," said I, "the king'll be hanged if he doesn't have some breakfast."

Old Sapt chuckled and held out his hand.

"You're an Elphberg, every inch of you," said he. Then he paused and, looking at us, said quietly, "God send we may be alive tonight!"

"Amen!" said Fritz von Tarlenheim.

The train stopped. Fritz and Sapt leaped out, uncovered and held the door for me. I choked down a lump that rose in my throat, settled my helmet firmly on my head and (I'm not ashamed to say it) breathed a short prayer to God. Then I stepped on the platform of the station at Strelsau.

A moment later all was bustle and confusion—men hurrying up, hats in hand, and hurrying off again; men conducting me to the buffet; men mounting and riding in hot haste to the quarters of the troops, to the cathedral, to the residence of Duke Michael. Even as I swallowed the last drop of my cup of coffee the bells throughout all the city broke out into a joyful peal, and the sound of a military band and of men cheering smote upon my ear.

King Rudolf V. was in his good city of Strelsau! And they shouted outside:

"God save the king!"

Old Sapt's mouth wrinkled into a smile.

"God save 'em both!" he whispered. "Courage, lad!" and I felt his hand press my knee.

CHAPTER V.

WITH Fritz von Tarlenheim and Colonel Sapt close behind me, I stepped out of the buffet on to the platform. The last thing I did was to feel if my revolver were handy and my sword loose in the scabbard. A gay group of officers and high dignitaries stood waiting me, at their head a tall old man, covered with medals and of military bearing. He wore the yellow and red ribbon of the Red Rose of Ruritania, which, by the way, decorated my unworthy breast also.

"Marshal Strakencz," whispered Sapt, and I knew that I was in the presence of the most famous veteran of the Ruritanian army.

Just behind the marshal stood a short, spare man in flowing robes of black and crimson.

"The chancellor of the kingdom," whispered Sapt.

The marshal greeted me in a few loyal words and proceeded to deliver an apology from the Duke of Strelsau. The duke, it seemed, had been afflicted with a sudden indisposition which made it impossible for him to come to the station, but he craved leave to await his majesty at the cathedral. I expressed my concern, accepted the marshal's excuses very suavely and received the compliments of a large number of distinguished personages. No one observed the least suspicion, and I felt my nerve returning and the agitated beating of my heart subsiding. But Fritz was still pale, and his hand shook like a leaf as he extended it to the marshal.

Presently we formed procession and took our way to the door of the station. Here I mounted my horse, the marshal holding my stirrup. The civil dignitaries went off to their carriages, and I started to ride through the streets with the marshal on my right and Sapt, who, as my chief aid-de-camp, was entitled to the place on my left. The city of Strelsau is partly old and partly new. Spacious modern boulevards and residential quarters surround and embrace the narrow, tortuous and picturesque streets of the original town. In the outer circles the upper classes live, in the inner the shops are situated, and behind their prosperous fronts lie hidden populous but wretched lanes and alleys filled with a poverty stricken, turbulent and (in large measure) criminal class. These social and local divisions corresponded, as I knew from Sapt's information, to another division more important to me. The new town was for the king, but to the old town Michael of Strelsau was a hope, a hero and a darling.

The scene was very brilliant as we passed along the Grand boulevard and on to the great square where the royal palace stood. Here I was in the midst of my devoted adherents. Every house was hung with red and bedecked with flags and mottoes. The streets were lined with raised seats on each side, and I passed along, bowing this way and that, under a shower of cheers, blessings and waving handkerchiefs. The balconies were full of gayly dressed ladies, who clapped their hands and curtsied and threw their brightest glances at me. A torrent of red roses fell on me. One bloom lodged in my horse's mane, and I took it and stuck it in my coat. The marshal smiled grimly. I had stolen some glances at his face, but he was too impassive to show me whether his sympathies were with me or not.

"The red rose for the Elphbergs, marshal," said I gayly, and he nodded.

I have written "gayly," and a strange word it must seem. But the truth is that I was drunk with excitement. At that moment I believed—I almost believed—that I was in very truth the king, and with a look of laughing triumph I raised my eyes to the beauty laden balconies, and then I started. For, looking down on me, with her handsome face and proud smile, was the lady who had been my fellow traveler, Antoinette de Mauban, and I saw her also start, and her lips moved, and she leaned forward and gazed at me. And I, collecting myself, met her eyes full and square, while again I felt my revolver. Suppose she had cried aloud, "That's not the king!"

Well, we went by, and then the marshal, turning round in his saddle, waved his hand, and the cuirassiers closed round us, so that the crowd could not come near me. We were leaving my quarters and entering Duke Michael's, and this action of the marshal's showed me more clearly than words what the state of feeling in the town must be. But if Fate made me a king the least I could do was to play the part handsomely.

"Why this change in our order, marshal?" said I.

The marshal bit his white mustache.

"It is more prudent, sire," he murmured.

I drew rein.

"Let those in front ride on," said I, "till they are fifty yards ahead. But do you, marshal, and Colonel Sapt and my friends wait here till I have ridden fifty yards. And see that no one is nearer to me. I will have my people see that their king trusts them."

Sapt laid his hand on my arm. I shook him off. The marshal hesitated.

"Am I not understood?" said I, and, biting his mustache again, he gave the orders. I saw old Sapt smiling into his beard, but he shook his head at me. If I had been killed in open day in the streets of Strelsau Sapt's position would have been a difficult one.

Perhaps I ought to say that I was dressed all in white, except my boots. I wore a silver helmet with gilt ornaments, and the broad ribbon of the Rose looked well across my chest. I should be paying a poor compliment to the king if I did not set modesty aside and admit that I made a very fine figure. So the people thought, for, when I, riding alone, entered the dingy, sparsely decorated, somber streets of the old town there was first a murmur, then a cheer, and a woman, from a window above a cookshop, cried the old local saying:

"If he's red, he's right!" Whereat I laughed and took off my helmet that she might see that I was of the right color, and they cheered me again at that.

It was more interesting riding thus alone, for I heard the comments of the crowd.

"He looks paler than his wont," said one.

"You'd look pale if you lived as he did," was the highly disrespectful retort.

"He's a bigger man than I thought," said another.

"So he had a good jaw under that beard, after all," commented a third.

"The pictures of him aren't handsome enough," declared a pretty girl, taking great care that I should hear. No doubt it was mere flattery.

But in spite of these signs of approval and interest the mass of the people received me in silence and with sullen looks, and my dear brother's portrait ornamented most of the windows—which was an ironical sort of greeting to the king. I was quite glad that he had been spared the unpleasant sight. He was a man of quick temper, and perhaps he would not have taken it so placidly as I did.

At last we were at the cathedral. Its great gray front, embellished with hundreds of statues and boasting a pair of the finest oak doors in Europe, rose for the first time before me, and the sudden sense of my audacity almost overcame me. Everything was in a mist as I dismounted. I saw the marshal and Sapt dimly, and dimly the throng of gorgeously robed priests who awaited me. And my eyes were still dim as I walked up the great nave with the pealing of the organ in my ears. I saw nothing of the brilliant throng that filled it; I hardly distinguished the stately figure of the cardinal as he rose from the archiepiscopal throne to greet me. Two faces only stood out side by side clearly before my eyes—the face of a girl, pale and lovely, surmounted by a crown of the glorious Elphberg hair (for in a woman it is glorious), and the face of a man whose full blooded red cheeks, black hair and dark, deep eyes told me that at last I was in the presence of my brother, Black Michael. And when he saw me his red cheeks went pale all in a moment and his helmet fell with a clatter on the floor. Till that moment I believe that he had not realised that the king was in very truth come to Strelsau.

Of what followed next I remember nothing. I knelt before the altar and the cardinal anointed my head. Then I rose to my feet and stretched out my hand and took from him the crown of Ruritania and set it on my head, and I swore the old oath of the king. Then the great organ pealed out again, the marshal bade the heralds proclaim me, and Rudolf V. was crowned king, of which imposing ceremony an excellent picture hangs now in my dining room. The portrait of the king is very good.

Then the lady with the pale face and the glorious hair, her train held by two pages, stepped from her place and came to where I stood. And a herald cried:

"Her royal highness the Princess Flavia!"

She courtesied low and put her hand under mine and raised my hand and kissed it. And for an instant I thought what I had best do. Then I drew her to me and kissed her twice on the cheek, and she blushed red, and—why, then his eminence the cardinal archbishop slipped in front of Black Michael and kissed my hand and presented me with a letter from the pope, the first and last which I have ever received from that exalted quarter!

And then came the Duke of Strelsau. His step trembled, I swear, and he looked to the right and to the left, as a man looks who thinks on flight, and his face was patched with red and white, and his hand shook so that it jumped under mine, and I felt his lips dry and parched. And I glanced at Sapt, who was smiling again into his beard, and, resolutely doing my duty in that station of life to which I had been marvelously called, I took my dear Michael by both hands and kissed him on the cheek. I think we were both glad when that was over!

But neither in the face of the princess nor in that of any other did I see the least doubt or questioning. Yet had I and the king stood side by side they could have told us in an instant, or at least on a little consideration. But neither they nor anyone else dreamed or imagined that I could be other than the king. So the likeness served, and for an hour I stood there, feeling as weary and blase as though I had been a king all my life, and everybody kissed my hand, and the ambassadors paid me their respects, among them old Lord Topham, at whose house in Grosvenor square I had danced a score of times. Thank heaven, the old man was as blind as a bat and did not claim my acquaintance.

Then back we went through the streets to the palace, and I heard them cheering Black Michael, but he, Fritz told me, sat biting his nails like a man in a reverie, and even his own friends said that he should have made a braver show. I was in a carriage now, side by side with the Princess Flavia, and a rough fellow cried out:

"And when's the wedding?" and as he spoke another struck him in the face, crying, "Long live Duke Michael!" and the princess colored—it was an admirable tint—and looked straight in front of her.

Now I felt in a difficulty, because I had forgotten to ask Sapt the state of my affections or how far matters had gone between the princess and myself. Frankly, had I been the king the further they had gone the better should I have been pleased, for I am not a slow blooded man, and I had not kissed Princess Flavia's cheek for nothing. These thoughts passed through my head; but, not being sure of my ground, I said nothing, and in a moment or two the princess, recovering her equanimity, turned to me.

"Do you know, Rudolf," said she, "you look somehow different today?"

The fact was not surprising, but the remark was disquieting.

"You look," she went on, "more sober, more sedate. You're almost careworn, and I declare you're thinner. Surely it's not possible that you've begun to take anything seriously?"

The princess seemed to hold of the king much the same opinion that Lady Burleadon held of me.

I braced myself up to the conversation.

"Would that please you?" I asked softly.

"Oh, you know my views," said she, turning her eyes away.

"Whatever pleases you I try to do," I said, and as I saw her smile and blush I thought that I was playing the king's hand very well for him. So I continued, and what I said was perfectly true:

"I assure you, my dear cousin, that nothing in my life has affected me more than the reception I've been greeted with today."

She smiled brightly, but in an instant grew grave again and whispered:

"Did you notice Michael?"

"Yes," said I, adding, "He wasn't enjoying himself."

"Do be careful!" she went on. "You don't—indeed you don't—keep enough watch on him. You know"—

"I know," said I, "that he wants what I've got."

"Yes. Hush."

Then, and I can't justify it, for I committed the king far beyond what I had a right to do—I suppose she carried me off my feet—I went on:

"And, perhaps, also something which I haven't got yet, but hope to win some day."

This was my answer—had I been the king I should have thought it encouraging:

"Haven't you enough responsibilities on you for one day, cousin?"

Bang, bang! Blare, blare! We were at the palace. Guns were firing and trumpets blowing. Rows of lackays stood waiting, and, handing the princess up the broad marble staircase, I took formal possession as a crowned king of the house of my ancestors and sat down at my own table, with my cousin on my right hand, on her other side Black Michael and on my left his eminence the cardinal. Behind my chair stood Sapt, and at the end of the table I saw Fritz von Tarlenheim drain to the bottom his glass of champagne rather sooner than he decently should.

I wondered what the king of Ruritania was doing.

CHAPTER VI.

WE were in the king's dressing room—Fritz von Tarlenheim, Sapt and I. I flung myself exhausted into an armchair. Sapt lit his pipe. He uttered no congratulations on the marvelous success of our wild risk, but his whole bearing was eloquent of satisfaction. The triumph, aided perhaps by good wine, had made a new man of Fritz.

"What a day for you to remember!" he cried. "Gad, I'd like to be a king for twelve hours myself! But, Rassendyll, you mustn't throw your heart too much into the part. I don't wonder Black Michael looked blacker than ever. You and the princess had so much to say to one another."

"How beautiful she is!" I exclaimed.

"Never mind the woman," growled Sapt. "Are you ready to start?"

"Yes," said I, with a sigh.

It was 5 o'clock, and at 12 I should be no more than Rudolf Rassendyll. I remarked on it in a joking tone.

"You'll be lucky," observed Sapt grimly, "if you're not the late Rudolf Rassendyll. By heaven! I feel my head wabbling on my shoulders every minute you're in the city. Do you know, friend, that Michael has had news from Zenda? He went into a room alone to read it, and he came out looking like a man dazed."

"I'm ready," said I, this news making me none the more eager to linger.

Sapt sat down.

"I must write us an order to leave the city. Michael's governor, you know, and we must be prepared for hindrances. You must sign the order."

"My dear colonel, I've not been bred a forger!"

Out of his pocket Sapt produced a piece of paper.

"There's the king's signature," he said, "and here," he went on after another search in his pocket, "is some tracing paper. If you can't manage a 'Rudolf' in ten minutes, why—I can."

"Your education has been more comprehensive than mine," said I. "You write it."

And a very tolerable forgery did this versatile hero produce.

"Now, Fritz," said he, "the king goes to bed. He is upset. No one is to see him till 9 o'clock tomorrow. You understand—no one?"

"I understand," answered Fritz.

"Michael may come and claim immediate audience. You'll answer that only princes of the blood are entitled to it."

"That'll annoy Michael," laughed Fritz.

"You quite understand?" asked Sapt again. "If the door of this room is opened while we're away you're not to be alive to tell us about it."

"I need no schooling, colonel," said Fritz, a trifle haughtily.

"Here, wrap yourself in this big cloak," Sapt continued to me, "and put on this flat cap. My orderly rides with me to the shooting lodge tonight."

"There's an obstacle," I observed. "The horse doesn't live that can carry me forty miles."

"Oh, yes, he does—two of him; one here, one at the lodge. Now are you ready?"

"I'm ready," said I.

Fritz held out his hand.

"In case," said he, and we shook hands heartily.

"Hang your sentiment!" growled Sapt. "Come along."

He went, not to the door, but to a panel in the wall.

"In the old king's time," said he, "I knew this way well."

I followed him, and we walked, as I should estimate, near two hundred yards along a narrow passage. Then we came to a stout oak door. Sapt unlocked it. We passed through and found ourselves in a quiet street that ran along the back of the palace gardens. A man was waiting for us with two horses. One was a magnificent bay, up to any weight; the other a sturdy brown. Sapt signed to me to mount the bay. Without a word to the man we mounted and rode away. The town was full of noise and merriment, but we took secluded ways. My cloak was wrapped over half my face; the capacious flat cap hid every lock of my telltale hair. By Sapt's directions I crouched on my saddle and rode with such a round back as I hope never to exhibit on a horse again. Down a long, narrow lane we went, meeting some wanderers and some roisterers, and as we rode we heard the cathedral bells still clanging out their welcome to the king. It was half-past 6 and still light. At last we came to the city wall and to a gate.

"Have your weapon ready," whispered Sapt. "We must stop his mouth if he talks."

I put my hand on my revolver. Sapt hailed the doorkeeper. The stars fought for us. A little girl of fourteen tripped out.

"Please, sir, father's gone to see the king."

"He'd better have stayed here," said Sapt to me, grinning.

"But he said I wasn't to open the gate, sir."

"Did he, my dear?" said Sapt, dismounting. "Then give me the key."

The key was in the child's hand. Sapt gave her a crown.

"Here's an order from the king. Show it to your father. Quietly, open the gate."

I leaped down. Between us we rolled back the great gate, led our horses out and closed it again.

"I shall be sorry for the doorkeeper if Michael finds out that he wasn't there. Now, then, lad, for a canter. We mustn't go too fast while we're near the town."

Once, however, outside the city we ran little danger, for everybody else was inside merrymaking, and as the evening fell we quickened our pace, my splendid horse bounding along under me as though I had been a feather. It was a fine night, and presently the moon appeared. We talked little on the way and chiefly about the progress we were making.

"I wonder what the duke's dispatches told him," said I once.

"Aye, I wonder!" responded Sapt.

We stopped for a draft of wine and to bait our horses, losing half an hour thus. I dared not go into the inn and stayed with the horses in the stable. Then we went ahead again and had covered some five and twenty miles when Sapt abruptly stopped.

"Hark!" he cried.

I listened. Away, far behind us, in the still of the evening—it was just half past 9—we heard the beat of horses' hoofs. The wind, blowing strong behind us, carried the sound. I glanced at Sapt.

"Come on!" he cried and spurred his horse into a gallop. When we next paused to listen, the hoof beats were not audible, and we relaxed our pace. Then we heard them again. Sapt jumped down and laid his ear to the ground.

"There are two," he said. "They're only a mile behind. Thank God, the road curves in and out and the wind's our way."

We galloped on. We seemed to be holding our own. We had entered the outskirts of the forest of Zenda, and the trees, closing in behind us as the track zigged and zagged, prevented us seeing our pursuers and them from seeing us.

Another half hour brought us to a divide of the road. Sapt drew rein.

"To the right is our road," he said. "To left, to the castle. Each about eight miles. Get down."

"But they'll be on us!" I cried.

"Get down!" he repeated brusquely, and I obeyed.

The wood was dense up to the very edge of the road. We led our horses into the covert, bound handkerchiefs over their eyes and stood beside them.

"You want to see who they are?" I whispered.

"Aye, and where they're going," he answered.

I saw that his revolver was in his hand.

Nearer and nearer came the hoofs. The moon shone out now clear and full, so that the road was white with it. The ground was hard, and we had left no traces.

"Here they come!" whispered Sapt.

"It's the duke!"

"I thought so!" he answered.

To be continued.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions of society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity for earning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than that do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business in times of stress and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions might have been lost.

Receives Book Of Much Value

Rev. Dr. Marsh is the Recipient of a Valuable Volume

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville has just received from New York a book which he prizes very highly. It will be remembered that at the time the Ziegler expedition of New York, went in search of the North Pole, they were reported to have been lost in the Arctic zone a relief expedition was sent out to search for them, the relief expedition being in charge of Mr. Wm. Champ of New York. They located the Ziegler party, who were still alive although in threatening circumstances.

Over a year ago, Dr. Marsh entertained Mr. Champ, at his home in Hamilton one night, when they enjoyed some scientific observations together and had an exceedingly pleasant time.

That Mr. Champ has not forgotten his friend, Dr. Marsh is evidenced by the fact that last night, the doctor received from New York a large book of 600 pages, containing a complete account of the Ziegler expedition and much scientific information of great value. This book was sent with the compliments of Mr. Wm. Ziegler, who it may not be generally known, has since passed away.

Welcome Meeting at the Barracks

Staff Captain Goodwin Will Take Charge To-morrow Evening

Staff Captain Goodwin, late of Windsor, the new commanding officer of the Peterborough corps of the Salvation Army, will arrive in the city tomorrow, and will be tendered a welcome at the barracks at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. The S. A. Band will be in attendance, and it is expected that the reception will be of a rousing character.

Adjutant and Mrs. Wiggins, who have been in charge here for some months are packing up, and leave the city today for Windsor, where they will be located. They have made many friends during their stay in Peterborough, who will wish them every success and prosperity in their new field of labor.

THE POLICEMAN WAS AFTER HIM

But Man Gave Back Watch and Charge Was Dropped

P. C. Newhall was yesterday afternoon hot-foot on the trail of a man who had taken a time-piece that was not his own. The man gave back the watch, however, before the officer of the law located him, and as a result the charge was dropped.

Turkeys Will be Dear For Thanksgiving Dinner

Birds Are Scarce in Surrounding Country and Will Cost More Than Last Year—Chickens Are Plentiful and Cheap.

Turkeys will be on an upward move in a few days and the heads of Peterborough families who desire at Thanksgiving to entertain in full state, with a domesticated member of the turkey family, would do well to set aside their pennies at an early date, because the democratic bird will be dignified by a regal cost in this year of grace.

Last year at this time, or thereabouts, Mr. Turk quit strutting around and became a dead one at the moderate price of ten and eleven cents per pound. This season the executed specimen will repose gracefully in the stall and his price will begin at twelve or thirteen cents a pound and move in one direction only—upwards.

It's odd, but it's true enough, that while some of the operators should be kicking the stuffing out of the stock market and slashing prices to a bargain rate, the cost of Canada's most popular table delicacy should take upward turn.

It appears that turkeys are scarce in the country around Peterborough this fall and they will be none too plentiful for Thanksgiving. It seems that farmers are not raising turkeys as extensively as they were a few years ago, as they find it difficult to bring them to maturity. A farmer informed the Review today that out of twenty eggs hatched out, he only had six turkeys. It's pretty much the same all over, and it looks as if "turkeys was turkeys" these days.

But cheer up! Chickens are plentiful and cheap. They sold on the market last Saturday at fifty cents per pair, and they are being marketed quite freely. The price of grain is so high that it hardly pays to feed it to the hens, with the result that many fowls are getting the axe in the vicinity where the lady wore the beads. So, if you can't afford a turkey for Thanksgiving you can at least have two chickens done in the way you like them best.

Twenty-Five Rural Schools Have Not Complied With Act

And Have Not Yet Received the Government Grant—Each School Must Have a Library.

Twenty-five rural schools in the county have not complied with the provisions in the School Act, making it necessary for them to have a library before they can secure their share of the government grant. The money is at the office of County Treasurer Elliott, and cannot be paid out until the Act has been complied with.

The total government grant received by Mr. Elliott was $6,299.80, to be paid out to the rural schools of the county, based upon the salaries paid to and the certificates held by teachers. The grants could not be authorized by the school inspector unless certain provisions of the School Act were complied with, namely, providing the school with a library, etc. To date Mr. Elliott has paid out $4,841, but still has in his possession $1,458.80. This money will be distributed to the 25 schools that will be entitled to it as soon as libraries are added.

Ennismore is the only township where every school now has a library, the 25 schools that have not complied with the act being scattered throughout the other townships. If these schools want their share of the government grant it is up to the trustees of each one to provide a library.

A MISLEADING ARTICLE.

A Blairton correspondent writes to the Marmora Herald, concerning an article published in a paper in this district. The correspondent says, —"The people around this part of the country are much excited (as well they may be) over the article appearing in your paper on the 3rd inst., headed in large glaring type, "Miners are busy at Blairton Mines," as copied from another journal. That a company is doing deep drilling here and have struck rich ore, is true, otherwise the article is paradoxical, full of misnomers and murderous in the first degree of mining nomenclature. People wonder at the article, so misleading, appearing in print at all.

GONE TO PETEWAWA

Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, has gone to visit the Petewawa military camp grounds on the Petewawa River, near Pembroke. Some of the soldiers who were there this summer, were subsequently stricken down with typhoid fever. Dr. Hodgetts has, therefore, gone to make an examination of the water supply at the place and the drainage of the ground, etc.

Will Soon be Making Bits

Dominion Tool Company is Making its Machinery

The Dominion Tool Company have started work on the manufacture of the machinery with which their plant will be equipped. Four men are employed for the present, and a portion of the establishment of Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson is being utilized for the manufacture of the machinery. Good progress is being made, and it will only be a short time before the manufacture of bits will be commenced. The site for the factory has practically been secured, and as soon as the deal is closed a large staff of men will be put on, and the installation of the machinery commenced. The bit which the Dominion Tool Company will specialize, and upon which they have the patent possesses many advantages over the ordinary bit, and should be a fast seller. The company has bright prospects, and when the plant is equipped and in operation it will be an important addition to the industries of the city.

The Kamloops and Yellow Head Pass Railway Company.

SITUATION AS TO CROPS REVIEWED

The Toronto World says:—Statisticians who have figured out the world's wheat crop this year place it at 3,000,000,000 bushels, but this is admitting that the Argentine crop is up to the average. Using these figures as a basis it is thought that there will be a shortage of upwards of 90,000,000 bushels in the world's needs this year.

In the United States the government statistics give the wheat crop at 625,000,000 bushels. It is estimated that the States will use in domestic consumption and seed requirements for next year about 500,000,000 bushels. This will leave 125,000,000 bushels for export. Of this amount about 50,000,000 bushels have already been sent out of the country. The exports of wheat and flour a week are now averaging over 4,000,000 bushels, so that about eighteen weeks is expected to use up the surplus and leave the country with just bare supplies for home use.

OATS SHORT.

Oats are admitted to be a short crop throughout North America. This grain filled very light, and, in addition, was attacked by a blight which cut the crop in half. Oats are selling locally at 33c a bushel. At Winnipeg the quotations are nearly as high, and the Chicago futures are close to 40c.

The demand for Canadian Northwest wheat is quite keen on the part of European importers. At Winnipeg October options are held at about $1.14 a bushel. Northwestern milling houses are strong competitors for the supply, owing to the comparatively small amount of really good milling wheat, and this competition is giving the Canadian farmer a record price for this year's crop.

St Luke's Parish Church Work Refers to Departure of Mr. T. H. Perry

This month's issue of St. Luke's Parish Church Work, contains the following reference of local interest;

Mr. T. H. Perry, B.A., who has been such a faithful and loyal assistant to the rector has returned to Wycliffe College to complete his last year in the Divinity course. During his stay among us he has made many friends, who sincerely admire his earnestness and zeal in the good work to which he has dedicated his life. He occasionally preached at St. Luke's and was always heartily welcome. His sermons were spiritual and showed preparation. At St. Mark's, where his chief work was done, he immediately enlisted and won the co-operation of the good and loyal people of the parish. Unfortunately he met with stubborn resistance from some, who cannot be moved, by either heaven or hell, to do what it is their duty to do toward God, and who are "cumbering the ground" at their best. But those upon whom St. Mark's has depended and can depend, they rallied around him and made his work pleasant and encouraging. The rector wishes to thank them very heartily for their support. It is a great pleasure to the rector to say that Mr. Perry will still continue to look after the services at St. Mark's though one or two others will have to assist him. He will also spend his Christmas vacation at St. Mark's parish.

NO ANNUAL TEA.

In conversation with prominent members of the congregation, the rector has ascertained that an annual tea and entertainment is not desirable. Recommendations have been to have a thank-offering instead, to reduce the deficit incurred by repairs, etc., to the church and rectory. About $500 are required; therefore everyone should make a strong effort to do his share in trying to meet this special indebtedness. It can be done if everyone will do his best.

Miss Lillian Rogers has opened a private school for young children. It is worthy of support; any inquiries can be met by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.

We regret very much that Mr Gordon Butcher has left the city to work in Toronto.

The beautiful and godly practice of the "churching of women" after delivering from childbirth, has unfortunately come in disuse in this age of indifference and materialism. What could be more desired, and more to be encouraged than to have those who experienced in such great measure the protection and the loving kindness of the Lord during severe sickness, to enter into His Courts with thanksgiving. We would urge this ordinance upon our people. The rector will be glad to officiate at this ordinance any time suitable to those concerned.

Miss Laura Smithson, who has spent her vacation in St. Mark's parish at the home of her parents has returned to Toronto to resume her studies in Arts at Toronto University.

Mr. George Rogers has gone to Fort Rosse, Que., to accept a position with his brother, Mr. Henry Rogers.

It was a pleasure to welcome Dr. and Mrs. St. Clair, who have spent a holiday with Mrs. G. Armstrong.

RULES OF A.Y.P.A.

The newly organized Anglican Young People's Society promises to become a strong factor in the moral life of our young people, and the two meetings thus held, were largely attended and highly interesting. The rules of the Society are as follows;

Pray daily.

Attend punctually, regularly and reverently all church services, especially the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Give systematically as God has prospered you, to the support of Missions and the church.

Endeavor to bring others to church.

Respond heartily and sincerely.

Be kind and helpful to those in need, sickness or any other adversity.

Always stand up for your church; be loyal to your clergy.

Be present, as far as possible, at all meetings of the A.Y.P.A.

Honor all men, love the Brotherhood, fear God, honor the King.

The meetings will be held every first and third Friday of each month and will be of a missionary, devotional, literary or social and musical character. The next meeting will be held on Friday evening, October 18th, and will be a literary evening. Mr. Sutcliffe has charge of the musical programme. Miss Clara Adams will give a paper on Tennyson, and Dr. Langfeldt will give a travel talk.

Woman Thought Money Was Stolen

Police Had Lively Chase After Alleged Culprit—The Cash Afterwards Found

Police Constables Newhall and McGinty, were given a lively chase on Monday afternoon in pursuit of a young man who, while carrying out his duties as an agent, was alleged to have carried off a sum of money, taken from a table in an East City residence. The officers had an exciting run through ploughed fields and had to jump fences in hot pursuit of the supposed robber.

About three o'clock on Monday afternoon an East City lady rang up the police station and stated that some money lying on the dining room table had been stolen, and the only person who could have taken it was an agent who had just left the house a few minutes before. P. C. Newhall, in company with P. C. McGinty, at once hurried over to East City, got a description, and started in search of the alleged culprit.

Learning the direction in which the agent went, the officers followed, and when near Nicholls Oval, saw their man, running towards Curtis' brickyard. It was not many minutes before P. C. Newhall had caught up to him. All the time, the young man had been, running, unconscious of the fact that he was being pursued. He stated that on account of feeling cold, he had started to run to get warm. When told why he was chased, he was surprised, and denied ever seeing any of the lady's money. He had considerable funds on him, but he cash, he claimed, was all his own. The alleged thief was brought to the police station, but was not locked up. He was to have been brought before the magistrate at a special session of the court but fortunately this was not necessary. A short while after the officers arrived at the station, the lady who thought she had been robbed, telephoned again, saying she had found her money, it evidently having been blown off the table. The young man was, of course, allowed his freedom, and a great deal of trouble was caused owing to a woman's hasty complaint.

Beer* Is No Mere Stimulant

Beer is not the choice of the drunkard, because it cannot stimulate enough—not enough alcohol in malt beverages to lass them as intoxicants. But there is just enough alcohol in beer (less than in sweet cider) to induce the digestive system to do its work more thoroughly and quicker. Most grown people—and women especially—find good beer good to drink with meals, because it not only has much food-value in itself, but renders all other foods easier to digest.

Your own doctor will probably tell you beer is good for you with your dinner and at bedtime.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; and, in the province of Ontario (except Toronto), beverages made under such hygienic conditions. Brewed from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water.

PATIENT WILL BE FREE SATURDAY

Last Will Song be Heard of the Famous Scarlet Fever Case

The last will song be heard of the city's now famous scarlet fever case. The girl has fully recovered and will be able to leave the isolation ward in the city buildings on Saturday. She has been quite well for several weeks, but the law says the patient must be isolated for a certain period of time. The case will go down on record as being somewhat out of the ordinary, as it caused more discussion than any previous one, threatened to make the Board of Health resign, and was the cause of a wordy war between the chairman of the Board and the Medical Health officer.

WORTHY OF A TRIAL

Says Many Persons Here Can be Made Happy Again.

There is so much Rheumatism here now that the following advice by an eminent authority will be highly appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after a while.

Was York Loan Insolvent Long Before the Collapse?

Mr. Douglas, K. C., Says He Will Prove That Such Was the Case—The Rights of Permanent Shareholders.

A Toronto despatch says:—The efforts of the managers of the York County Loan Company to save the situation, in the last year or two before the collapse, by the transfer of terminating stock to permanent stock, was recalled this morning when the case of the permanent shareholders was laid before Referee Kappele, by Mr. W. N. Ferguson. These transfers simply meant that the company, through its agents, induced as many as possible of the people that had been paying into the company and receiving in return certificates of terminating stock, which was to be payable in full at the end of the period, to exchange this stock for permanent stock, which was non-withdrawable. The practice was to issue permanent stock on which fifty per cent was paid up, and, when there was a balance, to credit the person with the amount on a new share of terminating stock, which he was always urged to take. In this way the money paid in was secured as a permanent investment and the company would not have to pay the terminating stock, by getting the person to take a new share of terminating stock he was still kept paying into the company.

"It was a very resourceful plan," said Mr. Wm. Douglas, K.C., who is acting for the general body of shareholders, "and the York Loan managers would have succeeded if they could have got enough stock put through, but they couldn't do it."

The holders of permanent stock have claims amounting to nearly $300,000. There are 205 holders fully paid up, representing $49,800, and 2,140 holders partially paid, representing $242,255.03.

Mr. Ferguson contended this morning that the shareholders he represented were not really shareholders because the company had no authority to issue the permanent stock in the way that they had done, but they were to be ranked as creditors. If they were found to be not creditors, he said, the yahould rank as ordinary shareholders, and those who were not fully paid up should be made contributories. The first of these questions, that the permanent stockholders should rank as creditors, will be considered at a date to be fixed.

Mr. Douglas states that it was his intention to prove that the company was insolvent long before the collapse. A day will be set later for the trial of this point, and the hearing it will have on the claims of the various classes.

Nothing further will be done before the referee till Friday morning, when the case of the juvenile claims will again come up.

HAVELOCK WANTS BETTER 'PHONES

Petition Being Circulated to This Effect—News From the Railroad Town

Havelock, Oct. 14th.—A petition has been circulated and largely signed by those interested, asking the Havelock Electric Light and Power Co. to instal a telephone system in Havelock. This action has been taken by the local business men who find that the telephones installed by the Bell Telephone Co. are of very little value. They are never in first-class order and when they have been fixed it takes about three days of ordinary usage to put them in a useless state, and they remain that way until the Bell Telephone Co. take interest enough to come and look at them, putting them in order for another couple of day's work. The electric light company can easily install a first-class local exchange that will give good service to subscribers.

NEAL—FROST.

The marriage of Miss Della Frost of town, daughter of Mr. Jos. Frost, to Mr. Milton Neal of Guelph, formerly of town, took place on Monday. The young couple left on Saturday morning for Guelph, where they will reside in the future, where Mr. Neal is employed as fireman on the C.P.R. Their many friends will join in wishing them every success.

Mr. Samuel McConnell of Belmont, has been appointed tax collector for the township, while Mr. Elias Williams has a similar position in the village.

What does Havelock say about local option. Eighty-nine municipalities in Ontario, will vote on local option this year, including Norwood, Campbellford, Hastings, Seymour, Tweed and Stirling.

Several auction sales are billed to take place this week, by S. & J. Joyce of town.

The Norwood Fair on Wednesday was largely attended by Havelockers.

The electric lights which were very dim for a couple of weeks, on account of lack of water at Burnt dams, have brightened up again since the recent rains. The electric light company will be able to give good service when the power house has been erected at Taylor's mill, as this will develop about eight hundred horse power more.

There was no service in St. John's church on Sunday, on account of the absence of the rector, Rev. H. Caplan, who is taking a few weeks holidays.

On Oct. 2nd, Mr. H. H. Curtis of town, was married to Miss Elizabeth Tadling at the residence of the bride's parents at Faneuil.

A fatal accident occurred on the C.P.R. at Tweed on Tuesday night, when brakesman David Ferguson was crushed to death by a car. The unfortunate young man, whose home is in Perth, was standing on a car of dynamite, which was being brought out of the siding, when the car toppled over. Ferguson failed to jump clear and was crushed to death.

Miss May McNichol left on Saturday for a trip to Vancouver, B. C.

Mrs. W. J. Boyd is visiting friends in Montreal.

LINDSAY ROLLER RINK OPENED

Excursion to That Town Last Night Was Largely Patronized

The excursion to Lindsay last evening, under the direction of the Peterborough and Lindsay roller rinks, was attended with great success, there being nearly four hundred persons taken on the trip. The special train left here at a quarter past seven, reaching Lindsay soon after eight o'clock. Upon arriving at the destination, most of the excursionists at once went to the rink, where about two hundred and fifty pairs of skates had been reserved for them. A number of people went to spend a few hours with friends and did not attend the rink.

It was the opening night of the Lindsay roller arena, and there were in the neighborhood of five hundred skaters on the floor. The new rink is a splendid one, being considerably larger than the local one. It has an excellent floor, and has everything for the convenience and comfort of its patrons. Mr. Jack Seymour of this city is the popular and energetic floor manager. Mr. G. J. Sheridan has now under his control roller rinks in Ottawa, Peterborough and Lindsay. A number from the 57th band accompanied the excursionists and furnished excellent music at the rink for skating.

A special feature of the evening was the contest for ladies and gentlemen, skating in couples, for which valuable prizes were donated. Several couples entered, including a number from both Peterborough and Lindsay. The judges had a difficult time in selecting the best, and most graceful skaters, but finally decided upon Miss Edith Scott and Mr. Fred Whitcroft as the winners.

This skating was kept up until half past ten. The special train left Lindsay at eleven o'clock, reaching Peterborough at twelve.

Everyone had a most enjoyable time and speak in the highest terms of this excellent way in which the excursion was carried out by Mr. Sheridan.

Thank Offering Meeting Held

Mrs. Burns of Lakefield Addressed St. Andrew's Ladies

The annual Thanksgiving meeting of St. Andrew's W.F.M.S. was held yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance, and the thank offering was very encouraging.

Mrs. (Rev.) S. S. Burns, of Lakefield, the Presbyterial President, gave a stirring address, which was much enjoyed. She spoke of the opportunities that they had as women to help the women in foreign lands. Christ's message to unbelievers is, "Come," but to believers, it is "Go." Those who cannot go can keep open the means for those who can go. If we cannot go, if we cannot give, we can pray. Prayer is the most powerful factor in the world today, but prayer must be accompanied by work. If we pray we will work; if we work we will give.

After the meeting light refreshments were served and a social half hour was spent.

St Thomas citizens propose the organization of a Canadian Club.

MEND YOUR WAYS

The ladies of Peterborough were given some good, sammie advice yesterday. At a lecture delivered in the Grand Opera House, which was announced to begin at 2.30 o'clock, very few members of the fair sex were present. They started coming in rapidly as the hour of three approached. It was about 3.15 before all were seated and the Parisian gentleman began his beauty talk. He scored the late comers and spoke of the value of promptness. In this day, how few possess this quality. Men and women seem to be contracting the habit more and more, of not getting to any place at the appointed time. They are late for church, for the theatre, for social functions—in fact, everything, and will continue to be behind time if they do not radically mend their ways. The practice is one that grows. The virtue of punctuality should be observed. Late comers are always disturbers. They ostensibly think only of themselves, and pay little heed to the inconvenience and discomfort they cause others. It is a selfish and most inconsiderate habit to be late. It is just as easy to get to a place at the appointed moment, if one will only make an effort. Ladies are not the only offenders. The men are equally culpable.

Another matter referred to by the lecturer, in the course of his frank remarks, was the lack of reverence in some of our city churches. While the benediction was being pronounced by a clergyman on Sunday last, he observed that certain persons in the congregation were proceeding to put on their wraps. This was a deliberate act of irreverence, which shocked him greatly, and a scene which would never be witnessed during devotions in France. These plain, outspoken comments from a visitor, were made in a kindly spirit, but they will probably have a salutary effect. The pointers given are timely and should certainly do good.

"It's never too late to mend."

AGGRESSIVE WORK

There are too many drones in the church—men who will not do aggressive work. They want to get all there is in the church connection so far as greetings and appearance go, but they evince no desire to do any work. Many so-called Christians lack zeal. It is a discomfort, a positive inconvenience for them to undertake anything. They are willing to do all the petting, the shaking, the bowing, etc., but beyond this it costs nothing. One trouble with the church today is the inactivity and general indifference of the laity. They look for the pastors to carry on everything. They would like to ship into Heaven "on flowery beds of ease." Too many ministers are diffident about plain speaking on this point, but there is a leading divine down in Kingston who uttered some words the other morning that made his hearers sit up and take notice. That gentleman is Rev. Dr. Farthing Dean of Ontario, who is well known in Peterborough, having preached recently in St. Luke's and St. John's churches. He said his people in St. George's Cathedral, that the church was no "social Sunday Club." It's work was distinctly to serve the Lord. It was the duty of everyone who professed or assumed the title of Christian to work for God in the church, in the home, in the business, in the state and in daily social intercourse. Some seemed to consider this beneath the dignity of their high social position and boasted that they never bothered with religious services of any kind. Who exempted them from service? Who were they that they esteemed their social position too lofty to stoop from to reach down to help their fellowmen, when God, Himself, had condescended to take unto Him the form of a servant and die upon for them. Perhaps they had forgotten that God loved the poor, low-down Blackguard sinner equally as much as the aristocratic prodigal and it was the purpose of God that saved sinners, should in their turn and degree be saviours of others. Waxing eloquent, the dean deplored the fact that Protestants as a whole decried dispensation and indulgence whilst nowhere today were there more dispensations and indulgences appropriated than by drones in the Protestant community. He warned Christians everywhere that every dollar and every opportunity would have to be accounted for by them as stewards of God! What were they going to do? Help was needed, men were needed in the church, and in the school. Were they willing to sacrifice their afternoon walk or siesta for the sake of Him who left His Father's throne for them.

PEN POINTS

The English language is spoken by 650,000,000 persons, or almost everyone, except the railroad train caller.

The rapidly increasing sales of British newspapers and magazines in Canada, since the lowering of the postal rates on second-class matter are most gratifying, to all who are desirous of British and Canadians being kept in close touch with each other. During the months of July and August 5,569 bags of British mail of this class were brought to Canada, as against 2,129 bags in the corresponding months of last year, which represents an increase of 161 per cent. In the case of Winnipeg there was an increase of 261 per cent., Toronto 171 per cent., and Montreal, 132 per cent.

A short time ago, when the Parent Government in Quebec was in danger, Sir Wilfrid came to the rescue, and appointed the premier to a federal office, and thus settled the domestic dispute. Now that a new trouble has arisen federal patronage is again invoked. One of the Quebec ministers who has to quit office is yet to be provided for, but Hon. A. Tessier, provincial treasurer, has been removed in a more kindly way. Sir Wilfrid has made him a judge. It is true there was no previous vacancy, but there was a judge ready to resign, and his place was made available. This rapid operation contrasts sharply, with the treatment of Nova Scotia. What province has hardly seen a full Supreme Court bench any time in the last three or four years. For a long period two vacancies existed, and appointments have gone unfilled for a year or two against the protests of the Law Society, of the bench, justice, and of suitors whose cases were postponed from time to time for want of a quorum. Nova Scotia seats have been kept vacant for the same reason that the Quebec seat has been so quickly filled. That is, to suit party convenience. At present there is a member of parliament with a promise in his pocket of a Nova Scotia judgeship. He has been carrying it around for two or three sessions, and will hold it until it is convenient for the government to vacate the seat. Such a member represents hope of office more than he does the electors of this county.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

Are Taking Steps to Erect Large Publishing House in Boston.

The Christian Science Sentinel, a weekly paper, published in Boston, announces in its last issue as follows:

"The time has arrived when it is necessary to take steps toward the erection of a suitable publishing house for 'The Christian Science Publishing Society in Boston,' and contributions for this purpose are requested from Christian Scientists throughout the world. The amount required will approximate two hundred thousand dollars. The erection of a two million dollar hotel, as recently dedicated, does not seem to have exhausted the faith of that body in their ability to accomplish large results.

HEAVEN AND ITS LOCATION

"Student" Has Something to Say on the Future State

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—The report in your paper of Rev. Mr. Major's sermon of last Sunday on "Heaven" appears to be rather amusing to some.

They seem to think that this age is above such material ideas. However, sir, this subject is not to be laughed at. If we are preparing for an exit to a home from whence we shall not return. It is but right and reasonable that we should know something about our new abiding place, or state, as the case may be. While the learned gentleman's remarks are rather interesting, we must admit, there are statements, which to the ordinary thoughts are hard to understand, such as "we shall have material bodies in heaven," "Paul and Lazarus have been there but their lips were sealed," etc. I think we are all agreed that Lazarus' body lay in the tomb; if so, what kind of a body had he when away in heaven, if he was there? we might ask. As for Paul having visited the Celestial city and returned, I was not aware of it before.

However, we shall not contradict this reverend gentleman. He may make it clear before he is through with the subject. We read in 2nd Cor., 12th chap., 2nd verse, Paul speaking for visions, where he mentions the third heaven. We might ask again, did Paul find three heavens, in this star, referred to in the sermon, or three stars with a heaven each, if it is a locality.

There is no doubt that Mr. Major is talking about the first heaven spoken of by St. John in Rev. 21, 1, which will pass away (the material concept of it). As to location, Jesus, the greatest authority, said as his first declaration of truth in his ministry, immediately after being baptized and having overcome the tempter, "Repent for the kingdom of Heaven is at hand," Matt. 4, 17. And to His chosen apostles he said, "Go preach, saying, 'The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand,'" Matt. 10 — 7; also in Matt. 3—2, John the Baptist declared "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." Jesus in His teaching used many symbols, such as the Kingdom of Heaven is like unto leaven, the mustard seed, etc., which would convey the thought of growth or enlarging of human thought and desires. Paul says in his epistles to the Romans, 14 chap., 17 verse, "For the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. Would it not be possible that the visit of Paul, referred to by Mr. Major, was but a high consciousness of the reality of being, which he had attained for a time, and then afterwards had to demonstrate through Christ up to his glorious perception He in His exhortation to the Philippians said, "work out your own salvation, with fear and trembling."

With the Scriptures before us, we shall have to wait for more light before we can see Heaven as a locality, and men with material bodies therein. Especially after Jesus instructions, "Ye must be born again, Flesh and blood cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven. "Spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." If the old Adam must be put off, what is it, but the material. Paul says, "the things that are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." 2nd Cor. 4—18.

I think a logical conclusion would be, that Heaven is where God is.

We think of Him as infinite, all in all, everywhere. Paul says "In Him, we live, move and have our being."

Perhaps someone can tell us where God is not.

Waiting for further instruction, and thanking you for space,

STUDENT.

Travel Talk by Ex-Mayor Roger

Canada is Best Country of all—Great Faith in Future

Before a well attended meeting of St. Paul's church Young Men's Guild last night, ex-Mayor G. M. Roger delivered an address on the holiday trip which he, in company with Messrs. J. C. Shook and E. H. D. Hall, took in May and June last to the western and southern States.

Mr. Roger's travel talk was very interesting and instructive, showing that he was a close observer and, as he pictured to the minds of those present that attractiveness and serene beauty of the trip, he held the rapt attention of all present.

The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. G. B. Van Blaricom, and the proceedings opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. Talling.

After considerable business had been disposed of Mr. Roy Turner was elected treasurer of the Guild in the place of Mr. Allan Munro, who has resigned, owing to his temporary removal to Toronto. Mr. Kenneth Shook contributed a solo in excellent voice and was liberally applauded. During the evening, Mr. R. N. Merritt also sang and was heard to decided advantage.

Both Messrs. Shook and Merritt were in excellent form and their vocal efforts were much appreciated.

Mr. Rogers in his remarks took the listeners to Chicago, Denver, Manitou, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake City, Riverside, Pasadena, Los Angeles, San Barnardino, Catalina Islands, Vancouver, Winnipeg and other cities which he vividly described. He told of the attractions of each and said that in passing over the prairies of the west he noticed that many of the towns were shabby, unkempt and untidy places as compared with the orderly, neat and attractive centres in Western Canada. He also observed that the average Canadian farmer has better buildings and more tidy and prosperous looking surroundings than the American farmer. This was soon witnessed by the sojourner. In travelling on the American railways he spoke of the advantages and conveniences of the observation cars and said that one fact which impressed the tourist when crossing the line was that the country was more thickly settled than was Canada. He did not notice any great or decided difference however, in the people. His description of a railway trip up the side of Pike's Peak, 14,000 feet above the sea level was interesting. The top of the mountain was covered with many feet of snow. The sudden change in altitude caused the breath to come in gasps, the ear drums to make a noise and a general wracking of the system. "The garden of the gods" near Colorado Springs, was a wonderful scopulous revelation and a sight worth going a long distance to see. He described the corn raising, cattle raising and other occupations on the American prairies. The country was so level that miles upon miles could be seen from the car windows. The great drawback to the prairies was the wind which was constantly blowing. The grand gorge ride from Colorado Springs through the mountains south, the mining towns, thousands of feet high, the picturesqueness of the rugged scenery and the engineering difficulties and great expense in building the road were all dwelt upon; then the journey through miles of dry, barren, forsaken country until the rich verdure of California came in view, the orange groves, the lemons, the walnuts and other tropical fruits, the visit to them how the oranges were picked, then sorted by machinery and freight trains hurrying away with the products, were all vividly recounted. At Pasadena the party ran across a son of Mr. Robert Graham, of Lakefield, who extended to them every hospitality. The immensity of some of the hotels, the thriving business done, and the efforts put forth by them to attract tourists at all seasons' were told of in an entertaining manner.

In Vancouver one thing that struck the visitor was the abnormal price asked for property located miles out of the centre of the city and the great number of real estate agents. They were always buying and selling and appeared to be living off one another. A figure was asked per foot for real estate much higher than could be realized in Toronto or Montreal, cities five times the population. Mr. Roger portrayed the grandeur of the Rockies and the Selkirks, the wealth and vastness of the prairies, the buoyant, hustling, and determined character of the people of the great west and said that he and his companions were all glad to get back to Canada, believing, taking it all in all, that it was much the better country of the two. He referred to the rapid growth of Winnipeg, which he believed would become the Chicago of Canada. The great warehouses going up were evidences that the city was becoming a great distributing centre, the supply station for the fertile and rapidly developing country that lay beyond. But in all his travels the speaker remarked that it was with great satisfaction to get back to Ontario and he believed that it was the banner province of them all.

At the close a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker on motion of Mr. E. S. Clarry and Rev. Dr. Talling.

Short addresses were also given by Mayor McWilliams, City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall and Rev. Dr. Talling, after which the gathering dispersed.

ENGLISH TRAIN WRECK

Shrewsbury Express Derailed by High Speed on Sharp Curve.

Sixteen Persons Killed and Many Injured — Train Crew's Disregard of Standing Order Caused the Disaster—Was Bound From Scotland to Bristol — Cars Were Mass of Tangled Wreckage.

Shrewsbury, Eng., Oct. 16.—A train made up of passenger coaches, bound from Scotland and the North of England to Bristol, left the rails as it was entering the station here at an early hour yesterday morning. Sixteen persons, including ten passengers, were killed, and many others were injured.

The London & Northwestern Railroad, on which the train was running, curves sharply as it nears Shrewsbury, and there is a standing order that the engineers must not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour at that point.

Disregard of the order is believed to have been the cause of the accident. The engine, and all the cars with the exception of the last one, left the rails, and when the officials from the railroad station reached the spot, the cars were a tangled mass of wreckage, beneath which were the bodies of the dead and the injured. Fortunately, the wreck did not catch fire, and the doctors and salvage crews, who soon reached the scene, did not have this added danger to fight in the darkness and pouring rain, which, however, retarded the work of rescue, and several hours elapsed before the last body was taken out.

The killed included the engineer and fireman, and the guards and postal clerks, who were in the mail car immediately behind the tender of the engine.

COL. DAVIDSON RESIGNS.

Promotion of Sir Henry Pellatt Over Him Causes Surprise.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Col. John I. Davidson, for several years in command of the 48th Highlanders, has resigned from the militia owing to the promotion of Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry M. Pellatt, his junior, to the command of the garrison.

To those who understand military matters and watched the church parade a week ago last Sunday it is not surprising to find that Col. Davidson has sent in his resignation.

Col. Davidson has been connected with the militia since 1863. He raised the 48th Highlanders in 1891, a regiment which wears the Davidson tartan, and is allied with the Gordon Highlanders.

He commanded the regiment for six years, and at the expiration of his command left the corps in the highest state of discipline and order. Lieut.-Col. Davidson has since commanded the 2nd Infantry Brigade to the satisfaction of everyone not only under his command, but all those inspecting officers who have had the opportunity of seeing the brigade in the field or on parade.

PERUNA A WONDERFUL BOON IN MY OLD AGE.

MRS. MAHALA REID.

Heartily Approves of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin for Kidney and Bowel Trouble

MRS. MAHALA REID, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes:

"Your celebrated remedies have been a wonderful boon to me in my old age.

"I have not been in so good health for several years as now. I was troubled with constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

"A little over two years ago, I completely lost my health, becoming almost helpless, when a dear friend sent me your remedies, Peruna and Manalin. I began to take them, following the directions on the bottle. I very soon began to feel benefited by their use and continued to take them.

"I am now completely recovered from the above ailments, in fact, better than I have been for years past. I cannot praise the remedies too highly and will always recommend them to others."

Constipation is almost sure to set up other derangements.

Retained accumulations within the bowels are partly reabsorbed into the system, producing sometimes rheumatism, sometimes kidney trouble.

The blood being surcharged with acids, which ordinarily find their escape through the bowels when they are regular, rheumatism is the result.

Acid blood forms crystals, which accumulate about the ligaments, cartilages and sometimes the bones in the joints.

Such morbid accumulations of blood throw extra work upon the kidneys. The kidneys being unable to perform the unusual labor of excreting these poisons, often give way and kidney trouble is the result.

Permanent relief cannot be reasonably expected except by correcting the constipation.

Regular bowels are a great safeguard to health. Peruna and Manalin are unexcelled the world over for chronic diseases affecting the bowels and kidneys.

Mrs. W. W. Lamaster, 3127 McAtee, Ave., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"I suffered for twenty-six years with bladder and kidney trouble, and being advised to give Peruna a trial, I did so. Eight bottles of Peruna and three bottles of Manalin entirely cured me."

Came Nearly Breaking Worlds' Record for 15 Miles

A Vancouver despatch says:—Arthur Burn, of Calgary, formerly of Peterborough, defeated Chandler in a fifteen mile race here yesterday, thus laying claim to the championship of the Pacific coast, and probably of the world.

He came within seven minutes of breaking the world's record, and it is considered by good judges that had the weather conditions been more favorable Burn would have beaten Howlett's world's record. The finish of the race was remarkable. Chandler had kept the lead almost from the start up to fourteen miles, when Burn finished 75 yards ahead. Burn's time was one hour twenty-eight minutes and fifty-four and one-fifth seconds. The cheers of the crowd of two thousand people were deafening when Burn finished, seemingly as fresh a swhen he started.

Two More Teams for City League

Possibility of T.A.S. and Y.M.C.A. Being Represented

Now that the annual meeting of the City League is approaching it is interesting to note the possibility of new teams joining the League. Mr. Dwyer, of Lindsay, manager of last year's Catholic Literary Society seven, winners of the Lindsay City League championship, is in the city, and it is rumored that he may manage a seven from the T.A.S., although it is not yet certain that the cold water boys will be represented in the League. The Y.M.C.A. may have a City League aggregation this winter, provided they can get the material for one together. If teams from the above organizations are entered they, together with the Strathconas and Charlotte street, will form a good "big four" for the local end of the league.

Win the Junior Scotch Doubles

M. Kirn and R. Matchett Defeat A. Belleghem and W. Pratt

M. Kirn and R. Matchett are the winners of the Scotch doubles for juniors. The final game was played last night between the above pair, and Arthur Belleghem and Will Pratt, the score being 18 to 14 in favor of Kirn and Matchett. As a result they win the championship and a handsome pair of bowls that were donated as a trophy.

The final game for the championship of the junior singles has yet to be played.

WALKING

ANOTHER WILL TRY.

D. Langford of Renfrew, asserts that he will on Thursday next attempt to set a new record for the Port Hope to Toronto walk, which was undertaken by Reynolds and Scottergood. Langford will start from Port Hope at six o'clock in the morning and will be accompanied by his trainer, J. O'Brien. As Scottergood is not in condition to walk, Langford will start against time.

RUGBY

The rugby team had a good signal practice at Riverside Park last night and are getting into splendid condition for the game with the Vics in Toronto next Saturday. They expect a hard tussle as the Toronto fourteen will be greatly strengthened for the match. The next practice will be held on Thursday night, and all members of the team as well as others willing to help the boys in their work are requested to be on hand.

COLLEDGE A WONDER.

W. J. Morrison says Colledge, the new Peterborough half-back is a wonder. He stands over six feet, is nineteen years of age, and weighs 188 pounds. He kicked four drops from the field in Saturday's game, and fourteen points were scored on rouges from his punts.—Toronto News.

The excursion of the Rugby Club to Toronto next Saturday will give those desirous of going to the city, an excellent opportunity of doing so at a low rate. Any wishing to do shopping or see friends in the city will have time to do so. The train will not leave on the return trip until after the theatres conclude their performances.

It is reported that Peterborough's used their old time rough house tactics in their game with the Vics on Saturday. Big Hurtubuise, a giant of six foot four, attacked "Babe" Hewitt, and hit him a blow over the heart, causing him to retire from the game.—Lindsay Post.

Of course, the Post is glad to get a chance to knock any sporting aggregation in this city, but every knock's a boost when it comes from the Scugog town.

The Crescents and Karnots expect to play in Lindsay on Thanksgiving Day. Both teams are well matched and play fast ball. They should draw a big gate in Bowmanville, as rugby is somewhat of a novelty there.

There will be a big practice next Saturday. The Karnots, Crescents, and all others who are willing to help the seniors have a good practice, are requested to turn out.

HOCKEY

WHITTY'S POSITION.

Fred Whitcroft will leave Peterboro for Edmonton, where he will play hockey this winter and captain the team. Jack Winchester will play goal and they are now looking for a good cover-point. Whitcroft will receive $800 and a position, while Winchester will be paid $500 for his season's work.

Houghton offered Whitcroft $45 a week to play in the International League, but "Whitty" declined.—Toronto News.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—It is understood that the Wanderers, Stanley Cup holders, and Houghton, champions last year of the International League, have arranged a series of games, to be played early in the season for the hockey championship of the world.

MARLBOROS AND SAINTS JOIN.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—At a meeting held at Doan's English Chop House last night the St. George's and Marlboro Hockey Clubs decided to amalgamate under the name of the Toronto Hockey Club.

It is the intention of the clubs to enter teams in the intermediate and senior series of the O.H.A., and it is confidently expected that the combination will be successful, as the best of both clubs will now play together.

Gordon Nicholls, who was the star rover of the champion Charlotte Street City League team, of two seasons ago, is now a resident of Lakefield and will figure on the Suburbs of Lakefield in the City League this coming season.

CURLING

LINDSAY ORGANIZES

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Lindsay Curling Club, the following officers were elected:

Patron, Mr. John Carew.
President, Dr. Wood.
Vice Pres., Rev. J. W. Wallace.
Treas., Mr. J. D. Flavelle.
Assistant Treasurer, Mr. Peter Kennedy.
Secretary, Mr. J. C. Hairstone.
Ass't Sec., Mr. J. M. Knowlson.
Chaplain, Rev. J. W. Wallace.
Ontario Tankard Skips, Messrs J. D. Flavelle and L. V. O'Connor.

In the course of the discussion the groupings for the tankard and district cup game, Dr. Walters objected to Toronto being always the place selected as the spot for the competition to be played off, and Rev. Wallace took the ground that it was Lindsay's turn to have some of the games played here. Lindsay's claim will be pressed at the meeting of the Ontario Curlers' Association. The advisability of holding a monster bonspiel was discussed and left over.

TANKARD AND DISTRICT GROUPINGS.

Mr. T. F. Matthews represented the Peterborough Curling Club at the semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association held in Toronto yesterday. Peterborough was grouped as follows for the District and Tankard Cup:—

Group No. 5.—Scarboro' Maple Leaf Oshawa, Brampton, Colborne, Peterborough, Bobcaygeon, East Toronto Aberdeens, Toronto Caledonians, Toronto Parkdale, Toronto Queen City. Play at Toronto. Umpire, Mr. A. E. Trow.

THE RING

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The probabilities are that Jimmy Gardner will be the boy selected to fight Jimmy Burns for the lightweight championship title. Mark Shaughnessy, who is here from the coast, seeking an opponent for Jimmy, would like to hook up with McFarland, but the weight mark stipulated did not suit "Packey." It however, suits Gardner, so there will be no hitch on that score.

Gardner also talks of fighting Young Ketchell, but the latter has been matched to fight Joe Thomas, and there is no change for him there. A fight between Gardner and Burns would give the fans a better line on the gift-champion's fighting abilities than did his contest with Gans. The Lowell boy can box rings around Burns and barring a lucky punch should beat him as handily as did the colored boy.

THE TURF

Lindsay will hold a meeting on Thanksgiving Day. A good program of events is being prepared.

TICKETS PLEASE

All those having either draw or season rugby tickets, are requested to turn them in at once.

HUNT CLUB MET LAST EVENING

The Eagle Hunt Club held an enthusiastic meeting last evening at the Commercial Hotel. About twelve members were present and arrangements for this year's hunt were made. It is expected all the members will take in this season's outing, which promises to eclipse all previous ones. Mr. Jack Cottingham was elected captain. The party will leave on October 30th and will be absent two weeks.

TO EDIT SCHOOL READERS.

Dr. Goggin Will Prepare Set For Use Throughout Province.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, has decided to prepare a new set of public school readers for the schools of the province.

The work will be entrusted to Dr. D. J. Goggin, who will be authorized to consult from time to time with a committee of teachers, whose knowledge of public schools, and whose literary attainments will ensure the preparation of a highly desirable series.

In addition to this committee, the members of the advisory council and other educationalists will be shown advance proofs of the books during the course of preparation, so that expert advice and opinion will be taken advantage of.

FLOODS IN SPAIN.

Greatest Distress Prevails — Bodies Washed Out of Cemetery.

Barcelona, Oct. 16.—The floods in this vicinity continue to be serious. Up to the present time five persons have been drowned and 30,000 thrown out of work. The greatest distress is reported from Manresa, the birthplace of St. Ignatius, the founder of the Society of Jesus. This village has been terribly ravaged, and the waters have washed out many coffins and bodies from the local cemetery.

Was Charles Allison Murdered?

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—The police believe that Charles Allison, who was found dead in a lonely suburban shack in Elmwood, was murdered. His head had been battered, and all the evidence around the body indicated a violent death. The crime had evidently been perpetrated several days ago.

Allison was somthing of a recluse, and very little is known of him or his relatives beyond the fact that a daughter resides somewhere in Montreal. Money and jewelry on his person were not taken, so robbery was evidently not the motive of the crime.

Boy Killed His Mother.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 16.—George Smiley, aged 17 years, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Scholfer, aged 49 years, in their home in Myrtle avenue early yesterday. In a statement to the police, Smiley says he shot his mother in defending her against a burglar. He is being held pending investigation.

4130. A PRETTY WASHABLE FROCK

The frocks for the little people do not tend so much to elaboration of design as in times past but to fineness of fabric and exquisite development. Here is a simple dress for every day of "best" which is easily constructed and very pleasing. The lingerie fabrics are most used for such frocks, but a light weight cloth might serve as well. The simple round yoke and cuffs are of embroidery edged with a narrow frill of Valenciennes while the latter finishes the edge of the skirt. Tucks in front and gathers in front regulate the fulness and provide sufficient adornment for the body of the dress. If a party dress is desired, the sleeves may be in short puff and finished with a narrow band of insertion. For a cloth dress, braid would be the best adornment. The skirt may be finished with a ruffle or hem. For the medium size 2 yards of 36 inch material are needed.

4130.—Sizes, 1-2, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 years.

4218.—A SERVICEABLE APRON.

To Provide for City's Old Men

Legal Committee Meets To-morrow to Go Into the Matter

A special meeting of the Legal Committee of the City Council will be held tomorrow afternoon to discuss what is to be done regarding an agreement with the county to have the indigent old men of the city placed in the County House of Refuge. As is generally known, the city has no institution in which they can be placed, except the House of Providence and Protestant Home, both of which are of a private nature.

The city would like to make an agreement with the county council, whereby the old men could be kept in the House of Refuge at Lakefield, the city paying ten their maintenance, etc.

The County Council meets next week and it is likely that the Legal Committee will wait upon them to discuss the matter, and enter into an agreement, if possible.

MUST BUILD THE MILLS IN ONTARIO

And Manufacture the Pulp into Paper Here —Terms of Pulp Wood Concessions.

The Ontario Government is asking for tenders on two pulp wood concessions, Nepigon and Rainy Lake, to be leased for 21 years.

One provision is that the raw material must be manufactured into paper in Province, either on the concession or at some point approved of by the Government.

The successful tenderers will be those paying the largest bonus, besides the dues of 40c a cord for spruce and 20c a cord for the other pulp woods, Jackpine and poplar.

The tenderer getting the Nepigon concession must build, within three years, mills costing not less than $500,000, capable of making at least 150 tons of paper a day, and employing 250 hands for ten months in the year. The Rainy Lake concessionaire will be required to erect mills costing $150,000, make 20 tons of paper a day, and employ 50 hands. The Rainy Lake concession, which is in Rainy River, is the smaller of the two.

Should Have Temporary Walk

Parents Complain of Muddy Condition on Street Extension

A large number of people, who have children going to the King Edward School, are complaining that the new extension of George street through Westcott to Romaine should have some kind of temporary walk laid along it, so that the children will not be forced to walk around it via Crescent street, after a fall of rain. It seems that when it rains it becomes very muddy on the new street extension, and the children have to walk along Crescent street from George to Romaine, and have to cover a considerably greater distance than they would if walking were permissable all the way on George street.

The new electric line to Ancaster will be opened in a few days.

WEAK MEN AND WOMEN

The Most Perfect Restorative Known and Invigorating Tonic Vitalizer —Greatest Health-Renewer

Nature's greatest cure for weak, pale men and women is Ferrozone. It is invaluable for run-down, overworked, delicate people, and will restore them to robust health more quickly, at smaller expense, than any other tonic you can select.

We quote the following cases to show what Ferrozone has done for others. In your case it will act just as efficiently:—

FOR BUSINESS MEN
The Experience of a Well-known Lawyer Proves Ferrozone an Ideal Tonic.

Mr. N. W. Burke, a well known lawyer in Meriden, says:—"When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength, and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite, and drove away the nervous, apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger, and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to such."

FOR NERVOUS WOMEN
Nothing Compares With the Nerve-Strengthening Power of Ferrozone.

Mrs. E. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, says:—"I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines I took. But Ferrozone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system, and gradually the irritability left my nerves, and I got well. Ferrozone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble, and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrozone strongly."

THOUSANDS ANNUALLY CURED BY FERROZONE

If you want to get well and keep well, by all means use Ferrozone. If you suffer from insomnia, nervousness, debility, loss of appetite, poor digestion, or any other symptom of disordered blood, nothing will tone up and vitalize your system like Ferrozone. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Death of Famous Preacher; Big Loss to Methodism

Rev. Dr. Potts Passed Away at Toronto Yesterday.

Was Education Secretary of the Church — Had Long and Distinguished Ministerial Career — An Irishman by Birth — Well-Known Throughout the Dominion — Been Ill For Several Months.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Death came yesterday morning to Rev. John Potts, D. D., at his residence, 8 Prince Arthur avenue. The end was not unexpected, as Dr. Potts had been slowly sinking for some days. The climax of a two months' illness was reached at the beginning of the week, when it was announced that he could not recover. Dr. Potts gradually relapsed into a state of unconsciousness, in which condition he practically remained until death.

Dr. Potts was in his sixty-eighth year, but had spent a life of the utmost self-sacrifice and ardor in the interests of the Methodist church in Canada, of which he was a supremely conspicuous figure. His long service as secretary of education for his church had been spent at high-pressure and in unceasing charitable energy.

The late Rev. John Potts was perhaps the most influential and widely-known personality in Canadian Methodism and among its first orators. Possessed of a shrewd intellect, an untiring vigor, which endured almost up to the time of his last illness, and a sympathetic Irish heart of the most genial currents, his life has left an enduring impress upon the church and Victoria College, which he loved so well. Dr. Potts, since his appointment in 1867, as secretary of education for the Methodist church, had been an invincible viligante of a great cause and was known from coast to coast.

REV. DR. POTTS.

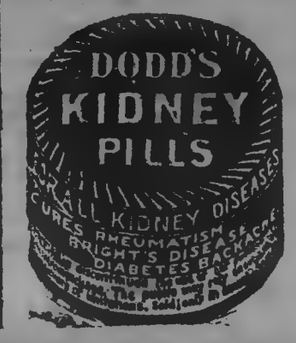
Dr. Potts hailed from Ireland. He was born at Maguire's Bridge, Fermanagh County, in 1838, and was thus 69 years of age at the time of his death. When 17 years of age he decided to tempt fortune in the new world, and his early days in America were spent in the Southern States. Subsequently coming to Canada he engaged in mercantile pursuits. Although at that time a member of the Episcopalian church, he fell under the influence of the late Rev. Dr. Douglas and became a Methodist. It was then he decided upon the ministry and graduated four years later from Victoria University, at that time in Cobourg. His first charge was at Thorold in 1861, where he was received into full connection and ordained.

Then followed ministries at North street church, London, Yorkville, Hamilton, Montreal, and in 1875 the Metropolitan church, Toronto.

He was afterwards called to a broader sphere of influence, when his appointment as secretary of education came. This might rightly be considered among the three most important posts in Canadian Methodism. From then until the time of his death Dr. Potts occupied the post with distinction to himself and of the betterment and expansion of the institutions under his control. Its labors took him frequently from home, for, beginning at Newfoundland and ending at New Westminster, Dr. Potts had the inspection of a host of educational institutions, including these at Sackville, N. S., Stanstead, Montreal, St. Thomas, Whitby and Winnipeg.

Victoria College was Dr. Potts' greatest charge. He did useful things for it. He was an active figure in the university federation movement, being a strong advocate of it. He placed Victoria College on solid financial footing and obtained for it an increased endowment. Recently, through his persistency and faith in the institution, his presentations to Carnegie secured that magnate's promise to contribute $50,000 towards a college library under certain conditions.

The funeral will take place tomorrow.



Awoke; Found House In Flames.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—A. W. Howard, moulder, in the north end with family had a narrow escape from death yesterday morning, awakening about five o'clock to find the house in flames. The children were taken out with the greatest difficulty, and the building collapsing shortly afterwards, so rapid was the spread of the fire. Defective flue was the cause.

Sir Merrick Obtained Divorce.

London, Oct. 17.—Sir Merrick Burrell yesterday obtained a divorce from his wife, Wilhelmina, daughter of Walter Winans, formerly of Baltimore, Md. Capt. Henry King of the Royal Horse Guards was named as co-respondent.

Their marriage in 1902 was an important social event.

A Polite Beast.

The cheetah is considered by some as among the most gentlemanly of beasts. A story from Oteacamund illustrates what fine manners the animal has—at times, at any rate. Three Calcutta visitors to the hill station were out on a tramp, when they were overtaken by a thunderstorm, accompanied by sheets of rain.

They spied a cave in the side of the hill, and into it they rushed. When the rain stopped, they came out, and to their surprise found a cheetah sitting licking the heavy wet off his waistcoat and his paws.

It was his cave, but rather than deprive his visitors of their shelter the polite creature had sat outside in the driving tempest. With a friendly mew, and gracefully wagging his tail, the cheetah bade adieu to his guests and walked with dignity into his house.

RECEPTION AT SEOUL.

Crown Prince Rides for First Time on Railway Train.

Seoul, Oct. 17.—The Emperor and Crown Prince of Korea left Seoul for Chemulpo at 12.30 yesterday afternoon. This was the first time the Crown Prince of Korea had ever ridden on a railway train and he showed a childlike interest in the trip. He was delighted with the speed of the cars and wondered to see the smoke pouring out from the locomotive smokestack.

The Japanese Crown Prince landed from a warship in the harbor at 2 p. m. and he was greeted at the dock by the Korean Emperor and the Korean Crown Prince. Chemulpo was decorated with triumphal arches. The Japanese Crown Prince at once took a train at Chemulpo and arrived here at 4 o'clock. He was greeted at the railway platform by a gathering of Korean officials, Prince Ito, and a great assemblage of the populace, and he was cheered as he drove through the streets to the residence set apart for him.

Japanese and Korean flags were everywhere visible. The Crown Prince of Korea called upon the Crown Prince of the island empire and this call was returned by the Japanese visitor at the palace. Seoul was brilliantly illuminated last night, and the utmost good feeling prevails.

VANCOUVER SPECULATING.

Wondering If Imperial Authorities Sent Kipling to Make Enquiries.

Vancouver, Oct. 17.—Was Kipling sent to Vancouver by the Imperial Government to report upon the feeling of the people in British Columbia on the question of Asiatic and Hindoo immigration?

This question is being asked here Kipling while he asked countless questions on the subject, but never once indicated the object of his flying visit.

Among the questions Kipling asked was how people would receive a law which would permit Asiatic and Hindoo coolies to come to Canada for stated period of years, work here, and then be deported when the contract time of service expired.

This immigration plan has been used in some of Great Britain's colonies, notably South Africa.

So far as can be learned, Kipling was told the people of British Columbia would never consent to such a scheme.

SIX MONTHS FOR NOBLE.

Man Who Assaulted His Doctor Goes to Central Prison.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Nicholas Noble, convicted of having assaulted Dr. Andrew Eadie, was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison yesterday by Judge Winchester.

A large number of petitions had been sent to the judge and the jury extended a clause for clemency, but all were ignored by his worship.

"If I cannot sentence or release prisoners according to my own judgment then I might as well step out. The crown could have charged you with attempted murder. It would have been much more manly of you if you had pleaded guilty, instead of going into the box and denying the statements of reliable men. You lost a son who was the light of your home and who showed great promise for the future, but that was no reason why you should try to take vengeance on the doctor who attended him, and who has attended your family for years."

Canada Was Represented.

London, Oct. 17.—Canada was represented for the first time at the international conference of weights and measures in Paris, where M. Pichon drew attention to the fact that the Dominion had given adhesion to the metric convention.

Sir Charles Tupper writes to The Standard from Winnipeg, pointing out, in reference to the latter's statement, that by entrusting the Franco-Canadian negotiations to Messrs. Fielding and Brodeur the Home Government had taken a great step towards Imperial unity—that in 1879 Canada was entrusted with treaty-making power in the negotiation of the Spanish treaty, and again in 1893, in the negotiation of a treaty with France.

At Sydney a great anti-tariff meeting, addressed by Hon. George Reid, in the capital of what was once a free trade state, attracted only 400 people.

Chinese Paid Head Tax.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 17.—Head tax to the amount of $48,500 was paid in by ninety-seven Chinese who arrived from the Orient by the R.M.S. Empress of China, which reached port yesterday.

She brought a big list of steerage passengers, principally Chinese, there being only four Japanese passengers, and one Japanese stowaway and no Hindoos. Of the Chinese 88 were landed at Victoria, 26 of whom paid the head tax. Five hundred Chinese were landed at Vancouver, 71 of this number paid the head tax, and 154 are certificated to return to Canada free. The others were bound for United States or other countries.

Steamer Sunk In Collision.

Detroit, Oct. 17—The wooden steamer Case of the Gilchrist fleet was sunk yesterday afternoon in a collision with the Pittsburg Steamship Co.'s steel steamer Mariska, opposite Amherstburg in the Limekiln Crossing. The crew were saved uninjured. Cross signals are said to have caused the collision.

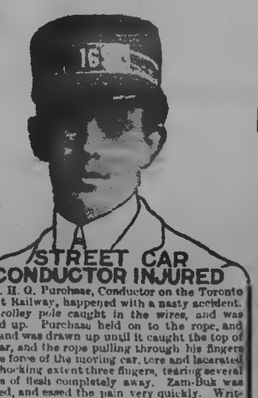
Operators Return to Work.

San Francisco, Oct. 17.—Seven striking telegraph operators applied for their old positions with the Western Union Co. yesterday. Five of them were given employment.

Five Prisoners Shot.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Five political prisoners were shot in Hayti yesterday, according to advices received from American Minister Furniss.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.



Mr. H. G. Purchase, Conductor on the Toronto Street Railway, happened with a nasty accident. The trolley pole caught in the wires, and was forced up. Purchase held on to the rope, and his hand was drawn up until it caught the top of the car, and the rope pulling through his fingers by the force of the moving car, tore and lacerated to a shocking extent three fingers, tearing several pieces of flesh completely away. Zam-Buk was applied, and eased the pain very quickly. Writing to this effect, Mr. Purchase says:—

"I bound the fingers in Zam-Buk, and it was most gratifying the way in which this balm soothed the pain. Two days after the wounds were closed, and new skin was beginning to form over the top. My hand is now as sound as ever, and to look at it you would never know it had been so terribly torn and lacerated. I do not think there is anything to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is a marvel of healing. Absolutely pure, it is nature's balm, and as a first aid is without equal. Try it! Zam-Buk will also cure ulcers, festering sores, ringworm and sores due to blood poison, boils, eczema, piles, etc., etc. Write Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for free trial box, sending 1c. stamp. GREAT STORM IN EUROPE.

Many Lives Lost In Southern France and Spain.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Southern Europe is in the grasp of a tremendous storm, accompanied by torrential rains. The storm area extends from Morocco northward, over Portugal, Spain and Southern France. Warships off the African coast and the Spanish peninsula have been obliged to seek shelter.

The village of Olet, Spain, was literally washed away by a cloudburst, and the River Lobregat is described as constantly claiming new victims. Many cities in France and Spain have been visited by violent storms, and some are menaced by floods.

Several fishing smacks have been capsized off Brest and their crews drowned.

AFTERMATH OF EXPLOSION.

Thirty-One Known Dead — Property Loss $780,000.

Fontanet, Ind., Oct. 17.—The loss to the powder company in property damage is estimated at $280,000. The property loss in Fontanet will exceed $500,000.

An official list of the known dead and seriously injured shows 31 dead. It is believed more names will be added, increasing it to from 35 to 40, as several persons were blown to pieces.

Germany Hopes For Treaty.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—(C. A. P.)—The Neueste Nachrichten predicts that the result of the negotiations proceeding between Germany and Canada will be the conclusion of a commercial treaty, whereby Canada will concede the intermediate tariff she has already conceded to France.

The paper remarks: "We shall be obliged to tolerate the exceptionally favorable treatment Canada concedes the Mother Country."

The Morning Post reiterates that the annals of British diplomacy can hardly contain a more humiliating story than that unfolded in the Newfoundland correspondence. The Americans succeeded in obtaining the privileges they desired by simple method of declaring their intention to exercise them in any case. The Post adds that it might have been expected that Premier Bond would now realize how necessary it is that Newfoundland should join hands with Canada.

Declined the Stock.

London, Oct. 17.—The directors of the Barnardo Homes declined the 20 per cent. shares of the Bile Bean Co. which the late Senator E. C. Fulford of Brockville, Ont., directed should be allotted in the event of the company being formed, such shares to be retained by the institution as a permanent investment. The company has been formed with a capital of £100,000, but the directors compromised with the deceased's family for an unstated cash payment.

Jessie Collings, speaking at Totnes, declared it was more necessary to colonize England than Canada.

Melbourne, Aus., Oct. 17.—Premier Bent of Victoria stated it was better to live in Australia on seven shillings a day, than in Canada on 11 shillings a day, considering the disadvantages of climate.

Bradshaw Still Leads.

Prince Albert, Sask., Oct. 17.—The Court of Revision cleared up poll 3 yesterday morning by allowing one more Conservative vote and disallowing the remaining challenged ballots, the voters not appearing to prove their qualifications.

The court is now sitting on three polls. To date eight votes supported by the Liberals and three supported by Bradshaw's representative have been allowed. Bradshaw still leads.

A Youthful Incendiary.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—Samuel Austin, a nineteen-year-old boy, employed by Caverhill, Learmont & Co., was arrested Tuesday sight on a charge of arson. Several fires have occurred at the firm's wareroom during the past few months, which have puzzled the firemen and the firm. Yesterday Austin pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

CONDUCTOR GRAHAM FREE.

Jury Say Not Guilty — Judge's Charge Strongly Against Him.

Parry Sound, Oct. 17.—The trial of Conductor Graham for manslaughter was concluded at the Assizes here yesterday. After two hours deliberation the jury returned a verdict of acquittal.

The case arises out of a head-on collision which occurred on the Canada-Atlantic division of the Grand Trunk on May 31 last, in which Fireman Alexander Rochon was killed. The judge's charge to the jury was strongly against the accused, pointing out as he did the fact that the train order had been disregarded.

His Lordship, Mr. Justice Clute, in discharging Graham, told him he had had a very narrow escape, and that the jury had taken a very merciful view of the case.

The two brakesmen, Archibald Looker and Joseph Lighthall, who were indicted on the same charge in this case, were acquitted also, the judge directing the jury to acquit, which was done without the jury leaving the box.

It was not shown in the evidence that these men knew of the stop-over orders.

PHILIPPINE ASSEMBLY OPENED.

Sergio Osmena Elected President—Members Swear Allegiance.

Manila, Oct. 17.—The new Philippine assembly was opened here yesterday. At the close of the opening address, which was delivered by Mr. Taft, he formally called the assembly to order. A short prayer was read by the only native Catholic bishop in the island, and the assembly took a recess until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Upon re-assembling the first business was the selection of a president and Sergio Osmena, Nationalist, who was formerly governor of the island of Cuba, was chosen.

Sergio Osmena is a young man and had no part in the revolution. He is held in high esteem by the Government and his own people. He was nominated by Manuel Quezon, and his nomination was seconded in an eloquent speech by Donimador Gomes.

All the assembly then, including Senor Gomez, whose election is to be contested, was formally sworn in. The oath included acknowledgment of the sovereignty of, and allegiance to the American Government.

BECK WALKS TO CHURCH.

Does Not Favor Sunday Cars In London and Tells Why.

London, Oct. 17.—Hon. Adam Beck, in addressing the audience at the Richmond street North Mission Tuesday night, made a statement of his position upon the Sunday street car issue.

"I am not in favor of Sunday street cars," he said. He hoped that the bylaw, if submitted to the people, would not carry.

"Some will say that I am not interested in the cars; that I have my horses," added the honorable gentleman, "but I do not use them for pleasure on Sunday. I walk to church."

SHOCK FELT IN TORONTO.

Seismograph Indicates the Earthquake Was a Big One.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—A strong earth shock was recorded by the seismograph of the observatory at 9.02 yesterday morning. The large waves struck at 9.12; the height of the disturbance was at 9.16 and the vibrations continued till 10.45. The vibrations exceeded the scale of the instrument at both sides, which happens whenever there is a big earthquake.

"The earthquake must be between 3,000 and 3,500 miles away, and is presumably south from here," said an observatory official.

Queen Victoria's Letters.

London, Oct. 17.—The London papers yesterday published elaborate extracts from the "Letters of Queen Victoria," which make their appearance by authority of King Edward. These letters form an interesting autobiography which, without revealing any important political matters not already known, present a deeply absorbing picture of the Queen's life and character from her own hands. Editorially the newspapers express their grateful thanks to the King for this selection from nearly six hundred volumes at Windsor, in which the Queen's letters and papers are classified and indexed.

President's Son Disorderly.

Kingston, Oct. 17.—At 2 o'clock yesterday morning a Queen's University student was arrested by the police for disorderly conduct. He was throwing eggs on the walk in front of a restaurant on King street. When remonstrated with he used bad language to the police constable, who took him in charge.

The young man proved to be Henry Reyes, son of the President of the Republic of Colombia, Central America, who had been sent to Queen's Medical College. He had nothing to say to the charge. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

Police Commissioner Arrested.

New York, Oct. 17.—An order for the arrest of Police Commissioner Bingham was issued by Judge Aspinall in Brooklyn yesterday on the charge of assaulting former Police Capt. James G. Reynolds, whom he caused to be ejected from police headquarters on Tuesday, when Reynolds tried to present a protest against his forced retirement.

Former Capt. Reynolds also sued Commissioner Bingham for $25,000 damages.

Buckingham Strikers on Bail.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—The six Buckingham strikers who are charged with manslaughter have been released on a nominal personal bail of $100 each.

They are Adelard Hamelin, Hiliare Charett, Louis Landry, Joseph Clement, C. Bastien and G. E. Croteau. Previously the strikers were liberated on $100 personal bail and $100 security by a responsible person.

THE HARMFUL HIGH HEEL

THE DOLLY VARDEN HARMLESS HIGH HEEL

Fig. A. illustrates the familiar French spiral high heal which is so frightfully injurious to the system. All Physicians fiercely condemn it, and rightly, too.

However, there is no sound reason why high heeled boots should be injurious or uncomfortable. There is no good reason why women cannot enjoy the smartness which a high heel imparts to the foot without bodily harm. It's all in the maker knowing how.

There are high heel lasts and low heel lasts. If the maker attaches a high heel to a low heel last the result is an uncomfortable, injurious and unsightly boot as illustrated in Fig. A. If he attaches a high heel to a high last the result is a smart, comfortable, harmless, high heeled boot as illustrated in Figure B., which is a typical "Harmless High Heel" Dolly Varden.

Besides, the Dolly Varden Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance prevents all injurious effects by throwing the body into vertical athletic erectness.

Dolly Varden high heels are sufficiently wide at the bottom to afford substantial foundation.

Ask to see the fine new Goodyear welt sewn Blucher type of Dolly Varden at $4.00.

It was the duke, and with him a burly fellow whom I knew well and who had came to know me afterward—Max Holf, brother to Johann, the keeper, and body servant to his highness. They were up to us. The duke reined up. I saw Sapt's finger curl lovingly toward the trigger. I believe he would have given ten years of his life for a shot, and he could have picked off Black Michael as easily as I could a barn door fowl in a farmyard. I laid my hand on his arm. He nodded reassuringly. He was always ready to sacrifice inclination to duty.

"Which way?" asked Black Michael.

"To the castle, your highness," urged his companion. "There we shall learn the truth."

For an instant the duke hesitated.

"I thought I heard hoofs," said he.

"I think not, your highness."

"Why shouldn't we go to the lodge?"

"I fear a trap. If all is well, why go to the lodge? If not, it's a snare to trap us."

Suddenly the duke's horse neighed. In an instant we folded our cloaks close round our horses' heads and, holding them thus, covered the duke and his attendant with our revolvers. If they had found us they had been dead men or our prisoners.

Michael waited a moment longer. Then he cried:

"To Zenda then!" and, setting spurs to his horse, galloped on.

Sapt raised his weapon after him, and there was such an expression of wistful regret on his face that I had much ado not to burst out laughing.

For ten minutes we stayed where we were.

"You see," said Sapt, "they've sent him news that all is well."

"What does that mean?" I asked.

"God knows," said Sapt, frowning heavily. "But it's brought him from Strelsau in a rare pussle."

Then we mounted and rode fast as our weary horses could lay their feet to the ground. For those last eight miles we spoke no more. Our minds were full of apprehension. "All is well." What did it mean? Was all well with the king?

At last the lodge came in sight. Sparring our horses to a last gallop, we rode up to the gate. All was still and quiet. Not a soul came to meet us. We dismounted in haste. Suddenly Sapt caught me by the arm.

"Look here!" he said, pointing to the ground.

I looked down. At my feet lay five or six silk handkerchiefs, torn and slashed and rent. I turned to him questioningly.

"They're what I tied the old woman up with," said he. "Fasten the horses and come along."

The handle of the door turned without resistance. We passed into the room which had been the scene of last night's bout. It was still strewn with the remnants of our meal and with empty bottles.

"Come in!" cried Sapt, whose marvelous composure had at last almost given way.

We rushed down the passage toward the cellars. The door of the coal cellar stood wide open.

"They found the old woman," said I.

"You might have known that from the handkerchiefs," he said.

Then we came opposite the door of the wine cellar. It was shut. It looked in all respects as it had looked when we left it that morning.

"Come, it's all right," said I.

A loud oath from Sapt rang out. His face turned pale, and he pointed again at the floor. From under the door a red stain had spread over the floor of the passage and dried there. Sapt sank against the opposite wall. I tried the door. It was locked.

"Where's Josef?" muttered Sapt.

"Where's the king?" I responded.

Sapt took out a flask and put it to his lips. I ran back to the dining room and seized a heavy poker from the fireplace. In my terror and excitement I rained blows on the lock of the door, and I fired a cartridge into it. It gave way, and the door swung open.

"Give me a light," said I, but Sapt still leaned against the wall.

He was, of course, more moved than I, for he loved his master. Afraid for himself he was not—no man ever saw him that—but to think what might lie in that dark cellar was enough to turn any man's face pale. I went myself and took a silver candlestick from the dining table and struck a light, and as I returned I felt the hot wax drip on my naked hand as the candle swayed to and fro, so that I cannot afford to despise Colonel Sapt for his agitation.

I came to the door of the cellar. The red stain, turning more and more to a dull brown, stretched inside. I walked two yards into the cellar and held the candle high above my head. I saw full bins of wine; I saw spiders crawling on the walls; I saw, too, a couple of empty bottles lying on the floor, and then, away in the corner, I saw the body of a man lying flat on his back with his arms stretched wide and a crimson gash across his throat. I walked to him and knelt down beside him and commended to God the soul of a faithful man, for it was the body of Josef, the little servant, slain in guarding the king.

I felt a hand on my shoulder and, turning, saw Sapt's eyes, glaring and terror struck, beside me.

"The king! My God, the king!" he whispered hoarsely.

I threw the candle's gleam over every inch of the cellar.

"The king is not here," said I.

CHAPTER VII.

I PUT my arm round Sapt's waist and supported him out of the cellar, drawing the battered door close after me. For ten minutes or more we sat silent in the dining room. Then old Sapt rubbed his knuckles into his eyes, gave one great gasp and was himself again. As the clock on the mantelpiece struck 1 he stamped his foot on the floor, saying:

"Thank God, sire! You're safe!"

"They've got the king!"

"Yes," said I, "'all's well!' as Black Michael's dispatch said. What a moment it must have been for him when the royal salutes were fired at Strelsau this morning! I wonder when he got the message?"

"It must have been sent in the morning," said Sapt. "They must have sent it before news of your arrival at Strelsau reached Zenda—I suppose it came from Zenda."

"And he's carried it about all day!" I exclaimed. "Upon my honor, I'm not the only man who's had a trying day! What did he think, Sapt?"

"What does that matter? What does he think, lad, now?"

I rose to my feet.

"We must get back," I said, "and rouse every soldier in Strelsau. We ought to be in pursuit of Michael before midday."

Old Sapt pulled his pipe and carefully lit it from the candle which guttered on the table.

"The king may be murdered while we sit here," I urged.

Sapt smoked for a moment in silence.

"That cutsed old woman!" he broke out. "She must have attracted their attention somehow. I see the game. They came up to kidnap the king, and—as I say—somehow they found him. If you hadn't gone to Strelsau, you and I and Fritz had been in heaven by now."

"And the king?"

"Who knows where the king is now?" he asked.

"Come; let's be off," said I. But he sat still, and suddenly he burst into one of his grating chuckles.

"By Jove, we've shaken up Black Michael!"

"Come, come!" I repeated impatiently.

"And we'll shake him up a bit more," he added, a cunning smile broadening on his wrinkled, weather beaten face and his teeth working on an end of his grizzled mustache. "Aye, lad, we'll go back to Strelsau. The king shall be in his capital again tomorrow."

"The king?"

"The crowned king!"

"You're mad!" I cried.

"If we go back and tell the trick we played, what would you give for our lives?"

"Just what they're worth," said I.

"And for the king's throne? Do you think that the nobles and the people will enjoy being fooled as you've fooled them? Do you think they'll love a king who was too drunk to be crowned and sent a servant to personate him?"

"He was drugged—and I'm no servant."

"Mine will be Black Michael's version."

He rose, came to me and laid his hand on my shoulder.

"Lad," he said, "if you play the man you may save the king yet. Go back and keep his throne warm for him."

"But the duke knows—the villains he has employed know"—

"Aye, but they can't speak!" roared Sapt in grim triumph. "We've got 'em! How can they denounce you without denouncing themselves? 'This is not the king, because we kidnaped the king and murdered his servant.' Can they say that?"

The position flashed on me. Whether Michael knew me or not he could not speak. Unless he produced the king, what could he do? And if he produced the king, where was he? For a moment I was carried away headlong, but in an instant the difficulties came strong upon me.

"I must be found out," I urged.

"Perhaps, but every hour's something. Above all, we must have a king in Strelsau or the city will be Michael's in four and twenty hours, and what would the king's life be worth then—or his throne? Lad, you must do it!"

"Suppose they kill the king?"

"They'll kill him if you don't."

"Sapt, suppose they have killed the king?"

"Then, by heaven, you're as good an Elphberg as Black Michael, and you shall reign in Ruritania. But I don't believe they have, nor will they kill him if you're on the throne. Will they kill him to put you in?"

It was a wild plan—wilder even and hopeless than the trick we had already carried through, but as I listened to Sapt I saw the strong points in our game. And then I was a young man, and I loved action, and I was offered such a hand in such a game as perhaps never man played yet.

"I shall be found out," I said.

"Perhaps," said Sapt. "Come! To Strelsau! We shall be caught like rats in a trap if we stay here."

"Sapt," I cried, "I'll try it!"

"Well played!" said he. "I hope they've left us the horses. I'll go and see."

"We must bury that poor fellow," said I.

"No time," said Sapt.

"I'll do it."

"Hang you!" he grinned. "I make you a king, and—well, do it. Go and fetch him while I look to the horses. He can't lie very deep, but I doubt if he'll care about that. Poor little Josef! He was an honest bit of a man."

He went out, and I went to the cellar. I raised poor Josef in my arms and bore him into the passage and thence toward the door of the house. Just inside I laid him down, remembering that I must find spades for our task. At this instant Sapt came up.

"The horses are all right. There's the own brother to the one that brought you here. But you may save yourself that job."

"I'll not go before he's buried."

"Yes, you will."

"Not I, Colonel Sapt, not for all Ruritania."

"You fool!" said he. "Come here."

He drew me to the door. The moon was sinking, but about 300 yards away, coming along the road from Zenda, I made out a party of men. There were seven or eight of them. Four were on horseback, and the rest were walking, and I saw that they carried long implements, which I guessed to be spades and mattocks, on their shoulders.

"They'll save you the trouble," said Sapt. "Come along."

He was right. The approaching party must beyond doubt be Duke Michael's men, come to remove the traces of their evil work. I hesitated no longer, but an irresistible desire seized me. Pointing to the corpse of poor little Josef, I said to Sapt:

"Colonel, we ought to strike a blow for him!"

"You'd like to give him some company, eh? But it's too risky work, your majesty."

"I must have a slap at 'em," said I.

Sapt wavered.

"Well," said he, "it's not business, you know; but you've been a good boy—and if we come to grief, why, hang me, it'll save us a lot of thinking! I'll show you how to touch them."

He cautiously closed the open chink of the door. Then we retreated through the house and made our way to the back entrance. Here our horses were standing. A carriage drive swept all around the lodge.

"Revolver ready?" asked Sapt.

"No: steel for me," said I.

"Glad you're thirsty tonight," chuckled Sapt. "So be it."

We mounted, drawing our swords, and waited silently for a minute or two. Then we heard the tramp of men on the drive the other side of the house. They came to a stand and one cried:

"Now, then, fetch him out!"

"Now!" whispered Sapt.

Driving the spurs into our horses, we rushed at a gallop round the house, and in a moment we were among the ruffians. Sapt told me afterward that he killed a man, and I believe him, but I saw no more of him. With a cut I split the head of a fellow on a brown horse, and he fell to the ground. Then I found myself opposite a big man, and I was half conscious of another to my right. It was too warm to stay, and with a simultaneous action I drove my spurs into my horse again and my sword full into the big man's breast. His bullet whizzed past my ear—I could almost swear it touched it. I wrenched at the sword, but it would not come, and I dropped it and galloped after Sapt, whom I now saw about twenty yards ahead. I waved my hand in farewell and dropped it a second later with a yell, for a bullet had grazed my finger and I felt the blood. Old Sapt turned round in the saddle. Some one fired again, but they had no rifles, and we were out of range. Sapt fell to laughing.

"That's one to me and two to you, with decent luck," said he. "Little Josef will have company."

"Aye, they'll be a parti carree," said I. My blood was up, and I rejoiced to have killed them.

"Well, a pleasant night's work to the rest!" said he. "I wonder if they noticed you."

"The big fellow did. As I struck him I heard him cry, 'The king!'"

"Good, good! Oh, we'll give Black Michael some work before we've done!"

Pausing an instant, we made a bandage for my wounded finger, which was bleeding freely and ached severely, the bone being much bruised. Then we rode on, asking of our good horses all that was in them. The excitement of the fight and of our great resolve died away, and we rode in gloomy silence. Day broke clear and cold. We found a farmer just up and made him give us sustenance for ourselves and our horses. I, feigning a toothache, muffled my face closely. Then ahead again till Strelsau lay before us. It was 8 o'clock or nearing 9, and the gates were all open, as they always were save when the duke's caprice or intrigues shut them. We rode in by the same way as we had come out the evening before, all four of us—the men and the horses—wearied and jaded. The streets were even quieter than when we had gone—every one was sleeping off last night's revelry—and we met hardly a soul till we reached the little gate of the palace. There Sapt's old groom was waiting for us.

"Is all well, sir?" he asked.

"All's well," said Sapt, and the man, coming to see, took my hand to kiss.

"The king's hurt!" he cried.

"It's nothing" said I as I dismounted. "I caught my finger in the door."

"Remember, silence!" said Sapt. "Ah, but, my good Freyler, I do not need to tell you that."

The old fellow shrugged his shoulders.

"All young men like to ride abroad now and then—why not the king?" said he, and Sapt's laugh left his opinion of my motives undisturbed.

"You should always trust a man," observed Sapt, fitting the key in the lock, "just as far as you must."

We went in and reached the dressing room. Flinging open the door, we saw Fritz von Tarlenheim stretched, fully dressed, on the sofa. He seemed to have been sleeping, but our entry woke him. He leaped to his feet, gave one glance at me and with a joyful cry threw himself on his knees before me.

"Thank God, sire! Thank God, you're safe!" he cried, stretching his hand up to catch hold of mine.

I confess that I was moved. This king, whatever his faults, made people love him. For a moment I could not bear to speak or break the poor fellow's illusion. But tough old Sapt had no such feeling. He slapped his hand on his thigh delightedly.

"Bravo, lad!" cried he. "We shall do!"

Fritz looked up in bewilderment. I held out my hand.

"You're wounded, sire!" he exclaimed.

"It's only a scratch," said I, "but"—I paused.

He rose to his feet with a bewildered air. Holding my hand, he looked me up and down and down and up. Then suddenly he dropped my hand and reeled back.

"Where's the king? Where's the king?" he cried.

"Hush, you fool!" hissed Sapt. "Not so loud! Here's the king."

A knock sounded at the door. Sapt seized me by the hand.

"Here, quick! To the bedroom! Off with your cap and your boots. Get into bed. Cover everything up."

I did as I was bid. A moment later Sapt looked in, nodded, grinned and introduced an extremely smart and deferential young gentleman, who came up to my bedside, bowing again and again, and informed me that he was of the household of the Princess Flavia and that her royal highness had sent him especially to inquire how the king's health was after the fatigues which his majesty had undergone yesterday.

"My best thanks, sir, to my cousin," said I, "and tell her royal highness that I was never better in my life."

"The king," added old Sapt, who, I began to find, loved a good lie for its own sake, "has slept without a break all night."

The young gentleman (he reminded me of Osric in "Hamlet") bowed himself out again. The farce was over, and Fritz von Tarlenheim's pale face recalled us to reality, though, in faith, the farce had to be reality for us now.

"Is the king dead?" he whispered.

"Please God, no," said I. "But he's in the hands of Black Michael."

CHAPTER VIII.

A REAL king's life is perhaps a hard one, but a pretended king's is, I warrant, much harder. On the next day Sapt instructed me in my duties—what I ought to do and what I ought to know—for three hours; then I snatched breakfast, with Sapt still opposite me, telling me that the king always took white wine in the morning and was known to detest all highly seasoned dishes. Then came the chancellor for another three hours, and to him I had to explain that the hurt to my finger (we turned that bullet to happy account) prevented me from writing, whence arose great to do, hunting of precedents and so forth, ending in my "making my mark," and the chancellor attesting it with a superfluity of solemn oaths. Then the French ambassador was introduced to present his credentials. Here my ignorance was of no importance, as the king would have been equally raw to the business. We worked through the whole corps diplomatique in the next few days, a demise of the crown necessitating all this bother.

Then at last I was left alone. I called my new servant (we had chosen to succeed poor Josef a young man who had never known the king), had a brandy and soda brought to me and observed to Sapt that I trusted that I might now have a rest.

Fritz von Tarlenheim was standing by.

"By heaven!" he cried. "We waste time. Aren't we going to throw Black Michael by the heels?"

"Gently, my son, gently," said Sapt, knitting his brows. "It would be a pleasure, but it might cost us dear. Would Michael fail and leave the king alive?"

"And," I suggested, "while the king is here in Strelsau, on his throne, what grievance has he against his dear brother Michael?"

"Are we to do nothing, then?"

"We're to do nothing stupid," growled Sapt.

"In fact, Fritz," said I, "I am reminded of a situation in one of our English plays, 'The Critic.' Have you heard of it? Or, if you like, of two men each covering the other with a revolver. For I can't expose Michael without exposing myself"—

"And the king," put in Sapt.

"And hang me if Michael won't expose himself if he tries to expose me!"

"It's very pretty," said old Sapt.

"If I'm found out," I pursued, "I will make a clean breast of it and fight it out with the duke. But at present I'm waiting for a [illegible] from him."

To be continued.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions of society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity, forearning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business in times of stress, and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

The Sun Life of Canada

Offers a man something as good as gold. Its policies give the maximum of security at the minimum of cost. If you have obligations; if your life means something to others, insurance is for you. Investigate the cost of absolute protection in the SUN OF CANADA.

EYESIGHT TESTING

is a science and should be thoroughly understood before attempting to correct eyesight troubles. Eyesight Testing is our business. We have studied it in all its phases and will be pleased at any time to demonstratrate to our patients just what condition their eyes are in, and how that the properly fitted glasses will act on the muscles to overcome the particular defect in their eyes. We have the very best appliances for Eyesight Testing and have never had a dissatisfied customer yet. As regards the fitting of Eyeglasses and Spectacles we consider that work very easy, as we understand that part of the business thoroughly.

MUST IMPROVE THE SAFETY APPLIANCES

Railways are so Notified by the Railway Commission—Thirty Per cent Defective

Ottawa, Oct. 16.— The Board of Railway Commissioners has decided on a number of sittings in Ontario, as follows; Ottawa, Oct. 21st, 22nd and 23rd, Chatham, Oct. 29th; Hamilton, Oct. 30th, and Toronto, Nov. 1st.

The circular in respect to defective equipment, which the Railway Commission is sending to all Canadian railways will draw attention to recent reports of inspectors to the effect that over thirty per cent. of the engines and cars in use, the total running into thousands have defective safety appliances, and that many of the cars have defective air brakes. The circular will express the hope that within a reasonable time these defects in equipment will be rectified and that it will not be necessary for the board to take further action.

In a report to the Commission, Mr A. F. Dillinger, operating assistant to the chief traffic officer, reports that since July last the car supply for Canadian Coal on the Crow's Nest Pass Line has been good and the prospects for maintaining a supply are also good. Mines shipping domestic coal have not been short of cars since July, but mines shipping to United States points have been short at times. Mr. Dillinger says that there was then in store at prairie towns west of Winnipeg, over 25,000 tons of coal for domestic use, exclusive of what had been delivered to consumers, and a further supply was still coming in.

The C.P.R. had in store over 100,000 tons of steam coal west of Winnipeg for winter use; 150,000 tons at Fort William, and 150,000 more booked to arrive before navigation closed. From Winnipeg west, the Canadian Northern had in store 20,000 tons of steam coal for winter, and 160,000 tons at Port Arthur. There is a scarcity of men in the mines, but Mr. Dillinger thinks the car supply will be sufficient.

A TALK ON CORSET COMFORT

A Few Salient Features of Bias Filled Corsets

COMFORT:

No need to dwell upon the discomfort of an ill-made or badly fitting Corset. Every lady knows exactly how annoying it is when the Corset bends at the side and refuses to come back to the original shape. Most straight filled corsets slip and bind or break within a few weeks. BIAS FILLED CORSETS will not break or bend out of shape. They adapt themselves to the figure so easily and with such comfort that women who wear them for the first time invariably imagine they are wearing a larger size than usual. Not so however. It is simply that the BIAS FILLING follows the curve of the body so that its movements are as free as they would be if the corsets were not worn at all.

SUPPORT:

BIAS FILLED CORSETS are made in every size and modeled to fit every style of figure. Whilst there are no wide heavy steels to press on the sides, THE BIAS FILLING is scientifically arranged on each size and style to give the most support with the least resistance. Langford, the Renfrew Walker, Reached Bowmanville at 11.07

Left Port Hope at 6 O'clock This Morning and Appears to be Making Good Time

Special to the Review.

Bowmanville, October 17th. Mr. D Langford, of Renfrew, who is attempting to walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 38 hours, reached here at 11.07 a.m., having left Port Hope at six o'clock. He stopped for ten minutes and partook of light refreshments. He was accompanied by Jimmy Reynolds, of Port Hope, and W. O'Brien, his trainer, in a buggy. Langford was lightly clad and was going at a good easy pace, and was in good spirits. Reynolds offered to walk the journey in 34 hours if anyone would put up $500.

Marble Bust of the Chancellor Presented to Queen's University

Sir Sanford Fleming Honored—Graduates of the College Donate Gift to Their Beloved Alma Mater—New Faculty Inaugurated.

The many friends of Sir Sandford Fleming, a former resident of Peterborough, will read with interest, the following despatch from Kingston,—

Sir Sandford Fleming, chancellor of Queen's University, presided yesterday at the autumn convocation, an innovation into the college's usual custom. For thirty years Chancellor Fleming has been an inspiration, and, to mark his long association with Queen's, the graduates had a marble bust carved for presentation to the college. Mr. Donald McIntyre, B.A., presented the gift. Chancellor Fleming in acknowledging the honor, spoke of his long association with Queen's and his co-operation with men of noble deeds. He expressed his pleasure at receiving a degree from Toronto University, and trusted the two universities will be more and more united in sympathy, and long continue to co-operate in promoting the highest educational interest in our country.

An additional attractive feature was the inauguration of the faculty of pedagogy, and the installing of Cecil F. Lavell, M. A., as dean, and Dr. O. J. Stevenson, B. A., as associate professor.

Dr. John Seath, superintendent of Education, congratulated Queen's on the inauguration of the faculty, on behalf of the Minister of Education, who wished that great success would attend it. The Government had had the purpose to recognize Queen's in its educational schemes, and this he regarded as desirable and advisable, as Queen's exerted a great power in Ontario's educational system. He was assured that the faculty would be more largely supported than at present, as the resources of the Government for educational purposes, promised to be largely augmented. He discussed the object of the faculty, and said his aim was to bring Ontario's system into line with those of other countries, and the educational faculties at Toronto and Kingston would be utilized to augment all efforts to bring the Canadian system up to the highest possible type.

Dr. Morrison, of Glasgow University, was installed, as professor of history; Mr. McClement, as professor of botany, and Dr. Etherington, as professor of anatomy. Five honorary degrees were conferred, that of D.D. to Professor Ballantyne, Toronto; LL.D. to Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals; Dr. Geikie, and Inspector A. Spotten, Toronto, and A. P. Low, geological survey, Ottawa.

Mr. J. H. Burnham Discusses The Question of Immigration

Says That We Are Under Obligation to Admit Non-Members of the Empire Into the Empire Within Reasonable Bounds—Discribes What He Means by the Term, Reasonable Limits.

The following interesting and timely letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, of Toronto, late of Peterborough, on the question of immigration appears in today's issue of the Mail and Empire.

Mr. Burnham says,—

Sir,—The immigration question is not only one of the chief topics of the day in Canada, but throughout this Empire as well. In fact, it is as an imperial economic question that it is best to discuss it. We might well enquire at the beginning what sort of a family relationship that would be which ignores or looks down upon some of the members of the family. The solidarity of such a family might exist on paper, but surely on no better foundation. If the Hindoo, and for that matter, anything else in the guise of a man, within the jurisdiction of the British Empire has not a right to circulate freely and in whatever numbers he may choose in all parts of the Empire, can he be said to be a member of this Empire on equal footing with the others. We may safely answer "Yes" if we insert the condition that he be limited or restrained to reasonable numbers. Any further restriction might, however, amount to repudiation. A homely illustration will show the necessity of this. The members of a family may be on the best of terms with each other, but if suddenly many of them take it into their heads to visit one member of that family with all their sisters, cousins and aunts, there is likely to be a disturbance, and so it is with the Hindoo. But following upon this another question arises. Are we under any obligation to admit non-members of the Empire into the Empire. The answer, I submit is the same, namely, within reasonable bounds. The laws of hospitality and friendship proclaim this condition as before in the case of the members of the family. But the readers will ask, what are the reasonable limits, of which we speak, and upon so much depends. That is the crux, of course, of the whole affair. Not only what are those reasonable limits, But who should have the fixing of them, it is necessary to determine. Let us then proceed to examine it. In all matters of business under a constitutional government the popular majority speaks through its official representatives and there it will be the popular majority, which will say what the reasonable limit of immigration will be. What we are especially concerned with however, is the opinion of the majority. We are anxious that it should be an opinion, founded upon the principles of justice and common sense. It is vital to the best interests of the country and of the Empire that so important a problem should be properly solved. Canadians do not wish to lose their identity as a white race of Anglo-Celtic stock. We are all agreed upon that point. If it were merely a matter of race, therefore, it would be a question of how many foreigners we could safely control and absorb. But this question under discussion is not a racial, but an economic one. What we would withstand racially we could not resist economically. In other words, whilst we might control three millions of outsiders as a race, that number would completely upset our equilibrium, and put the labor market wholly out of gear. Such an influx, however, would not have the same bad affect upon capital, since capital always profits from a plethora of labor. It is, therefore, from the point of view of labor, we see that we must consider this economic problem. Is there no automatic guage, which will tell us when there is too much or too little water in the labor boiler? Is there no electrometer which will tell us when we are crowding on too much current? Is there no system of prices, as in the case of butter and eggs which will tell us when the supply is too great, and that we must cease loading the market with that particular commodity? The danger point is reached in immigration from an economic point of view, when the tendency of the living wage is to become too low, having regard to what ought to be earnable by a normal white man living by a normal amount of labor and supporting a normal family. Once we have the standard below which the least paid in the community cannot safely go, we have something to measure our ideas by. We then know at least what we cannot do, and that is to import more cheap labor and thus further depress the rate of wages. This does not take account, of course, of the fact that we should strive to make of even the poorest paid man or woman's lot, a healthy and agreeable one, so that neither they nor their families shall be compelled to suffer in the comfort of life, the luxuries of home, the advantages of education, and the ease of old age. The labor market witnessed a notable invasion when women came into commercial competition with men. This invasion unsettled the market for a time, and it is only just recovered, but it was one of those things that had to be. Our women have equal rights with ourselves, and we must see to it that these rights are preserved. Then we are agreed that the limit of competition is reached, when the wages of a decent manner of living are determined. Labor fights to prevent disaster. Capital is on guard to preserve its profits. Both have rights. But, unfortunately, capital thrives best when labor is low. Labor, however, does not thrive best, when capital secures a poorer return. The natural antagonism, therefore, is capital against labor and not that of labor against capital. When there is no necessity for antagonism, there is none, and we need not discuss it, but when there is antagonism there is need for discussion, and it is because there is antagonism at present between capital and labor in the labor market of the West that this great question of immigration has so suddenly arisen. Senator Cox, who has just returned, says that the chief difficulty to be contended with in the early completion of the G.T.P. is the all-absorbing question of labor, and that all classes should unite to solve the difficulty. Now the difficulty really is to get sufficient number of laborers at a sufficiently low price. This could be secured by the free and copious importation of Hindoos, Chinamen, Japanese and perhaps negroes. Is it right that it should be secured on any such terms. We may say in reply to the Senator that all those who wish for a free and white Canada, will unhesitatingly answer in the negative. It is not our desire to impute any unworthy motive to capital. We have considered this question economically, and in that way only. The Government at Ottawa may repair its error by greater care in the future.

Yours, etc.,
Oct. 14, J. H. BURNHAM.

NOTHING DOING ON HORSE MARKET

Dealers Refuse to Give Prices Asked for by Sellers.

A local horse buyer informed the Review this morning that the depression in the horse market still continues and there seems no reason to think that the situation will be much improved until late in the spring. He said as far as he was concerned, buying is practically at a standstill. None of the buyers, he stated, could see their way clear to pay the prices asked for by those who wanted to sell.

Other Members of Jack Lake Party Home on Wednesday

Messrs. J. M. Brooks, J. Mervin, J. Brennan and Wm. Gould returned from Jack Lake last night, where they have been enjoying a few days of partridge shooting and fishing. They report the fishing as good, but the partridge are apparently scarce and stay well under cover. Mr. Roland Deane, another member of the party, comes home tonight, but the others, of whom there are about a dozen, will remain at the lake until next Wednesday.

ENDS HIS LIFE IN THE YUKON

George Kincaid Commits Suicide —Charged With Theft of $40,000

The friends of Mr. George Kincaid a former Peterborough resident, were shocked today to learn of his tragic death in the Yukon. The deceased was widely known in the city and left for Dawson about nine years ago. He was home about four years ago on a visit.

A despatch from Dawson gives the the following particulars of the extremely sad affair;

George Kincaid, head foreman of the Public Works Department in the Yukon Territory, with headquarters at Dawson, arrived on Sunday, in charge of the police, at Selkirk, one hundred and seventy-five miles above Dawson. He was charged with stealing $40,000, which mysteriously disappeared from the registered mail sack delivered in Dawson, July 29, from Fairbanks, by the steamer Seattle. Kincaid was placed aboard the steamer Prospector yesterday morning on his way to Dawson, and died three hours before the arrival of the boat. A vial supposed to contain poison was found in his bunk. On Monday night he was well and cheerful. It is believed that the man was so overcome with shame because of his capture that he ended his life.

It is believed that Kincaid stole the gold from the post office when he worked in the Government service. He had confederates, who carried away the sacks, opened them, melted the gold, mixed it with Klondike dust and sold it to the banks. Only a small portion was recovered.

Richard L. Hall, book-keeper of the M. & N. saloon of Dawson, a former restaurant proprietor, was arrested on Thursday on a similar charge to that on which Kincaid was held. Hall is confined in the barracks at Dawson. It is reported that he had made a confession implicating a number of Dawsonites. The arrest of Hall and Kincaid caused the biggest sensation here in years, both having been prominent Klondikers. Kincaid is a native of Peterborough and went to Dawson in 1898.

BREAKFAST FOOD IS NOW DEARER

Higher Cost of Grain Forces Grocers to Raise Prices of Oatmeal, etc.

The man who can afford to sleep in mornings late enough to be able to go without breakfast is a lucky one. The grocers announce that owing to the advanced prices of grains, the manufacturers of breakfast foods, especially oatmeal, have sent up the wholesale price of these articles, with the result that the dealer has found it necessary to charge his customers more. The packages, which formerly sold at 10 cents, will go up to fifteen cents, while 25-cent packages will advance to thirty cents.

The price of oatmeal in bulk has also gone up about 50 per cent. The wholesale price was formerly $2.30 per cwt., but now it is $3.25, and instead of getting seven pounds for a quarter, the people will only get six pounds for their twenty-five cents, and the grocers say the present wholesale prices will force them to make another advance.

LOTS OF APPLES THIS SEASON

Mr. A. Hunter Says the Crop is a Good One

The apple pickers are busy at work in the different branches throughout this part of the country. In spite of some rumors early in the season that the apple crop would not be good this year, Mr. Albert Hunter, of North Monaghan, informed the Review today that it is a fine one, and much better than that of last season. He says most of the apples are being sold to the buyers by the barrel, although many farmers have sold their crop of apples outright.

THE WILD CAT SHOWED FIGHT

Animal Was Pursuing a Swimming Deer When Sighted

Carew's tug, the Beaver, which arrived recently from Ball Lake, had on board, the carcass of a fierce looking wild cat of large proportions that had been killed there. The animal lies in the mill yard at present, where it has been viewed by dozen. Its length appears to be altogether out of proportion with its body. The paws are exceptionally large, and from the pads, protrude sharp, wicked looking claws. The head is the picture of ferocity, and a bob-tail completes one of the most dangerous animals to be encountered in the woods, dreaded alike by man and beast.

The species of the feline tribe was first sighted by some lumbermen, being in pursuit of a swimming deer. They took a skiff and rowed to it, and the creature turned to attack them. At this one of the men, Wright by name, struck it several powerful blows on the head, killing it. The body was thrown on a raft of logs, towed by the Beaver and brought to town.

That a wild cat would attack a deer, in the water, which the domestic cat hates, would appear improbable, but the creatures are desperate when hungry and possess remarkable strength. The rush of the people to view the carcass prompted the remark from a river driver that "the cat drew a crowd worse nor a circus."—Lindsay Post.

Some Thoughts of a Companion

How to View Life in its Different Phases—Musings of the Day

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Does it not seem an age since—our last little chit-chat? The pen, it is true, is a sacred instrument, which none but the anointed should touch. Yet, if as Fontenelle asserts, there be "joy serene in simple epanchment," it were injudicious perhaps to withhold from friends the thoughts that, in the solitude of one's study or a promenade through field and farm and forest, especially when nature, as now, is taking on its first delicate tints of autumn—are sure to surge to one's mind. Dr McCook, the famed entomologist, was never so happy as when studying the habits of insects, some of which he found endowed with almost matchless skill. In my various woodland strolls I cannot say that beyond prodding with a stick an occasional tiny nettle, I was quite so observant, although to those reviewing the old scenes

Every place has a story to tell them,
Every tree that over them bends
Bows its branches as if it knew them,
All surrounding things are their friends.

In one of my recent junkets through a rural district I came across a countryman of Nelson, with whom it was an exquisite pleasure to converse. Although a mere youth, he had mind and manhood and made a delightful companion. Unlike some of the malcontents for whom Canada has not a redeeming feature, he was captivated by the hospitable spirit of her people, the freedom of its institutions, and the alluring hopes that gild her horizon. We took "a cup of kindness" together, which would have given permanence to almost any scheme, and if, ere we parted, the All-Red Line was not fully settled, it was not our fault. Returning to this great metropolis, I found the mountain exactly where it was before, and the multitude, as eagerly as ever, chasing coin. And here, taking a glance at the world's doings, one must become convinced that "advance" is the formula of the age; that man's mind, like an aurora flaming through the darkness of night, every now and then, scintillating with some fresh conception, making the impossibility of yesterday the triumph of tomorrow; for, not content with talking through space, navigating the firmament, projecting light through flesh and bone, and harnessing crashing cataracts, we find the Lusitania—that marvel of modern naval construction—with accommodation for 2,500 people (a good-sized town), developing on sea a rate of speed that must soon make the land flyer, look to its laurels. Columbus spanned the mighty deep in 68 days, and shall remain immortal despite the ingratitude of the envious. The minute Savannah, in 1819, took 32 days to cross, the Great Eastern 12, and the gigantic Cunarder, defying wind and wave, ploughed her proud way from Queenstown to New York in less time (5 hours, 45 minutes) than any of her present swift competitors, to the admiration of two continents. And of the "Mauretania," her sister ship, still greater things are predicted. But am I not looping the loop, or, if you will, lengthening the length of my letter beyond the permitted limit? Nor am I sure that this hybrid production, built like a crow's nest and devoid of art, may add largely to my fame. Let my timid hope be that the kind reader may suspend judgment, as once did a little lad who had Cain and Abel to write upon. "Cain and Abel," said the wee one, "were brothers, but when Abel died he went to Heaven."

I remain, Mr. Editor, what I never ceased to be,

Your friend,
IBEX.

Mr. Alf Garlick Apparently Recovering From Serious Attack of Convulsions

It will be pleasing information to the many friends of Mr. Alf. Garlick, who has been confined to St. Joseph's hospital, since last Monday afternoon, that he recovered consciousness this morning and seems to be out of danger. When Mr. Garlick was first taken to the hospital, he was in a very precarious condition, and for a while the physician attending him, was not certain whether he would recover from his sudden and serious attack. However, he took a decided turn for the better this morning and enquiries at the hospital, elicited the information that he is progressing very favorably. Up to this morning he had been unconscious ever since he entered the hospital.

Will Issue New Map of the City

Review Will Present a Copy to Each of its Subscribers

The Review will issue in a few days a new and complete map of the city, the engraving having been made from the very latest survey, and will contain all alterations and additions up to within the last two weeks.

The map is accurate in every respect. With a view of having it a handy affair, it is uniform in size with the County of Peterborough map, issued by the Review and for many years so popular, in fact the only map available for general use.

The Review will have pleasure in presenting a copy to each subscriber, and extra copies will be on sale for a trifle. In addition an edition is in preparation, folded and bound in neat leather and cloth cases convenient for pocket and desk use. These maps are printed on a white linen lined paper, and will stand long and continued use without cracking or creasing. The date of distribution will be announced. Those who have seen the map, are pleased with its convenient size, legibility and accuracy.

DEBATING CLUB'S FIRST MEETING

Splendid Programme at the Y.M C.A. Last Night

The opening meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Debating and Literary Society was held last evening, a large number of the members being present, and great enthusiasm was shown. A social evening was spent by the club, and several interesting features were introduced. The president, Mr. Wilfrid Shiner, occupied the chair. As the names on the roll were called out the members answered with quotations from well known authors. Among other business transacted was the election of Messrs. George Armstrong and Fred Ray to the executive committee. A short address on "Current Events," was given by Mr. W. Shiner, which was very interesting. Impromptu speeches on such subjects as music, books, etc., were given by Messrs Cameron, Armstrong, Coleman, Ray and Creegan. Mr. W. McLaren also contributed a humorous speech that took well.

The following musical numbers interspersed the addresses:—

Piano Solo—Mr. Nicholls.
Song—Mr. C. Coleman.
Recitation—Mr. Johns.
Comic Song—Mr. Redgreave.
Violin Solo—Mr. George Howarth.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson, critic of the society, then gave an impartial criticism of the programme, after which refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be on November 7th, when a debate, "Resolved that Education by reading is better than by travelling," will be given. The affirmative will be taken by Messrs. McLaren and Armstrong, while the negative will be upheld by Messrs. C. Coleman and George Howarth.

Development of Healey Falls; Operations Have Commenced

Ground and Rock Broken for the Great Power Scheme —Procession Started Out From Havelock—Mr. Culverwell Scores the Greedy Politicians—Believes in Playing the Game Fair.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Oct. 16th, 1907.—Development of the celebrated Healey Falls and rapids, was commenced today.

Managing Director Culverwell, with the company engineer and two new directors of Northumberland-Durham Power Company, drove from Havelock with a gang of men and two waggon loads of construction material and tools, entering upon property with a procession of four teams. A construction material building was erected in record time, and ground and rock broken.

Magistrate Mathison, real estate capitalist, and founder of Havelock, and Councillor Joseph Knox, contractor, new directors of the company, with Councillor Campney, master blacksmith, assisted in construction operations, and the usual christening ceremonies, were performed Work will be pushed rapidly.

Eighteen councils have officially endorsed the company's applications to both Governments, to provide eight ridings with power from Healey's Falls and Rapids.

The managing-director at Stirling Council, a fortnight ago, stated that the Company held a lease from the Ontario Government of Falls and lower rapids, also patent of 56 acres of land, absolutely necessary for development works, owns by deed, two large portions of upper rapids and also other necessary lands, but the Dominion Government owns an intervening portion of upper rapids. The company has waited two years for canal surveys to be finished and was tired. The Company engineers report power development would not interfere with proper canal operations. The company will furnish gladly lands for locks and canal cutting, and flooding and also necessary water for lockage.

The directors of company, comprising leading manufacturers and business men of Cobourg, Belleville, Port Hope, Trenton, Deseronto and Havelock, desire to furnish power to the whole south Midland Ontario district, and are being obstructed by greedy politicians. The company submits to electric policy of Whitney Government.

Mr. Culverwell stated today that he read in the press that the first gentleman of Canada, Earl Grey, told the boys of Trinity College School to play the game fair, in their future business life. Mr. Culverwell said he was taught that at Upper Canada College when a boy, and now while a member of the governing body of that great school, he honestly followed that advice, and he only wished the politicians of this great Canad of ours would do the same.

Mr. Culverwell stated that New York capitalists visited Healey Falls last week in company with him, and are satisfied with the project.

Entertained by the President

Members of Astronomical Society Spent Enjoyable Time at Home of Rev. Dr. Marsh

The opening meeting for 1907—08 of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society was held at the home of Rev. Dr. Marsh, Springville, last night. About fifteen members of the society drove out from the city and spent a most enjoyable and profitable time with the genial and talented president of the local branch. Dr. Marsh had left nothing undone that would add to the entertainment of his guests and the fact that his splendid telescope and other astronomical instruments were placed at the disposal of the members, together with Dr. Marsh's extensive fund of knowledge in connection with astronomical matters, had much to do in making the evening one of more than ordinary interest. The night was a splendid one for observation purposes and the telescope was turned on the moon, Mars, Saturn and other heavenly bodies and everybody had a peep at them. Special attention was paid the moon, which the telescope brought within 400 miles of those looking through it. Neither Mars nor Saturn were in good position for observation, but fair views were obtained of them. Dr. Marsh showed the guests how photographs of the heavenly bodies are taken, and took a picture of the moon, just to demonstrate how it was done. Afterwards the time was taken from the planet Saturn, by means of the instrument used for this purpose. Dr. Marsh has his telescope and other instruments set up on the lawn in front of his house, where they are very convenient.

After spending over an hour in observation work, the party gathered in one of the rooms of the house, where they were shown a large number of lantern slides, made from photographs and drawings of the different heavenly bodies. Among them were views of the sun, showing the sun spots, from photographs taken by Dr. Marsh on Wednesday of this week. This phase of the evening was exceedingly interesting. Afterwards refreshments were served the guests and a social time spent. Dr. and Mrs. Marsh and Miss Marsh, did everything in their power to entertain the members of the society and were eminently successful in their efforts. Those present will long remember the evening as one of great pleasure and profit.

The striking miners at Springhill hope to have their dispute settled in a couple of days.

OCTOBER

A contributor sends to the Review the following verse, accompanying the request for publication, with the enquiry as to "What you will give us if I offer to send in a poem every day for two weeks":—

How fast the days are going by,
October is here again
With all its many changes
Of sunshine, wind and rain.

The maple leaves are falling
Which warns us there is frost,
The violet and the rose have bloomed,
Their beauty soon hath lost.

The beechnuts they are falling fast,
Which is the squirrel's delight,
He gathers in his winter store
From morning until night.

And as the days go flying by,
And winter comes at last,
Could we forget to thank the Lord
For the happy summer past.

Machine That Is a Novelty

Ten Cent Piece in the Slot Produces a Collar Button

Mr. Jas. Lewis has "something new" in his barber shop. It is automatic machine, loaded with eight different kinds of collar buttons and by dropping in a ten cent piece, you can get one of any type. It works on the same principle as the cent in the slot gum machines, and is the first of its kind in this city. It is a decided novelty and is attracting much attention.

They Inspected The Ideal Works

What Peterboro' Gentlemen Think of Port Hope's Leading Industry

Messrs. Geo. Ball and J. J. Lynch, who were in Port Hope yesterday paid a visit to the Ideal Works and were surprised at the extent of the industry. The works manufacture all kinds of sanitary appliances. Everything is conducted in admirable style. No less than 350 employees are constantly engaged; no girls and no boys, all men receiving the highest pay. The wages bill of the company last year was $210,000. The Peterborough gentlemen were well pleased and speak in the highest terms of the courtesy accorded them by the management.

Was Disorderly In Chinese Cafe

Young Man Was Fined $5.75 for the Offence—Toronto Trio Discharged

For being disorderly in the Chinese restaurant of C. Q. Woo last evening, Fred McGee was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $5.75, in the police court this morning. McGee pleaded not guilty.

C. Q. Woo was sworn and through an interpreter, stated that about half past eleven last night, the defendant came in and ordered some hot lamb. He went to the kitchen and used abusive language towards the witness. Some milk was boiling on the stove, and McGee upset it into the fire. The celestial further stated that the prisoner kicked him. Three other fellows assisted McGee, and Woo phoned for the police. P. C. McInarry took the prisoner to the police station.

McGee was sworn and denied ever striking the Chinaman. He said that he went into the kitchen because the waiter in the front could not understand English.

The Chinamen are entitled to respect as long as the Government allows them to come into the country, said His Worship. He believed Woo's story and imposed the above fine on the prisoner.

The other three fellows who were with McGee were discharged. His Worship hoped these young men, that have several times been a source of annoyance in restaurants, would learn a lesson from the fine imposed and behave themselves in the future.

TORONTO TRIO DISCHARGED.

Ralph Cheyna, Thomas Holmes, and John Ford, the three Toronto fellows who were arrested two weeks ago on a charge of vagrancy were discharged this morning. Chief Rossel has received communications from Weston and Toronto, and there have been no previous convictions against them in either place. They paid for everything they got in the city and there was not sufficient evidence to convict them. His Worship advised the trio to get out of the city or get to work.

Bread Labels Not Unsanitary

No Mucilage or Adhesive Used, But Label is Placed on Dough

A campaign against using labels on bread has been started in Toronto by Dr. Sheard, the medical health officer, who characterizes them as unsanitary and a nuisance, and an invitation to cheat, as a rebelled loaf need not be of standard, weight, so long as the weight of the loaf is written on the paper label.

A local medical man, to whom the Review referred the question as to whether the paper labels were unsanitary, stated that he did not think they did much harm, if any. The label is used in the dough and baked to the loaf and no paste or mucilage is used to make it adhere. The medical man stated, however, that he saw no reason why the label was necessary if the standard loaf of three pounds with the small loaf of a pound and a half were used.

In some places, Ottawa, for instance, there is an agreement among the bakers to have the weight of the loaf stamped on the bottom of the tin, so that each loaf is marked in the baking. But there are varieties of fancy bread that would look unwieldy baked in standard size, and on these the paper labels are used to show the weight.

"The Serge of the Serges"

BLUNOZ CANADIAN Semi-ready

In the first place "Blunoz" serge is not made in Nova Scotia.

In the second place, it is not all a blue serge, for it is a freely woven Australian wool serge in both the navy blue and black colors. You have a choice of either.

To be sure they call the Nova Scotians "Blunoses"—but that is not the derivative of "Blunoz" serge.

Only two woollen mills in Canada can make the "Blunoz" Serge—and the Semi-ready Company control and absorb in their tailor shops the entire output.

This is the Canadian Serge which has made the British mills "sit up," and it is the Standard cloth by which the Government judge the tariff needs of this particular Canadian industry.

Came From Detroit Last Monday

Mr. Harry Gibbs Suffering From After Effects of Serious Illness

Mr Harry Gibbs, brother of Mr. R. Gibbs, has arrived in the city from Detroit, where he has been since May last, and is at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Dawson, Downer's Corners. Mr. Gibbs is suffering from a badly swollen leg, which gives him much pain, the after effects of a serious attack of pneumonia, followed by pleurisy. He is confined to his bed, and, according to the statement of the physician who attended him in Detroit, he will not be sufficiently recovered to leave it for about two months. He was confined to St. Marys Hospital, Detroit, for a short time, and came to this city on Monday, being conveyed here in a sleeper, and from the train was taken to Mr. Dawson's residence in a cab.

When in Detroit Mr. Gibbs was engaged in the livery business, with which he had also been identified in Peterborough for many years. His many friends hope that he will progress as favorably as possible, and will no doubt take the opportunity of paying him a visit during his illness.

CAPTAIN AS DIVER.

Shark Oversees Risky Piece of Work.

A sea captain's ingenuity and pluck are the subject of a capital story which comes from Hartlepool. Captain Ivor Mattson, of the Swedish barque Flora is the hero of the adventure, which occurred when the Flora was on a voyage from Norway to the Cape. Heavy weather was encountered in the Bay of Biscay, and the water commenced to make its way into the vessel at the bows. Despite the fact that the pumps were kept going—by means of the windmill on deck when possible, and at other times by hand—the water rose steadily in the hold, and eventually the Flora, which was by this time in the South Atlantic, was in a well-nigh waterlogged condition. The captain then decided upon heroic measures. It was impossible to stop the leak from the inside, so he determined to try and stop it from the outside. For this purpose a diving suit of some form was necessary, and out of a piece of sail cloth, Captain Matteon fashioned a huge bag, sixteen feet long and two feet in diameter, fixing metal rings at intervals inside in order to keep it in shape. At a suitable height he put in a small window, scraping the back off a cheap mirror for the purpose. Armholes and sleeves were fitted, and the whole apparatus so rigged up that the bag could be loweed into the water to the requisite depth to enable a person inside it to examine the hull of the vessel under water. Captain Mattson himself descended in this novel diving suit, and discovered, after considerable difficulty, two places where the water was entering.

With the aid of rags, rope, etc., he caulked the apertures, the dangers of the task being increased by the fact that, whilst the leakages were some four feet below the actual water line of the vessel, their depth momentarily increased to eight feet or so as the ship dipped to the long Atlantic roll. The pitching of the vessel, too, caused Captain Mattson to be continually thrown with more or less force against the hull, and indeed the friction gradually wore a hole in the canvas at the foot of the bag. Through this the water entered the bag and immersed Captain Mattson to the chin before he could call out to his men to haul him up. Another unpleasant interruption was caused by a shark. All the morning before Captain Mattson commenced operations a large shark had been swimming around the vessel. The crew had fished for him with meat, etc., but without success, but at length the monster, rising to grab at so insignificant an article as an empty match box that had been thrown overboard, Captain Mattson had a shot at him with a revolver. The shark was just below the water when the bullet hit him, and evidently not much damage was done. Still, he swam away, and was not seen again until Captain Mattson was below in his extemporised diving suit. The crew at once warned the captain of the shark's approach, but the captain decided to go on with his work. The shark came up, and Captain Mattson, keeping close to the side of the vessel, saw him come round the bows. The pilot fish that accompanied him inspected the canvas bag, but the shark passed, apparently unheeding, some four or five feet off. Captain Mattson was at first somewhat afraid the shark might attack his hands, and had his knife ready to defend himself if necessary. The leakages being repaired, the Flora, continued her voyage to Cape Town, which she reached in safety, and, as a recognition of his daring and ingenuity, Captain Mattson was the recipient of several handsome presents.

IN SIXTEENTH CENTURY.

Children In England Had Beer For Breakfast.

Sixteenth-century children in England ate very different food from that consumed by modern American youngsters. The following dietary is taken from the Northumberland Household Book showing the nursery breakfasts at the beginning of the sixteenth century: "This is the Ordre of Braikfasts for the Nurey for my Lady Margaret and Maister Ingeram Percy every day in the week in Lent: Item, a Manchet (small loaf of white bread), a Quarte of Bere, a Dysch of Butter, a Pece of Saltfish, a Dysch of Sprotts ir iij White Herring, Braikfastis of Fleesh dayly thorowte the Yere: Item, a Manchet, a Quarte of Bere and iij Miton Bonys boiled. On Fysheadyes throw-owte the Yere: Item, a Manchet, a Quarte Bere, a Dysch of Butter, a pece of Saltfische or a Dysche of Butter'd Eggs." Milk seems to have been an unknown beverage, but the beer of those days was very different from the modern article, and much more harmless.

Quaint: London Charities.

Distributions were made recently in connection with three strange charities operating in the parish of Holborn. One was the Isaac Duckett bequest, founded in 1620, to be applied in equal shares for the benefit of poor maid-servants who had served one master or mistress for seven consecutive years. Of late this period has been reduced to five years. Of 57 applicants 31 were elected to receive each $20. The longest period of service boasted was 33 1-2 years.

The other two charities—Lady Hatton's and Mrs. Palmer's—both related to aged widows of over 60 years of age who had resided in the parish for ten years and never received poor relief. Under the former request about 28 widows received money, while Mrs. Palmer's benevolence was responsible for 24 old ladies receiving $25—the first half-yearly instalment of their $50 pension.

Old Curiosity Shop.

The Old Curiosity Shop in Portsmouth street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, in which tourists have spent thousands and thousands of pounds, is soon to be demolished.

Countless persons have accepted this shop as the "Old Curiosity Shop" of Charles Dickens, but it has never been established that the great novelist had it in mind when he wrote his story.

VET. COLLEGE OPENED

Lengthening the Course Has Cut Down Attendance.

Toronto, Oct. 16.—At 2.30 this afternoon the first lecture was delivered at the Ontario Veterinary College. While there were some 250 juniors last year, there will not be much over 100 freshmen registered for 1907, owing to the increasing of the course to three years. Heretofore, there have been a large number of students from the States as the colleges over there have a three year course. Chicago four, and the Ontario College course has only been two years. This influx will now be somewhat checked. The senior class is not, of course, heavy, as those in college last year are anxious to complete their two year course while they have the chance.

THAT AFFAIR IN LINDSAY

Mr. Wm. McGregor, of the Simpson house, Lindsay, is in the city today. Mr. McGregor referring to the young men from this city who were arrested on the night of the excursion from here to Lindsay on the occasion of the opening of the roller rink in the Scugog town said the affair was an unfortunate one, but it was simply a case of the boys imbibing a little too freely and forgetting that it was necessary for them to conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

THE NEWS WAS NOT INSPIRED

Correspondent of Review is Mistaken in His Deduction

The Review received the following letter today,—

To the Editor of the Review,

Sir,—In your issue of Tuesday I notice that it was stated that Rev. Mr. Pogue, was the almost unanimous choice of St. Paul's church The Examiner of the same day, contained the same statement. We must take it, therefore, that the statement was "inspired."

Now, as I understand it, the congregation has—and justly so—a voice in the choir of their pastor. They are not bound to accept the nominee presented to them by the Session and Board of Managers. As the meeting of the members and adherents of the church to consider a call is not to be held until the 28th, of this month I cannot but think that it would have been in better taste if the "inspirer" of your news item had remained silent.

ONLOOKER.

Peterborough, Oct. 17.

In connection with the above letter, it may be stated that no one "inspired" the item in the Review, that Rev. Mr. Pogue was likely to be called to the pastorate of St. Paul's church. The paragraph was published merely as a matter of news and was based upon current report, and the fact that a large number of the members and adherents of St. Paul's church, who heard Mr. Pogue on Sunday expressed themselves as being in favor of extending him a call. The fact that the same information appeared in the Examiner on the same date has no bearing on the case, as the same thing happens every day.

Good Attendance at Night School

The night school at the Y. W. C. A. opened last night with a fairly good attendance. The pupils spent a busy and profitable hour with their arithmetic. The Y.W.C.A. will be pleased to welcome to this class any who are anxious for self-improvement along this line.

Many Members Were Installed

New Branch of C.M.B.A. Organized at Port Hope

A new branch of the C.M.B.A. was instituted in Port Hope yesterday. Some 25 members were initiated. There were visitors present from Peterborough, Lindsay and Cobourg. Among the leading members were Mr George Hall, of Peterborough, G.D.D., Mr. J. J. A SUBSIDIZED TOUR

It is proposed that the leading newspaper men of Canada — or at least as many of them as can spare the time and cash—should make a tour of Europe next year.

The idea is all right; the proposition is a good one, but it has been suggested that the Dominion Government should come down with a grant or subsidy, to aid certain representative journalists to carry out the sojourn.

In this day of graft, when the press is unitedly crying out against this evil, why should newspapermen try to work one under a plausible plea that the campaign will be an educative one, and will give the Dominion greater publicity and prestige in the eyes of the world.

There is no need and no call for such a demand. Representatives of this fourth estate are surely able to pay their way. It is true that a party of British journalists came to this country a few months ago, and that their expenses were born by the Federal Government. They came as invited guests, and there was some justification for their travelling disbursements being met. But no Government across the water has invited the newspapermen of Canada, and if a tour is taken, it will be largely one of personal pleasure and profit, and in the interest of their respective publications. It will in no sense be national, then why should the country seek assistance, "from the hill." It would be humiliating. Any public body that secures reduced rates on transportation, and other concessions, and cannot pay its way, should stay at home.

A day of reckoning might come, and the independence of the Canadian press in a measure be undermined. Jones went to Chicago to visit his relatives, the Smiths. He stayed a month and on his return home was asked by a friend how much his outing cost him. "I cannot tell," he surreptitiously replied, "until the Smiths pay us a visit." Somewhat on the same principle, how can newspapers consistently inveigh against greed and graft on the part of administrations and public men, when, if they seek to obtain monetary help from the public domain for a European tour, they will be to a greater or less extent sponsors for a practice which is growing in all departments, and sapping the vitality and integrity of many of our best institutions and men — the practice of striving to get something without returning for it adequate value.

It is hoped that the proposition to approach the Government for financial encouragement for such a sojourn as is now mooted, will be frowned down.

A GREAT PREACHER GONE

The most conspicuous figure in Canadian Methodism, Rev. John Potts, D. D., has gone to his reward and thus closes a career of great usefulness, helpfulness and life-long service to the church.

Dr. Potts was known and respected, honored and esteemed from one end of Canada to the other, and in this great religious gatherings of the world, he played a prominent part. He was a great preacher, a great financier, and a great worker on behalf of hospitals, educational and charitable institutions. He was a big man physically and intellectually, and during his career of half a century maintained most cordial relations with other denominations. He had filled the most important pulpits in the gift of the church, being twice pastor of St. James', Montreal, the Cathedral church of Canadian Methodism, and twice in charge of the Metropolitan church, Toronto, the largest building of the denomination in the Queen City. Dr. Potts was in 1886 appointed General Secretary of Education of the Methodist church of Canada, a position which he filled with great vigor and acceptance until the day of his death. He was a frequent visitor to Peterborough, where he had many warm friends and admirers. The last time that he honored this city with his presence—over a year ago — it was noticed that there was a slight droop about the hitherto, tall, erect, stalwart frame, and that in ascending the pulpit stairs, the step of the talented Methodist divine, was not as alert as in former days. He was not so active physically, but his stirring impressive gospel sermon, delivered in George Street Methodist church, will long be remembered. The departed clergyman, "the uncrowned king of Canadian Methodism," was a powerful and eloquent preacher on simple themes. His deep, resonant voice rang out clear and tuneful, even to the remotest parts of the largest auditoriums. He had a fascinating way, and an attractive personality, that won the hearts of all. He rose from the most humble position to the highest office in the church. When a boy in his teens, it is said, that he drove a delivery waggon for a butcher and ten years later, so splendid was his progress that he was received into full connection of the Methodist Church and ordained.

A more appropriate and comprehensive tribute cannot be paid to the illustrious departed than that paid him by Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist church in Canada, who said,—

"The death of Dr. Potts is a sore bereavement to Canadian Methodism and will be keenly felt throughout our entire work and to our remotest mission. World-wide Methodism will mourn with us over his bier. And we venture to think that the churches of a mighty evangelism, yes, all churches, will mingle their sympathies with our grief. Canadians and Britons everywhere will rejoice that he long stood a pillar of the Church and of the State; that he stood for the best and largest things in humanity, patriotism, and religion. The cause of the sanctity of the Sabbath, of the dissemination of the Holy Scriptures, of the sobriety and intelligence of the common people, of sound theological education, and of the efficiency and success of the Sunday schools, each and all, and many other humane and uplifting enterprises, had in him a steady support and unwavering friend. The most largely representative man in our Methodism, he was a brother and companion, trusted and beloved in all the churches, and a citizen, true and faithful in all our Dominions and Commonwealths. Would we had ten thousand such men."

TRADE WITH GERMANY

After years of lost trade, it is now understood that there is a likelihood of the trade war between Canada and Germany coming to an end. This will be accomplished by Canada's giving to Germany the "most favored nation" treatment, a position, which, if right to create now should have been yielded when the trouble commenced, instead of the Dominion Government blundering along and causing a loss of trade between the two countries, amounting to millions of dollars.

The war was the result of Mr. Fielding's blunder in passing through parliament in 1897, his wonderful reciprocity clause, against the warnings and advice of the Conservative Opposition. It gave the Argentine Republic, a country with exports very similar to those of Canada, a chance to "cut in," of which it was prompt to avail itself, running up a trade with Germany 150 per cent. in a few years, while Canada's trade declined in the same time by a million dollars annually.

When Mr. Fielding made his venture, contrary to usage and advice, the British trade treaties under which Canada enjoyed "most favored nation treatment," had to be denounced. The Minister of Finance made no attempt toward a separate agreement, and the German maximum tariff went into effect automatically against Canada. Instead of friendly overture to settle the difficulty thus created, Mr. Fielding clapped on the surtax on German goods, the effect of which was to exclude direct trade, while German goods could still enter Canada under the preference through British channels.

It is never too late to remedy a wrong, and consequently it is satisfactory to learn that the blundering of the Dominion Government is to be remedied. We have only Mr. Fielding and the Laurier Government to blame for the loss and damage of the past ten years, resulting from this "factitious obstacle" created by denunciation of the treaties which necessarily follow his blunder of the reciprocal clause, that failed to reciprocate.

PEN POINTS

Attend the meeting of the Canadian Club in the city council chamber this evening.

Although there were several star gazers out Springville way last evening, it is reported that there was no love making, although the night was a very tranquil one.

Deputy Magistrate Kingsford, of Toronto, who, as many of us know, is nothing if not erudite, has been deciding a case of violation of the smoke nuisance bylaw in that city, says the Ottawa Journal. In the course of his judgment, he traced the history of legislation against the smoke nuisance from the days of Horace. Since anything that Horace didn't like could not have had any good in it, it is not surprising to learn that Mr. Kingsford found a judgment of guilty and fined the offender $25. In passing it is interesting to notice that the case in question is simply a test case, and that other perpetrators of the smoke nuisance are to be prosecuted. Toronto seems to be desperately in earnest in the matter and the activity of the Toronto authorities against the smoke nuisance is an object lesson to communities which have not yet awakened to the fact that there is any such thing as a smoke nuisance.

Mr. Borden has held some fifteen meetings in British Columbia and Alberta, making the most successful political campaign tour ever known in the far west. Everywhere he has been received cordially, heard attentively, and has found his doctrines enthusiastically endorsed. The opposition leader has shown that he does not require one platform for the east and another for the west; one for the manufacturers, another for the farmers, and a third for the miners. The Halifax platform is as good in British Columbia as in Nova Scotia, for it was not framed with the view of catching votes in any particular section. On the Japanese question Mr. Borden proclaimed a doctrine on the Pacific Coast which he can also affirm on the Atlantic or at Ottawa. He believes that this ought to be a white man's country, and that Asiatic population is not suitabld to the civilization, which it is Canada's mission to promote. He declares that parliament was deceived last session by Mr. Fisher's positive declaration that Japanese would not be permitted to emigrate. This error, whether intentionally produced or not, is at the bottom of present embarrassment.

WEDDING BELLS

PETERS—CAUKWELL

A very quiet wedding took place at the Baptist Parsonage, 285 Park street, last night, when Miss Gertrude B. Caukwell, of Toronto, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Peters. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few intimate friends. The happy couple were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Peters will make their home in Peterborough.

NOT GUILTY OF ARSON

Blind River Fire Chief Gets Benefit of Doubt.

Magistrate Dismisses the Case, But Thinks Fires Were Incendiary—Sensational Evidence Given by Hotel Clerk—Secret Service Men at Work—Overheard Strange Remark—Other Suspects Go Free.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 17.—Tuesday night the summary trial of George Raymond, chief of the fire department at Blind River, who was accused of causing incendiary fires there, came to an end at a late hour and the accused was discharged. Raymond elected summary trial before Magistrate Williams on the charge of arson, in connection with Edwards' and King's boarding houses.

He pleaded not guilty and was defended by Barrister Mulligan of Sudbury. The case for the prosecution was conducted by V. McFadden of the Soo, who acted for the crown attorney. A large amount of evidence was taken and the trial consumed the whole day. The municipality of Blind River had three secret service men in town endeavoring to locate the fire fiends.

On the night of the Edwards' fire Charles Rogers, clerk in the Huronic Hotel, swore he heard Raymond talking to two unknown men and using the words, "They are on our trail; we must be careful."

At the same time Raymond is said to have referred to Edwards' boarding house and the Presbyterian church. When Rogers divulged the information to the police several constables were put on guard.

Detective Hart of the Thiel Secret Service Agency positively identified Raymond as the man who set a fire between the Edwards and King boarding-houses. The magistrate stated there was some doubt in his mind as to the guilt of the accused and dismissed the case, although he expressed the opinion that recent fires had all been of incendiary origin. Three other suspects—Goovra, Lablanc and Gaudeau—were allowed to go.

CHECK FOR PROVINCE.

O'Brien Sends $51,992 to Government on Account of Royalty.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—The Provincial Exchequer has been enriched by the reception of a cheque for $51,992 from the O'Brien Mining Co. This sum represents the royalty for three months, ending Sept. 30. It is collected by the Government under an agreement made last year, whereby the province is entitled to 25 per cent. of the value of all ore mined by the company, less certain allowances for the expenses of operation. Since December last $222,945 have been paid into the Treasury under the contract.

IS THE KING COMING?

Earl Grey Gives Hint About Royal Visit to Canada.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Earl Grey visited Upper Canada College yesterday and delivered an address to the boys. He revealed the secret that distinguished members of the royal family will visit Canada in connection with the centenary of the landing of Champlain.

Whether it will be Their Majesties the King and Queen or the Prince and Princess of Wales he did not disclose, but the impression created on the minds of those who were privileged to hear the remarks is that it will be Their Majesties.

Ask About Cannibals.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Some newspapers have recently published sensational statements imputed to J. A. Osborne, editor of The Fort Frances Times, as to alleged cannibalism on the part of Indians between the eastern shore of James Bay and Labrador.

As this area covers a territory larger in extent than civilized Europe, it is impossible for either the Indian Department or the Mounted Police Department to confirm or deny the statements which have been imputed, erroneously, it is believed, to Mr. Osborne.

Meanwhile, letters have been sent to that gentleman on behalf of the Government, asking him for details or for a denial of the assertions credited to him.

"Soul Mates" Are Insane.

New York, Oct. 17.—King's County Hospital physicians having declared both Rev. Maxwell Walton, pastor of St. Lucas German Evangelical Lutheran church of Williamsburg, and Mrs. Dorah Bauer, his affinity, insane, the couple were discharged in the Police Court yesterday.

Mrs. Bauer, who is the wife of Louis A. Bauer, an electrotyper, and the minister were arrested a few days ago, charged with offending public decency and were committed to have their sanity inquired into, as they had declared themselves to be "soulmates." Relatives took them in charge on their release.

For Service to Militia.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—A despatch to The Globe says: Asked yesterday as to the reasons for Sir Henry Pellatt's promotion, the Militia Department said that it was in return for his services to the militia and the country.

Col. Pellatt was in charge of the coronation contingent, and was recognized by the Imperial authorities. For these and other reasons he was given promotion in the militia. It is understood that the order passed the militia council in the usual way.

Twenty Cars Derailed.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—A spread rail caused a freight train on the G. T. R. from Killaloe to Ottawa to leave the track early yesterday morning. Twenty cars in all were derailed, of which sixteen contained lumber and four grain. No one was injured, but traffic will be tied up for a day or two owing to the accident.

John D. Jacobs, iron moulder, will be the labor candidate in the London bye-election.

Burn Challenges Tom Longboat

Willing to Come East to Toronto to Run Him

Art Burn, of Calgary, the runner, who defeated Crandler, the Pacific coast champion, in a 15-mile race the other day, and won the Western championship, has challenged Tom Longboat to a race, and says he is willing to come to Toronto to run him.

"I'll run him if the club says so," said Tom, simply, when the wire was shown to him.

"What do you say?" he asked T. C. Flanagan, the I.C.A.C. manager.

"Well Tom, we can't pay attention to every Tom, Dick, or Harry who challenges you," replied Mr. Flanagan. "Who is this Burn, anyway? What entitles him to a race with you? He ran 15 miles in 1.28and something the other day, and Tom runs four more at least in 1.41. Where would he get off at in a race with you? I'll just wire him that you are entered at the Montreal Herald road race on Thanksgiving Day, and if he wants a crack at you, all he has to do is to come east. He can meet you in any open event he wants to. There is nothing to stop him if he is an amateur. He left his challenge a little late in the season, else he could have been a starter in half a dozen open events you have been in."

That settles the matter as far as Longboat is concerned, for what Tom Flanagan says goes with him.

If Burns wants a little racing, let him come East and take Tom Coley or Percy Sellen on at an indoor meet at the Armory. They'll run him five or ten miles indoors. Or, better still, let him run in the Hamilton Herald road race.

Indian Runner Jumps His Employer at Sunderland

It is learned that Ben Howard, the runner, who was taken in charge by the Irish-Canadian Athletic Club, has jumped the man he was working for at Sunderland, and is back in the native wigwam at Hiawatha. It is said that Howard wandered back to the shores of Rice Lake on Monday of this week, not being satisfied with the treatment he was getting from his employer at Sunderland. The Indian is entered in the Montreal Herald road race on Thanksgiving Day.

BOWLING

In the single bowling finals yesterday Mr. J. P. Cunningham won the championship in competition with Mr R. M. Glover. The score was 13—4. Mr. Cunningham will receive a pair of bowls as a reward, besides winning the championship.

WALKING

ANTOHER TRIES IT.

A Port Hope despatch says: — D. Langford, of Renfrew, Ont., a young Englishman, 26 years of age, and weighing about 135 pounds, arrived in Port Hope yesterday for the purpose of starting out from here to-day (Thursday) to establish an amateur record walk to Toronto and return. Langford hopes to cover the distance in 37 hours.

The London-Brighton walk of 52 1-2 miles he has covered in ten hours, and on another occasion in England he travelled 12 hours at a 5-mile clip.

BASEBALL

Mr. George Ball says that he and Mr. Jas. Lynch, who were in Port Hope yesterday, were closely watched by the police officers of the Lake Ontario town, for fear they would kidnap the Midland League championship cup, which was shown in one of the windows of a main street jewelry store. Mr. Ball says everybody in Port Hope is very proud of the cup, and although it has been there for some time, many people still linger at the window in which it is displayed and cast loving glances towards it.

More New Houses Are Going Up

Messrs. Geo. Ruth and James Middleton have sold two lots on George street, between Edinburg and Antrim streets to Messrs. Thomas Moore and Ed. Manning. All the lots on the east side of George street on the property purchased nearly two years ago by Messrs. Ruth and Middleton have been sold.

Messrs. Manning and Moore to-day began the erection of new houses on the property just acquired by them.

SHORT WORK OF THE HOODLUMS

Lindsay Police Got After Peterborough Rowdies

The Lindsy Post says;—Last night a special train brought several hundred citizens from Peterborough to test the superlative floor just put down in Lindsay roller rink, and the train also brought others. Among the others were several of the well-known Peterborough brand of hoodlums, who evidently thought they could paint the town red and misbehave themselves to the annoyance of respectable Lindsayites. But forewarned is forearmed, and the local police made it their business to upset the plans of these said hoodlums. This morning, before Magistrate Jackson, at the police court, three Peterborough youths were charged with being disorderly on the streets. One was fined $4.60, another had to find a like amount, and a third (who was fighting in the waiting room at the G.T.R.), was fined $5 or the usual alternative.

Will Erect New Publishing House

The Christian Science Sentinel, a weekly paper published in Boston, announces in its last issue as follows:

"The time has arrived when it is necessary to take steps toward the erection of a suitable publishing house for The Christian Science Publishing Society in Boston," and contributions for this purpose are requested from Christian Scientists throughout the world. The amount required will approximate two hundred thousand dollars. The erection of a two million dollar church, so recently dedicated, does not seem to have exhausted the faith of that body in their ability to accomplish large results.

Unique Dairy Methods in China

Oriental Milkmen Drive Cows to Customers' Doors and Milk Them There

If dairymen in this city conducted their business along the same lines as the milkmen in China do, there would be no grounds for any complaints to the effect that the milk they supply to their customers is adulterated. In the course of an interesting letter, written from Chentu, China, where her husband is stationed at the Methodist mission, Mrs Charles Docks Robertson (nee Miss Vieva Hunter) of this city, describes the methods the Chinese dairymen adopt in supplying their customers. Their cows are driven to the different houses, where the milk is bought and are milked right at the door. While this might be an inconvenient system for the local milkmen to inaugurate, it would nevertheless, probably meet with the approval of the milk consuming public.

Canadian Club Meeting To-night

The general meeting of the Canadian Club at the Council chamber this evening, at which the committee chosen at the last meeting will present its report will be held at 7.30 o'clock sharp. All who wish to become chartered members of the club, are requested to attend the meeting.

Welcome Meeting at the Barracks

New Officers of the Salvation Army Will be Given Reception

There will be a big welcome meeting in the Salvation Army barracks this evening at eight o'clock, when the new officers, Staff-Capt. Goodwin, and her assistant, Captain Massey will be given a cordial reception. They will be met at the C.P.R. station at 7.45 o'clock by the band and members of the corps and escorted to the barracks, where addresses of welcome will be delivered. Sergt.-Major T. H. Brooks has charge of the arrangements. It is expected that the barracks will be crowded with members and friends of the Army.

SERVING PAPERS AT INDIAN RIVER

Mr. Geo. Cochrane County Constable in Eastern Hamlet To-day

Mr. George Cochrane, county constable, is at Indian River today serving papers in connection with the case in which Mrs. Johanna Guerin, of Indian River, has charged Stephen Murphy with being disorderly and destructive around her premises, by smashing windows and doors and creating havoc generally. The case comes up before Magistrate Edmison at an early date.

NAYLOR—EYRES

A pretty wedding of much local interest, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in Cameron village, when Miss Ruby Luella Eyres eldest daughter of Mr. Henry Eyres was united in marriage to Mr. Richard Naylor, also of Cameron.

The ceremony was performed in the tastefully decorated drawing room by Rev. Mr. Tonkins, in the presence of 180 invited guests, all relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was beautifully attired in a gown of white silk. She wore the conventional veil and orange blossoms and carried white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Zilla Eyres, sister of the bride, looked charming in white crepe de chene. She also carried white carnations. The pretty little flower girl, Miss Pearl Cummings, was dressed in white silk and carried a basket of flowers. Master Clifford Perrin carried the wedding ring in a basket of flowers. The groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. C. Naylor, of Lindsay.

After the nuptial knot had been tied, and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the bride and groom, the guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome piano, and to the bridesmaid a gold ring.

Among the out-of-town guests present, were Mr. and Mrs. William Henry, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Naylor will reside at Cameron.

HOMEWORK MAY BE ABOLISHED

It is reported that Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, has under consideration several educational reforms, which will be presented to the Legislature for approval at the coming session.

Among them will be a well-thought out scheme, providing for the abolition of home work for the younger pupils.

The enactment will, it is anticipated, embrace all pupils of the public and separate schools. As regards the junior classes in the high schools it is not thought improbable that certain restrictions may be adopted.

The evidence of the physicians consulted was unanimously against home work.

George Gourn, of Edmonton, was accidentally shot and killed while duck hunting.

WHERE DID THE MUSTACHE GO?

Surprising Discovery of Peterborough Man on His Return Home

An east city resident, who has just returned home from Toronto, tells a good story on himself. He came back to his native town yesterday with his moustache shaved off, and in answer to his friends' questions as to where it had gone, said he went into a barber shop just before coming home, had a shave and asked to have his moustache trimmed. He never noticed what had happened till he arrived home, when he discovered in looking in a mirror that the barber had very generously removed the moustache.

AT HIS OLD POST

Mr. Lockyer McIntosh, a former resident of Peterborough and an engineer well known on the G.T.R., has again taken charge of the Belleville train, after a very long illness. His many friends are pleased to see him as well as ever. He was the first engineer of the Toronto flyer and held that position for many years. He passed through Peterborough this morning and met a number of his old friends.

6977.—THE NEWEST THING IN WORK APRONS.

Picturesqueness is rather an unusual quality in a garment designed for purely utilitarian purposes, but it is the distinguishing feature of the work apron illustrated, the shaping of which is as effective as it is novel. The apron is ingeniously cut in one piece, the front being in princess style while the back is gathered into a belt. The square cut body portion with extensions forming epaulettes, gives a very smart appearance to the apron, which will prove an acceptable addition to the feminine wardrobe. Striped percale was used for making 4 1-8 yards 36 inches wide being needed for the medium size. Gingham, lawn or cross-bar muslin are also suitable materials.

6977.—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

MANACLED SWIMMER'S FEAT.

Nine-Mile Journey in the Thames by Fifty-Year-Old Professor.

Prof. Jules Gantier, the well-known London swimmer, recently performed a remarkable feat in the Thames, covering the nine-mile course from Richmond to Putney with his arms and legs manacled. Despite his fifty years, he swam the distance in 2h. 54min.

At 5 p. m. his wrists were bound together with manacles of leather and steel, separated by two inches of steel rivets, while his ankles were united in a similar manner. He then dived off a boat moored under Richmond bridge, while the crowd on the bridge cheered the daring swimmer.

Gautier at once adopted the stroke which he used all through his great performance. He kept on his right side, his manacled hands being brought out of the water as in the overhand stroke, and when they descended into the water he brought them down side by side so that they formed a large scoop. He could not kick in the ordinary way with his legs, so he adopted a motion like that of the screw of a steamer, which helped him along at a wonderful pace.

In fact, all through Gautier progressed at a rate which few unfettered swimmers could hope to equal. He did the first half-mile to Richmond lock in 11 minutes and 2 seconds, keeping up an average of twenty-eight strokes a minute.

The first three miles occupied 43 minutes, 35 seconds, and at the end of the first hour exactly four miles had been covered. Barnes railway bridge, five miles from Richmond, was reached in 1 hour 18 minutes and 22 seconds, and shortly afterwards the swimmer experienced his "bad time." He reached a stretch of nearly dead water, and his task proved nearly heart-breaking. But he never rested, and when he passed Hammersmith bridge the worst was over. The seven and a quarter miles had been covered in 2 hours and 19 minutes. The tide was then of much more assistance.

Exactly at four minutes to eight, two hours and fifty-four minutes from the time he had started, Gautier swam through the central arch of Putney bridge.

"I do not feel at all tired," he told the pressmen who followed in a boat, "but my eyes have suffered a good deal from the continual splash of the water."

BRITAIN'S SHIPPING.

Increase in the Number of British Seamen.

In two years the number of people engaged in the navigation of ships registered in the United Kingdom has increased by more than 11,000, and last year reached a total of over 170,000. The tonnage in actual employment rose in the same time from 10,278,000 to 11,035,000, and it is satisfactory to know that in the manning of these extra ships the British seaman has more than held his own. Indeed, the number of foreigners on British ships has declined since 1904 by nearly 2,000, while the Lascars have increased by less than that figure. According to the annual statement of the navigation and shipping of the United Kingdom, issued from the Board of Trade, the nationalities of the crews serving on British ships last year and in the two previous years were:

	British.	Foreigners.	Lascars.	Tl.
1904	...176,975	39,832	42,682	259,489
1905	...180,492	39,711	43,483	263,686
1906	...188,340	38,084	44,367	270,791

British tonnage clearing from the ports of the United Kingdom for abroad was nearly double the foreign tonnage, the figures being 38,276,000 and 22,232,000 tons respectively. In the coasting trade the totals were 55,980,000 tons British, and 3,496,000 tons foreign.

New Tenor Found.

A young Irish tenor, Mr. John McCormack, will be one of the sensations of the autumn season of Italian opera at Covent Garden. He is but twenty-three years of age, and, consequently, quite one of the youngest English-speaking tenors to be starred on the classic stage of London opera. He is to appear as Rodolfo in "La Boheme" and in other important roles.

Quite one of the strangest things about this promising vocalist is that until about two years ago he had had no training in music. Mr. McCormack, who is Athlone born, began to study for the Civil Service. In 1902 a friend, recognizing what a remarkable voice he had, persuaded him to enter for the National Irish Festival. He did so, and won the gold medal for tenor singing.

His first fee, when he did try concert work, was one of 4s. for two concerts in Sligo. In 1903 he entered the choir of a Catholic cathedral in Dublin, and the next year he was singing at the St. Louis Exhibition in America. A benefit concert given in Dublin helped him to Italy in 1905, where he studied in Milan with Signor Sabatini.

He made his operatic debut in Italy at Savona in Mascagni's "L'Amico Fritz," but, such is fame, he could not get anyone to even listen to him sing in London for months. In March Mr. Arthur Boosey heard him, and immediately engaged him for the London ballard concerts.

At Victoria, B. C., a prisoner named Forrest succeeded in escaping from the Provincial jail, and has not yet been captured.

A trust has been formed in New Jersey to control the chop suey output of the cities of the Eastern States.

Commission to Settle Matter

Whether G.T.R. May Build New Sidings or Not

The application of the Grand Trunk Railway Company to build two new sidings extending eastward from Bethune street, south of the Grand Trunk station, has gone to the Railway Commission. In view of the opposition from residents of the locality to permission being granted the company to put in the switches, the city council refused to grant the application and, as a result, it has gone to the Railway Commission, which has full power to say whether or not the sidings shall be built.

Mr. T. L. Simmons, the railway commission engineer, who was in the city today, looked over the locality where the company is desirous of building the sidings, and will report to the commission in connection therewith.

The residents of the district are strong against the application being granted, as they contend it will reduce the value of their property.

AMUSEMENTS

THE GINGERBREAD MAN

There is no doubt that the late Frederick Rankin, who is responsible for the librettos of many of the most successful of modern musical plays, was in one of his happiest moods when he supplied the book and lyrics of 'The Gingerbread Man." The story is original and quaint in conception, and told with subtle humor. The legends, so familiar to childhood's days, are cunningly woven in an exquisite light opera, in which the fairy book heroes and heroines, as well as several of the author's own imagination, are made to say and do strange and laughable things in a resistlessly captivating and mirth-compelling way. The atmosphere is redolent of nurseryland, and the costumes, scenic effects and interpretation of the piece harmonize very completely with the ideas that must have inspired its writers. The score is by A. Baldwin Sloane, and probably contains more tuneful hits than of any other production of its kind. The melodies, which are written in delicate sympathy with the spirit of the lyrics, are ear tingling and at times even entrancing. As is suggested by the play-title, some of the numbers are full of ginger, while others are marked by dreamy and delightfully haunting melodies.

The scenes of "The Gingerbread Man" are laid in Fairyland and Bon-Bon Land, and the plot deals to a great extent with the love affairs of Jack Horner and Mazie Bon Bon, who is first introduced as a confectionery girl, but is later given her proper position among the blue-blooded aristocracy by reason of her being the only daughter of King Sugar Plum. She and her lover, Jack Horner are separated in the early part of the play through the evil offices of Machavelius Fudge, but are finally restored to each other by the Fairy Queen. Fudge also brings to life John Dough, the Gingerbread Man. Much of the action is in the pursuit of Mazie by Jack Horner. Others also aid Jack in chase. Many of the characters immortalized by the nursery rhymes are introduced during the unfolding of the plot. The role of "The Gingerbread Man" fitted Fred J. Nice, an inimitably clever and intelligent little comedian, like a glove, much better than the sprawling finger mitts he wore to add to the general grotesqueness of unique make-up. His solo, "John Dough," although hummed and whistled around the streets of Peterborough for many months past, and familiar to pretty nearly everyone in the city, was encored and re-encored till both he and the chorus exhausted every method of rendition known to them. Nellie Nice as Margery Dawe, a village tomboy, was a charming and roguish little maid, whose every appearance on the stage was very welcome to to the audience. Her singing and dancing and general stage deportment showed a very clever conception of her part, and she and John Dough in "Nursery Rhymes," made about the cutest pair ever seen on the local stage. She was perhaps as well received as any member of the company. Garrick Major played the part of "Machavelius Fudge," in a very satisfactory and finished manner, and is the possessor of a baritone voice of grand opera calibre. His rendition of "The Bogie Man" was cordially received, while his singing of "Queen of My Dreams," was a beautiful effort of vocalism, the expression and phrasing showing fine artistic instinct and a thorough knowledge of the singing art.

Ross Snow is a delightful comedian, and his interpretation of the role of Wondrous Wise, was side splitting and ridiculous. Maurice Holden, as the good fairy, supplied much of the comedy, and burlesqued the part for all it was worth. Margo Givori was pleasing as Mazie Bon Bon. Jack Horner was clevery interpreted by Evelyn Frances Kellogg, whose singing of "Mazie," and "Moon, Moon, Moon," were features of the musical programme.

Among the other song hits than those mentioned were "Beautiful Land of Bon Bon," "Every Little Something," and "Do You Believe in Santa Claus."

HASTINGS RESIDENT ENDS LIFE WITH CARBOLIC ACID

Patrick Cleary, 84 Years of Age, Went to His Room and Swallowed Poison—Had Been in Poor Spirits for Some Time.

Special to the Review.

Hastings, Oct. 17.—Patrick Cleary, an old and respected resident of this village, committed suicide this afternoon by swallowing the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid. Deceased who was a man of 84 years of age, had been in very poor spirits of late, on account of one of his daughters getting married, and his home being broken up. He had been on the main street of the village up to about 2.30 and had acted rather strangely in one of the shops, from which he returned to his own house, went to his room and took the poison.

His daughter, who is a trained nurse, heard her father fall, and rushed into the room, but the old man was past all aid although an antidote was tried in order to revive him. He was a native of Tipperary, Ireland, and came to this country many years ago, settling in Percy township, moving into Hastings ten years ago. He leaves a grown-up family of sons and daughters. One daughter was married only this week to T. J. Daly, of Oshawa.

The funeral will take place to Warkworth cemetery, where his wife is buried, on Saturday morning.

Both Young Men Were Good Swimmers and Canoeists

Further Particulars as to the Drowning of Carl Graham and Edgar Thornton, Formerly of Peterborough, in Lake Winnipeg—The Remains Laid to Rest.

The Winnipeg Free Press says:—The last scene of the tragedy which has cast a gloom over Norwood will be enacted this afternoon when the remains of Carl Laroy Graham and and Edgar Francis Thornton, formerly of Peterborough, who were drowned in Lake Manitoba, will be laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery. The funeral will take place at 1.30 p.m. from the undertaking parlors of Gardiner & Co., to the Norwood Methodist church on Marion street, where a service will be held at 2 p.m., prior to the cortege proceeding to Elmwood cemetery. Rev. R. L. McTavish will conduct the services. The funeral will thus be a double one and at the cemetery the caskets will be laid side by side in the same plot.

Both the young fellows were expert canoeists and swimmers and each was six feet or more tall. Carl Graham and Roy Thornton were cousins and have always been chums. It is curious that the bodies should have been washed up on the shore only a few feet apart. Mr. Gardiner arrived back last night about 7.15 from Oak Point the remains. He states that the beaching of the bodies was due to the blowing of a south-east wind. Had an east wind prevailed it would probably have blown the bodies across the lake, rendering their recovery very uncertain. The man who actually made the discovery was Charles De Londe, who has assisted in the search from the start. The beach where the bodies were washed up is shallow and rocky.

It is just the point where one would expect a drowning victim to drift ashore, and as a matter of fact, grappling irons were to have been used in the locality this week. Carl Graham was 17 years of age and worked latterly at the general post office. Roy Thornton was a member of Orange Lodge No. 1844, Norwood. The local members of the order are requested to attend the funeral, joining the same at the undertaking parlors at 1.30 to-day.

John M. Lacey, the Regina man who was sent for to help in the recovery of the bodies arrived on the scene on Friday, and when taken out on the lake pointed out a spot where he said the boys bodies were then resting under the water. The party then returned to Winnipeg for grappling irons and other implements to assist them in dragging the bottom of the lake. They intended to return on Monday, but the bodies were found either on Friday or Saturday. Whether he had anything to do with the recovery of the bodies is problematical, as he did not have any opportunity of proving his claims. It is not definitely known whether the locality indicated by Lacey was that in which the bodies were recovered.

The Hospital

Thankful are They Who Escape The Surgeon's Knife

Thousands of surgical operations are performed every year in our great city hospitals upon women afflicted with serious female troubles. Sometimes the operations are successful—oftentimes they are not.

It is safe to say that certainly nine out of ten operations for female troubles might have been wholly avoided.

The most valuable tonic and re-builder of the female organism, the medicine with a record of thousands of cases literally snatched from the operating table, is

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Do not consent to an operation which may mean death until after you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. Note what it did for Mrs. Robert Glenn, whose letter follows:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need any recommendation from me, but I am glad to add mine to the many which you have in its favor.

I suffered untold agonies from a serious female trouble for nearly three years, and the doctors told me I must have an operation; but I was unwilling to undergo this, and decided to try your Vegetable Compound.

I am so pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saved me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. Please accept my hearty thanks and best wishes.

MRS. ROBERT GLENN, 434 Marie Street, Ottawa, Ont.

Thousands of women, residing in every part of Canada, bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills and creates radiant, buoyant female health. For your own sake try it.

Wireless Messages Sent Across the Broad Atlantic

Commercial Messages May Now Be Sent by Wireless.

Another Stride in the World's Progress—Regular Service Across the Atlantic Inaugurated Yesterday—Operators Were Kept Busy—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Sends Greeting to People of Great Britain.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 18.—Yesterday afternoon the system of wireless trans-Atlantic communication passed from its experimental stage in a formal announcement made by the inventor to a practical basis and for the first time in the history of the world messages are being transmitted and received to and from England, commercially.

The formal opening of the station here was attended by no especial function, nor was there any actual demonstration made in test of the service. From early morning Mr. Marconi is said to have transmitted in all between five and ten thousand words.

At 3.45 he left the operating room for a moment to announce officially to the representatives of the press present the opening of the station for commercial work.

"I am perfectly satisfied," he said, "with the results of to-day's work. We are now prepared to accept a limited number of trans-Atlantic messages for transmission purposes. Of course," he said, "you must not confuse to-day's event with that of three years ago, when the first message was flashed across the ocean. To-day we are merely throwing open our doors to the public and inaugurating the work for which our company was formed.

"Three years ago our messages were directed to the crowned heads of Europe. There is no need of that now. Indeed the bulk of our messages to-day emanated from the more important newspapers of the world.

"One message, however, addressed to the British people from the Premier of Canada was sent, while two have been received from the Canadian commissioner in London. I am not permitted to give the text of these messages, though I may say they are all of a congratulatory nature and all emphasize the great benefit accruing to the Empire by reason of the successful operation of our system."

Mr. Marconi then returned to the operating table, after expressing his regret that, because of the great amount of work to go through, he would be unable to further speak of the day's happenings. Early in the afternoon the guests invited to attend the opening, together with the press representatives, began to arrive at the towers, and at 2.30 the whole party conducted by the manager of the station, Mr. Vyvyan, set out on a tour of inspection.

The boiler-house, engine rooms and work shop were visited in turn. Their relation to the operation of the plant being explained en tour. The operation offices were finally reached, and a halt made to await the appearance of the inventor.

No one was allowed to actually enter the operating room, although the party were permitted to view through a window the work going on within. Marconi, assisted by another operator, could be seen seated at a table, alternately receiving and transmitting messages. Simultaneously with the pressing of the key of the transmitting instrument a blinding flash of blue flame was seen to be given off from a contrivance situated at the far end of the room, while a tearing sound not unlike the twanging of a deep bass string answered the flash as it traversed the wires overhead. The messages were recorded by means of a magnetic telephone receiver fastened to the head of the operator and connected to the receiving apparatus of the station. After an half hour's wait the inventor appeared and publicly gave utterance to the announcement previously given.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier sent the following message to the people of Great Britain via the bronicle:

"Greetings to the people of Great Britain upon attainment between the British and Canadian coasts of Marconi's last and greatest triumph over distance."

In an interview Marconi referred to Sir Hiram Maxim's criticism of wireless telegraph on account of its limitations.

Sir Hiram specified its lack of privacy and therefore uselessness in time of war, as the enemy could rig up a tower and tap the messages as they were going through the air. Marconi says he is now in continuous communication between the old and new worlds and he has satisfied himself from experiment that the messages cannot be intercepted by rival companies.

LONDON LIBERALS QUIT.

Conservative Candidate Will Likely Be Elected by Acclamation.

London, Oct. 18.—The old-timers prevailed at last night's convention of the Liberals of London, and there will be no Liberal candidate at the bye-election.

"Doc" Sippi and a man named Jones were full of fight, wanted a candidate at any price, but "Doc" and his friend were quelched early in the game.

The old-timers didn't want a fight, not without Charley Hyman, and Mr. Hyman was away, consequently no fight.

But Mr. Gibbons says Mr. Hyman is coming back in the spring to run at the general election, and then his traducers will have a chance. Ald. Jerry told the audience that he was assured that unless the Liberals brought out a man there could be no election. He heard on good authority that the Labor man would drop out.

Judgment Against O. Asselin.

Quebec, Oct. 18.—The case of Hon. A. Turgeon against Oliver Asselin of Le Nationaliste was concluded in the Superior Court and judgment rendered in favor of Hon. Mr. Turgeon.

This action arose out of an article in Le Nationaliste, in which the writer accused the Minister of Crown Lands of perjuring himself. Mr. Turgeon took out an action for $400—$100 each on four separate charges, which has now been sustained on all points.

Took Poison by Mistake.

Elgin, Ont., Oct. 18.—A very sad accident occurred here Wednesday, resulting in the death of a very respectable laborer named Frank Day. Mr. Day was troubled with cramps and called at the office of Dr. Dunn for treatment. The doctor, who had only recently purchased the stock of drugs, gave Day a dose from a bottle which was wrongly labeled. The patient was dead in a few minutes. He leaves a wife and five children.

Children's Clothing Confiscated.

Brockville, Oct. 18.—In the post-office at Morristown on Wednesday, Customs Officer Frank Gilday discovered in an American bag sent from here a quantity of valuable children's clothing addressed to a party in Cleveland.

The mail carrier denied any knowledge of how the clothing came to be in the bags, and as no claimant was forthcoming to pay the duties it was confiscated.

Back From Arctic Wastes.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Capt. Bernier is expected in Quebec to-day with the Government steamer Arctic, after 18 months in the northern ice. The Marine Department yesterday morning received the following telegram from Father Point: "Arctic passed Father Point to-day. Frederick Berkenhauser, oiler, died last February, natural death. (Signed) Bernier."

ROMANCE ENDS IN JAIL

Charles Trottier Perjured Himself in Order to Marry.

Was Refused by Priest Because Bride Was His Niece—Afterwards Swore False Information—Now Gets Five Years In Penitentiary — Lighter Sentences In Same Court For Heavier Offences.

North Bay, Oct. 18.—Charles Trottier and Marie Chenier lived near the little village of Warren, about 20 miles east of Sudbury, and an affection sprang up between the two young people which ripened into love and a desire to be married.

Trottier presented himself to the parish priest and asked that the bans be called, but his simple habitant soul was shocked with the intelligence that inasmuch as Marie was his niece the priest could not countenance the marriage.

The young people were deeply grieved over their predicament, but Charles determined that the marriage should proceed even if the Protestant minister had to be called in. The marriage license was secured and, blinded by love, Trottier took the necessary affidavit that his intended bride was no relative.

A Methodist divine performed the ceremony, and the young couple were happy, but their happiness was short-lived, for Nemisis was on their trail, and a complaint was lodged against Trottier for perjury. After a trial before Judge Riddell and a jury, Trottier was found guilty and sentenced to five years in Kingston penitentiary, a pitiful ending to his romance, and the young wife if left husbandless in the beginning of her honeymoon.

At the same court a man who caused the death of another was sentenced to one year's imprisonment; a villain who raped a child received two years, and the man who swore falsely to win his bride is punished worst of all.

GIVEN LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Laval Will Await Result of Divorce Suit.

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Till divorce proceedings, instituted by his wife, are settled, Dr. Loir, an eminent French physician, cannot be employed by Laval University, and the doctor was Wednesday given a year's leave of absence, his first term of engagement having been fixed at a year.

As Dr. Loir is a nephew of the famous Pasteur, Laval authorities thought that the medical faculty had a "find" in him.

However, Archbishop Bruchesi has refused to allow Laval to employ Dr. Loir, the reason being that Madame Loir is suing for divorce.

To Prosecute Trainmen.

Barrie, Oct. 18.—The crown authorities having decided to take proceedings against Engineer Henry J. Morris and Conductor Farrell, who were mentioned in the verdict of the coroner's jury as being responsible for the collision which resulted in the death of Fireman Robert Blackburn, information has been laid against the parties concerned and the preliminary hearing arranged for Tuesday next before Police Magistrate Radenhurst.

A large number of railway men will be called to give evidence, and Chief King served summonses yesterday.

Pending the hearing, Mogris and Farrell will not be placed under arrest.

Changes In Quebec Cabinet.

Quebec, Oct. 18.—Hon. W. A. Weir has been made Provincial Treasurer, to succeed Hon. Mr. Tessier, who has been appointed judge, while L. A. Tachereau, one of Quebec's prominent barristers and member for the County of Montmorency, will succeed Mr. Weir as Minister of Public Works and Labor. C. R. Devlin, the Federal member for Nicolet, has been appointed Minister of Mines and Fisheries, to replace Hon. Jean Prevost, who has resigned.

Alleged Serious Assault.

Hamilton, Oct. 18.—There was a remarkable case at the Police Court yesterday. Cornelius Keough, formerly of Stratford, but for many years a respected local citizen, was arrested and charged with attempting to criminally assault Ellen Sydenham, a 10-year-old girl. Keough is 89 years of age. On the question of whether or not to commit Keough for trial, the magistrate reserved judgment for a week.

Mail Clerk Sentenced.

Toronto, Oct. 18.—Arrested, found guilty and sentenced to four years in Kingston penitentiary, was the fate of Horace Mountain, aged 18, a mail collector, inside of two hours yesterday.

Mountain pleaded guilty to stealing eleven letters from a post-box. He had been employed by the post-office departmnt for the past three or four weeks.

Ottawa's Liquor Record.

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—Drunkenness has increased in Ottawa 60 per cent. during the last ten years. In 1897, when the city had a population of 59,727, there were 221 arrests for drunkenness and intoxication, with disorderly conduct.

Last year, out of a population of 61,572, there were 448 arrests for the same cause.

Vesuvius' Ominous Quiet.

Naples, Oct. 18.—A panic was caused here yesterday owing to the sudden cessation of smoke from all the craters of Vesuvius, accompanied by loud detonations, which usually mean a resumption of activity on the part of the volcano.

Millionaire Receives Gruelling From Justice Riddell.

Windsor, Oct. 18.—Justice Riddell reached the end of the Assize docket yesterday afternoon and left for Toronto. Just before the court closed D. Saunders, solicitor for the Michigan Central, pleaded guilty to indictments for the Essex explosion and begged clemency, stating that the company had already paid a large amount in settling damage claims. His lordship said he would deliver judgment a week hence.

Aylesworth, Calder, Roy McGregor and Arthur McKeon were indicted for conspiracy and perjury in connection with prosecution of Oscar McCracken on the charge of shooting with intent to kill. They were released on bail to appear at next Assizes.

The last civil action was that of Boyle v. Rothschild and other wealthy men of Detroit. This case was brought by Joe Boyle of Woodstock to recover something like half a million in connection with a mining deal. Boyle secured a valuable concession in Yukon and entered into a bargain with Detroit capitalists. The mine has proved a rich one, and while Boyle has received fat dividends, he thinks he is entitled to a considerable sum yet.

M. J. Murphy, one of the millionaire defendants, was given severe gruelling. His lordship at one stage asked Mr. Murphy if he thought he acted honestly. Judgment was reserved.

BAILIFF BABY KILLED.

Detroit Man Arrested—May Be Charged With Manslaughter.

Windsor, Oct. 18.—Bailiff Charles Baby died yesterday afternoon as the result of a fractured skull, produced by a fall during an altercation with William Chevalier, a Detroit storekeeper. The affair occurred at an early hour yesterday morning in front of the British-American Hotel and Baby lived 12 hours, never having regained consciousness.

Chevalier was arrested after boarding the ferry to return home and remanded to Sandwich jail for a week. The prisoner claims Baby fell accidentally; but the body of deceased shows marks of violence. It is reported the altercation was due to a Division Court action, but this has not been verified. Coroner Labelle has ordered an inquest and the nature of the charge will depend on the findings. The police think it will be manslaughter.

Deceased was 54 years of age and came of a highly respectable French family. He was employed for 30 years as confidential clerk for W. J. McKee, former member of the Legislature.

Who Fired Fatal Shot?

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 18.—The trial of Nita Dorais, wife of Howard I. Sharp of Kenora, Ont., for the shooting of Harold Coates at Birchton in October of last year, was resumed Wednesday. The evidence adduced the fact that Coates, with three others, was riding past the home of Alvin Bailey, singing jovially, and, it is alleged, in the songs making familiar reference to the two daughters of Mr. Bailey, who, it is said, had warned Coates and others to keep away from his house. On this occasion Mrs. Sharp, who was visiting her cousins, thought that an excellent plan to frighten the young men away was to shoot at random, and consequently she fired twice, the last shot striking Coates, who died 11 days afterwards. It was supposed that some of the Baileys did the firing, but Mrs. Sharp, who may wish to shield them, claimed that she did it. Herein lies the interesting feature of the trial.

Small Fire In Mine.

Monongohela, Pa., Oct. 18.—A small fire Wednesday night in the Ellsworth Mine No. 1, about 12 miles southwest of here, caused the circulation of a report that a serious explosion had occurred, entailing the loss of many lives and much property damage. The fire, however, was quickly controlled and alarm was allayed when it was ascertained that all the miners had left the mine and no one was injured. The damage was slight.

Tracing Abandoned Baby.

Stratford, Oct. 18.—A clue, which promises to disclose the identity of the baby found in the sewer tile Tuesday morning, was discovered yesterday. Trainmen on a Buffalo train claim that an 18-year-old girl boarded the train at Buffalo and carried a baby until arriving at Stratford. She got off the train and, going across the yards, left the bundle in a black shawl in front of the Burr residence.

Charged With Manslaughter.

Brantford, Oct. 18.—Charged with manslaughter, John Padgorney was arrested Wednesday afternoon.

In a row in a boarding-house occupied by foreigners on Albion street, John Nweruski was stabbed, and died in the hospital about two weeks later. Padgorney was arrested after the stabbing, and is being held for trial. An ante-mortem statement was taken.

Widow Awarded Damages.

Goderich, Oct. 18.—In the two cases against the Canada Bridge Co., the jury, after four hours' deliberation, gave a verdict for $2,700 and costs in favor of the widow of the late Emanuel Maddaford, killed by the falling of a car and booms, and a verdict of $500 and costs to D. Lynn for injuries in the accident.

Fell Off a Scaffold.

Belleville, Oct. 18.—A man named Herbert Sills, while working at the gas works here yesterday afternoon, fell off a scaffold on which he was working and was badly injured internally. It is feared his back is broken.

First-Born a Jap Girl.

Vancouver, Oct. 18.—Prince Rupert's first-born is a Japanese girl, whose father receives the prize of $50 and a cradle offered by James Carruthers, Grand Trunk Pacific official.

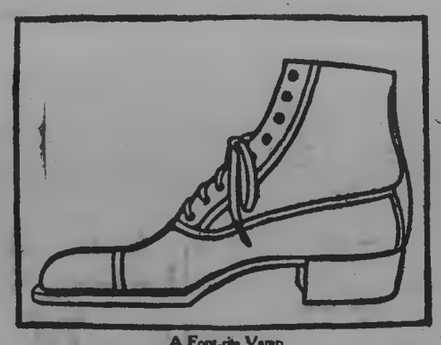
HAS CRACKLESS VAMP

Improvement Number One

A Cracked Vamp



A Foot-rite Vamp

Why? We'll tell you what the vamp is, then why. The vamp is the leather between the box toe seam and the instep seam.

This is why Foot-rites have crackless vamps. They're made of "Normal Calf," a leather almost as soft and supple as the live calf's skin. Never heard of a live calf's skin cracking, did you?

Foot-rite linen canvas linings are cut on patterns which fit the insides with watch-like accuracy. Fitless linings cause permanent diagonal vamp wrinkles, which split the leather.

Foot-rites are almost waterproof, hence soak up little water. The repeated drying of water-soaked boats eventually brings cracked vamps.

The Foot-rite toe-freedom box toe, being uncollapsible, holds the vamp leather arched and smooth, which prevents splitting at the vamp toe seam.

The Foot-rite wrinkleless vamp improvement keeps out vamp wrinkles which undermine and crack the vamp leather.

And being shaped over foot-sculptured lasts, Foot-rite insides are precisely the same shape and size as the feet that inhabit them, which compels the leather to crease straight instead of diagonally across the vamp. Diagonal creases wear in cracks. Straight creases don't. Our door swings mward but never outward to find a more welcome place.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain, $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted—gives flexibility.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By... ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1895, by Henry Holt & Company

"He'll kill the king," said Fritz.

"Not he," said Sapt.

"Half of the Six are in Streisau," said Fritz.

"Only half? You're sure?" asked Sapt eagerly.

"Yes, only half."

"Then the king's alive, for the three are guarding him!" cried Sapt.

"Yes, you're right!" exclaimed Fritz, his face brightening. "If the king were dead and buried, they'd all be here with Michael. You know Michael's back, colonel?"

"I know, curse him!"

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," said I, "who are the Six?"

"I think you'll make their acquaintance soon," said Sapt. "They are six gentlemen whom Michael maintains in his household. They belong to him body and soul. There are three Ruritanians; then there's a Frenchman, a Belgian and one of your countrymen."

"They'd all cut a throat if Michael told them," said Fritz.

"Perhaps they'll cut mine," I suggested.

"Nothing more likely," agreed Sapt. "Who are here, Fritz?"

"De Gautet, Bersonin and Detchard."

"The foreigners! It's as plain as a pikestaff. He's brought them and left the Ruritanians with the king. That's because he wants to commit the Ruritanians as deep as he can."

"They were none of them among our friends at the lodge, then?" I asked.

"I wish they had been," said Sapt wistfully. "They had been not six, but four, by now."

I had already developed one attribute of royalty—a feeling that I need not reveal all my mind or my secret designs even to my intimate friends. I had fully resolved on my course of action. I meant to make myself as popular as I could and at the same time to show no disfavor to Michael. By these means I hoped to allay the hostility of his adherents and make it appear, if an open conflict came about, that he was ungrateful and not oppressed.

Yet an open conflict was not what I hoped for.

The king's interest demanded secrecy, and while secrecy lasted I had a fine game to play in Streisau. Michael should grow stronger for delay.

I ordered my horse and, attended by Fritz von Tarlenheim, rode in the grand new avenue of the royal park, returning all the salutes which I received with punctilious politeness. Then I rode through a few of the streets, shopped and bought flowers of a pretty girl, paying her with a piece of gold and then, having attracted the desired amount of attention—for I had a train of half a thousand people after me—I rode to the residence of the Princess Flavia, and asked if she would receive me. This step created much interest, and was met with shouts of approval. The princess was very popular, and the chancellor himself had not scrupled to hint to me that the more I pressed my suit and the more rapidly I brought it to a prosperous conclusion the stronger should I be in the affection of my subjects. The chancellor, of course, did not understand the difficulties which lay in the way of following his loyal and excellent advice. However, I thought I could do no harm by calling, and in this view Fritz supported me with a cordiality that surprised me until he confessed that he also had his motive for liking a visit to the princess' house, which motive was no other than a great desire to see the princess' lady in waiting and bosom friend, the Countess Helga von Strofzin.

Etiquette seconded Fritz's hopes. While I was ushered into the princess' room he remained with the countess in the antechamber. In spite of the people and servants who were hanging about I doubt not that they managed a tete-a-tete, but I had no leisure to think of them, for I was playing the most delicate move in all my difficult game. I had to keep the princess devoted to me—and yet indifferent to me; I had to show affection for her—and not feel it. I had to make love for another, and that to a girl who, princess or no princess, was the most beautiful I had ever seen. Well, I braced myself to the task, made no easier by the charming embarrassment with which I was received. How I succeeded in carrying out my programme will appear hereafter.

"You are gaining golden laurels," she said. "You are like the prince in Shakespeare who was transformed by becoming king. But I'm forgetting you are king, sire."

"I ask you to speak nothing but what your heart tells you and to call me nothing but my name."

She looked at me for a moment.

"Then I'm glad and proud, Rudolf," said she. "Why, as I told you, your very face is changed."

Here was a charming attribute of royalty.

"An excellent etiquette!" I cried. "But I had clean forgotten it, and if I were alone with some one else couldn't you be announced?"

"You know as well as I do. I could be, because I am of the blood." And she still looked puzzled.

"I never could remember all these silly rules," said I rather feebly as I inwardly cursed Fritz for not posting me up. "But I'll repair my fault."

I jumped up, flung open the door and advanced into the anteroom. Michael was sitting at a table, a heavy frown on his face. Every one else was standing, save that impudent young dog Fritz, who was lounging easily in an armchair and flirting with the Countess Helga. He leaped up as I entered with a deferential elasticity that lent point to his former nonchalance. I had no difficulty in understanding that the duke might not like young Fritz.

I held out my hand. Michael took it, and I embraced him. Then I drew him with me into the inner room.

"Brother," I said, "if I had known you were here you should not have waited a moment before I asked the princess to permit me to bring you to her."

He thanked me, but coldly. The man had many qualities, but he could not hide his feelings. A mere stranger could have seen that he hated me and hated worse to see me with Princess Flavia. Yet I am persuaded that he tried to conceal both feelings and, further, that he tried to persuade me that he believed I was verily the king. I did not know, of course, but unless the king were an impostor, at once cleverer and more audacious than I (and I began to think something of myself in that role), Michael could not believe that. And if he didn't, how he must have loathed paying me deference and hearing my "Michael" and my "Flavia."

"Your hand is hurt, sire," he observed, with concern.

"Yes; I was playing a game with a mongrel dog (I meant to stir him), and you know, brother, such have uncertain tempers."

He smiled sourly, and his dark eyes rested on me for a moment.

"But is there no danger from the bite?" cried Flavia anxiously.

"None from this," said I. "If I gave him a chance to bite deeper, it would be different, cousin."

"But surely he has been destroyed?" said she.

"Not yet. We're waiting to see if his bite is harmful."

"And if it is?" asked Michael, with his sour smile.

"He'll be knocked on the head, brother," said I.

"You won't play with him any more?" urged Flavia.

"Perhaps I shall."

"He might bite again."

"Doubtless he'll try," said I, smiling. Then, fearing Michael would say something which I must appear to resent (for, though I might shew him my hate, I must seem to be full of favor), I began to compliment him on the magnificent condition of his regiment and of their loyal greeting to me on the day of my coronation. Thence I passed to a rapturous description of the shooting lodge which he had lent me. But he rose suddenly to his feet. His temper was failing him, and as an excuse he said farewell. However, as he reached the door he stopped, saying:

"Three friends of mine are very anxious to have the honor of being presented to you, sire. They are here in the antechamber."

I joined him directly, passing my arm through his. The look on his face was honey to me. We entered the antechamber in fraternal fashion. Michael beckoned, and three men came forward.

"These gentlemen," said Michael, with a stately courtesy which, to do him justice, he could assume with perfect grace and ease, "are the loyalest and most devoted of your majesty's servants and are my very faithful and attached friends."

"On the last ground as much as the first," said I, "I am very pleased to see them."

They came one by one and kissed my hand—De Gautet, a tall, lean fellow, with hair standing straight up and waxed mustache; Bersonin, the Belgian, a portly man of middle height with a bald head, though he was not far past thirty, and last, the English-

"Rudolf, be careful, won't you?"

than, Detchard, a narrow faced fellow, with close cut fair hair and a bronzed complexion. He was a finely made man, broad in the shoulders and slender in the hips. A good fighter, but a crooked customer I put him down for. I spoke to him in English, with a slight foreign accent, and I swear the fellow smiled, though he hid the smile in an instant.

Cables Unchanged—Hogs Sharply Higher at Buffalo.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—London cables are firmer at 10c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9¾c to 10c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—Receipts of live stock at the city market since Tuesday, as reported by the railways, were 153 carloads, composed of 2,454 cattle, 2371 hogs, 2590 sheep and lambs, 225 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

Strictly speaking, there were none on sale, outside of a few bulls, which sold at $3.25 to $3.75 per cwt. There were 8 cattle, which are quoted below, of very choice quality, bought for a special market, at a price that would not be considered for a moment for the regular export trade.

Butchers.

The bulk of the butchers' cattle sold between $2.50 and $3.75 per cwt., as will be seen by the sales quoted below. George Rowntree, the heaviest buyer for local purposes, who bought 17 loads of butcher cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company, gave the following quotations: Best butchers, 1000 to 1250 lbs., of which there were few, at $4.15 to $4.60; fair to good heifers and steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.65 to $3.85; medium light heifers, 800 to 900 lbs., at $3 to $3.25; good cows, $3 to $3.60; medium cows, $2.40 to $2.85; canner cows, and bulls, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a large run of stockers and feeders this week, with market weaker for the medium and common grades, which class sold off from 15c to 25c per cwt. The good stuff held its own fairly well and more of this class, especially 1000 to 1100-pound steers, would have sold.

Messrs. Murby bought 350 this week at the following quotations:

Best feeders, 1050 to 1100 pounds, at $3.35 to $3.65; best feeders, 900 to 1000 pounds, $2.70 to $3; best stockers, 900 to 900 pounds, $2.50 to $2.70; medium stockers, 700 to 800 pounds, $2.15 to $2.40; common stockers, 500 to 700 pounds, $1.50 to $2.

Milkers and Springers.

For good to choice milkers and forward springers there was a better demand. Two choice cows sold at $59 each, but the bulk of the best cows would sell around $45 as an average price. Medium and common light cows were slow sale at $25 to $35 each.

Veal Calves.

As usual, there was little change in the market for calves, neither as regards quality or prices, which ranged from $3 to $6.50 per cwt., the bulk selling at $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were very large, the quality in many instances being poor. Export ewes sold at $4.25 to $4.40; rams and culls at $3 to $3.50; lambs sold at $4.25 for culls and up to $5.50 for the select standard.

Hogs.

Deliveries of nearly 3000 hogs sold at unchanged quotations. Mr. Harris got about 2500, and his quotations were $6.25 for selects and $5 to $5.25 for all that did not grade up to the select standard.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 17.—Cattle — Receipts, 350 head; nothing doing.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 6400 head; sheep, active and steady; lambs opened active and closed slow and 10c lower; lambs, $5 to $7.25.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Beeves — Receipts, 2658; no trading; feeling steady; exports, 4250 quarters of beef to Liverpool.

Calves — Receipts, 307 head; market steady; veals sold at $5 to $9.50 per 100 pounds; few tops at $9.75; no grassers or westerns.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions of society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity for earning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than than do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business, in times of stress and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

The Sun Life of Canada

Offers a man something as good as gold. Its policies give the maximum of security at the minimum of cost. If you have obligations or if your life means something to others, insurance is for you. Investigate the cost of absolute protection in the SUN OF CANADA.

Insurance of Summer Cottages

Necessary to Obtain a Vacancy Permit, Otherwise Policy is Cancelled

Mr. W. H. Cluxton writes the Review as follows:

As a large number of citizens vacate their dwellings during the summer months and repair to their cottages, a word of advice on an insurance matter may not be out of place.

In vacating the home dwelling it is necessary to obtain a "vacancy permit" from an insuring company, otherwise the policy is cancelled. The fact of the family returning and reoccupying does not revive or reinstate the policy of insurance. That is to say, that if a claim should arise at any time thereafter, the insurance company could resist payment by reason of such cancellation.

Now that the companies have formed a "union," binding them to observe the rules and regulations of the Underwriters' Association, too much caution cannot be exercised in complying with the conditions of insurance contracts.

EYESIGHT TESTING
is a science and should be thoroughly understood before attempting to correct eyesight troubles. Eyesight Testing is our business. We have studied it in all its phases and will be pleased at any time to demonstratrate to our patients just what condition their eyes are in, and how that the properly fitted glasses will act on the muscles to overcome the particular defect in their eyes. We have the very best appliances for Eyesight Testing and have never had a dissatisfied customer yet. Got Five Dollars by False Pretence

W. Wescott Charged With the Offence—Dog Owner Was Heavily Fined

At the police court today, W. Westcott was charged with receiving from Wm. Overend, the sum of $5 under false pretences. Westcott elected to be tried by the magistrate, and admitted getting the money, but could not say whether he got it wrongly or not.

Mr. Overend stated that the prisoner came and asked him to lend him five dollars. He said Geo. Stevens owed him money but he could not get it, as Stevens was away. Mr. Overend lent the money, but afterwards learned that no money was owing Westcott from Stevens.

This morning Westcott offered to pay the amount and thus settle the affair. His Worship consented to this. He also had to pay the costs of the court, amounting to two dollars.

TWO VAGRANTS.

Phillip O'Brien and Francis McGurr were each given six months at hard labor in the county gaol on a charge of vagrancy. Both are old men, and just yesterday were released after serving terms in gaol. They have no homes, and asked to be sent back to Castle Nesbitt.

UNREGISTERED DOG.

A fine of two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.05 was imposed upon Fred Sherwood at the police court this morning for harboring a female dog without a tag. Sherwood stated that he did not own the canine, but Mr. Jas. Hailey was the owner, and he should be the one to pay the fine. His Worship remarked that the defendant could get the money from Hailey, but Sherwood harbored the dog and he had to pay the fine. It was paid forthwith.

Legal Committee Met Yesterday

Hope to Enter Into Agreement With County House of Refuge

A meeting of the Legal Committee was held yesterday afternoon, when the proposition to enter into an agreement with the county for the care of the city's indigent old men at the House of Refuge, was fully discussed. The chairman, Ald. Phelan, was in the chair, and it was decided to interview the county council at its coming session and ascertain upon what terms the county will take in the old men. It is felt that something must be done to provide accommodation for them, as they cannot all be housed at the Protestant Home and House of Providence.

A TALK ON CORSET COMFORT
A Few Salient Features of Bias Filled Corsets
COMFORT:
No need to dwell upon the discomfort of an ill-made or badly fitting Corset. Every lady knows exactly how annoying it is when the Corset bends at the side and refuses to come back to its original shape. Most straight filled corsets either break or break within a few weeks. BIAS FILLED CORSETS will not break or bend out of shape. They adapt themselves to the figure so easily and with such comfort that women who wear them for the first time invariably imagine they are wearing a larger size than usual. Not so now, Mr. It is simply that the BIAS FILLING follows the curve of the body so that its movements are as free as they would be if the corsets were not worn at all.
SUPPORT:
BIAS FILLED CORSETS are made in every size and modeled to fit every style of figure. Whilst there are no wide, heavy steels to press on the sides, THE BIAS FILLING is scientifically arranged on each size and style to give the most support with the least resistance. Thus support and absolute comfort are at once secure.
A BOON TO THE STOUT:
After wearing a pair of BIAS FILLED CORSETS not one lady in a hundred will ever go back to the old style of straight filling. More especially will this be so with the stout ladies. No stout lady has ever known absolute comfort and freedom of body movement unless she has worn a pair of BIAS FILLED CORSETS. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials from ladies who have worn them.
Free demonstration and fitting all this week. Consult Miss Campbell in the forenoon if possible.
POPULAR PRICES: $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50

Langford Reached Oshawa In Fair Shape at 10.40 To-day

Had Nine Hours in Which to Make the 32 Miles to Port Hope—Feet Were in Bad Condition

Special to the Review.

Oshawa, Oct. 18.—David Langford, the Renfrew pedestrian, arrived back here at 10.40 this morning ten minutes behind schedule time, and left at 11.05 on his way to Port Hope. He is in fair condition in all respects but his feet, which are in very bad shape. He had to stop at a farm-house west of here ,to have his feet washed and treated. He bandaged his toes and kept on his way, having nine hours, less two minutes, in which to make the 32 miles to win.

Scattergood, the Oshawa walker, walked to Toronto and back with Langford, and Jimmie Reynolds also accompanied him on the trip.

Reynolds has very little hope of Langford being able to make Port Hope. But it all depends on how the walker's feet hang out.

HE CAN'T DO IT!

Later.—A special despatch to the Review from Port Hope at four o'clock, this afternoon, conveyed the information that Langford, the Renfrew walker, was at Newcastle, seventeen miles west of Port Hope, at 3.33 this afternoon. This gives him four hours and twenty-three minutes to reach Port Hope, and he cannot make the seventeen miles in that time. He was much fatigued at Newcastle and the news that he will have to give up is expected any minute.

Street Cars Collide, 6 Dead; Crew of Steamship Drowned

Special to the Review.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 18.—In a head on collision between two street cars here this morning, six persons were killed and several more or less seriously injured. The accident occurred while the train was running at high speed in heavy fog on the Hernan Heights line.

ALL HANDS DROWNED.

Edinburgh, Oct. 18th.—All hands were swept last night from the Danish steamship Alfred Erlendson, ashore near St. Abb's Head, and drowned. The steamship struck last evening and it was impossible to reach her from shore.

Four Members of One Family are Afflicted With Typhoid Fever

A particularly sad case of sickness and death in one family, residing in North Monaghan, was learned of today. Four children, three boys and a girl, ranging in age from 14 down to 2 years, of Mr. Richard Monoriet who lives eleven miles from Peterborough, were brought to Nicholls hospital this morning suffering from typhoid fever. The entire family are down with the disease. Two days ago an older child passed away after a short illness. Mr. Belleghem's ambulance left the city about six o'clock this morning and brought the four sufferers to Nicholls hospital, where they are being given every possible car and attention.

It is strange that a whole family should be stricken with the disease at the same time. The water which they drank is attributed as the cause, all contracting typhoid. Dr. Marshall is the attending physician.

Three for a Quarter on And After November 1st

On and after November 1st, your request won't be considered when you go into a tobacconist's shop, plank a quarter down on the gilded show case, and say, "Give me four Marguerites," or "Henry Irving's" or whatever particular brand you may prefer, for commencing from the above date three 10c.0 cigars will be the limit for twenty-five cents.

"In view of the increased cost in all departments of the trade, it has been found necessary to take the step we have," said Mr. T. W. McDonough, the George street tobacconist, when seen by the Review this morning. "Everything is advancing in price, and tobacco—both raw material and finished product—has kept pace with the general advancement."

An agreement has been signed by the proprietors of the tobacco shops, and others selling tobacco, saying that they will carry out the arrangements made, as stated above, and in case of an infringement, the one guilty will forfeit the deposit made, as a means of showing good faith, when the agreement was signed.

Large cards, telling the price of the lines, and giving the prices of the lines affected, and giving the prices of cigars by the box, will be printed and placed in a conspicuous place in the various shops where they are sold. By this new arrangement the large exclusive tobacco dealers, will have no advantage over the corner grocery, as both will sell their tobacco on the same terms.

McDonald's and T. & B. plugs will each henceforth be sold at ten cents straight.

Brother Makes Serious Charges Against Administrator of Estate

Rev. Mr, Campbell Has Entered Two Actions Against Dr. Pfohl, the Physician Who Attended His Brother in Buffalo—Corrects Several Misleading Reports.

Rev. James Campbell, brother of the late Dr. Campbell who passed away in Buffalo in May last, is the guest of his niece, Mrs. Fairbairn, 769 Water street. This morning, in conversation with a Review reporter he made some statements in regard to an article published in this paper recently as to the administration of his late brother's estate.

The fight over the administrator referred to in the papers, does not delay in any way the final settlement of the estate, remarked Rev. Mr. Campbell, as six months' notice has to be given to creditors and that time is going on, irrespective of the contest over the displacement of Dr. Pfohl, the administrator.

Dr. Pfohl took charge of the affairs of the late Dr. Campbell at his death. Rev. Mr. Campbell added, that scandalous reports were circulated by Dr. Pfohl regarding his brother. At his death he deliberately took his cash on hand without counting it. Rev. Mr. Campbell has affidavits to this effect. Dr. Pfohl neglected the deceased in his illness, having no nurse attending him. He also sold his valuable medical instruments, his fur overcoat, and some costly jewelery, all for the sum of ten dollars. He never sent word to nearby relatives of the death of Dr. Campbell, and all through the proceedings the administrator has shown great dishonesty and trickery, says Rev. Mr. Campbell.

At the doctor's death only two bills were owing, one to Dr. Pfohl for medical attendance, and one to the undertaker, whom Dr. Pfohl chose. Rev. Mr. Campbell states Dr. Dr. Pfohl only made two visits to his brother, one before and one after death. For these a bill of $200 was sent. The undertaker's account amounted to the outrageous sum of $1,800. These accounts have not yet been settled, and during the litigation over the administrator, Dr. Pfohl was enjoined not to pay these bills, pending the decision of the judge. Then on the last hearing of the Court in September, the judge refused to continue the injunction, restraining Pfohl from paying these, pending the appeal to the Superior Court, because he said, the undertaker was pressing his sworn to bill.

The visiting clergyman further states that he was not trying to act as administrator in the interim between the judges' decision and the appeal which will be heard next month as was reported in the papers. Mr. Campbell came from California at the request of the heirs of the estate. He came at a great sacrifice to himself and to a large number of unfortunates in the hospitals and alms houses in San Francisco, with whom he has labored for years, giving a large part of his fortune to assist them. The heirs, with the exception of one, all signed a paper, which was presented to the judge asking that he (Rev. Mr. Campbell) be substituted in the place of Dr. Pfohl, as administrator.

Rev. Mr. Campbell has entered two suits against Dr. Pfohl, one for malpractice and shameful neglect of his brother, and the other for stealing deceased's money and disposing of his valuables.

The report that the late Dr. Campbell lived in miserable quarters is wrong, for Rev. Mr. Campbell is stopping at the same hotel as his brother was, and it is a fine and comfortable building.

Dr. Campbell died in May last, leaving a large fortune. He left $45,000 deposited in banks, in addition to several valuable ranches in Nebraska. No will is left, but his brother has evidence of their being one.

The reverend gentleman has been in San Francisco for many years and was often wanted there by his late brother. He has letters from clergymen and men high in public opinion as to his reliability, integrity and financial standing.

WAS CHARGED WITH THEFT

Willis Hastie of Havelock, came up before County Police Magistrate Edmison, at ten o'clock this morning, on charge of stealing two watches and two oranges, a rather peculiar combination. He was remanded until ten o'clock Monday morning. This afternoon Magistrate Edmison is in Lakefield, trying Vincent Oliver, and Thomas McGee on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Crossings That are Dangerous

Railway Commission Engineer Shown Some of Them

Peterborough has a number of railway crossings that are considered exceedingly dangerous, and the City Council is desirous of protecting the public by having gates placed on the most dangerous ones.

Mr. Simmons of Ottawa, the Railway Commission engineer, was shown some of the crossings this morning and agreed with the civic officials, that some of them were a menace to public safety. The two crossings that are considered the most dangerous are the one on Reid street, near the Wm. Hamilton Company's works, and the one on Lansdowne street. It is not improbable that the Railway Commission may order gates to be erected at these two crossings.

The Commission Sends Engineer

To Investigate City's Application to Extend Street Across G.T.R. Track

Mr. T. L. Simmons, Ottawa, an engineer of the Railway Commission of Canada, was in the city today, in connection with some matters in Peterborough that the commission has to deal with. Primarily, Mr. Simmons was sent here by the commission to look into the conditions in connection with the city's application to cross the Belleville line of the Grand Trunk in the extension of George street. Application to cross the railway company's tracks was recently made, and Mr. Simmons in company with Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, City Engineer Hay, City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, and Mr. F. Sandy, G. T. R. Station Agent, visited the spot in question this morning and went over the ground thoroughly. Mr. Simmons will report to the Railway Commission regarding the matter and it is expected that the city's application will be granted.

Tried Hard to Get Kipling

To Address Peterboro' Canadian Club To-night But Were Not Successful

The Canadian Club of Peterborough tried hard to get Rudyard Kipling to come to Peterborough for tonight, but the attempt has not been successful. The matter was discussed at the meeting of the club last night when there was an unanimity of opinion that an effort should be made to bring the famous poet here. It was thought that it might be possible to get him to come to Peterborough on the C.P.R. local at 7.30 tonight, stop off here and address the Canadian Club, and proceed to Ottawa on the midnight. A telegram inviting him to come to Peterborough and address the new Canadian Club, was sent Mr. Kipling this morning, but up to the time of going to press no answer had been received. It has since been learned that he has an engagement in Toronto for 8.30 this evening, so it will be impossible for him to come.

The whole talk of the neighborhood now, is the great threshing that is being done by Mr. L. J. Morton's outfit. It was of the "Rural New Yorker" variety, and it was grown by Mr. Peter Reid, of Tuftsville.—Stirling News-Argus.

A HANDSOME PORTRAIT.
A handsome group portrait nicely framed, of the Quaker Senior Football Club, champions of the Midland League is on view in the window of Laidlaw & Otes, Hunter street. This work is decidedly clever and artistic, and was executed by Mr. Roy.

THE ENGINE RAISED THE DUST

Steam Escaped From Cylinder of C.P.R. Express

It is stated that yesterday morning something went wrong with the engine of the 11.16 C.P.R. express, probably on account of the packing blowing off, or something going wrong with the cylinder, as the train drew into the station dust chips and huge pieces of dirt flew in all directions on account of the steam escaping in such a large volume. The engine was assisted to pull out from the station by the yard engine.

KILLING FLIES WITH GINGER

Unique Method of the Employee of a Local Hotel

With the apparent intention of putting some ginger in the boarders one of the employees of a local hotel this morning sprinkled ginger in generous quantity around the dining room. And how he came to do so furnishes an interesting tale. It appears that he wished to exterminate the flies in the dining room and decided that he would sprinkle some insect powder about the place. Like Old Mother Hubbard, of nursery book lore, he went to the cupboard, took out a glass containing what he thought was insect powder and sprinkled it about the dining room. In doing so, however, he got the fumes of the powder up his nose and commenced to sneeze. This led him to make a quiet investigation, which brought forth the fact that he had been using ginger in his endeavors to banish the flies.

It is not known whether the employee in question had ginger on the brain, as the result of "The Gingerbread Man" being in the city last night, but at any rate he seems to be somewhat mixed up.

A Wooden Walk

Allows Natural Walking

Improvement Number Nine

The Foot-rite Natural Walk

The average shoe is a splint, the rigid, unbudgeable heel and sole being the board, and the hard, brittle, corset-formed upper leather being the tightly drawn bandages, and the feet the afflicted part.

These splints force the wearer to walk wooden. They grip tight and stiff, allowing the feet no liberty—no chance to draw up and expand as they walk, and as Nature intended. The wearer walks with the ankle muscles ever lifting and lowering the feet, as if so much lifeless wood. None of the foot muscles, tendons or toes come into play. The wearer doesn't walk, he simply lifts up and lets down the two stiff, lifeless, imprisoned wooden feet.

Foot-rites allow natural walking. Why?

Their soles and heels are of the finest fibered "butt" cowhide, sun seasoned and tanned with oaktree bark, which renders them stout but soft and pliable.

Their insides, being shaped over foot-sculpture lasts, are the exact form of the feet which inhabit them.

Their uppers are made of "Sable Calf," a sun seasoned leather almost as soft and supple as the live calf's skin

Their toe-freedom, uncollapsable box toes give the foot's fingers unhampered liberty to grasp the sole at each step

Their heel comforting, ball and socket counters give the heel its natural action as it lifts and lowers.

Their plumb-line level heel and sole converts the wigwag walk into a level gait.

Their hurtless instep seam relieves rubbing and binding at the instep.

The Foot-rite Shoe, though strong and bracing, gives moccasin freedom.

The door of the Foot rite retailer in your town swings inward but never outward to find a more welcome store. His name's below.

He has a natural walk in store for you.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00 and $5.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted.

Canadian Club of Peterboro' is the Latest Organization

Constitution Adopted and Officers Elected at Meeting Held Last Night—Prospects Exceedingly Bright

"It is the purpose of this club to foster patriotism by encouraging the study of the institutions, history, arts, literature and resources of Canada, and by endeavoring to unite Canadians in such work for the welfare and progress of the Dominion as may be desirable and expedient."

The above is one of the important clauses in the constitution of the Canadian Club of Peterborough, which was organized at a meeting held in the City Council Chamber last night, when the committee appointed at the gathering held a few days ago reported. A constitution was adopted, and officers elected last night and everything seems to point towards the success of the new organization. Mr. J. E. Hodgson acted as chairman until the president was elected, and Mr. H. R. H. Kenner was secretary.

The constitution prepared by the committee appointed at the former meeting was read by Mr. Kenner and adopted clause by clause. It is modelled after the constitution of the Canadian Club of Toronto with such modifications as local conditions made necessary. The membership of the club is open to any man over eighteen years of age who is a British subject and who is in sympathy with the objects of the organization. All those who join before December 1st will be charter members and after that a prospective new member must be recommended by at least two members of the club and passed upon by the executive committee. The membership fee has been placed at $1.00 a year.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The committee also submitted a list of officers, but it was left with the meeting whether those proposed should be elected or not. No changes were made and as a result the following officers were elected:

President.—F. D. Kerr.
First Vice-Pres.—Dr. Halliday.
Second Vice-Pres.—D. O'Connell.
Sec.-Treas.—H. R. H. Kenner
Executive committee.—Dr. Cameron, R. E. Layfield, T. F. Matthews, J. H. Larmonth, D. Hughes-Charles, J. J. Crane and H. LeBrun.

It is intended to hold monthly meetings and an effort will be made to secure an excellent speaker for each meeting. The club starts with a big membership and apparently is going to be a great success. About twenty-five representative citizens were present at last night's meeting and everyone was most enthusiastic. A large number have already signed the roll and paid their membership fee.

Farmer Thrown From His Waggon

Mr. Wm. Manning, farmer of Hartley vicinity, met with a painful mishap Tuesday while driving to Lindsay. When within a few miles of the corporation his team of spirited colts took fright at some object and bounded forward, jarking Mr. Manning over the front of the waggon, and dragging him some distance before he could regain control of the excited animals. He sustained a number of severe bruises and contusions, and a deep gash over one eye, which required six stitches to close. Dr. Wood, of Lindsay, dressed the wound.

WILL SCHOOL BOOKS BE FREE?

Department of Education Considering the Matter

A Toronto despatch says:—In connection with the forthcoming supply of new Public School text books, the Education Department has under consideration the advisability of supplying the readers free, as well as of reducing the list of other authorized text books to the minimum. It is understood that Hon. Dr. Pyne has had several conferences with the Prime Minister, Hon. Mr. Whitney, and the Provincial Treasurer, Hon. Mr. Matheson, as to whether the proposal is financially practicable or not. Should the plan meet with approval the new readers, whose subject matter is already under consideration by Dr. Goggin and his associates, will be issued to the parents and pupils entirely free of charge.

The free books are not expected to extend further than the readers at the present time, but preparations have been made to secure a very material reduction in the price of all other authorized text books.

President McIlroy Delivers Annual Address at Winnipeg

The Winnipeg papers this week have extended reports of the annual meeting of the Canadian Ticket Sellers' Association, which opened in that city on Tuesday. The visitors were officially welcomed by Acting Mayor Davidson, President Wm. McIlroy made a neat reply. The Free Press has the following regarding his response.

"President McIlroy, in a most pleasing address replied. The visitors had been astonished at the many signs of prosperity and were agreed in thinking that Winnipeg was destined to be the metropolis of Canada, surpassing all other cities of the Dominion. The city was widely known for its open-hearted hospitality, and the reception to the agents was in accordance with this reputation. When they returned to the east, they would advise their friends of its attractions and would direct intending settlers to the Northwest. At the conclusion of the address of the president, all the delegates joined in the singing of "They Are Jolly Good Fellows," with three cheers and a tiger."

In his annual address, Mr. McIlroy said, the ticket agents had visited Winnipeg eight years ago, and since that time the members of the association had contributed to make Winnipeg what it was today. Many of the most prominent citizens of this city, and many of the most prosperous farmers of the east had been advised to come west, by the members of the association.

One of the matters which the members would be called on to consider would be the adoption of the 24-hour system of the notation of time by the Canadian railways operating at Port Arthur and east, as is used by the lines operating west of Port Arthur. The adoption of this system would tend to improve the present railway time table.

There had been much criticism of the railways by the newspapers during the past year owing to the failure of the companies to give a satisfactory passenger and freight service. The ticket agents knew that the respective companies were making every effort to comply with the requests of the public for a better service. Locomotives and cars could not however, be built in a day, and every shop in Canada and the United States was working to the limit in producing equipment. The members of the association were urged to learn everything possible regarding the west. Knowledge of the various provinces of the Dominion was a very valuable asset to the man who sells the tickets.

Stratford, Oct. 18.—Miss Ethel Short, a domestic employed at the home of C. B. Heath, a prominent local merchant, had a thrilling experience late Wednesday night, being confronted with a would-be assailant or burglar, who threatened to shoot her if she did not open the door.

The girl, with the baby in her arms, answered a door-bell call, and when she refused to admit the stranger he poked a revolver in her face. Without losing presence of mind she rushed to the telephone and rung up the police station before the intruder could lay hands on her.

Narrow Escape of Duck Hunters

Boat Upset and Two Men Were Dumped into the River

Messrs. Robt. Walton, of Havelock, and John Nelson of Toronto Junction, both C.P.R. men, had a narrow escape from a watery grave on Tuesday afternoon while duck hunting on the Trent river. In some manner the boat was upset while one of the young men was shooting, and they were thrown into the water. The boat sank after the plunge and the unfortunate nimrods struck out for the shore. Walton dropped his gun when the boat went over and Nelson lost his in the struggle for safety. Fortunately their sad plight was discerned by another sport-man who proceeded to the rescue in the nick of time as both were rapidly becoming exhausted.

DUCK SHOOTING

Birds Plentiful on Rice Lake—Wild Rice a Short Crop.

Harwood, Oct. 17. — The Indians at Rice Lake have completed the gathering of the wild rice crop which this year is disappointingly small. The reason given is the high water in the spring. It is suggested that the Government should take some steps to protect the famous rice beds of the lake or they will be a thing of the past. Wild fowl are plentiful on the lake just now, the principal birds being the red heads, but good decoys are needed to bring them close. There is a good deal of shooting going on and large numbers of birds are being brought in to Norwood.

SENATOR COX'S VIEWS

Senator Cox recently at Calgary forcibly presented the minority side of the anti-Asiatic question. He holds that Oriental labor should be admitted and that Canada should be open to labor from every country. The demand for labor which Senator Cox mentions is that of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which is delayed because the contractors cannot obtain the workers required to push on all sections at once. It is pointed out that $17,000,000 or $18,000,000 lies in British banks, waiting to be invested on this railway, and that this money cannot get itself spent so fast as the Grand Trunk people desire, or the interests of the country demand.

Should the doors be thrown wide open to Orientals we should, undoubtedly, says the Belleville Intelligencer, have great activity along this line, and for that matter, in many other directions. Japan and India would send in their thousands and China her tens or hundreds of thousands. Once relieved of the $500 head tax, China could easily supply the whole contractor's market for unskilled labor, and have a surplus for other industries. A continuous Mongolian camp would exist from Prince Rupert to Moncton, with armies on all branch lines and railway works throughout the land. Mining and manufacturing industries would be easily manned with laborers who would never go on strike. Then money in the English banks, which Senator Cox desires to see rapidly expended in this country would soon be moved westward to Canada, and much of it would follow on till West became East and millions were laid away in the Province of Canton.

In view of the fact, however, that Senator Cox's $17,000,000 must sooner or later be expended on the work, it is questionable whether the hurry is worth the price. Canadians generally will not wish to see the country placed in any jeopardy as a white man's country.

PEN POINTS

How do you like this beautiful October weather?

Even beer is going up in price. What next?

The Peterborough Review has a leading article on "faults in the pulpit." Now, the Rev. Dr. Langfeldt might make things interesting by a homily on "faults in the press." — Orillia Packet.

Some fellows who still cling to the old fossilized and foolish idea that the doings of muskrats forgi a weather bureau, have published the statement that these little animals have completed their huts, and an early and long winter is predicted.

Now if our esteemed contemporary, the Farmer's Sun, will open fire on that proposed Georgian Bay ship canal from Lake Simcoe to Toronto, as a hare-brained scheme for wasting public money, we shall gladly say, "hear, hear." One canal is enough for us, thank you.—Orillia Packet.

The new Canadian Club is to be heartily congratulated on the good judgment displayed in the election of its new officers. They are all representative citizens and under their direction, the club should become a strong factor in encouraging patriotism, the study of Canadian arts, literature, history and resources, and in building up, unity, cooperation and spirit for the good and welfare of Canada.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, minister of education has issued two circulars with a view to developing "elementary agriculture and horticulture and school gardens" in the village and rural schools. It has been decided to grant to five rural teacher, who qualifies for the teaching of this branch at the Ontario Agricultural College, and inaugurates the work in the school, a sum of $30 per annum as long as the work is continued.

It is pleasing to record that the prospects of the newly organized Canadian Club in Peterborough, are of the brightest possible character. The officers chosen are progressive and wideawake, the objects of the institution are commendable, and there should be a career of great usefulness, activity and service for the organization. Here's to the success of the new Canadian Club in Peterborough.

Concurrently with the publication of the date of the bye-election in East Northumberland, came the announcement that the Government would at once set about the building of a new wharf at Lakeport, the Port of Colborne. This kind of thing gives the public the true measure of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who poses as a purist and deals in high-minded platitudes on the platform, but always is ready to countenance any tactics which his colleagues and henchmen consider necessary to keep the party in power.

The Mayor of Barrie has offered $100 of his own towards the expense of publishing the assessment roll. As reason of urging its publication, the Examiner says; "In the assessment there are many inequalities, for which perhaps, the assessor can be handily blamed. Publication of the roll would make these evident. When the assessor made his rounds the following year, every ratepayer knowing the assessment placed on other properties similar to his own, would be in a position to secure a fair rating. Having the roll in this handy form would also be a great convenience and help to the assessor in comparing properties and arriving at a fair valuation."

Mr. J. C. Thornton was selected as the candidate of the Liberal - Conservatives, at the convention at Newcastle last week. Mr. Thornton will no doubt, make a strong candidate, and a worthy member. He carried West Durham by 41 votes, against Robert Beith some years ago, and was counted out on a technicality. It will be between him and Mr. F. B. Simpson for the honor of representing Durham at Ottawa. There will be general regret expressed that Col. Ward has decided to drop out of politics, for a while at least, says the Millbrook Reporter. He was a painstaking member, an intelligent politician, and a creditable representative. He is too young a man to be put on the shelf, and we look forward to his returning to active service again, before long.

In the bye-election now being conducted in East Northumberland the Conservative candidate, Mr. C. L. Owen, of Campbellford, is determined to wage a clean, fair, honest and open fight. To this end he is exerting every effort and calls upon every elector, regardless of politics, to assist him in carrying on the campaign in a straightforward manner. Purity is one of the planks in the Conservative platform and Mr. C. L. Owen is determined that so far as he and his friends are concerned they will live strictly up to this principle. In this week's issue of the Campbellford Herald he says:

"As an earnest of my endeavor to make a clean election I now offer in reward of $50 to any person or persons who will furnish me with evidence that will lead to a conviction of any party advancing money to be used in bribery, of giving or agreeing to give money, office or employment to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting at this election."

WILL SPEAK IN HASTINGS

Mr. C. L. Owen, Conservative candidate in East Northumberland, accompanied by Mr. W. B. Northrup, M.P., East Hastings, and Claude McDonald, M. P. Toronto, will address the electors of Hastings and district on Tuesday evening, Oct. 22, in the town hall at 8 p.m.

(Political issues of the day will be discussed. Mr. Northrup is one of the finest speakers in the House of Commons and to hear him is in itself a treat. Mr. McDonald is also one of the coming men of this country.

BACKACHE IS THE DANGER SIGNAL

This Simple Home Mixture Said to Prevent Serious Kidney Trouble

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first-class physician, leave patent medicines alone.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home as stated by a well-known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency, (especially at night) painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce. Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. These simple agredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no better general remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism either, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

The "Sailor Boy" brand of canned goods are the best that are put up. They never fail to please. Try a few cans.

Restaurant Has Changed Hands

Mrs. Robt. King, who formerly conducted a boarding house on Park street, has taken over the premises on George street, recently vacated by Mr. F. E. Darcy. Mrs. King will conduct a restaurant and will also accommodate women. The place will be open for business on Monday and will be run on first class lines.

W. Olsen, a cook in the G. T. P. camp at Rennie, shot himself Friday night last.

New Officers Were Welcomed

Staff Capt. Goodwin and Capt. Maisey Arrived—Reception at S. A. Barracks

Staff Captain Goodwin and her assistant, Captain Maisey, the new commanding officers of the local Salvation Army were given a rousing reception last night, and as one afterwards remarked, they were made to feel right at home.

The new officers arrived on the C.P.R. local from Toronto and were greeted at the station by the band and afterwards paraded to the barracks, where a real hearty welcome was extended to them. Cheer after cheer went up and the people clapped their hands with jubilation as the new leaders walked up the aisle and took their places on the platform. Adjutant Osborne, late of England, opened the meeting, after which Sergeant Major T. H. Brooks took charge and in a few well-chosen remarks, welcomed Staff Capt. Goodwin and her assistant.

Mr. Geo. Leader, secretary of the local corps, added his words of greeting. He had been at many receptions, and he always thought of the good work they were about to commence. There was much to be done here, and he hoped that the local corps would rally round the new officers and give them every assistance. Mr. Mark Wainwright and Mrs Lang, also spoke a few words. They would do all they could to assist the new comers. They hoped everyone would try to make this coming year the best in the history of the Army.

Band Sergeant McDonald on behalf of the band, and Sergeant Major Braund for the juniors, welcomed the officers. Mr. F. Gandy contributed a vocal solo, which was well received.

The band under J. Mendel Greene gave several excellent selections.

Staff Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey, were formerly stationed at Windsor, where they were very successful in their work, and no doubt the same success will attend their efforts in Peterborough.

Staff-Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey as they rose to speak were loudly applauded. The Staff Captain said that it gave her a great deal of pleasure to be present. She had indeed been made to feel at home, and she was sure that her sojourn here would be very pleasant. Capt. Maisey said she was glad to be present. She was delighted with her new home and she hoped the relations between herself and the soldiers of the corps would be pleasant and agreeable.

Petrolia Town Shaken by A Tremendous Explosion

Five Hundred Quarts of Nitro-Glycerine Blew Up.

Factory Completely Wrecked — Was Smashed Into Matchwood—Several Persons Injured, But No One Was Killed — Shock Felt For Twenty Miles Around—Great Hole Dug In Ground—People Badly Scared.

Petrolea, Oct. 18.—Yesterday morning about 4 o'clock the town was thrown into intense excitement and every house was badly shaken by an explosion.

Upon investigation it turned out to be Lowery's glycerine factory, about a mile and a half from the town, on the 12th line.

Some four or five hundred quarts exploded and just left a hole eight feet deep and sixty feet long where the factory was.

The buildings in the vicinity suffered badly and in a lot of houses not a pane of glass was left.

The building was a large frame structure, but nothing is left of it. The dynamite was properly packed and was supposed to be in first-class shape. Cause of the explosion at present unknown.

The town suffered severely. Large plate glass windows were smashed to atoms.

Amongst the sufferers are H. Canniff, Wm. Dunlop, John Watson, Spurr and Rose, Charles Richmond, and Howards.

A boy named Glass was injured.

Petrolea, Oct. 18.—The Town Council passed a bylaw last night prohibiting the manufacture of explosives in the town and ordering the one remaining factory to remove its plant from the town. The shock of Wednesday's explosion was felt distinctly at Parkdale, 42 miles distant.

Materials which develop this design prettily are plain muli cross-barred dimity, sheer, nainsook and the fabric mentioned above. The pattern calls for 1 3-4 yards of 36 inch goods.

A Great Send Off for Whitty; Was Banqueted Last Evening

Mr. Glover Explains Departing Player's Connection With Team Last Winter—Leaves City With Best Wishes of Everyone.

A hockey top-notcher called "Whitty,"
Has gone west again—what a pity.
He'll put it all over
The bunch, as a rover,
And that is more truthful than witty.

A number of Fred. Whitcroft's intimate personal friends and admirers honored him with a dinner at Spence's restaurant last night, oripr to his departure for Edmonton, where he will manage and captain the Edmonton professional hockey team. Mr. E. S. Clarry officiated as toastmaster.

Nearly every branch of sport was represented, and the representatives present all spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Whitcroft, both as regards his private and athletic life, and wished him every possible success in the responsible duties he had dertaken in connection with the Edmonton seven. It was pleasing to note that every speaker cherished the warmest and kindliest feelings toward him, and, while congratulating him on his responsible appointment, told of their reluctance to see one of the ablest and most faithful athletes ever developed leave the local arena of sport for that of Western Canada. As the gathering was a representative one, Mr. Whitcroft knows that the different sporting organizations of the city fully appreciate the service he has done to Peterborough in the realm of sport, and is assured that he has no friends any place who are more anxious that his career be attended with as large measure of success possible than he has in this city.

Perhaps the most interesting speech of the evening was made by Mr. R. M. Glover, on behalf of the Peterborough Hockey Club. Mr. Glover said and there were many people who were apparently misinformed as to the true facts of Mr. Whitcroft's departure for Kenora last winter, and judging from the idle talk of some busybodies, there was an impression that he practically deserted the local team at a critical moment and against the wishes of the other members of the club. Mr. Glover vehemently denied the truth of this assertion, and said "Whitty" the Peterborough seven after the matter of his going away had been thoroughly considered and agreed upon by every member of the team and the club. The Peterborough seven had a poor chance of winning the district, he said, when Mr. Whitcroft left, and if there had been one member of the club who wished him to stay on the team for the balance of the season, I am sure he would have been happy to do so, but as it was a case of a remuneration of several hundred dollars for a few weeks' service, we all thought it was only just that he should accept the offer made him by the Kenora management. He acted the part of the gentleman and true sportsman throughout, and left with the best wishes of every member of the club."

Mr. Clarry made a most acceptable toastmaster, and his remarks during the evening were very happy and appropriate. After an excellent menu list had been corporeally concealed, he proposed the toast of the King, which was honored in the usual loyal manner. He made several complimentary remarks concerning the guest of the evening, and spoke of his regret at seeing him leave the city. He said he had done well for Peterborough and was a distinct credit to the city. In a few well-timed and nicely expressed remarks he proposed his health. All those who had come to do honor to one of the worthiest and most popular hockey players that ever figured on a local line-up, then sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," in a right jolly good way.

When the guest of the evening arose to speak it was some time before he could proceed, owing to the prolonged applause with which he was greeted. He made a very neat and witty speech, telling of his gratitude to those who had banqueted him, and said he would always have a warm spot in his heart for the place where he learned the game—Peterborough. He was glad to see he was well thought of in this city, and thanked the gathering for the cordially expressed wishes that he would succeed in the Western world, and for the banquet they had so thoughtfully tendered him. He was much pleased to see that he had their heartiest congratulations upon being given the position he was leaving to fill. "I will write to my old friends in Peterborough," he remarked, "and will look forward to having the opportunity of again joining them next spring."

The others who spoke, and who all voiced the kindest sentiments toward Mr. Whitcroft, both as a citizen and a player were Messrs. R. M. Glover and C. G. Graham, on behalf of the Peterborough Hockey Club; Mr. T. W. McDonough, for the Peterborough Rugby Club; Mr. Milne Hamilton, for Acquatic Sports; Mr. J. D. Clarke, on behalf of the Tennis Club; Mr. Cameron, for the Golf Club; Mr. Hillhouse, on behalf of the supporters of sport in Peterborough; M. Moore and B. Gillespie, who told how much "Whitty" would be missed among the fair sex of the city.

The toast to the press was responded to by the representatives present.

One of the most interesting and successful occasions of its kind ever held in Peterborough was brought to a close by the singing of that time-honored vocal valedictory, "Auld Lang Syne."

Local Runner Has Entered In Montreal Herald Race

Ray P. Best to Compete Against Longboat, Shipman and Other Crack Runners on Thanksgiving Day

Peterborough will have a representative in the Montreal Herald race at Montreal, on the morning of Thanksgiving day. Ray P. Best has entered and should make a good showing, although he will be competing against some of the best amateur runners in Canada, among them Tom Longboat, the famous Indian, who is regarded as the world's greatest long distance man.

The Herald course is within a few hundred yards of being ten miles in length. The start is made at the Herald office, and the course is around Mount Royal, finishing at the starting point. Last year the race was won by Tom Shipman, the crack Montreal distance man, the time being fifty-nine minutes. There were over eighty entries last year and this year an even larger field will start. Of course Tom Longboat is the favorite and is picked as the winner by the knowing ones.

Best will run under the colors of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., and has been training hard for the race. The distance is just to his liking and he should be among the first to finish. Best has shown that he has the speed and stamina that a ten mile man requires and will have the best wishes of Peterborough people in his race on Thanksgiving Day.

There is a probability that Art. Burn of Calgary, formerly of Peterborough will be among the starters. Burn has cleaned up everything on the coast and wants to meet Longboat.

SPORTING COMMENT

Alfred Shrubb, the English runner, has kindly granted another interview to the press, and says Longboat is not a world beater, although a very good man. It's very generous of him to admit it. There is nothing selfish or egotistical about Shrubb.

JUNIORS ASKED TO TURN OUT

Rugby Team Would Like to See Them on Hand at Practice

The members of the Karnoas, Crescents and any others who are willing to do so, are requested to turn out with the Rugby team tomorrow afternoon, at 2.30 at Riverside Park, as the team desires to have a first-class workout in preparation for the game with the Vics in Toronto a week from tomorrow. Saturday is the only day of the week on which a practice by daylight can be held, and an afternoon practice is much more useful than one held when the illumination has to be supplied by artificial means. The members of the senior team are in a position to give the juniors some invaluable pointers on the fine points of the game, and a practice game between the two should be very beneficial to both. The boys can stand all the rehearsing they can possibly obtain, as the Victorias are digging in regularly for Toronto and will make a mighty effort to win when they meet the locals on the Hogtown gridiron.

RUGBY

The Rugby Club should have no difficulty whatever in getting a sufficient number to go to Toronto to see the game between Peterborough and the Vics a week from Saturday. The return fare is $2.05 for adults and 1.25 for children. Those desirous of going please leave their names at Mac's tobacco shop, or at the C.P.R. uptown ticket office. Arrangements will be made for the train to leave here at a convenient hour, and to stay in Toronto until after the theatrical performances are over.

Fire Damaged Dwelling House

Roof of Mr. J. B. Gillespie's Place East City, Badly Burned

At 12.45 o'clock today fire broke out at the residence of Mr. James B. Gillespie, 138 Hunter street east.

While the damage done by fire was not serious, water played great havoc. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $400, but is practically all covered by insurance. The flames, it is thought, originated from a defective chimney, in the north-east corner of the house. The blaze started on the roof, close to the chimney. The roof was greatly damaged, and will have to be replaced by an entirely new one. Mr. Melville Moore was the first to notice the blaze, and hurried to the corner of Munk street to send in the alarm. The brigade was soon on the scene and had hose playing on the blaze.

Several willing hands, to whom Mr Gillespie is greatly indebted assisted in carrying the furniture out of the house. The contents were all saved. The fire burned through the ceiling in several places, and the paper on the walls was spoiled with water. Fortunately the conflagration was noticed in time and prevented from spreading. Only lately the house was papered and cleaned, and it will have to be repeated. Repairs will be commenced at once.

Paid High Price for Jersey Cow

Two years ago, more or less, Mr. Andrew Torrance gave Mr. E. G. Brock $45 for a practically thoroughbred Jersey cow, coming three years old, and a few days ago, he sold her to Rev. Father O'Leary, of Galway for $75. This seems a big price, but she is worth every cent of it, for she has given no less than sixteen pounds of butter in a week, and would no doubt do better on first-class grass. Mr. Brock bought her somewhere near Cambray when only a few months old. She was taken to her new home, near Swamp Lake on Wednesday by Mr. Thos. Scott.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

REMEMBERED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Westwood People Honor Mr. and Mrs. George Lancaster

A very pleasant event took place on Tuesday evening when the congregation of St. Michael's church, Westwood, gathered at the town hall, which had been decorated for the occasion, to do honor to the departing members, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lancaster, who leave on the 22nd to take up their residence in Bowden, Alberta. Mrs. Lancaster who has for several years faithfully fulfilled the arduous duties of organist, was presented with a beautiful gold locket, suitably inscribed, and Mr. Lancaster was the recipient of a handsomely bound Prayer Book. The presents were accompanied by a magnificently expressed address, which read as follows:—

St. Michael's Church, Westwood.

To Mrs. Geo. Lancaster,—

Dear Mrs. Lancaster,—The congregation of St. Michael's church, Westwood, desire through this address and accompanying token of esteem to convey to you their sincere regrets at your being about to leave them to go to the great Northwest.

You have been for a long time organist of this church, and it is saying very little that you will be missed. But not only for the sake of the faithful and self-sacrificing work that you have done, but also as a true and zealous member of the church is your departure and that of your good husband so deeply regretted.

St. Michael's will ever hold you both dear in its memory as members who were seldom absent from the House of God and whose lives were bright examples of Christianity and true Godliness.

It is the earnest prayer of these, your friends, that in your new home in the west you may live long to enjoy very many years prosperous and happy, loyal and true as you have ever been to the dear old Mother Church. May God be with you and bless you and make your path in life bright with the sunshine of his presence.

On behalf of the congregation.
E. W. BICKFORD, F. BIRDSALL,
Incumbent. MODEST ELMHIRST,
Church Wardens.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmhirst were invited to meet their friends at 8 p.m. On their arrival they were escorted to the platform, when Mr. Modest Elmhirst read the address and Mr. F. Birdsall made the presentation. Mr. Lancaster replied in a few well chosen words.

The whole congregation then sat down to a beautiful repast, after which the following toasts were duly honored.

Fine Display of Strikingly Beautiful Fall Blooms

Thousands of Flowers of Various Varieties at Jordan Bros. Greenhouses---A Rich Showing.

Nature provides an unchanging succession of seasons. The green gladness of spring follows the rigors of winter, summer comes with riper loveliness and pleasures, and fades into golden autumn. Man is never content, but always longs for what he has not and aims to prolong the season of warmth and bloom. When the frost withers all outdoor growth and paralyzes nature's powers of growth, art takes their place. Under glass covered structures, and by the aid of artificial heat, summer warmth is provided for the cultivation of plants and flowers in the green-houses and the frosts of autumn and frigid blasts of winter are placed at defiance.

A representative of the Review paid a visit to the Jordan Bros. green-houses yesterday and was shown among a veritable maze of beautiful fall blooms which presented a picture such as only nature, or nature supplemented by the resourcefulness of man, can paint. The green-houses cover an area of over 20,000 square feet and are so equipped that the flowers in them are given every advantage that can possibly be supplied by artificial means. A ramble through the long rows of flowerland is a very delightful one and the change and blending of colors of various varieties presents a delightful scene, not unlike some rich stage setting of floral design.

It is a hard matter to decide which particular variety of flowers should be given preference, but to the majority of people the beautiful beds of carnations would probably appeal the most strongly as they are at the same time both delicate and brilliant. In the green-houses of Jordan Bros. are 5,000 carnations of the leading varieties and they are in full bloom. Two green-houses, sub-divisions of the green-house proper, are required to contain them. One particularly attractive variety is the pink enchantress, of which there are over a thousand, although the Excelsior, a deeper pink, and the Beacon, a pure red, are conspicuously pretty. The Nelson and Fisher are other varieties of carnations. Thousands of ferns, begonias, primillias, primroses, lillies, etc., are housed in another capacious green-house, covering a large area.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Special attention should be called to the chrysanthemums. There are 4,000 of these, and they form a very beautiful bank of foliage. Six of the leading varieties are represented. The chrysanthemums are probably the most conspicuous flowers in the green-houses, but nevertheless their shades are not at all gaudy and although they are large, the color effect produced by them as a whole display is quiet and restful. Conspicuous among the other flowers and plants growing in the green-house are 6,000 small white geranium plants. A large number of field violets are growing outside, and will be transplanted inside as soon as room can be made for them.

Ten thousand bulbs of daffodils, Roman and Dutch hyacinths and tulips for the winter trade, have been received and Jordan Bros. are preparing for a particularly busy winter season.

The elk at the Riverside zoo killed the Scotch buck in a fight through the fence in the paddock.

SABBATH SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

Rev. Dr. Tailing had charge of the Sabbath School Association meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night. He dealt very instructively with the lesson "The Capture of Jericho." There was a large attendance of teachers and others interested, and the meeting proved exceedingly profitable.

Collided in Dense Fog; Passengers Narrow Escape

C. P. R. Steamboats Badly Damaged by Terrific Crash.

Ferry Boat Charmer Has Bow Stove In—Ocean Liner Tartar Run on Beach With Gaping Hole In Side—White Passengers Behaved Splendidly—Are All Safe—Hindoos In a Panic.

Vancouver, Oct. 19.—The C. P. R. gulf ferry steamer Charmer, plying between Vancouver and Victoria, crashed into the C. P. R. Pacific liner Tartar off the sandheads of the Fraser at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening in a dense fog. The Charmer crawled into port yesterday morning with her bow stove in for several yards, and the ocean liner was beached at the southern point of English Bay with a hole five feet wide on the port bow and her hold full of water. The Charmer was bound from Victoria to this port on the regular daily run. The Tartar was bound from Vancouver to the Orient. The Charmer came through Plumber's Pass at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. She ran into a fog and reduced speed. The skipper noticed two steamers drawing too close, and signalled: "I am going to port." The Tartar was then well off the starboard bow of the Charmer. The rule of the road is to pass to the starboard. The Tartar followed the rule, and the Charmer crashed into the port of the liner 30 feet abaft of her bow, cutting through the hull above and below the water line. The Charmer's steel bow and wooden upper works crumpled up like kindling wood. Water poured in, but the collision bulkhead held, averting immediate danger. An old sail was swung into position on the Charmer's bow and she was headed for the Narrows. The fog was so thick that the attempt to enter the harbor was temporarily abandoned. The Charmer's passengers were safely transferred to the Tartar by the boats of both vessels.

The arrangements were perfect. The passengers behaved splendidly, and there were some amusing incidents. An old English gentleman, ruddy and bearded, muffled in a coonskin coat, stood near the rail, and a lady accompanied by her little son four or five years old. The boy eyed the old gentleman curiously, planting himself before him, and piped the inquiry "Please, sir, are you Santa Claus?"

In the burst of laughter that followed all anxiety was forgotten. Fifty-five passengers boarded the Charmer, some came ashore in the boats, and others were brought in by the Nanaimo ferry steamer Joan. Aboard the Tartar were 179 Hindoos being deported. When the collision occurred they rushed up from below, and tried to reach the boats, but were met by the officers, the Chinese crew and the passengers and beaten back. When they had been quieted the crew lowered the boats. There was no panic among the white passengers.

The cargo of the Tartar, consisting of flour, cotton, machinery and canned salmon, was considerably damaged in the forehold. The cargo will be taken out and the steamer sent to Esquimalt drydock.

Kipling Makes Plea for Preference in the Empire

Poet of Empire Makes Earnest Appeal For Closer Union.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling Addresses Toronto Canadian Club—Utters Warning Against Pessimism—Must Not Be Provincial—Pleads For an Imperial Spirit In Solving Great Problems—War Welds Empire.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Mr. Rudyard Kipling addressed the Canadian Club last night and was received with great enthusiasm.

"Every nation," said Mr. Kipling, "within the Empire, and especially the Big Four, have contributed daring and sacrifice. History stirred with no more romantic interest than when its pages told of the courage, the daring and the enterprise of Canadian pioneers. But pioneers were still upon the earth. They were still to be found in Canada, and their kith and kin, equally gallant, brave and lighthearted, are to be found to-day in South Africa and Australia."

He warned the people living in the older parts of Canada to beware of pessimism. "Having had miracles worked in your favor you must not conclude that the age of miracles is past. You may smile at the enthusiasm of some men from the bush, living at some jumping-off place, who wants you to believe that his place will soon be a second Toronto, a second Johannesburg, or a second Melbourne, as the case may be, but you will cease to smile when his farm becomes the centre of a thriving town and you learn that your rival in business has received a great big order for merchandise, as per specifications attached.

"I tell you, gentlemen, that while, as Canadians, you may think it wise to cultivate the big nations of the day, that you are making a great mistake in not paying more attention to the tremendous markets that are growing up within the boundaries of the younger nations of the British Empire. I can point out to you great territories peopled by great multitudes whose demand for goods would tax your utmost capacity.

"Let us be careful," he continued, "that in times of peace we are not too selfish and provincial. I say in 'times of peace,' because I need to give no exhortation as to what you should do in time of war. In time of war, Canada needs no prompter. (Applause). Her battalions will be found leading the hosts of the Empire then as they were found rescuing the hosts of the Empire on the veldt of South Africa. (Loud and prolonged applause.) War welded our Empire together. Let no divisions arise in times of peace."

Mr. Kipling then made an earnest plea for Canada to support the preferential trade propaganda so ably conducted by Mr. Chamberlain.

"Your sister nations within the Empire have the five big problems which confront you. They are education, emigration, transportation, irrigation and administration. (Applause.) Settle these questions in an Imperial spirit and assist the other colonies to settle them in like manner."

DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID.

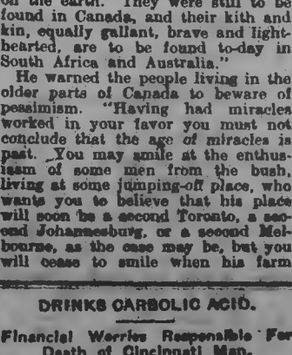
Financial Worries Responsible For Death of Cincinnati Man.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Financial worries preying on his mind, J. Krakower of Cincinnati ended his life by swallowing carbolic acid in his room at the Vendome Hotel, Yonge street.

Letters from his wife were found on him, in which she pleads with him not to be angry, and says she is not angry but broken-hearted.

"Everybody is surprised you left the city. Things would not have gone as they have if you had stayed by me like a man, but you left me like a coward, you left me to fight your mistake."

She appeals to him to tell the truth, and to state how much money he paid on a mortgage. She talks of being wrongfully accused, and says that she has been true. As a wife she urged him to come home to his little daughter.



FELL FROM EXPRESS TRAIN.

Brothers Were Stealing Ride Behind Baggage Car—One Killed.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Raoul Roulier, a 10-year-old lad, fell off the Portland express between Danby and Actonvale Thursday whilst stealing a ride from Sherbrooke to Montreal, and died in the general hospital yesterday morning. It appears that Raoul and an elder brother wanted to have a look round Montreal, and as they had no funds found it necessary to keep out of the way of the train conductor. They crouched on the platform behind the baggage car, and shortly before the train reached Actonvale, Raoul lost his balance and fell off. The elder lad walked back along the track, and after going some distance, found his brother unconscious, his right arm having been amputated by the wheels.

Graphite the New Lubricant.

New York, Oct. 19.—Announcement that he had successfully converted artificial graphite, made from coal dust, into such a condition that it would pass through the finest filter paper, and that he had succeeded in dissolving graphite in water—in other words, making it colloidable — was made by E. C. Acheson, "The Wizard of Niagara Falls," at the opening session of the twelfth general meeting of the American Electro Chemical Society in the Chemists' Club, Thursday evening. Both of these discoveries will have a wide application in industry, it was said, especially that of the dissolution of graphite in water, for it can be used successfully now as a lubricant, where heretofore when dissolved in oil it has formed a sediment at the bottom, resulting in much waste. The graphite is much cheaper than oil.

TOT FOUGHT FLAMES.

Baby Tried In Vain to Save Sister's Life.

New York, Oct. 19.—Locked in their father's house, No. 277 West 66th street, while their uncle was out shopping, two little girls were unable to escape the flames they had innocently started, and five-year-old Mary McCellan was burned to death while her three-year-old sister Elizabeth tried in her baby way to put out the flames that ate the child's clothing.

The children had been locked in for safety's sake as their uncle wanted to purchase some things for supper, and left to themselves the little ones began playing with matches.

In some way Mary's clothes had become ignited, and before the frightened child could smother the blaze it had spread to the carpets and curtains near her in the little parlor.

Dragging her sister to the kitchen Elizabeth screamed, "Come in and help, my sister is burning," and then tried to drag Mary to the door.

Dropping her burden for a moment the courageous girl ran to the door, but the lock held fast, and she could do nothing but beat upon the door with her baby fists.

In the hallway there soon gathered several frantic mothers, and many children of the other families in the buildings. After much vain scurrying around for keys, Mrs. Lena Baker finally burst in the door. But the rescuers had come too late.

CAPTURED AT BOSTON.

Two Men Charged With Robbing the Postoffice at Weymouth, N. S.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 19.—Charged with robbing the postoffice and several stores in the town of Weymouth, N. S., Charles Elderkin and Basil Saulnier, both Nova Scotians, were arrested at Boston on Thursday by Chief Watts, and they will be brought back to this province for trial. Weymouth postoffice was burglarized on the night of Oct. 3. Several hundred dollars in cash and a large amount of goods which were in the same building were carried off. The robbers in making their escape from the building dropped the registered letters, and all of these were recovered. The safe had been blown open with dynamite and everything of value removed.

The Attorney-General sent Provincial Detective Wright to investigate the matter, and as a result the arrest of the above two named was brought about. When Wright's presence in Weymouth became known the parties implicated suddenly left for other parts. On Sunday last the men suspected, Elderkin and Saulnier, were driven to Plympton, and there shipped in the schooner Geo. W. Warren, which sailed for Boston early on Sunday morning. The officer at once communicated with Chief Watts, and when the schooner arrived at Boston on Thursday Elderkin and Saulnier were taken into custody.

DOG'S WONDERFUL INSTINCT.

Traces Mistress 300 Miles and Finds Her In Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Left in Columbus, Ohio, more than three hundred miles away, on March 18th last, Trix, a pet dog owned by May Clark, aged 16 years, of 235 North Clark street, turned up here Thursday and discovered his mistress, having made one of the most remarkable journeys by an animal on record, and accomplished the additional feat of singling out the family with whom he formerly lived, from among more than a million and a half of people.

When Miss Clark came out of a restaurant the dog was sitting, wan and gaunt, in front of her lodgings. He was taken home and fed.

Miss Clark and her mother have been living in their present quarters only three weeks. Previously they lived in several other parts of the city. Their change of residence made the dog's task exceedingly difficult.

DETECTIVE STILL IN CELLS.

Sleuth Who Shot Man at Winnipeg to Be Prosecuted.

Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—Though George Smith, the city detective, was unqualifiedly justified by a coroner's jury Thursday night, the Attorney-General's Department yesterday began active steps to prosecute him on the charge of murder. Bail was refused, and Smith is in the cells. He refused to be sworn before the coroner, and answered no questions, merely alleging that he did not shoot to kill. Intense indignation has been created by the verdict.

LANGFORD WAS LATE.

Walked the Distance But Over an Hour Behind Time.

Port Hope, Oct. 19.—David Langford, who made an attempt to walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return to Port Hope, a distance of 138 miles, in 38 hours, failed to accomplish the feat in the time.

He arrived at the Queen's Hotel at 9.03 last night, an hour and three minutes behind his schedule.

Langford was in a state of collapse and had to be carried to his room.

The Boycott in India.

Calcutta, Oct. 19.—Disturbances were anticipated here Thursday, the anniversary of the partition of the division of Bengal because of the anti-British feeling, but the day passed without any disorder. The day was observed, however, by mourning among all the Bengalis, who abstained from food and went about barefooted. Business of all kinds was at a standstill. No less than thirty thousand Bengalis took part in an orderly demonstration, during which the "swadeshi" vow carried with wild enthusiasm. The "swadeshi" vow aims at the boycott of British goods in Bengal.

BLAZE IN BELLEVILLE

Worst in Years—Damage Estimated at $50,000.

Broke Out In Leading Bookstore—Caused Great Damage to Neighboring Firms — Fireman Overcome by Smoke—Cause of Fire Unknown, But Boy Tells Story of Man Running Away.

Belleville, Oct. 19.—The worst fire this city has had for some time occurred last night, when Scantlebury's Bookstore, on Front street, was totally gutted, the stock which was not destroyed by fire or water being damaged beyond repair by smoke.

The fire broke out about 8 o'clock in a shed used for storing paints at the back of the store, and when discovered was burning fiercely. It spread with great rapidity, and by the time the firemen arrived the rear part of the store was in flames, and in the other parts the smoke was so dense that no one could live in it.

At 10 o'clock the fire was believed to be under control, but the damage was fully $25,000 in Scantlebury's store alone, and the damage by smoke and water in other stores will probably bring it up to $50,000. Other stores involved were: Allan McFee, jewelry; Quick & Robertson, clothing; F. C. Clark, drugs, and F. P. Carney, boots and shoes.

Scantlebury's stock was partially insured, but estimates his loss over insurance at fully $10,000. The building is owned by George Wallbridge, and is fully insured. The other places mentioned were fully insured.

The firemen did excellent work, one of them, J. Campbell, being overcome by smoke, but was rescued in time.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but a boy says he saw a man running away shortly before the fire was discovered.

FREIGHT SHEDS BURNED.

Loss Will Be About $6,000 on Buildings and Contents.

Toronto Junction, Oct. 19.—Shortly after 9 o'clock last night, fire broke out in the Grand Trunk freight sheds, 400 yards west of the station, and, despite the best efforts of the local fire brigade, the building and contents were entirely consumed.

At 9.15 a still alarm was rung in, but the building, an old frame one, fell an easy prey to the flames, and the efforts of the firemen were directed toward saving the rolling stock in the immediate vicinity. A number of G. T. R. employes were employed to remove the cars, none of which was destroyed.

The loss on the sheds, which were erected about 30 years ago, is placed at from $1,500 to $2,000, and on the contents, which included a piano, stoves, furniture and general merchandise, about $4,000. The blaze is thought to have been caused by a passing engine.

The fire attracted thousands of spectators, and the police had some difficulty in keeping the way cleared for the work of the firemen.

Mill Burned In West Lorne.

St. Thomas, Oct. 19.—Stormont's saw mill, West Lorne, was totally destroyed by fire. Cause unknown, loss $2,000.

George C. Gibbons, K. C., chairman of the waterways commission, is to address the inaugural meeting of the Canadian Club on Monday.

Fire at Chatham.

Chatham, Oct. 19.—The dry kiln on Raleigh street, owned by the Chatham Fruit Growers' Association, caught fire from one of the heaters in the building at noon yesterday and was burned to the ground. The loss resulting will amount to about $600, and there is no insurance.

Fire at Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 19.—An early morning fire destroyed the clothing and furnishings stock of Fraser & Co., corner of Queen and Elgin streets. The stock was valued at $6,000, and insured for $5,000 in Ontario, London Mutual and Traders' Insurance Companies. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Girl's Lover Was a Woman.

New York, Oct. 19.—It has been discovered that Mrs. Natalie Clarke Pool, who was arrested Tuesday, charged with masquerading in male attire, succeeded in wooing and winning the heart of a young girl while in that disguise, which she wore over a year.

She was sought at the court prison on Thursday by a tearful young girl, who wanted an explanation of why the prisoner represented herself as a man and won her affections.

In her boy's clothing, which makes her better looking than she is in feminine dress, Mrs. Pool had obtained employment in a Sixth avenue department store. There she met the young woman who visited the prison Thursday and who said she believed that the disguised woman was wooing her. The girl left the prison without seeing Mrs. Pool.

Austrian Emperor's Condition.

Vienna, Oct. 19.—While the physical condition of Emperor Francis Joseph improved somewhat during the last 24 hours, his malady, a catarrhal affection, remains practically the same. The court officials declared last evening that the previous night was the worst the patient had passed since the beginning of his illness.

Lost Life to Save Child.

Lyon Mountain, Ky., Oct. 19.—Orson Collins of Lower Chateaugauy Lake, a well-known Adirondack guide, lost his life Wednesday night in an effort to save one of his children whom he believed to have been left behind when the family rushed from their home, which had taken fire.

Snow on the Upper Lakes.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 19.—Snow fell over the upper lakes yesterday, accompanied by high winds, which have created the heaviest sea of the year. All boats are tying up here waiting for better weather.

It Was a Seaquake.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 19.—Prof. A. E. Louischner, of the Observatory of the University of California, announced on Thursday that the centre of the earthquake disturbance felt on the Pacific coast Wednesday, and probably the same as registered on the seismograph at Washington, D. C., was about 1,000 miles south of Berkeley, in mid-ocean, probably between the Hawaiian Islands and the south coast of Mexico. The shock is known to scientists as a seaquake, and is usually followed by a tidal wave. Reports of the shock will probably be brought in by in-coming ships. According to Prof. Louischner, the intensity of the quake near its centre far exceeded that of the California, Kingston, Valparaiso and Mexican earthquakes.

BEER* IS GOOD FOR MOST FOLKS
(HARDLY ANOTHER BEVERAGE FEEDS SO WELL)

BEER really excels milk as a food-drink for most grown people. And many, many people cannot digest milk easily, because it is so lacking in solid food-contents. Moreover, milk is so liable to contagion that it is seldom pure when we get it in the cities. But Ontario-brewed beer is really pure,—brewed in cleanliness, of sound materials, in a sanitary way, and brought to the user in the same fit-to-drink state.

Beer Is No Stimulant

Drink beer with meals and at bedtime, as an item of diet that will help the stomach do its work better, and will feed the body besides. Don't choose beer as a stimulant, though,—it does not contain enough alcohol for that. Use it as a food-drink that induces lazy stomachs to do their work well, and so helps them get more good out of all food.

Beer Makes Better Nerves

Ontario beer is not only deliciously appetising and refreshing, because brewed of pure malt and hops only; but, besides, all the power that hops possess to repair nerve wastes is kept in these brews. That is what makes beer so particularly good for women to drink regularly. Ask your own doctor what he thinks of beer for your household.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water. 301

RENT OF POST OFFICE BOXES HAS MATERIALLY INCREASED

Postmaster Rogers Receives Notice to This Effect—Reason Given is to Induce All People to Have Mail Matter Delivered at Their Houses and Stores Now That Delivery System is in Vogue.

Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, today received the following notice from Mr. Wm. Smith, secretary of the Post Office Department, Ottawa:—

Dear Sir,—I have to inform you that in view of the fact that the letter carrier system has been established in Peterborough, it has been decided, in accordance with the usual practice in such cases, to increase the box rents.

Boxes now renting at $2 per year are to be raised to $4, those renting at $3 and $6 are to be rented at $6 and $8, and those at $7.50 are to be rented at $10."

Col. Rogers this morning stated that the object was to induce all persons in view of the street delivery system, to have all mail matter delivered at their houses or places of business. The present revenue from the 1,100 boxes in the post office is about $3,200. 1,000 of these boxes rent at $2 per year, and the remainder at $3, $5, $7.50. Nearly all the holders of boxes have them leased until the end of the present year, so that the increased rates will not effect box lessees for some weeks yet. As soon as the year's lease expires it is expected that many boxes will be given up. There are two mail deliveries a day to all parts of the city, with the exception of part of ward five, while in the central district there are three deliveries a day.

Col. Rogers remarked that the increased box rates will particularly effect two classes of people. Some 200 farmers have boxes, but they will likely get their mail from the general delivery wicket rather than pay double figure for a box. The other class effected will be business men, banks and manufacturers, who prefer to get their mail at the post office, where they can call as soon as the mail arrives or as often in a day as they like.

It is the usual custom of the Government, however, to raise box rents in all centres where a street delivery system is in force. This is with the object of inducing every person to have his or her mail matter left at the doors by the carriers, and thus make them appreciate the convenience of the system.

Col. Rogers added that the new system of street delivery is working admirably. Each week sees an improvement and a growing number of letters addressed to each street number. There is now no congestion at the wicket or in the lobby of the office, and, after the first of the year, it is expected that only business firms, banks and manufacturers will obtain mail from boxes at the post office.

The conveniences for sorting and distributing mail are being improved at the local office. An up-to-date rack for despatching matter was received and installed this week.

Peculiarities of German Life Are Interestingly Described

Mr. George F. Schneider Tells of the Daily Doings of the Germans—How Farming is Conducted—Their System of Railway Travel Described—Physical Examination of Children in the Schools—The Military Exercises Are no Picnic—Other Observations on Peculiar Customs.

Mr. George F. Schneider and party, who returned to this city this week after spending four months abroad, had a most delightful outing.

They spent several weeks in Strasbourg, Alsace, Germany.

Mr. Schneider was particularly interested in railway travel in Germany. He says that passengers may ride first, second, third or fourth class. After entering your compartment the guard locks the door and there you remain until your journey is ended and your destination reached. No tickets are taken on the train. These are handed to a man at the gate before getting on the cars. The majority of commercial men in Germany travel fourth class, the car being in two compartments and they ride as cheap and comfortably as they would third class, for half the money. All level crossings in the cities and towns are guarded by flagmen who are generally old soldiers and there is no crossing of tracks allowed at large stations. The people if desiring to go over the go through a tiled tunnel. Thus the possibility of accidents at level crossings and at stations is reduced to a minimum.

Speaking of the manners and customs that prevail in Alsace Mr. Schneider in an interview to-day said:

"In this country the farmers have the land all divided into little patches and must lose a lot of time in travelling from one patch to another in cultivating them. There are very few mowers or reapers to be seen in the country, all the farm work is mostly done by hand, with the old fashioned scythes, sickles and hand rakes and in the small farms you see the people threshing out the grain by hand with flails. Out in the country the women work equally with the men in the fields, their housekeeping is conducted on simple lines. You go into one of the village farm houses, and you will not see any carpets; the walls are usually whitewashed and the floors scrubbed and then sprinkled with a fine red sand; everything is in order, but not much fancy work, cushions, etc., is to be seen. The people live mostly in small villages and from there go out to cultivate the fields. The reason they do so much of their farming by hand is, that the patches are so small and scattered that it would not pay them to farm any other way.

For one thing they certainly take care of the people in the matter of railroad travelling. Bearing in mind the fuss our City Council has in getting the railways to put on a few guards at the crossings, they must certainly manage things better in Germany. At all the crossings in the cities and towns, and also at a lot of the country roads, you will see those guard poles, with a small station in charge of the gate. In a great many of the towns at the stations if you want to cross the tracks to get to the other side you are not allowed to do so, but have to go underground through a tunnel and thus come up on the other side. They have the railway carriages divided into 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th class, the 1st and 2nd cars are upholstered in plush, etc., like in our ordinaries, the 3rd and 4th have flat seats like our colonist cars. The 3rd is seated through, in the 4th the car is divided in two, and a fourth is run around the sides and on the ceiling are affixed straps to hang on by in case you are not lucky enough to get a seat. Of course the 4th is the cheaper, the tickets costing about half the price of the 3rd.

I noticed a lot of the commercial travellers taking 4th tickets, one of them told me that there used to be a sort of back to back bench in the middle of these 4th cars, but as too many people were found patronizing them the Railway Co. took out the bench and provided the straps instead to make people use the 3rd class more. As I said before you do not see many beggars around here, but you will see the old men, such as in our town are sent up to Castle Nashott, at work on the streets, and in the parks. Some with long brooms, sweeping up and removing the litter, fallen leaves, etc. Thus the parks and the roads are always in fine shape, and although the wages the old people earn for this work cannot be much, yet the amount received together with the pension system in force there, keeps them independent, so long as they are able to do anything at all. They have some fine hospitals, also homes for incurables and feeble-minded folk. Nothing goes to waste that can possibly be utilized. Thus I saw limbs of trees, what we would call brush, baled in bundles and sold for fuel, also sacks of pine cones are on sale for the same purpose. From the way in which one sees the women hustling around with their hand carts, driving the cow teams, and using the scythes sickles, etc., they certainly must believe in being literally not figuratively, the helpmates of their husbands. I noticed an article in one of our city papers on thrift, in which comment was made on the low amount per head of savings in the Banks of Europe as compared with Canada. Well! in Canada taking on current wages must be quite a different thing from saving there. In Canada it is a matter one might say of curtailment of useless expenditure, there it seems to be a matter of keeping alive on the least amount possible.

The German beer garden or restaurants are a feature of the country. They take the place of our hotels and ice cream saloons. The larger of these have breweries and wine cellars in connection with them. The beer is brewed fresh every few days. The buildings are rather large. You go through one of the gates and you find yourself in a court yard, usually shaded by some trees or by grape vines trained over lattice work.

In the share are placed a great number of little tables and chairs. If you sit down, it will not be long before a waiter will come along to take your order. Just now in the summer, of a warm evening, you will see in some cases these tables and chairs set out in front of the restaurants on the pavements, and you will see young fellows and their girls, older men with their wives, and children, sitting around, drinking beer, eating pritzels, and talking over the news with one another. In the large cities, where there is a park with a band stand, there is invariably one or more of the restaurants close by, so the natives can get their beer, sit and listen to the music. In this town Eschweiler, there is said to be fifty-eight of these places. Considering the amount of beer that must be used, it is surprising to see so few "paralyzed" as we call it.

The local band furnished music for a gymnastic exhibition, given by the town boys lately. The entertainment was held in the open air, in one of the parks. The band was seated in the shade of a large tree, and against the trunk was set up a beer keg. Between tunes a boy was kept busy, filling the glasses for the thirsty musicians. It was a comical sight, though as it was a hot day, it looked comfortable. The large parks in the cities, and the smaller plots at the railway stations are fine. The German people are great lovers of flowers. These seem to hold their bloom much longer than with us, I suppose, owing to the moisture of the climate. Even at this late season, I noticed roses in full bloom. The arrangements of the flower beds, the artificial rock and water effects, and above all the profusion and variety of the blossoms, combine to make a delightful place of the parks, and of fine afternoons you see great numbers of women and children (the former mostly with some needle work) seated in the parks enjoying the sunlight and flowers.

At Baden Baden, a little stream about the size of Dixon's creek, runs through the centre of the city. They have the bed of this stream paved like a street, and at every little distance is constructed a dam, about two feet high. This keeps the water at an even height all over the bed, and also makes a nice little fall. Both banks of the stream are walled up, and a row of fine, large Platen trees are growing along those banks. On one side of the stream runs a fine street. At every cross street, bridges span this creek. These bridges are ornamented with running vines and large flower vases. Looking up this large street from the lower end the effect is very pretty. I have remarked on the number of women working in the fields, well just around here in the cities and towns you will find it is the same in the stores. You would think in Strasbourg that most of the business places were run by the women. Confectionary stores, butcher shops, leather goods stores, jewellery stores, and crockery—all those lines are run by the ladies.

One would think the German army system has something to do with this, as all the young fellows on coming of age, if physically capable, must serve two years in the army, and then in being placed on the reserve, have to serve a certain portion of time each year to keep them in practice. The women consequently must take their places in business, and run things, whilst the men are off soldiering. This soldiering is a serious business around here, even in some of the schools, you will (see quite small children, boys of course, being taught to go through military evolutions. I am told that at regular intervals, the physicians go around and examine the children in the schools and give instructions as to physical culture necessary to each child. This one will need a certain course to develop the chest, strengthen the arm muscles, etc., as the case may be, so as to fit the youngsters for the army. To see the soldiers changing guard at noon at Strasbourg is comical. The goose step looks funny to those unaccustomed to see it. As the boys soldier steady for two years in barracks, they get so they can go through the evolutions in fine style. A detachment will soldier arms at this word of command, as one man. Just now you will see soldiers of all branches of the service, marching on the country roads, to take up their assigned positions for the fall manoeuvres. These military exercises are no picnic, I can assure you. The boys have to march with full military equipment, their coats buttoned right up to the throat. When they stop to camp, they are too glad to get a rest to kick up much. I have noticed that on taking off their coats, after a march, under the heavy knapsacks would be wet clean through with sweat, so on stopping it is common to see the boys with their coats turned inside out, spread out on the grass to dry. Their heavy military boots are hard on them this hot weather, and as it is the custom to quarter the soldiers on the farmers in the villages, it is a common sight to see the boys sitting bathing their feet in the large water troughs after a march.

The military exercises take place in the open fields, and the soldiers have to march through the crops. This is not relished much by the farmers. The government allows them some compensation for the damage done, but do not allow the farmers to do the valueing—a government official sees to that. Even the railroads do not escape, as sometimes they are needed in the manoeuvres, and all regular traffic is suspended for the convenience of the army.

FEMININE Foot Copies

"One of the 14"

Lasts are the wooden foot forms over which shoes are shaped. Whatever shape the last, so the shoe.

The shoe is either smart or homely, according to the shape of the last.

Few shoe manufacturers make their own lasts. They delegate it to Last-Making concerns.

Ask any one of these concerns where he gets the shapes for his lasts and you've got him guessing. He's been using the same last shapes for so many years that he's forgot how or whence they came. Each Spring and Autumn he changes the toes to suit the fads and fancies which come out of London and Paris—but that's all.

Nearly all shoes sold today are shaped over ancient lasts.

This condition of shoe making actuated us to build the Dolly Varden shoe. We have displaced the ancient, shapeless lasts with lasts which are exact copies of the most lovely things nature has produced — Perfect Feminine Feet.

The Dolly Varden does not disregard the prevailing shoe styles and fashions. Far be it. But its shapes are exact replicas of famous foot models.

Purchasers or investigators equally welcome. In the States and Canada $4.00 to $5.00. Every pair Goodyear welted.

IMPORTANT CASE

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation as executors of the estate of the late Judge Clark, are suing Mr. William Pratt for $500 damages and an injunction to restrain the noise of the exhaust of the gasoline engine used in the defendant's bakery on Gwayne street, on the ground that it is an actionable nuisance. We understand that the case is not likely to be tried at this Court but will be adjourned to the December sittings of the High Court, so as to determine whether remedies now in course of construction by defendant prove effective. — Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

KENORA SHOOTING CASE.

Mrs. Sharpe Acquitted by Jury—Verdict Received With Applause.

Sherbrooke, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Sharpe of Kenora was found "not guilty" a manslaughter. The judge's charge was favorable, and the jury took the view that the bullet glanced from a tree striking Coates. There was applause in the court-room, and the verdict was most popular.

The crown examined two witnesses —Alvin A. Bailey and his daughter, Miss N. Bailey. Bailey said on the night of the shooting he was sitting on the doorstep of his house, and, hearing two shots, went into the house to see what was the matter. His daughter, Nita, told him that she had fired the first one, and her cousin, Mrs. Sharpe, the accused, the other, to try and frighten away those who were driving by the house, shouting. Harold Coates had not been warned by witness that so long as he kept company with Morril Coates he would not allow him to come around the house or go with any member of his family.

Nita Bailey said she was in her room upstairs on that night, and heard the young men making a loud noise and singing a parody of popular songs as they passed the house, as well as using insulting language. She said she then took the rifle and fired a shot as they passed the house to try and frighten them away. When they passed the house again her cousin, the accused, said: "Let me shoot this time."

This closed the crown's case.

For the defence, Alden Learned said that Morril and Harold Coates came to his hotel at Cookshire on the afternoon of the shooting and had some liquor. Morril Coates bought a bottle before leaving.

Fred Coates, at whose house Harold Coates went after being shot, said that Harold awakened him by calling to be let in. He said that he had been shot, and that it was Alvin Bailey who had shot him. None of his companions remained with him, nor did they return to find out how he was.

Dr. A. N. Worthington stated that he examined the deceased in company with Dr. Johnstone the day after the shooting, and he did not then think that the wound was serious. This opinion was brought about by the small bullet. He also made an autopsy. The two doctors agreed that the immediate cause of death was a clot of blood that had found its way to the heart. There was no warning from such a case. The clot was caused through an accident in healing.

THREE MONTHS IN JAIL.

Conclusive Proof of Residence and Turgeon Gains.

Prince Albert, Oct. 19.—Attorney-General Turgeon is believed to have made a net gain of forty votes in the Court of Revision proceedings so far. He got a dozen in one poll.

Strenuous efforts are being made by both sides to prove the qualifications of the voters. One man, said to have voted for Turgeon, proved that he had been a three months' resident in the riding by calling the jail warden to show that he had been in jail for that qualifying period.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

THE MEDICINAL VALUE OF FRESH FRUIT JUICES

One of the Greatest Wonders of the Age.

Hundreds Have Been Made Well by Taking Advantage of an Ottawa Physician's Discovery.

Everyone knows how beneficial fruit is, when eaten regularly. Fruit is nature's laxative—the finest kidney regulator—and the ideal skin tonic. Unfortunately, the medicinal principle of fruit occurs only in minute quantities. In order to consume enough fruit to relieve Biliousness, one would also consume a large amount of woody fibre or pulp, which would upset the stomach and impair digestion.

An Ottawa physician discovered a way to get around these difficulties. He pressed the juice from apples, oranges, figs and prunes—and then forced one more atom of the bitter principle from the discarded orange peels, into the concentrated juices. This formed a new compound, having all the curative effects of fresh fruit—and in a highly intensified degree. These valuable tonics and internal antiseptics were added and the whole pressed into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives" the wonderful Liver Tablets you hear so much about. "Fruit-a-tives" cure the most obstinate cases of non-action of the bowels, biliousness, headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness, kidney trouble, rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. They are the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world, while their action on the skin, in clearing and beautifying the complexion, is nothing short of marvelous. Ask your druggist for "Fruit-a-tives" and see that you get them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. By mail, postpaid, from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. 113

DAMAGE HALF A MILLION.

Newcastle Town Site Creeping Over Mine Workings.

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 19.—Despatches from Newcastle state that a serious "creep" has occurred in the old mine workings under the residential quarter of that city. Buildings on an area of 15 acres are affected, and the damage so far is estimated at half a million dollars. There have been no casualties.

A mine creep is a slow movement of rock surrounding the excavations to replace that taken out. The movement often causes a change of levels on the surface.

SIX DIE IN COLLISION.

Street Cars Crash In Fog at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 19.—A street car collision occurred on Harrison avenue early yesterday morning.

Information given out by the street car officials at 8 o'clock is that several persons were killed in the collision. Among the dead are Motormen Parker and Herrington, and a passenger named Smith. A dense fog prevailed at the time.

Later reports say six are dead—two motormen, William Smith, groceryman and three negroes. Ten persons were seriously injured and are in a hospital. About twenty others were more or less injured.

Mother's Pitiful Delusion.

Boston, Oct. 19.—Once more the mystery of Grace Stevenson has been revived by report that she is living.

Her mother is positive that her daughter is Miss Margaret Anglin, the actress now playing with Henry Miller in New York, and she is supposed to have gone to New York to try and meet Miss Anglin. It is ten years since Grace Stevenson disappeared.

Her father was James Stevenson, a wealthy real estate operator. He lived at the Hotel Clarendon, which he owned, and was estranged from his wife, with whom Grace, then 25 years old, made her home. Miss Stevenson left her home one evening to take a walk and has not since been heard of.

Desecrated Kruger's Grave.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, Oct. 19.—A painful sensation has been caused by the discovery that the grave of President Kruger, who died in Switzerland July 14, 1904, and whose body was interred at Pretoria, has been desecrated.

The marble bust of the ex-President has been torn from its base and badly chipped. The desecration is believed to be the work of thieves who expected that a reward would be offered for the bust, but which they found too heavy to carry off.

Plunged Into Cistern.

Stratford, Oct. 19.—Mrs. August Dunco, aged 65, had a miraculous escape from death yesterday. Unknowingly she walked into the cellar trapdoor and plunged headlong into an old cistern filled with water. In the fall she broke four ribs and was stunned. But for her son's timely assistance, who was near at hand, she would have perished. She will likely recover.

Arrested For Horse Stealing.

Chatham, Oct. 19.—Charles Miller of Camden was arrested by County Officers McGregor and Peters Thursday on a charge of stealing a neighbor's horse. He was brought before Judge Houston in the County Police Court yesterday morning and elected to be tried by a jury. The case was remanded till Monday for a preliminary hearing.

Blew Off His Head.

York, Pa., Oct. 19.—Jacob Dettinger, aged 59 years, of this city, committed suicide Thursday night in an unusual manner. Placing a stick of dynamite in his mouth and holding it in his right hand, Dettinger exploded the dynamite, blowing off his head and shattering the hand that held the explosive.

Fatal Railroad Collision.

Ratepayers of York township have asked that a local option bylaw be submitted to the people.

John Lamont, a G.T.R. crossing watchman at London, was killed.

Kincaid Popular at Peterboro.

Peterboro, Oct. 18.—George Kincaid, whose death by suicide is reported from Dawson City, was a native of Peterboro, about 44 years of age, and a building contractor. He was the son of John Kincaid, an old and much-respected citizen, and brother-in-law of Thomas Hamilton, president of the Canadian Oil Co., Toronto. He had been in Yukon several years, but visited Peterboro three years ago, and was apparently prosperous. He was unmarried while living here, occupied a prominent position, and was much respected, and was a quiet and unassuming and extremely popular man. His death, under the circumstances, creates great surprise here.

Crushed Under Tons of Ore.

Cobalt, Oct. 19.—A Hungarian named John Cobush was killed yesterday morning in the No. 2 shaft of the McKinley-Darragh. Cobush, who was a mucker, was, with a fellow workman, changing operations from the 75-foot level to the 125-foot, or bottom level, of the No. 2 shaft. Cobush was at the bottom of the shaft, and his companion was lifting back a door which covers the area of the shaft at the 75-foot level. An ore car, which was on the track at this level, slipped into the shaft as soon as the door was swung back. It fell on Cobush, crushing his skull and breaking his spine. Death was almost instantaneous.

Hon. A. Turgeon Resigns.

Quebec, Oct. 19.—Hon. Adelard Turgeon tendered his resignation yesterday morning as member of Bellechasse in the Legislative Assembly, and will immediately go before his electors. This action will in no way affect his portfolio as Minister of Crown Lands in the Gouin Ministry.

The American Association of General Passenger Ticket Agents yesterday selected Toronto, Ont., for the next convention in September, 1906. G. T. Bell of the Grand Trunk system, was elected vice-president.

Gigantic Building Project Will Probably be Carried Out in City

Mr. W. Young Kinleyside, General Manager of the Nort American Investment Company, Says that the Company Intends to Buy National Hotel—Will Make Big Addition to it Forming a Solid Block of Buildings in Which Will be Grand Opera House and Office Buildings—If Deal is Closed for Purchase of Hotel a Company With Capital of $200,000, Will be Incorporated to Carry on Building Operations.

New office buildings.

Improvements and extensions to Hotel National.

A new Opera House.

Incorporation of company, with capitalization of $200,000.

According to the statements of Mr. W. Young Kinleyside, general manager of the North American Investment Co., of Toronto, the operations referred to above will probably be commenced in the near future, provided the Company takes over the National Hotel, which they are seriously thinking of doing and, in fact have entered into negotiations with that end in view and an hotel company, with a capital of $200,000 will be formed to carry out the work. If transactions in connection with these matters are put through, they will involve the purchasing of the vacant property lying between the Custom's House and Comstock's furniture and undertaking establishment, and an extension to the building of the Hotel National will be made, occupying the lot referred to, and the hotel will have a frontage on George street. If the extension is made, a large, solid block of building will be the result and it will be sub-divided for the opera house and office buildings. Where the opera House and the office buildings will be, should the proposed work bed one, has not yet been definitely decided upon, but Mr Kinleyside says that it has been settled that the main entrance of the hotel will be on George street.

"It is the intention of the North American Investment Company to incorporate a hotel company, with a capitalization of $200,000 for the purpose of extending the present building of the Hotel National and making the hotel one of the finest and best equipped in Ontario," he remarked. An up-to-date opera house will also be built ands everal offices will be opened. All these will be in the one solid block of building. The North American Investment Company is of the opinion that their proposed large outlay of money is justified owing to the growth and prosperity of this city.

A HUGE UNDERTAKING.

The citizens of Peetrborough will realize that the proposed transactions, if carried out willl mean the expenditure of thousands of dollars, and will be a great boom for the city and while Mr. Kinleyside would not say positively that they would be, he gavet he reporter to understand that arrangements in connection with them are practically completed, and it is pretty safe to predict that they will be affected.

N. A. INVESTMENT CO.

The North American Investment Company has the backing of some very strong men financially, and its affairs in every department are looked after by representatives of the greatest practical knowledge and financial ability. He is a specialist in commercial law, and a business man of strength and foresight. The company does business all over Canada and the United States, and looks after the interests of several firms in this city, selling their stock, auditing their books, etc. Before coming to Peterborough, Mr. Kinleyside had just returned to Toronto from an important trip as representative of the company to New York, Boston and Philadelphia. He thinks well of Peterborough and thinks the North American Investment Company should meet with every success in their new venture. He was in the city for a short time, and left this afternoon for the head offices of his company in Toronto. He will visit this city, however, at frequent intervals, to see how matters in connection with the company's interests here, are progressing.

Prices Soaring to High Figure

Butter Sold at 30 cents and Eggs at 28 on the Market

Today's market was a record breaker as regards high prices. Soon the citizens of Peterborough will be asking for an investigation to learn the cause of the rapid advance in the cost of every day necessities. Butter at 30 cents per pound, and eggs at 28 cents per doz., are the figures demanded today by the farmers, and not one cent lower would they sell. The market was crowded with both buyers and sellers, and there were large quantities of all kinds of farm produce offered. Some vendors asked only 25 cents per dozen for eggs, but most of them held to the higher figure. Fowl sold at the usual prices, chickens at 50 to 75 cents per pair, ducks at 80c. to $1.10 per pair, geese at $1.00 each and turkeys at $1.25.

On the outside market, lamb sold at 11 and 13 cents per pound, and pork at 10 and 11 cents.

Potatoes were disposed of at 85 and 90 cents per bag.

Fishing is the Best in Years

Two Members of Ketchecum Lake Party Return

Messrs. H. LeBrun and R. G. Kingan returned to the city last night, after having spent ten days' good sport at Ketchecum Lake, trout fishing. Ideal weather and good luck with the rod and line, combined to make a most enjoyable outing. This fishing is better than it has been for years, and every one of his party is getting his share. Mr. Rudkins of New York City, is one of the Ketchecum Lake party, and is having great luck in trawling. Mr. H. Nesbitt got the biggest trout caught this season. It weighed six pounds, and Mr. E. A. Peck is a close second, catching one tipping the scales at five pounds and a half.

Mr. LeBrun says that partridge shooting is not so good this year as in past seasons.

The other members of the party will return to the city, about the middle of next week.

Literary Evening Was Much Enjoyed

Several Interesting Numbers at St. Luke's Young People's Gathering

A large and appreciative audience met last night at St. Luke's school room at the bi-weekly meeting of the A.Y.P.A. in the absence of Mr H. C. M. Fother, president, who is confined to his home on account of sickness. Mr. Chas. Crane occupied the chair.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt opened the meeting with devotional exercises.

Miss Charlotte English, St. Luke's efficient organist, presided at the organ.

After transaction of business, seven new members were admitted to membership.

Arrangements were made for a "taffy pull" on Nov. 1, for which the social and programme committees will make all arrangements.

Friday, Nov. 15, there will be a missionary meeting, at which Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox Presbyterian church, will give an address on "India."

The programme provided last night was much enjoyed. It consisted of the following numbers;

A well executed piano solo by Miss English.

A paper on the life and work of "Tennyson" by Miss Clara Adams, which was very comprehensive and manifested much study, and was very much enjoyed.

Mr. R. A. Sutcliffe gave a humorous recitation, "The Enchanted Shirt."

Miss Bertha Curtis sang in fine voice, "School Days."

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt gave a "Travel Talk," in which he referred to the Russian-German Frontier Life, Berlin, Hanover, Charlottenburg, Potsdam, and incidents in the lives of the German Emperors, William I. and Frederick III.

After the programme a hymn was sung and the meeting closed with benediction by the rector.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AND NORMAL SCHOOL GOING AHEAD

Excellent progress is being made on the city's two new educational institutions, the Normal School and Collegiate Institute. The brick work on the Normal school is now so far vanced that it can be seen over the trees from George street and the opinion now is expressed by many that it is not located in such an out of the way place after all. Contractor Whitham has a good force of men at work all this time and it is expected that the outer walls will be completed before the extremely cold weather comes.

The Collegiate Institute is gradually taking form as the brick work goes up and some idea can now be had of what the building is going to look like when finished. A pleasing feature in this connection is that the building presents almost as fine a view from McDonnel street as it does from George street. This fact has been commented on freely, in fact one man went so far as to say that the McDonnel street view of the building was better than that from George street.

Speaking of building operations, it is gratifying to note that the work on the armoury is going ahead satisfactory. The foundation walls have been completed and the brick work has been started.

Peterborough Gets Down Easy As to Cost of Police Protection

Numerically, the Police Force is Weaker Than in Any of the Smaller Cities of the Province, But it Gives Results Just the Same.

There is probably no city in Ontario that has as efficient police protection as Peterborough with the expenditure of such a small amount of money. In fact it is a question whether any of the smaller cities in Canada have as efficient police protection as the Electric City, although the police force here is smaller than in any place with a similar population.

With a population of 16,000 people, Peterborough only has four police Constables in addition to the Chief, or one policeman for every four thousand residents. In the larger cities, and some of this smaller ones the aim is to have one policeman for every one thousand people, and if this rule was followed out in Peterborough, Chief Reesel would be entitled to sixteen men.

It is interesting to compare Peterborough with other cities of nearly the same size, as regards police protection. Brantford, with a population of about 12,000 or 3,000 more than Peterborough, has ten police constables in addition to the Chief. St. Catharines has eight police constables with a smaller number of residents than this city. Kingston has more policemen than Peterborough, and so have many of the smaller cities in the province.

As to results, Peterborough people need not go far to find them. It is a safe assertion that no city in Ontario is better protected by its police force than Peterborough. The law is well observed, no doubt, because offenders are quickly apprehended and justice meted out to them. It may be that the residents of Peterborough are more law abiding than those of other cities, but the fact that a large number of arrests and fines take place during the year, goes to show that if the police were not right on the job crime would flourish here, as well as elsewhere.

It is understood that it is not the intention of the police commissioners to increase the force at the present time. It will remain as it is at present, viz., four constables and the chief.

Removing Buildings for Extension of Aylmer Street

Work has been commenced on the removal of the buildings necessitated by the extension of Aylmer street. Several houses and other buildings have to come down to provide for the opening of the thoroughfare and the city Council bought the property upon which they were situated and are now having them removed. The work is being done by the Board of Works and is going ahead rapidly.

It is intended to have Aylmer street opened in good time this fall in order to make it convenient to reach the new King Edward school and otherwise provide for the rapid growth of this south end.

South Harvey Deer do Not Seem to Have Fear of Man

It is said that deer are so plentiful in South Harvey that they are coming out of the woods and watching the threshing machines at work. Good sport is promised for the hunters who visit that locality this fall as the fleet-footed denizens of the forest are unusually numerous.

A few days ago a young man named Wm. Shiels, who is employed by a South Harvey farmer, was going home early in the evening from a neighbors, where he had been assisting in some threshing operations when he espied a fine buck in a field a few hundred feet from the road. The young man had his rifle with him, and was just drawing a bead on His Deership when he heard some one shouting, and he looked around, and saw Game Inspector Wm Clarkson approaching. It is hardly necessary to add that the buck was not shot, as it would have resulted in a $25 fine for the man with the gun. The locality where the deer was seen is thickly settled, and it seems strange that the buck should have ventured so close to civilization, but it is stated that several deer have been seen in the vicinity this autumn.

Is Charged With Smashing Doors

County Constable Cochrane has returned from Indian River, where he has been serving papers on those connected with the charge preferred by Mrs. Guerin, of Indian River, against Stephen Murphy, also of that place. Murphy is charged with smashing windows, doors, etc., on Mrs. Guerin's premises, and with acting in a disorderly manner generally. Three witnesses have been subpoenaed in the case, which comes up before Magistrate Edmison at the court house on Monday morning.

Will Reduce Term of Enlistment

The Canadian Military Gazette states that "a very radical and salutory change is in contemplation as to the time of enlistment for service in the militia. The authorities have at last reached the very wise conclusion, that it is better fully to recognize conditions as they are, and so, we are told, the term of enlistment is to be reduced from three years to one."

GRAND BALL FOR TICKET AGENTS

Peterboro' Visitors Having Fine Time in Winnipeg

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McIlroy and Mr. W. Bunton, who are attending the Ticket Agent's Convention in Winnipeg, are evidently having an enjoyable time. The Winnipeg Free Press says:—

The complimentary ball given by the local ticket agents to the Canadian Ticket Agents' Association in the Royal Alexandra Hotel, last night, was a huge success. This was a farewell ball to the visitors, who have spent the last few days in the city and who leave this afternoon. This is the first time in eight years that the Association has met in Winnipeg, and the visit has proved a most enjoyable one in every way.

The breakfast room was thrown open for dancing, and with a splendid orchestra in attendance, nothing more could be desired. For those who did not care to dance the lovely drawing room, with its soft lights and its palms and cut flowers, proved a charming resting place. At half-past eleven a recherche supper was served in the large dining room. The reception committee waso composed of Mrs. A. L. Preston, Mrs. A. C. Smith, Mrs. George Walton, Mrs. Webster, A. L. Preston and Harry Brown.

HARTLEY WILL WALK ON FRIDAY

Local Pedestrian Will Cover Greater Distance Than Langford

The failure of Dave Langford, the Renfrew man to walk from Port Hope to Toronto, and return, a distance of 130 miles in 38 hours, has in no way discouraged Peterborough's pedestrian. Mr. David Hartley. Today in conversation with the Review, he expressed his willingness to undertake the walk next Friday. His journey will be from Bowmanville to Toronto and return to Peterborough a distance of six miles greater than that walked by Langford. Harvey is confident that he can accomplish this feat in thirty-eight hours. Mr. Hartley considers that even if it takes a bit longer time, he is still accomplishing a remarkable performance if he finishes. Mr. Hartley will not back out at the last moment but firmly states that he will start next Friday. All he wants is his expenses, and surely some of those anxious to see the thing through, will gladly contribute towards the necessary outlay. Mr. Hartley would like someone to accompany him in a buggy and also an official timekeeper, to note the time that he makes at the different towns along this route. It would not be wise for Mr. Hartley to go alone, for if he did succeed, some might not believe him, as he would have no proof.

A well known local man offers to give Hartley fifty dollars to bet for himself against one hundred dollars of some other man, who will put it up.

Mr. Hartley is in excellent condition and has done considerable walking lately in preparation for his long tramp. He will leave here next Thursday and start from Bowmanville early Friday morning. The result of his attempt will be awaited with much interest by a large number of people.

Breach of the Pharmacy Act

The Robert Simpson Company was fined $20 and costs or thirty days yesterday afternoon for a technical breach of the Pharmacy Act. It was charged that a majority of the directors of the Robert Simpson Co. are not duly regarded as pharmaceutical chemists, and therefore certain drugs could not be sold in the company's drug department. Mr. E. G. Long, who appeared for the R. Simpson Co., in pleading guilty to the charge, that the sale had been discontinued some weeks ago, but some new clerks, contrary to instructions, had sold quantities of the drugs referred to. — Toronto News.

WEDDING BELLS

BRAY—COLE

A pretty wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bray, of Hamilton township, on Wednesday, Oct. 16th, when their second daughter, Miss Ella V., was united in marriage to Mr. Miller, Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cole of the same township.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Limbert, in the presence of between forty and fifty of the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal March played by Miss Minnie Peate. The bridal party were unattended, with the exception of Miss Laura Bray, as flower girl.

After the ceremony and the usual congratulations, the company repaired to the dining room, where an elaborate wedding dinner was provided.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable and useful presents.

The happy couple left on the evening train for Peterborough, where they will in future reside.

Local Option in Campbellford

A petition has been circulated throughout the town, says the Campbellford Herald, for the signature of ratepayers in favor of local option, and it has been largely signed, very much beyond what is demanded by law. The paper will be presented to the Council asking that a bylaw may be passed to admit of a vote being taken at the next municipal elections in January.

Record Threshing Near Norwood

On Friday, Oct. 11th, Wm. McNeely threshed 1060 bushels of grain, consisting of buckwheat, barley and oats, in five and a half hours, for John Doherty, on his farm, "Maple Avenue." All the three men admitted it to be the best threshing they had seen done around Norwood. Considering the proximity of the fair, and the atmospheric disadvantages, this has eclipsed all records of late years.

Problem of Speech Transmission; Achievement of Machine Phones

Distinction of Giving This System its First Real Test Belongs to Peterborough—What a Visiting Newspaper Man Learned About Automaric Phones on a Recent Visit to This City—Their Many Advantages Pointed Out.

Sir Alexander Graham Bell, 31 years ago, first talked over a wire led from one of the upper rooms of his house at Brantford to his workshop in the basement, and solved the problem of speech transmission ,the world has witnessed one of those silent revolutions which mark the progress of science and follow its application to the practical issues of life. The simple instrument which friends of the inventor of the telephone laughed at and regarded as a toy, has by a process of revolution become a commercial and social necessity, an indispensable medium for the interchange of intelligence and the transaction of business, a useful accessory of the home, and, indeed, a potent factor in the upbuilding of nations. The experiment of little more than a generation ago, has evolved into a system that circles the earth from China to Peru, and has practically annihilated time and space.

GROWTH OF TELEPHONY.

The discovery of the scientist has become the prey of monopoly; the modest installation at Brantford has developed into one of the most powerful trusts, whose operations have made the electrical transmission of speech a vested interest of great magnitude, and have transformed the homeland of the telephone into a huge sounding board With the marvellous expansion of telephony, and its increasing application to business, the public has learned to appreciate more and more its advantages, and to rely more and more upon its services. But the development of the system as operated in Toronto, and Canada generally, has not been without its disadvantages, and conditions have arisen which have given rise to much dissatisfaction and a demand for reform. The recent investigation of the strike of operators in Toronto demonstrated that, whatever may be said for the manual syste, of telephones, practiced in a large city, it imposes a strain upon the operators which is prejudicial to health and opposed to efficiency.

AN UNHEALTHY OCCUPATION.

"The work of operating, continued uninterruptedly over any considerable period of time," reported the commissioners, "is certain, we think, to prove injurious." From that conclusion there could hardly be any escape when the conditions under which a large exchange is operated are considered, and it is not surprising that ,notwithstanding the possibility of legislative adjustment of the hours and conditions of the telephone girls, the question has sharply arisen whether a system which imperils the lives of its operators is worth the candle. Apart from that important phase of the matter, however, there is the question of efficiency, and on that point the public has of late formed very decided opinions. Undue delay in answering calls, the giving of wrong number and an exasperating disposition to use the pretext of "line busy" are among the faults alleged by business men against the operators and they are faults that are responsible not only for much annoyance and bad language, but also for a waste of valuable time, interruption of business, and consequently serious loss.

FAULTS OF MANUAL SYSTEM.

To blame the telephone girl is perhaps natural ;but ,after all, when due consideration is given to the conditions, the fault is probably less the operator's fault, than that of a system, the efficient working of which, is subject to human, and indeed, feminine limitations. Whether the evils mentioned, are capable of adjustment or not, in relation to manual telephony, they have at all events, strengthened the claims of the automatic system to consideration. That system, it may surprise many people to learn, has long since passed the experimental stage. For the past eighteen years inventors have been at work endeavoring to devise a machine which would supplant the "hello" girl and perform the services, she has hitherto rendered, and though for various reasons, progress has been slow, the automatic telephone is now in a position to be judged by results.

DR. BELL'S PREDICTION.

Interviewed in 1904, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell declared that "in the telephone of the future I look for all this business to be done automatically. If this can be accomplished it will do away with the vast army of telephone operators, and so reduce the expense, that the poorest man cannot afford to be without his telephone." As a matter of fact, at this time the inventor of the "Bell" telephone was giving expression to these views a central energy, automatic telephone was in existence, and Canadian genius had achieved another triumph, all the more remarkable, because of its association with the town which saw the first installation of the "Bell." In the history of scientific discovery there is perhaps no stronger coincidence than that which links the names of Bell and Lorimer to Brantford and gives to one town the distinction of having produced in successive generations the inventors of two instruments, each serving a similar purpose but in an entirely different way.

INVENTORS OF MACHINE TELEPHONE.

Assuredly Canada has reason to be proud of the achievements of her sons in the realm of telephony. The credit of inventing the machine central energy telephone, belongs to the brothers, J. H. and C. H. Lorimer, of St. George, Brant county. While but a youth, J. H. Lorimer, who an electrical expert declared, had one of the brightest minds, he had ever came in contact with conceived the idea of a machine which would take the place of the telephone girl and do her work more promptly and efficiently, and with his brother, he set to work, and for eleven years labored with unceasing diligence to accomplish the end in view. The reward of their efforts came at last, but like not a few inventors, one of them, J. H., did not live to enjoy it. Never of a robust constitution the constant strain on the mind had sapped the strength of his body, and, toiling in his workshop up till the last, he died at the early age of twenty-six, leaving his two brothers G. W. and E. S. to carry on the work of perfecting the product of his genius. About four years a company was formed, under the name of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, with headquarters in Toronto, to manufacture and sell the machine, but as in the case of most innovations, the public were somewhat slow to appreciate its merits, one consideration no doubt, being the large monetary interests involved in the manual system.

PETERBOROUGH LEADS.

The distinction of giving the machine telephone, its first real trial belongs to Peterborough, the city council of which, after determined opposition on the part of the Bell Company, whose system had been in operation for many years, granted the Canadian Machine Company, a franchise for ten years. The installation has now been in working order for two and a half years, and, with the view of learning something of a system, which experts believe will revolutionize the present conditions of telephony and incidentally abolish the "hello girl," a representative of The Toronto Globe, recently paid a visit, to Peterborough, where every facility was afforded him to test its merits.

INSIDE THE EXCHANGE

At first it was difficult for one to realize that he was in a telephone exchange. The bustle, the loud calls and hysterical movement of fault-unable operators and the complex and cumbrous switchboard equipment peculiar to the "Central" of every city, were conspicuous by their absence, and all there was to indicate the character and purpose of the place was the familiar click, click, caused by the electric current shifting the switch in a well ventilated room, compact and neatly arranged, stood the machinery, which does the work of the telephone girl, and does it without any substance, and it occupied no more space than an old-fashioned printing machine. Built in units, or sections, each section is complete in itself, and is adapted to accommodate 100 subscribers. It is one of the advantages of the Lorimer system, that these sections can be used separately or collectively and can be multiplied almost indefinitely, each additional section costing no more than the first. The exchange can thus be extended to meet requirements, at a cost in almost direct proportion to the number to be served, and without discarding any portion of the equipment already installed, as would be the case in the manual system, the cost of which is out of proportion to the service given.

HOW THE MACHINE WORKS

To describe the working of the apparatus it is necessary to begin with the decimal indicator, as it is called a slowly revolving commutator on which are marked 100 segments, each representing a subscriber, so to speak. Tiny brushes made of German silver pass over the segments, performing an operation that is equivalent to testing every subscriber's line every three seconds for incoming calls. When a call is received the indicator stops revolving, transfers the current to one of the connecting devisions, only one of which automatically performs the same functions as a telephone operator handling a pair of connecting cords, and then resumes its course, repeating the process each time a call is made. If one division is busy, the call is piloted on to the next, and so on, until the connection is completed, which fact is indicated by the signalling of the number called.

STORING A CALL

If two or more calls are made simultaneously, the indicator passes them on one after the other, while an even more remarkable feature of the system is the fact that, should, in some case of rare emergency, all the connecting divisions be in use when a call is made, it is stored until the release of one of the divisions when the waiting call is completed without any further effort on the part of the subscriber. By this wonderful arrangement, no call once made is lost or neglected. On the other hand each passes through a separate part of the apparatus, and there cannot, therefore, be any "butting in" by a subscriber on another line. The fact that every line on the exchange is tested automatically every three seconds, insures the prompt discovery of a fault, and immediately anything goes wrong with one of the lines, the attendant in charge is informed of it by a signal, and can at once locate the defect.

READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

So wonderfully has the machine been perfected that every possible contingency connected with telephony seems to have been provided for. One objection urged against the automatic system is that in times of abnormal pressure, say, in the case of a fire or other calamity, it would not be able to meet the calls made upon it, but, by means of the system of storing calls, already referred to, such contingency is provided for and after repeated tests, the writer was satisfied that the machine could cope with any emergency likely to arise. Although experience has shown what the average number of calls during the busiest hours of a large exchange is, there is no limit to the percentage under the Lorimer system, since the divisions can be so increased as to permit of 100 subscribers speaking at the same time. So much for the exchange.

From the subscriber's point of view the advantages of the system may be gathered from a description of how a call is made. On the face of the box, which in appearance is not unlike that ordinarily in use, is an indicator, with four small levers or pointers, which may be set at any number from 0 to 9999; Having adjusted the pointers and obtained the number required, the subscriber gives a handle a turn, which action sends an impulse to the exchange and starts the call. He takes off the receiver, presses a push button, and awaits a response, the whole operation occupying but a few seconds. If the line is busy the caller is immediately informed of the fact by a sound not unlike that of a prolonged and accentuated "buzz."

A TRUTHFUL OPERATOR.

The machine cannot prevaricate, and when a subscriber hears the sound which tells him the line is busy he knows that it is really so. Moreover, it is not necessary to repeat all the operation once a call has been made. The number required may be left as adjusted, and after a reasonable wait, one need only turn the handle to again call the subscriber wanted. When the conversation has been concluded, the replacing of the receiver, instantly ends the connection, and the subscriber may at once make another call. Indeed, its adaptability to consecutive calls is one of the strong merits of the machine. There are none of the exasperating delays, which too often occur when repeated connections are sought at the hands of the manual operator. It should be added that mistakes are practically impossible. If a subscriber finds himself connected with the wrong number, the fault is his and not the machine's. He is absolute master of the situation, and when he does make a mistake the machine will rectify it for him. Thus, as frequently happens, if an absent-minded subscriber should leave the receiver hanging loose, or any other accident should occur to interrupt communication, notice is given at once, at the central office automatically, and the delinquent is in turn notified.

ADVANTAGES OF LORIMER SYSTEM.

Whist there are the advantages of the Lorimer machine telephone briefly, they may be summarized, as follows,—Quick connections, absolute secrecy, no interruption in conversation, prompt service, the facility with which consecutive calls may be made, and the saving of time and trouble. This highly favorable impression of the new system formed by the writer as the result of his tests was emphatically confirmed by enquiries which he made among some of the leading citizens of Peterborough. He interviewed magistrates, and aldermen, doctors and bankers, city officials and Business men, and one and all were enthusiastic in their praise of the Lorimer automatic telephone. While its clearness and distinctness, the rapidity with which connections can be made, and its simplicity and accuracy were emphasized, the feature which seemed to impress subscribers most was the privacy insured. Many of them had both Bell and Lorimer telephones in their offices and houses, and they declared that when private business had to be transacted it was the Lorimer that they used.

SUPPLANTING MANUAL SYSTEM.

Peterborough has demonstrated beyond all possible doubt that automatic telephony is not only practicable, but a pronounced success, and it will not be long before the advantages which it enjoys, as the reward of its enterprise are shared by other towns in Canada. Already Brantford, Edmonton and Lindsay, have adopted the Lorimer system; others, including, perhaps, some of the big cities, will no doubt follow their example, and in view of the fact that the whole of the equipment for these towns has been or is being manufactured by the Canadian Machine Telephone Company in Toronto, and that the independent telephone movement is making rapid progress in Canada, there is the prospect of a large and important industry developing. Meanwhile it looks as if the professional days of the telephone girl were numbered.

Mayor Giddy Had Narrow Escape

Chief Magistrate of Port Hope Stepped in Front of Engine

Port Hope, Oct. 18.—While at the station to welcome Lord Grey, Mr. W. H. Giddy, the mayor, had a narrow escape from death. He had been into the Governor-General's private car to welcome His Excellency. The car was on the second track from the platform, and as Mr. Giddy stepped off the car, the train from the west was just coming into the station. Without noticing the train the mayor stepped directly onto the track only a few yards from the approaching engine. He would have been inevitably killed had not Mr. Rush seen his danger, and promptly seized him and dragged him to a place of safety. As it was the engine brushed against his coat as he left the track.

Harvey Resident Strikes it Rich

Owns Number of Valuable Shares in Hudson Bay Mine

Mr. W. J. Leahy, who has just returned from Cobalt, spent Friday in the village calling on his old friends and acquaintances, says the Lakefield News. Mr. Leahy has a valuable claim near Cobalt and is making preparations for doing considerable development work on it. The advance some men have made in Cobalt is remarkable. Mr. Leahy tells of Mr. Chris Ritchie, a Harvey man who has made rapid strides in that district. On first going to the north, he purchased with what money he could get a number of shares of Hudson Bay stock, in the neighborhood of 25 cents per share. When an extra call of ten per cent. was made from this above shareholders Mr. Ritchie had faith in the times, and held his stock, when others were selling out four shares for a dollar. When Mr. Leahy went to Cobalt the shares had advanced to over $200 and Mr. Ritchie has now about one fifth ownership in the Hudson Bay Mine.

AN EDUCATIVE CAMPAIGN

Trade journals generally are well patronized. A glance over the advertising columns reveals the fact that the wholesalers recognize the benefits and advantages of printers' ink. Nearly every supply house, jobbing establishment and manufacturing concern, tell in plain, simple, yet attractive and convincing style, just what they have to offer. Each one points out the superior merits of his goods, and certainly these announcements must bring returns, or those using the columns of trade periodicals would withdraw their patronage.

The trade paper is rendering the local newspapers good service by urging upon retailers the advisability, and necessity of advertising. The educative campaign, so ably conducted, has borne fruit, and gradually retailers, who never before have acknowledged the virtue of printers' ink as a means of increasing their sales, are coming around to the proper way of thinking, and regard advertising, as a desirable and widely circulated local medium, as a splendid investment and not as an expenditure, which may, in a dull period, or by reason of other pressing needs, be dispensed with. The retailer is being impressed and convinced. He recognizes that, if publicity pays the wholesaler, it must certainly yield a return to the retailer, and to a far greater extent.

The wholesaler has several representatives on the road to solicit trade and secure orders, but the retailer has, generally speaking, no representative to go directly to the people. He must make his appeals to the great purchasing public, through the best means at his disposal. He must invite trade, as he cannot send a canvasser around from door to door. First class goods, reasonable prices, courteous clerks, attractive premises, nicely dressed windows and artistic signs, will all help, but they will not accomplish the object sought. The appeal made in all the lines spoken of, must be backed up and strengthened by well directed and appropriately worded advertisements. In this world but little comes to the man or institution that sits down and waits. If anything is worth having it is worth going after in a businesslike, systematic manner.

The trade journal, in season and out of season, is pointing this all out directing, guiding and counselling merchants in the work. It deserves great credit for what it has accomplish.

"I would not own a business that I could not advertise," remarked a speaker at a recent banquet. This is the right sentiment, the proper spirit and, if all retailers would take the same view, their lot would be immeasurably improved. The man who advertises and does it well, who specializes in this department, as he does in all others, is the man who survives in days of stress and keen competition, who is ever increasing and enlarging his premises, and keeping pace with the times. After all business nowadays is largely a survival of the fittest, and not a problem to be worked out, as many suppose, along the lines of least resistance and narrow conceptions as to expenditure and ideals.

NEW SET OF READERS

After being in use for some twenty years, the Whitney Government has announced its intention of issuing a new set of school readers. Further information is conveyed that the Education Department has under consideration the advisability of supplying the readers free, as well as reducing the list of other authorized text books to the minimum. In a few years it is believed that free text books will be extended to all used in the public school curriculum, but at present free readers, if so far as the department will go. Even this move will result in a considerable saving to parents who, under the school book monopoly, which flourished in the days of the Ross regime, paid double what the poorly printed and flimsily bound editions were worth. The expense has already been materially reduced, and now another forward step is to be taken, and readers supplied free.

It is time, after being in use a score of years, that the subject matter in the readers was revised. Some of the selections are unsuitable from a literary standpoint, and also from a patriotic and national point of view. The best selections possible should be interspersed in the new volumes. The subject of reading is important for the acquirement of literary taste, and the art of expression so as to interest others. The elocution of some men in the pulpit is proof that their early training in reading has been poor, though it is satisfactory to note that there has been improvement in recent years. Faults in reading acquired when a child is young are hard to break. We can scarcely expect all teachers to excel in teaching reading, but as one commentor on this subject has said, the poorer the teacher, the greater the necessity for good text-books on the subject.

Dr. D. J. Goggin, who has the work in hand, is an educationalist of wide experience, having taught in model schools in Ontario, while he was for some years Superintendent of Education for the Northwest Territories. He is a man of literary tastes and acquirements. The plan of having a consultative committee and the assistance of the Advisory Council, should result in securing valuable suggestions for the work. Those who have been named as members of the consultative committee, have had long experience in educational matters, and the people of the Province will expect a set of readers of excellence in a literary point of view, and it is reasonable to hope that the inculcation of patriotism will not be overlooked in the new series.

AN ACUTE PROBLEM

Is the problem for existence growing keener? It would appear so. Everything is going up in price—both necessities and luxuries. Canned goods, cereal products, milk, bread, butter and other articles of daily consumption have materially advanced. Then luxuries are showing a decided tendency to ascend. Beer, whiskey and tobacco prices are also increasing. Are we living too well? The average resident, who cannot afford to pay for luxuries can of course cut them out, but he cannot do without bread, milk, butter, eggs and oatmeal. A few months ago, much was heard about the excessively high rents, and the great scarcity of houses. Now the grievance is what it costs to supply the family table and to keep gaunt hunger from the door. It takes all that the average man can earn and sometimes a little more to make both ends—that of revenue and expenditure—meet. It, indeed, requires skilful financing and is a direct economical problem. One cannot shift the burden of responsibility on to some one else. It is a personal obligation that has to be encountered. If one could set 'em the same as one can eliminate luxuries, the whole matter would be comparatively easy of solution, but if one is to enjoy health and strength and perform daily duties, in a faithful, efficient manner, the gastronomical requirements must be satisfied.

The situation is growing daily more interesting; the problem more acute. This all reminds us that the chief business of the average man and woman, is, nowadays, not to attain, rank, fame, or fortune, but to make a living and do it in an honest, straightforward way, so as to keep debt and disease from the door, and maintain happiness, peace and plenty within. The man, who can do so, and preserve his health, equanimity of mind and clearness of conscience is like the man "behind the hoe," an every day hero, one of nature's noblemen.

It is no small matter at the present period, in the face of increased values and the lessened purchasing power of the dollar, to, as His Excellency, Earl Gray, remarked at the Trinity College School gathering at Port Hope, "to play the game and play it fair."

PEN POINTS

Have you joined the new Canadian Club?

Hail to Signor Marconi, the wireless wizard.

Have you received a wireless yet from Europe?

The proceedings of the Court of Revision, will make an interesting serial story this year.

Well, if smoking and booze are to cost more, the average man has one satisfaction. He can cut them out.

It is cheaper to have your mail delivered at your door, than it is to pay double rent for a box in the post office.

A fellow cannot even sit down to have a quiet, reflective, sedative smoke, without the thought crowding in upon him, that the price of tobacco has gone up.

Some men claim that they are not making a cent in business, and that it is exceedingly difficult to live. The remedy is easy—get out of business.

It is regrettable that Rudyard Kipling was unable to come to Peterborough. In his world-wide travels he has written on almost every theme but we venture to say he has never seen a hydraulic lift lock.

Brockville by-election is one indication that "Whitney won't go" when the general elections are held in Ontario. Any yet the Liberals used to ask where would Whitney get his Cabinet, when if he did get into power! It doesn't do to scoff at the other fellow in politics.—Calgary News.

The new postal regulations between Canada and the United States are working well. All the trashy publications, which came into Canada by the ton under the old classification and rates, have entirely disappeared. There is not a pound of such coming through the mails was the statement, made by one of the heads of the Postmaster-General's office. Of desirable publications there has been little or no decrease.

A persistent and systematic effort is being made by the Grit press of Ontario to attack and discredit the liquor license administration of the Whitney Government. Every incident that can by any means, be made to appear as a reflection upon the government's administrative course is magnified and exaggerated with that end in view. As a matter of fact the law relating to the sale of intoxicating liquors in Ontario, and especially in Peterborough, was never under the advent of the Whitney government, as well, or nearly as well, administered as it is now. Every truthful observant of the province, must admit this fact, and therefore, these newspaper attacks, have all force and signally fail to create disaffection. When even the Montreal Witness feels in duty bound to commend the course of the Ontario government with respect to this matter, it is surely time that the lesser organs of Grittism looked for some more substantial cause of complaint.

Lakefield Has Bitter Complaint

Mail Service to and From Village is Inefficient

Our attention has been drawn to the fact that the mail service to and from Lakefield is not as efficient as it might be, says the Lakefield News. No blame whatever attaches to the authorities here, the trouble being owing to the inadequacy of the railway facilities and carelessness in the Peterborough post office. As an instance of the latter, the entire Toronto mail was on Friday last left over till the next day, entailing great inconvenience on the business people and others in this village.

It is not the first time by any means, that this sort of thing has occurred, and Lakefield is growing too important a place to submit quietly to it. So far as the Grand Trunk Railway is concerned, nothing is to be expected from it in the way of improved railway connections till some competitor enters the field against it. It is here to make money for its shareholders and acts as it has always acted, very much on "the public be-damned" principle of Mr. Vanderbilt.

ARTFUL DODGER RUN TO EARTH

Bad Young Man Created Trouble in Orillia

About a fortnight ago a guileless looking youth arrived in town, and after securing board at a house on Elgin street, started work in the painting department of the Tudhope Carriage Works, giving his name as John Matthews. After working for about a week he threw up his job, and shortly afterwards stole a watch belonging to a fellow boarder, Albert Turley, which he endeavored to sell to Mr. G. F. Rice for $5. As he told a hard-luck story the jeweler finally gave him $2.50, agreeing to sell it back for $3 should Matthews desire to redeem it. On Wednesday evening of last week he hired a horse and buggy from Holmes Bros.' livery stables and drove down to Hawkestone, where he left the outfit and proceeded to Barrie, sending word to the owners where he had left it. This did not come to hand until Friday.

On Thursday a warrant was sworn out for Matthews' arrest, and Chief Reid went to Barrie, and assisted by constable Harry Wright, who had gone down with a prisoner on Wednesday, as well as the Barrie police, who rendered all the assistance in their power, it was discovered that the young man was still in the vicinity. He was arrested while attempting to jump a freight train at the Allandale yards about two o'clock the next morning, and brought back to Orillia on the noon train on Friday. He appeared before the police magistrate next morning and was sentenced to one year in Central Prison for stealing the watch and one year for taking the horse and buggy the sentences to run concurrently.—Orillia News-Letter.

Here's a Way to Save Doctor Bills

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit

It was an association of gentlemen, professionally physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have been connected with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Castoria, which, as everyone knows, is a pleasant and effective remedy for the ailments of infants and children. It has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, and its reward has been the greatest popularity ever enjoyed by any remedy ever put upon the market; attained not by flamboyant advertising or appeals to ignorance or vulgar prejudice, but by inherent merit. All physicians recommend it, and many, very many, prescribe it.

Many persons call it the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called into consultation. All good family physicians say; "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher then, as it does to-day. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:—

"As the father of thirteen children, I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCrann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families, but they prescribe it for their patients. First of all, it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that, too. It allays feverishness, and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotics.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says, "Our duty is to expose danger and record the means for advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entitled to the information."

Gives Shape to the Foot

A Corset-Fitting Shoe

"ONE OF THE 14"

Corsets reduce the appearance of the figure and give it shape and style.

Why not a Corset Shoe which will make feminine feet look smaller and give them a pleasing form?

Dolly Vardens contain no stays, but they'll do these things, and this is why:

Their narrow construction takes the place of lacing. This narrowness reduces and shapes the foot by clinging to it at every point with the gentle firmness and snugness of a corset.

Their newly devised steel arch support takes the place of stays. It gives the foot's arch and waist an exquisite form, and besides it raises the arch, which draws back the toes, making the foot shorter.

And being exact copies of perfect feminine feet Dolly Vardens will give to most wearers nearly all of the exquisite form of the original master-pieces from which they were copied.

This may strike the wary as exaggeration; but if the wary will call on the Dolly Varden Store, we will gladly prove what we claim. Purchasers or investigators equally welcome. In the States and Canada at same price—$4.00 to $5.00. Every pair is Goodyear welt sewn too.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Coveney, 84 Auburn street, on Thursday evening celebrated the anniversary of their golden wedding.

On Oct. 17th, 1857, in Halstow Church, County of Kent, England, Mr. Coveney was married by Rev. Mr. Grabham, to Miss Emma Stiles. After coming to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Coveney resided in Lindsay for some years, and about twenty years ago, removed to Peterborough. Five children are living.

They are Stephen Coveney, of Lewiston, Maine; Mrs. Henry Kemp, of Greenville, Rhode Island; Miss Lottie Coveney, of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and Misses Lizzie and Florence, residing at home. Three children are dead. Mr. and Mrs. Coveney have seven grandchildren. Mr. Coveney was born in Kent County, England, 77 years ago, while Mrs. Coveney is also a resident of Kent and 69 years old.

Many friends assembled to extend their cordial congratulations.

After partaking of a bountiful supper, served in admirable style, games were played till midnight, when the gathering dispersed. The presents were numerous and beautiful, showing the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Coveney are held. The bride and groom of fifty years are hale and hearty, and their numerous friends hope to see them spared to enjoy many more years of health, happiness and prosperity.

C.P.R. BRAKEMAN VICTIM OF SERIOUS ACCIDENT AT TWEED

John McMullen Had Head and Shoulders Badly Injured While Coupling Cars—Duck Hunters Have Narrow Escape.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Oct. 18th.—Mr. John McMullen, a brakesman on the C.P.R. between Havelock and Smith's Falls was seriously injured at Tweed today. The unfortunate man was coupling cars when the accident occurred. The cars at first would not couple and Mr. McMullen was bending over, fixing the coupler, when the train packed up to couple, striking him and seriously injuring him in the head and shoulders, so that he will be laid up for some time.

Mr. Fred Varty of Belmont, who was to appear before Magistrate Mathison, this forenoon, on a charge of a breach of public morals, which offence is said to have been committed on Saturday night in the street, failed to appear, and so there was no court.

Two young men, well known in town, Messrs. Robert Walton of town, and John Nelson of Toronto Junction, had a very narrow escape from drowning on Tuesday afternoon. They were spending the day, lessening the number of ducks in the vicinity of Trent River, when the accident which nearly brought them to a watery grave occurred. A flock of ducks suddenly arose and in the excitement of the moment, one of the nimrods shot over the side of the boat, upsetting the boat on the opposite side. The boat sank but out of sight, and the two young men struck out for safety on the shore, leaving the bodies of the ducks floating down stream. At the time of the upsetting of the boat, Mr. Walton lost his gun and while struggling in the water, Mr. Nelson being unable to proceed with it, on account of its weight, had to surrender it to the river. The accident occurred in Mud Lake, and it is rather wide, and as the two men were a long way from shore, if their sad plight had not been discovered by another sportsman in the vicinity, it would have taken a hard tussle on their part to reach the shore.

Deserter From Kingston Arrested in Peterborough

Private Doucette of "A" Battery Taken Into Custody Last Night—Officers Will be Notified and Will Take Him Back—Left the Ranks Over a Year Ago

Private Doucette of the Medical corps of "A" battery, Kingston, was arrested at his home, Aylmer street, at 12 o'clock last night by P. C. Newhall, charged with deserting his company at Kingston. He was brought to the police station and this morning appeared before the magistrate. He was remanded until such time as the military officers arrive from Kingston to take him back.

Private Doucette, in conversation with a Review reporter, stated that he left the corps a year ago last August, and since then has been living at Niagar aFalls and Buffalo. He had been ill with typhoid fever and came to Peterborough a few days ago, to visit his parents. Had he served his time, his term would have expired next April. He had been a year and five months engaged in the work, when he left the ranks. The strict discipline enforced in the Kingston battery did not appeal very strongly to Doucette, and the daily routine of the soldier's life became too monotonous for him so he decided to leave.

Private Doucette is a bright, intelligent, and well built young man. He takes his capture good naturedly and remarked that "a man never makes a good soldier until he has deserted his army once or twice." On his return to Kingston, he will have to begin his three year course over again.

This afternoon Chief Roszel received the following wire from Major Leslie of Kingston, "Hold Private Frank Doucette, pending arrival of escort."

The Statements are Misleading

Member of Lowry Family Takes Issue With Rev. Mr. Campbell

A Review reporter interviewed a member of the Lowry family regarding the statements of the Rev James Campbell, in yesterday's issue, concerning the estate of the late Dr. Campbell, of Buffalo.

He said that if Dr. Pfohl, the administrator, was guilty of the conduct alleged by Rev. Mr. Campbell, then indeed was it time for a change but it was time enough to condemn Dr. Pfohl after we shall have heard his version.

Mr. Campbell is wrong in supposing that his action against Dr. Pfohl will not delay the administration. It is true that six months notice has to be given creditors, but that time is running and will soon expire, while the administration cannot be completed until after the termination of the litigation, which will last for many months, and it may be for years. I also see that he denies that he tried to get the administration in the interim; that too, can be determined later on. Mr. Campbell is also wrong in stating that the heirs, with the exception of one, all signed a paper, which was presented to the Judge asking that he (Rev. Mr. Campbell) be substituted in the place of Dr. Pfohl as administrator, he would have been nearer the mark had he said none of them signed it, with the exception of one, and the report we have received does not even mention that one.

The Lowry family represents eight subdivided shares, seven of which are represented by our solicitor, Mr Green, and I know for a fact that none of them ever signed the paper in question or, for that matter, was ever asked or saw Mr. Campbell. He says there is evidence of a will. Why does he not establish the fact and prevent Dr. Pfohl from diverting the estate from its proper channel, instead of fighting for an administration, which will be displaced by the will.

Large Attendance at the Funeral

Of Two Former Peterboro' Boys Who Were Drowned

The Winnipeg Free Press says:—One of the most impressive funerals that Norwood has ever seen took place yesterday afternoon when the last respects were paid the remains of Carl Graham and Roy Thornton. Every available seat and inch of standing room in the Norwood Methodist church on Marion street, was taken some time before the service commenced. All Norwood has been deeply touched at the sad death of the promising young men, and yesterday afternoon the general and spontaneous sympathy was everywhere apparent. Rev. R. L. McTavish, who, with his brother, has shown a lively interest in the efforts made to recover the bodies, conducted the service and spoke some heartfelt words of sympathy and comfort. His brother, who is an evangelist, also made some touching references to the sad event. Rev. Hugh Dobson, of Grace church, also took part.

From the church the cortege proceeded to Elmwood cemetery, where the remains of the young men were laid side by side in one plot. At the cemetery too, quite a number of sympathisers were present. Beautiful floral wreaths were sent from many outside friends and societies, two carriages being required to bear these floral tributes.

Tourist Traffic Broke all Records

Prosperous Season Enjoyed in District Around Lakehurst

Mr. Wm. Clarkson of Lakehurst, game and fishery inspector for that district, was in the city today, and in conversation with a representative of the Review stated that the past season had been the greatest on record so far as the tourist traffic in that portion of the lakes, is concerned. Mr. Clarkson is the fishery inspector for Buckhorn, Chemong, Pigeon and Ketchecum lakes and states that the number of fishing licenses issued, was fully 35 per cent. greater than for last season. The fishing was excellent and several large lunge were captured. The largest of the season a 32-pounder, was hooked in Buckhorn Lake.

Hurricane Raged in Tweed Village

The hurricane that struck Tweed about 1.300 Friday morning, did considerable damage. The wind, which came up suddenly like a western tornado lasted only about ten minutes, but in that time, it shifted considerable lumber in the local mill yards and uprooted a number of trees in the south end of the town.

The worst damage is reported at the Tweed Light and Power Company's plant where the wind caught the eighty foot iron smoke stack, and snapped it off over thirty feet from the top. The fall of the heavy chimney, carried away the steel guy ropes, one of which fell across the main transmission wire, shutting off the power to the town lights. This was soon removed, but it will be some days, before the other damage can be repaired.

It is fortunate that the company was using the water power at the time of the accident, and the management report sufficient water in the river to last until repairs are made.

The house boat, belonging to Mr. J. M. Robinson, which was left in Stoco Lake, was blown onto the sand, with the force of the wind, and when parties went to tow it to its winter quarters, they found it impossible to move it. — Tweed News.

Medium Priced Houses Are Yet Difficult to Secure

Dwellings Renting from $15 to $20 per Month, However, Are to be Had in Many Parts of City---Not as Many Real Estate Transfers During Past Summer as in Previous One.

The house problem in Peterborough is one that is not so difficult to solve at the present time, as it was in the spring and, according to the local real estate agents, there are plenty of houses to rent in the city. There were many people moving during the past week, and every day the large vans were kept busy. Often they had two or three loads of household goods of different families to transfer the same day. The houses renting at ten and twelve dollars a month are quickly picked up. They are eagerly sought after, but the ones to be procured at higher prices are not in such demand and are numerous.

Several real estate firms have as many as ten houses for rental at anywhere from fifteen to twenty dollars a month, but there is a stringency in the number of those at ten and twelve dollars. Apparently landlords do not find it necessary to take this class to the real estate agencies as for some time past, they have even had to place a "To Let" card in the windows.

As is shown by the number of building permits issued this year, there has been an exceedingly large number of new dwellings erected. This, to a great extent, has relieved the house famine situation. In the spring the demand is necessarily much greater than in the autumn, and the cry heard in the spring for a place to live, has ceased. The numerous immigrants who have settled in Peterborough this year are mostly all comfortably situated, and working steadily in some of the city's factories. A few of the less industrious ones who are to be seen loafing about these treet corners, will have to get to work when the cold weather comes or else freeze. It was not an uncommon thing to see families living in tents pitched along the river during the summer months. These are not seen now, for the men, who, with their families, were thus situated, were busily engaged in their spare hours in the evening putting up comfortable little homes in preparation for the long winter months. Thus, at present, the demand is not great and those who have built houses in anticipation of receiving large rentals, will probably see their houses standing empty, or else coming down in price.

The past year, while it has been a good one for real estate, yet as many transfers have not been made as in previous years. City property still retains its high price, but it has not been in such great demand.

In the spring, when the immigrants from the old land begin to arrive another scarcity of dwellings will be experienced.

Making Butter From Whey At the Cheese Factories

Sixteen Pounds of Butter Manufactured From 4000 Pounds of Whey at Shearer Factory—An Important Experiment Proves Successful.

The Canadian Dairyman of Oct. 19th, gives an account of two factories in Brockville separating the butter fat from the whey after it is drawn from the cheese vat, and manufacturing butter from the butter fat thus obtained from the whey. Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Instructor for Eastern Ontario, personally inspected the plants where this is being done and strongly advises the system being adopted where factories are large enough to warrant the expense.

The Shearer factory held a meeting of their patrons to discuss whether they would adopt this system or not, and decided to experiment for the balance of the season. The following day Mr. J. A. Hogan, the proprietor, set up a power separator and ran through 4,000 lbs. of whey, from which was obtained 14.40 lbs. of butter fat, which would make 16 lbs. of butter. At the present price of butter it is plain to be seen, a good profit can be realised from the separating of the whey.

The whey can be handled just as sanitary as the milk and butter made from the whey cannot be detected from butter made from whole milk is the sanitary conditions are carried out.

Langford Reached Port Hope But Not on Schedule Time

Broke Down at Newcastle, But Revived in Time to Proceed on His Journey—Had to be Carried to Room at Hotel.

Langford, the Renfrew walker, has failed in his attempt to walk from Port Hope to Toronto, and return, in 38 hours. He made the distance alright, but arrived in Port Hope 1 hour and 5 minutes behind schedule time. A Port Hope despatch says:

An immense crowd greeted Langford on his arrival at the Queen's Hotel, at 9.05, one hour and 5 minutes behind schedule time. In the last twenty-five miles of the journey Trainer O'Brien and Jimmy Reynolds kept Langford on his feet by great effort. Reynolds walked seven miles of the trip. Langford was in a state of complete collapse when he reached Port Hope, and had to be carried to a room at the hotel. He is in a bad state and had a partial collapse a mile this side of Newcastle. Stimulants and a rubdown, however, revived him, and he made the remainder of the journey in great agony. His feet, legs, hands and tongue are swollen, and he is otherwise badly used up.

Reynolds is in no wise discouraged at his own failure in June, in view of his advanced age and the extreme heat prevailing at the time when he made the attempt, and is offering to wager $300 to $500 that he can do the trick in 35 hours. Langford attributes his failure to cover the route in schedule time to poor roads and many hills.

A physician examined the pedestrian at Newtonville, and said that he might continue at his then painful task with real danger. He eats but very little, on the road, and no little credit is due O'Brien and Reynolds for bringing their man through, although Langford gave a fine exhibition of courage in continuing while suffering terrible agony. His feet did not play out until he was within twenty, or thirty miles of his goal. As a result of his failure to finish within the time stipulated, Langford will lose a snug private wager which he made.

Were Fined for Being Disorderly

County Magistrate Edmison went to Lakefield yesterday and held court. For being drunk and disorderly, Thos. Oliver and Vincent McKee were each fined $5 and costs. The two young men pleaded guilty. They must have procured the liquor in this city, and carried to to Lakefield, where it was consumed, as the northern village is a local option one.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By... ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

"So Mr. Detchard is in the secret," thought I.

Having got rid of my dear brother and his friends, I retuned to make my adieu to my cousin. She was standing at the door. I bade her farewell, taking her hand in mine.

"Rudolf," she said very low, "be careful, won't you?"

"Of what?"

"You know—I can't say. But think what your life is to"—

"Well, to"—

"To Ruritania."

Was I right to play the part or wrong to play the part? I know not. Evil lay both ways, and I dared not tell her the truth.

"Only to Ruritania?" I asked softly.

A sudden flush spread over her incomparable face.

"To your friends, too," she said.

"Friends?"

"And to your cousin," she whispered, "and loving servant."

I could not speak. I kissed her hand and went out cursing myself.

Outside I found Master Fritz, quite reckless of the footmen, playing at cat's cradle with the Countess Helga.

"Hang it," said he, "we can't always be plotting! Love claims his share."

"I'm inclined to think he does," said I, and Fritz, who had been by my side, dropped respectfully behind.

CHAPTER IX.

IF I were to detail the ordinary events of my daily life at this time they might prove instructive to people who are not familiar with the insides of palaces; if I revealed some of the secrets I learned they might prove of interest to the statesmen of Europe. I intend to do neither of these things. I should be between the Scylla of dullness and the Charybdis of indiscretion, and I feel that I had far better confine myself strictly to the underground drama which was being played beneath the surface of Ruritanian politics. I need only say that the secret of my imposture defied detection. I made mistakes. I had bad minutes. It needed all the tact and graciousness whereof I was master to smooth over some apparent lapses of memory and unmindfulness of old acquaintances of which I was guilty. But I escaped, and I attributed my escape, as I have said before, most of all to the very audacity of the enterprise. It is my belief that, given the necessary physical likeness, it was far easier to pretend to be king of Ruritania than it would have been to personate my next door neighbor.

One day Sapt came into my room. He threw me a letter, saying:

"That's for you—a woman's hand, I think. But I've some news for you first."

"What's that?"

"The king's at the castle of Zenda," said he.

"How do you know?"

"Because the other half of Michael's Six are there. I had inquiries made, and they're all there—Lauengram, Krafstein and young Rupert Hentzau—three rogues, too, on my honor, as fine as live in Ruritania."

"Well?"

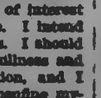
"Well, Fritz wants you to march to the castle with horse, foot and artillery."

"And drag the moat?" I asked.

"That would be about it," grinned Sapt, "and we shouldn't find the king's body then."

"You think it's certain he's there?"

"Very probable. Besides the fact of those three being there, the drawbridge is kept up and no one goes in without an order from young Hentzau or Black Michael himself. We must tie Fritz up."



"I'll go to Zenda," said I.

"You're mad."

"Some day."

"Oh, perhaps. You'll very likely stay there, though, if you do."

"That may be, my friend," said I carelessly.

"His majesty looks sulky," observed Sapt. "How's the love affair?"

"Hold your tongue!" I said.

He looked at me for a moment. Then he lit his pipe. It was quite true that I was in a bad temper, and I went on perversely:

"Wherever I go I'm dogged by half a dozen fellows."

"I know you are. I send 'em," he replied composedly.

"What for?"

"Well," said Sapt, puffing away, "it wouldn't be exactly inconvenient for Black Michael if you disappeared. With you gone the old game that we stopped would be played—or he'd have a shot at it."

"I can take care of myself."

"De Gautet, Bersonin and Detchard are in Strelsau, and any one of them, lad, would cut your throat as readily—as readily as I would Black Michael's and a deal more treacherously. What's the letter?"

I opened it and read it aloud:

If the king desires to know what it deeply concerns the king to know let him do as this letter bids him. At the end of the New avenue there stands a house in large grounds. The house has a portico, with a statue of a nymph in it. A wall incloses the garden; there is a gate in the wall at the back. At 12 o'clock tonight, if the king enters alone by that gate, turns to the right and walks twenty yards, he will find a summer house, approached by a flight of six steps. If he mounts and enters he will find some one who will tell him what touches most dearly his life and his throne. This is written by a faithful friend. He must be alone. If he neglects the invitation his life will be in danger. Let him show this to no one, or he will ruin a woman who loves him—Black Michael does not pardon.

"No," observed Sapt as I ended, "but he can dictate a very pretty letter."

I had arrived at the same conclusion and was about to throw the letter away when I saw there was more writing on the other side.

"Hello! There's some more."

If you hesitate (the writer continued) consult Colonel Sapt—

"Eh?" exclaimed that gentleman, genuinely astonished. "Does she take me for a greater fool than you?"

I waved to him to be silent.

Ask him what woman would do most to prevent the duke from marrying his cousin and therefore most to prevent his becoming king? And ask if her name begins with—A.

I sprang to my feet. Sapt laid down his pipe.

"Antoinette de Mauban, by heaven!" I cried.

"How do you know?" asked Sapt.

I told him what I knew of the lady and how I knew it. He nodded.

"It's so far true that she's had a great row with Michael," said he thoughtfully.

"If she would, she could be useful," I said.

"I believe, though, that Michael wrote that letter."

"So do I, but I mean to know for certain. I shall go, Sapt."

"No, I shall go," said he.

"You may go as far as the gate."

"I shall go to the summer house."

"I'm hanged if you shall."

I rose and leaned my back against the mantelpiece.

"Sapt, I believe in that woman, and I shall go."

"I don't believe in any woman," said Sapt, "and you shan't go."

"I either go to the summer house or back to England," said I.

Sapt began to know exactly how far he could lead or drive and when he must follow.

"We're playing against time," I added. "Every day we leave the king where he is there is fresh risk. Every day I masquerade like this there is fresh risk. Sapt, we must play high. We must force the game."

"So be it," he said, with a sigh.

To cut the story short, at half-past 11 that night Sapt and I mounted our horses. Fritz was again left on guard, our destination not being revealed to him. It was a very dark night. I wore my sword, but I carried a revolver, a long knife and a bullseye lantern. We arrived outside the gate. I dismounted. Sapt held out his hand.

"I shall wait here," he said. "If I hear a shot, I'll"—

"Stay where you are. It's the king's only chance. You mustn't come to grief too."

"You're right, lad. Good luck."

I passed the little gate. It yielded, and I found myself in a wild sort of shrubbery. There was a grass grown path, and, turning to the right as I had been bidden, I followed it cautiously. My lantern was closed, the revolver was in my hand. I heard not a sound. Presently a large dark object loomed out of the gloom ahead of me. It was the summer house. Reaching the steps, I mounted them and found myself confronted by a weak, rickety wooden door which hung upon the latch. I pushed it open and walked in. A woman flew to me and seized my hand.

"Shut the door," she whispered.

I obeyed and turned the light of my lantern on her. She was in evening dress, arrayed very sumptuously, and her dark striking beauty was marvelously displayed in the glare of the bullseye. The summer house was a bare little room, furnished only with a couple of chairs and a small iron table, such as one sees in a tea garden or an open air cafe.

"Don't talk," she said. "We've no time. Listen! I know you, Mr. Rassendyll. I wrote that letter at the duke's orders."

"So I thought," said I.

"In twenty minutes three men will be here to kill you."

"Three—the three?"

"Yes. You must be gone by then. If not tonight you'll be killed"—

"Or they will."

"Listen, listen! When you're killed your body will be taken to a low quarter of the town. It will be found there. Michael will at once arrest all your friends—Colonel Sapt and Captain von Tarlenheim first—proclaim a state of siege in Strelsau and send a messenger to Zenda. The other three will murder the king in the castle, and the duke will proclaim either himself or the princess—himself if he is strong enough. Anyhow, he'll marry her and become king in fact and soon in name. Do you see?"

"It's a pretty plot. But why, madame, do you"—

"Say I'm a Christian—or say I'm jealous. My God, shall I see him marry her? Now go, but remember—this is what I have to tell you—that never by night or by day are you safe. Three men follow you as a guard. Is it not so? Well, three follow them. Michael's three are never 200 yards from you. Your life is not worth a moment if ever they find you alone. Now go. Stay—the gate will be guarded by now. Go down softly, go past the summer house, on for a hundred yards, and you'll find a ladder against the wall. Get over it and fly for your life."

"And you?" I asked.

"I have my game to play too. If he finds out what I have done, we shall not meet again. If not, I may yet—but never mind. Go at once."

"But what will you tell him?"

"That you never came—that you saw through the trick."

I took her hand and kissed it.

"Madame," said I, "you have served the king well tonight. Where is he in the castle?"

She sank her voice to a fearful whisper. I listened eagerly.

"Across the drawbridge you come to a heavy door. Behind that lies—hark! What's that?"

There were steps outside.

"They're coming! They're too soon! Heavens, they're too soon!" And she turned pale as death.

"They seem to me," said I, "to be in the nick of time."

"Close your lantern. See, there's a chink in the door. Can you see them?"

I put my eye to the chink. On the lowest step I saw three dim figures. I cocked my revolver. Antoinette hastily laid her hand on mine.

"You may kill one," said she, "but what then?"

A voice came from outside—a voice that spoke perfect English.

"Mr. Rassendyll," it said.

I made no answer.

"We want to talk to you. Will you promise not to shoot till we've done?"

"Have I the pleasure of addressing Mr. Detchard?" I said.

"Never mind names."

"Then let mine alone."

"All right, sire. I've an offer for you."

I still had my eye to the chink. The three had mounted two steps more. Three revolvers pointed full at the door.

"Will you let us in? We pledge our honor to observe the truce."

"Don't trust them," whispered Antoinette.

"We can speak through the door," said I.

"But you might open it and fire," objected Detchard, "and, though we should finish you, you might finish one of us. Will you give your honor not to fire while we talk?"

"Don't trust them," whispered Antoinette again.

A sudden idea struck me. I considered it for a moment. It seemed feasible.

"I give my honor not to fire before you do," said I, "but I won't let you in. Stand outside and talk."

"That's sensible," he said.

The three mounted the last step and stood just outside the door. I laid my ear to the chink. I could hear no words, but Detchard's head was close to that of the taller of his companions (De Gautet, I guessed).

"H'm! Private communications," thought I. Then I said aloud:

"Well, gentlemen, what's the offer?"

"A safe conduct to the frontier and £50,000 English."

"No, no," whispered Antoinette in the lowest of whispers. "They are treacherous."

"That seems handsome," said I, rummaging through the chink. They were all close together, just outside the door now.

I had probed the hearts of the ruffians, and I did not need Antoinette's warning. They meant to "rush" me as soon as I was engaged in talk.

"Give me a minute to consider," said I, and I thought I heard a laugh outside.

I turned to Antoinette.

"Stand up close to the wall out of the line of fire from the door," I whispered.

"What are you going to do?" she asked in fright.

"You'll see," said I.

I took up the little iron table. It was not very heavy for a man of my strength, and I held it by the legs. The top, protruding in front of me, made a complete screen for my head and body. I fastened my closed lantern to my belt and put my revolver in a handy pocket. Suddenly I saw the door move ever so slightly. Perhaps it was the wind; perhaps it was a hand trying it outside.

I drew back as far as I could from the door, holding the table in the position that I have described. Then I called out:

"Gentlemen, I accept your offer, relying on your honor. If you will open the door"—

"Open it yourself," said Detchard.

"It opens outward," said I. "Stand back a little, gentlemen, or I shall hit you when I open it."

I went and fumbled with the latch. Then I stole back to my place on tiptoe.

"I can't open it!" I cried. "The latch has caught."

"Tut! I'll open it!" cried Detchard. "Nonsense, Bersonin! Why not? Are you afraid of one man?"

I smiled to myself. An instant later the door was flung back. The gleam of a lantern showed me the three close together outside, their revolvers leveled. With a shout I charged at my utmost pace across the summer house and through the doorway. Three shots rang out and battered into my shield. Another moment and I leaped out, and the table caught them full and square, and in a tumbling, swearing, struggling mass they and I and that brave table rolled down the steps of the summer house to the ground below. Antoinette de Mauban shrieked, but I rose to my feet, laughing aloud.

De Gautet and Bersonin lay like men stunned. Detchard was under the table, but as I rose he pushed it from him and fired again. I raised my revolver and took a snap shot. I heard him curse, and then I ran like a hare, laughing as I went, past the summer house and along by the wall. I heard steps behind me, and, turning round, I fired again for luck. The steps ceased.

"Please God," said I, "she told me the truth about the ladder," for the wall was high and topped with iron spikes.

Yes, there it was. I was up and over in a minute. Doubling back, I saw the horses. Then I heard a shot. It was Sapt. He had heard us and was battling and raging with the locked gate, hammering it and firing into the keyhole like a man possessed. He had quite forgotten that he was not to take part in the fight. Whereat I laughed again and said as I clapped him on the shoulder:

"Come home to bed, old chap. I've got the finest tea table story that ever you heard!"

He started and cried, "You're safe!" But a moment later he added:

"And what the devil are you laughing at?"

The table caught them full and square.

"Four gentlemen round a tea table," said I, laughing still, for it had been uncommonly ludicrous to see the formidable three altogether routed and scattered with no more deadly weapon than an ordinary tea table.

Moreover, you will observe that I had honorably kept my word and not fired till they did.

CHAPTER X.

IT was the custom that the prefect of police should send every afternoon a report to me on the condition of the capital and the feeling of the people. The document included also an account of the movements of any persons whom the police had received instructions to watch. Since I had been in Strelsau Sapt had been in the habit of reading the report and telling me any items of interest which it might contain. On the day after my adventure in the summer house he came in as I was playing a hand of ecarte with Fritz von Tarlenheim.

"The report is rather full of interest this afternoon," he observed, sitting down.

"Do you find," I asked, "any mention of a certain fracas?"

He shook his head with a smile.

"I find this first," he said: "'His highness the Duke of Strelsau left the city (so far as it appears, suddenly), accompanied by several of his household. His destination is believed to be the castle of Zenda, but the party traveled by road and not by train. MM. De Gautet, Bersonin and Detchard followed an hour later, the last named carrying his arm in a sling. The cause of his wound is not known, but it is suspected that he has fought a duel, probably incidental to a love affair.'"

"That is remotely true," I observed, very well pleased to find that I had left my mark on the fellow.

"Then we come to this," pursued Sapt: "'Mme. de Mauban, whose movements have been watched according to instructions, left by train at midday. She took a ticket for Dresden'"—

"It's an old habit of hers," said I.

"'The Dresden trains stop at Zenda.' An acute fellow, this. And finally listen to this: 'The state of feeling in the city is not satisfactory. The king is much criticised' (you know he's told to be quite frank) 'for taking no steps about his marriage. From inquiries among the entourage of the Princess Flavia her royal highness is believed to be deeply offended by the remissness of his majesty. The common people are coupling her name with that of the Duke of Strelsau, and the duke gains much popularity from the suggestion. I have caused the announcement that the king gives a ball tonight in honor of the princess to be widely diffused, and the effect is good.'"

"That is news to me," said I.

"Oh, the preparations are all made!" laughed Fritz. "I've seen to that."

Sapt turned to me and said in a sharp, decisive voice:

"You must make love to her tonight, you know."

"I think it very likely I shall if I see her alone," said I. "Hang it, Sapt, you don't suppose I find it difficult?"

Fritz whistled a bar or two; then he said: "You'll find it only too easy. Look here, I hate telling you this, but I must. The Countess Helga told me that the princess had become most attached to the king. Since the coronation her feelings have undergone a marked development. It's quite true that she is deeply wounded by the king's apparent neglect."

"Here's a kettle of fish!" I groaned.

"Tut, tut!" said Sapt. "I suppose you've made pretty speeches to a girl before now. That's all she wants."

Fritz, himself a lover, understood better my distress. He laid his hand on my shoulder, but said nothing.

"I think, though," pursued that cold blooded old Sapt, "that you'd better make your offer tonight."

"Good heavens!"

"Or, at any rate, go near to it, and I shall send a semiofficial to the papers."

"I'll do nothing of the sort—no more will you!" said I. "I utterly refuse to take part in making a fool of the princess."

Sapt looked at me with his small keen eyes. A slow, cunning smile passed over his face.

"All right, lad; all right," said he. "We mustn't press you too hard. Soothe her down a bit, if you can, you know. Now for Michael!"

"Oh, hang Michael!" said I. "He'll do tomorrow. Here, Fritz, come for a stroll in the garden."

Sapt at once yielded. His rough manner covered a wonderful tact and, as I came to recognise more and more, a remarkable knowledge of human nature. Why did he urge me so little about the princess? Because he knew that her beauty and my ardor would carry me further than all his arguments and that the less I thought about the thing the more likely was I to do it. He must have seen the unhappiness he might bring on the princess, but that went for nothing with him. Can I say confidently that he was wrong? If the king were restored, the princess must turn to him, either knowing or not knowing the change. And if the king were not restored to us? It was a subject that we had never yet spoken of. But I had an idea that in such a case Sapt meant to seat me on the throne of Ruritania for the term of my life. He would have set Satan himself there sooner than that pupil of his, Black Michael.

The ball was a sumptuous affair. I opened it by dancing a quadrille with Flavia. Then I waltzed with her. Curious eyes and eager whispers attended us. We went in to supper, and halfway through I, half mad by then, for her glance had answered mine and her quick breathing met my stammered sentences, I rose in my place before all the brilliant crowd and, taking the red rose that I wore, flung the ribbon with its jeweled badge round her neck. In a tumult of applause I sat down. I saw Sapt smiling over his wine and Fritz frowning. The rest of the meal passed in silence; neither Flavia nor I could speak. Fritz touched me on the shoulder, and I rose, gave her my arm and walked down the hall into a little room, where coffee was served to us. The gentlemen and ladies in attendance withdrew, and we were alone.

The little room had French windows opening on the gardens. The night was fine, cool and fragrant. Flavia sat down, and I stood opposite her. I was struggling with myself. If she had not looked at me, I believe that even then I should have won my fight, but suddenly involuntarily she gave me one brief glance—a glance of question, hurriedly turned aside, a blush that the question had overcome spread over her cheek, and she caught her breath.

Ah, if you had seen her! I forgot the king in Zenda. I forgot the king in Strelsau. She was a princess—and I an impostor. Do you think I remembered that? I threw myself on my knee and seized her hands in mine. I said nothing. Why should I? The soft sounds of the night set my wooing to a wordless melody as I pressed my kisses on her lips.

She pushed me from her, crying pas-

"Ah, do you love me, or is it because you must?"

"It's true!" I said in low, smothered tones—"true that I love you more than life or truth or honor!"

She set no meaning to my words, treating them as one of love's sweet extravagances. She came close to me and whispered:

"Oh, if you were not the king, then I could show you how I love you! How is it that I love you now, Rudolf?"

"Now?"

"Yes—just lately. I—I never did before."

Pure triumph filled me. It was I—Rudolf Rassendyll—who had won her! I caught her round the waist.

"You didn't love me before?" I asked.

She looked up into my face, smiling as she whispered:

"It must have been your crown. I felt it first on the coronation day."

"Never before?" I asked eagerly.

She laughed low.

"You speak as if you would be pleased to hear me say 'Yes' to that," she said.

"Would 'Yes' be true?"

"Yes," I just heard her breathe, and she went on in an instant: "Be careful, Rudolf; be careful, dear. He will be mad now."

"What, Michael? If Michael were the worst"—

"What worst is there?"

There was yet a chance for me. Controlling myself with a mighty effort, I took my hands off her and stood a yard or two way. I remember now the note of the wind in the elm trees outside.

"If I were not the king," I began. "If I were only a private gentleman"—

Before I could finish her hand was in mine.

"If you were a convict in the prison of Strelsau you would be my king," she said.

And under my breath I groaned, "God forgive me," and, holding her hand in mine, I said again:

"If I were not the king"—

"Hush, hush!" she whispered. "I don't deserve it—I don't deserve to be doubted. Ah, Rudolf, does a woman, who marries without love look on the man as I look on you?"

And she hid her face from me.

For more than a minute we stood there together, and I, even with my arm about her, summoned up what honor and conscience her beauty and the toils that I was in had left me.

"Flavia," I said in a strange, dry voice that seemed not my own, "I am not"—

To be continued.

Mr. Aylesworth is improving under the doctors' care, and there is no idea of his retirement from the cabinet.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions of society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity for earning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than all the charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business, in times of stress, and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade affords for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

The Sun Life of Canada

Offers a man something as good as gold. Its policies give the maximum of security at the minimum of cost. If you have obligations; if your life means something to others, insurance is for you. Investigate the cost of absolute protection in the SUN OF CANADA.

Hints For the Home Dressmaker

The Latest Dean Patterns

Some Timely Suggestions Giving Directions in the Leading Styles and the Best Materials to be Used.

ONE OF THE NEW ACCESSORIES IN LINGERIE

The pretty corset cover here shown will be most acceptable to the woman of slender or ill-developed figure because of the appearance of fullness and roundness which it imparts to the bust. The ruffles, however, may be omitted if such additional fullness is not needed, the corset then showing the plain yet graceful development pictured in the smaller drawings. Batiste or nainsook is suitable for making the corset cover, the ruffles, beading and edging used to trim it being made either of lace or embroidery, be preferred. For the medium size 1 5-8 yards of 36 inch material will be required, with 2 5-8 yards of embroidery for the ruffles.

6974.—Sizes 32, 34, 36 and 38 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is ten cents.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

6960.—A UNIQUE MODEL FOR A YOKE WAIST.

New ideas in separate waists are always acceptable to the smart woman, and it is a foregone conclusion that she will be especially glad of the novel design here shown, since it offers unusual opportunities for the display of handsome materials. The shaping of the waist is unique, and to a woman of good figure it will prove most becoming. The V-shaped neck is outlined by a quaint lapped collar, which, besides opening a way for the display of handsome embroidery or lace, attractively encloses the simulated chemisette. The waist is here of dove made of silk, with all-over lace for the plastron and yoke chemisette and Oriental embroidery for the lapped collar. It would, however, develop well in any rich material. 3 1-4 yards 27 inches wide being needed for the medium size.

6960.—7 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and 10c at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

Chief Grassett, in reporting to the Board of Control regarding the speeds at which automobiles travelled, stated that the general view seemed to be that the speeds were reasonable.

ART ASSOCIATION MEETING

The Woman's Art Association will meet on Monday evening at the house of the Misses Aldridge, 129 Weller street. Subject to be art and the Bible. All members are cordially welcomed.

4130. A PRETTY WASHABLE FROCK

The frocks for the little people do not tend so much to elaboration of design as in times past but to fineness of fabric and exquisite development. Here is a simple dress for every day of "best" which is easily constructed and very pleasing. The lingerie fabrics are most used for such frocks, but a light weight cloth might serve as well. The simple round yoke and cuffs are of embroidery edged with a narrow frill of Valenciennes while the latter finishes the edge of the skirt. Tucks in front and gathers in front regulate the fulness and provide sufficient adornment for the body of the dress. If a party dress is desired, the sleeves may be in short puff and finished with a narrow band of insertion. For a cloth dress, braid would be the best adornment. The skirt may be finished with a ruffle or hem. For the medium size 3 yards of 36 inch material are needed.

4130.—Sizes, 1-2, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 years.

4252.—A GRACEFUL FROCK FOR THE TINY CHILD.

Although Fashion seems to have decreed that the wee ones shall wear washable dresses at all seasons, manifestly in order that the freshness and daintiness of their garments may always be assured, many mothers sensibly dress their small children with due regard for that weather conditions. The pretty little frock sketched is suitable for development in either silk, wool or linen, though it was modelled, as shown, in a soft washable woollen fabric, with hand embroidery in white silk for the decoration, narrow frills of lace finishing the neck and sleeves. The embroidery might be omitted, however, and ribbon or silk braid substituted for it. The shaping of the dress is very simple, the skirt portion being set in gathers into the yoke, which is cut square in the back and in front is shaped prettily to correspond with the wide box pleat that ornaments the front of the frock. The sleeves may be made short or of full length, as the season may demand. For the two year size 2 1-4 yards of 27 inch goods will be needed.

4252.—Sizes 1-2, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 years.

6821.—A MOST FETCHING APRON FOR AFTERNOONS.

No matter whether it is the mistress or the maid who wears an apron it should be pretty and becoming for afternoons. A dainty one in dotted Swiss having ruffles of embroidery about the skirt portion and shoulder straps is sketched. The bib portion is just large enough to protect the front of the bodice, yet sufficiently small to be chic and becoming. The shoulder straps are fastened at the top of the bib and at the belt in back. Materials which develop this design prettily are plain mull cross-barred dimity, sheer, nainsook and the fabric mentioned above. The pattern calls for 1 3-4 yards of 36 inch goods.

6821.—One size.

6977.—THE NEWEST THING IN WORK APRONS.

Picturesqueness is rather an unusual quality in a garment designed for purely utilitarian purposes, but it is the distinguishing feature of the work apron illustrated, the shaping of which is as effective as it is novel. The apron is ingeniously cut in one piece, the front being in princess style while the back is gathered into a belt. The square cut body portion with extensions forming epaulettes, gives a very smart appearance to the apron, which will prove an acceptable addition to the feminine wardrobe. Striped percale was used for making 4 1-8 yards 36 inches wide, being needed for the medium size. Gingham, lawn or cross-bar muslin are also suitable materials.

6977.—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

A Cure For Obesity.

Landlady (to new boarder, who is rather stout)—I am glad to hear that one of my former boarders recommended you to my house.

Stout Boarder—Yes; he spoke very highly of it. After telling him that I had tried all kinds of antifat without success, he advised a short stay here.—Tatler.

A CHARMING LITTLE APRON.

Novelty is as much sought in aprons for small maids as in dresses and surely Dame Fashion has outdone herself in this small apron shown. This is in one piece and so simply made as any imaginable. The skirt portion closes in back with a button at the belt, while the upper part may slip on over the head or be opened at the centre in front and fastened with buttons. For lawn or cross-barred dimity, this style is wonderfully attractive and (with a tidy of lace or embroidery as edging) a pretty result is assured. For the medium size 1 yard of material 36 inches wide is needed.

4213.—Seven sizes, three to nine years.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

4254. THE LITTLE GIRL'S SCHOOL DRESS.

For the small girl who is just beginning her school career the little frock here pictured will be found most desirable. It is made in jumper effect, with a simulated guimpe which may be composed if preferred, of the same material as the dress instead of a contrasting one as shown. The frock is very simply made, both blouse and skirt being gathered to the prettily shaped belt. Scotch plaid is here suggested for modelling it, with red serah for the simulated guimpe, but this development is capable of numerous variations in plain or as elaborate as one may choose to make it. The medium size calls for 1 1-8 yards of 27 inch material for the yoke and sleeves, and 2 1-8 yards of the same width for the over blouse skirt.

4254.—5 sizes, 3 to 7 years.

Feeling the Infant.

"Well," remarked Nupop in rather a loud tone of voice, "it's pleasant to think that we can remain comfortably at home this evening."—

"Why, George," began Mrs. Nupop, "you know we've got tickets for the"—

"Sh! Can't you see the baby's listening? I said that for his benefit."—Catholic Standard and Times.

4218.—A SERVICEABLE APRON.

Miss Elizabeth McDonald, aged thirty-four, was stricken, at her home, Creighton street, Ottawa, on Friday with a paralytic stroke, was unconscious in ten minutes, and dead in less than twenty. It was the first time she ever had a stroke.

Washing Lace.

One girl who boards and does not like to send fine pieces of lace to the laundry has solved the problem by washing the pieces in her room and placing them on top of a marble table to dry. It is the same as stretching them on a window pane, and they dry as nicely and look as well as when ironed. The pieces are then placed in a book, a weight put on them, and there they are, fresh and clean, ready for use when wanted.

4253.—A SEASONABLE DRESS FOR THE SMALL MAIDEN.

Frocks of woollen material will be in order for some months to come for the small maid who requires warmth in her clothing, and the design here represented is one that will be welcomed. It is both stylish and practical—two desirable qualities that do not invariably go together. The full blouse fastens in the back, but a front closing is prettily simulated in a turreted effect, buttons assisting the illusion. Box pleats in front and dispose the fulness becomingly, and the blouse is gathered at the waistline, where it is attached to the straight skirt. Claret-colored cashmere was used for making the frock and fancy braid for trimming, but nun's veiling, challis or any soft novelty woollen would be appropriate for development, the 8-year size requiring 4 yards 27 inches wide.

4253.—8 sizes, 5 to 12 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

Leave your order and 10c at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

6990.—A NATTY SHORT COAT.

A smart little coat for wearing whenever a light-weight outdoor garment is needed is always an acceptable addition to the feminine wardrobe, and this design illustrated is especially desirable because of its simple but effective modelling, which is well within the scope of the home dressmaker. The coat, which is modelled in one of the new striped broadcloths, is semi-fitting, and owes its jauntiness mainly to its excellent shaping, which is expressly calculated to emphasize the best lines of the figure. It is an especially good model for the slender type of woman, to whom neither a tight-fitting jacket nor a loose wrap is wholly becoming. It is finished in tailored style, with stitched seams and a mannish collar and cuffs, all of which are in close accord with the latest approved designs. The medium size requires 2 1-4 yards of 54 inch cloth to make.

6990.—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10c.

A BECOMING OVER BLOUSE AND GUIMPE

So long as fashion retains the jumper in her category the demand for new designs of this order will continue. One of the latest and best of these is here shown. It is extremely simple to make, while it displays the most attractive features of this popular style, including the fashionable Mikado sleeve. The overblouse is tucked and pleated at the shoulders, thus providing for the necessary fullness over the bust. A guimpe is included in this pattern, and this is provided with both full length and three-quarter sleeves. As pictured the blouse is made of chiffon taffeta and trimmed with pipings of the same, while the guimpe is modelled in all-over lace. For the medium size 2 1-8 yards 36 inches wide will be needed for the guimpe, and 2 3-8 yards 27 inches wide for the overblouse.

6978.—Six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

The price of this pattern is ten cents.

TORONTO MAN WINS THE PRIZE

Honor for Biggest Small-mouth Black Bass Goes to Muskoka District

For the first time since the prize was first toffered in 1901, the Toronto Star's rod, reel and line, presented to the person catching the best small mouth black bass this year does not go to an Angler in the Kawartha Lakes district. The prize this year has been won by a Toronto man, J. C. Bloomer, salesman for the piano firm of Heintzman & Co. Mr. Bloomer's fish was caught in Koshoshebogamog Lake, about 8 miles southeast of Gravenhurst, which body of water is known to the natives as "Lake Koshoe," an abbreviation of the Indian name.

The announcement of the decision has been delayed beyond the accustomed time because of an investigation into the entry of another and a larger fish than the one caught by Mr. Bloomer, but which turned out to be a big mouth bass, and was consequently withdrawn from the competition.

MR. BLOOMER'S CATCH.

The measurements of Mr. Bloomer's prize-winning fish were as follows:—

Weight, 6 pounds 8 ounces.
Length over all, 23 3-4 inches.
Girth, 18 inches.

PREVIOUS AWARDS.

Apart from the value of the prize, the distinction of catching the biggest black bass is one which is highly prized by all fishermen, and the Star's annual prize, which was established in 1901, has value in determining to whom the distinction belongs. The result of previous awards follows:—

1901—John King, Havelock; fish caught in Belmont Lake; weight, 6 lbs 4 ounces.

1902—A. S. Laing, St. Catharines; fish caught in Rice Lake; weight, 5 lbs. 13 ounces.

1903—John J. Irwin, Smith township; fish caught in Clear Lake; weight, 7lbs.

1904—J. E. Smith, Verona; fish caught near Verona; weight, 6 lbs. 14 ounces.

1905—H. O. Barker, Toronto; fish caught at Trent Bridge; weight, 6 lbs. 11 ounces.

1906—Wm. Robson, Harwood; fish caught at Rice Lake; weight, 7 lbs. 3 ounces.

Among the entries this year were the following:—

Six lbs., length 22 3-4 inches, girth 18 inches, caught in Belmont Lake by Robert Summers, Toronto.

Five lbs. 10 ounces, caught at Sturgeon Point, by H. Peten, Lindsay.

Five lbs., caught at Katchewoonooka Lake, by G. W. Armstrong, Buffalo.

Three lbs. 14 ounces, caught in Crow Bay, Campbellford, by Walter Boobt.

The Palace Restaurant, 246 George Street, will be open To-night, under new management. Everything strictly first-class. A trial solicited Id MRS. KING, Proprietress

Large Attendance at S. A. Barracks — Mr. D. W. Dumble Spoke

Staff Captain Goodwin and Captain Maisey, the new officers of the Salvation Army, took formal charge of the corps there yesterday. All the Sunday services were well attended and the new officers created a decidedly favorable impression.

In this afternoon Mr. D. W. Dumble delivered an address at the barracks in which he referred to the good work carried on by army and bespoke for it continued support and assistance. Mr. Dumble's address was much appreciated.

A pleasing event took place on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. J. O'Brien, 476 Charlotte street, when a number of Mr O'Brien's fellow employees of the C.G.E. works called on the newly married couple and presented them with a handsome Silver King range, accompanied by a suitable address, wishing Mr and Mrs. O'Brien many years of happiness and prosperity in their wedded life. Mr. W. A. Brundrette read the address and Mr. Bobt. Cottrill made the presentation.

"Take Children to the Theatre But Not to Prayer Meeting"

Rev. H. M. Manning Says There Are Homes in Christian Countries Less Godly Than Those in Heathen Lands.

That there are homes in Christian countries which are less godly than those in heathen lands, was the somewhat startling statement made last night by Rev. H. M. Manning, in the course of his sermon in the Charlotte-st. Methodist church.

He pointed out that in the land of the heathen, the children were taught that there was a God, and while their conception of the Deity was perverted, the spirit of reverence was taught.

In the so-called Christian lands, the children were taught to worship mammon, and fame, and social position, while thoughts of God were excluded.

These facts all prove the corruption of humanity. "We take our children," said the reverend gentleman, "to the theatre, and never think of bringing them to a prayer meeting."

DUST NUISANCE IS UNBEARABLE

"I wish you would call attention to the dust nuisance," remarked a citizen on Hunter street today. "See the great clouds blowing. The fine particles get into my eyes, ears, nose and throat, and I am scarcely able to breathe. I do not see what our watering carts are doing."

VISITOR HERE FOR FALL SPORT

Mr. H. G. Ryason, Birmingham, England, is registered at the Oriental. He will join Mr. A. R. Colville, Campbellford, on a fishing and hunting trip.

No further bodies of Japs or Hindoos will come to Vancouver this year, Mr. W. D. Scott says.

Scoundrel Brought to Time; Was Trapped by Clever Ruse

How Owen Sound Bigamist Was Caught in London.

Swallowed Bait Offered In Bogus Advertisement—Applied For Position as Sawyer—Had Often Expressed Desire to Go South — Alleged to Have Stolen Fur Coat—Was Surprised by the Police.

Owen Sound, Oct. 21.—It was by a clever ruse that Thomas A. Richardson, the alleged thief and bigamist who is wanted here, was arrested yesterday afternoon in London, Ont. Richardson has been a sawyer and sawsetter in lumber mills for a number of years, and when he disappeared from St. Thomas, after the victim of his second matrimonial venture, Miss Weir, was brought home, it was thought that he would make his way out of the province to some other point where the saw mills are numerous.

He had frequently spoken of a desire to go to South America to work in mills there. An advertisement was placed in a daily paper, calling for a competent sawyer and sawsetter to go to South America, fare advanced to acceptable man. Among the replies received was one from "Thomas Alexander," which are Richardson's Christian names. Mr. J. S. Finlay, for whom Richardson had been sawyer and from whom the latter had stolen a fur-lined coat, at once recognized the application as from the man that is wanted. Instructions were wired to the London police, and the arrest followed at the factory in the East-end, where Richardson was working.

Returns From the Far North; Some Experiences While Away

Captain Bernier Reaches Quebec With the Steamer Arctic.

Reports Satisfactory Trip — Has Been Absent Fifteen Months — Tells of Strange People In Remote Parts of the Dominion — Canadian Flag Hoisted on Northern Islands—Saw Many Whales.

Quebec, Oct. 21.—Capt. Bernier, who returned Saturday from the polar seas, has brought back many interesting tales of life and adventure from the Arctic circle. At Pond's Inlet, where the expedition wintered, two Esquimaux, who had picked up a little English from visiting whalers, were taken on board the Arctic as interpreters, but no inhabitants were found farther north than Lancaster and Jones Sounds.

These Esquimaux inhabiting the many northern islands taken possession of for Canada by Capt. Bernier, live almost entirely upon the Arctic seals, their diet being only varied by any fish that they may catch. Their houses and hyacks are made of sealskins, and so is their clothing, and they use the fat and oil for light and fuel. In some localities only musk-oxen and reindeer are found especially on Melville Island.

Polar bears are abundant in many of the waters visited by the expedition, living upon the icebergs and the ice-covered shores of the mainland and island. Thick fog frequently shuts the hunter out from seeing them, but five were seen at one time from the Arctic in Resolution Bay, though, unfortunately, they could not be followed, for the ship had all she could do at the time to clear herself from the ice.

One of the animals killed required nine bullets to despatch, though he was only a few yards from the ship and charged valiantly on the enemy. The carcase measured 8 feet in length.

The northern Esquimaux are all pagans, but exceedingly harmless and kindly disposed towards strangers, and some of them were brought on board the ship to attend religious services, at which the captain was the acting priest. Relics of Esquimaux houses were found on the northern islands, which are no longer inhabited. On the other hand no snow or ice was found on Melville Island during July, August or September.

There are still many whales of different varieties in Baffin's Sea, including the right whale, the carcase of which is valued at $10,000 on an average. The profits of a successful whaling trip are, therefore, very large. Ten Dundee whalers in all were seen by Bernier, who required them all, in accordance with Federal legislation of a few sessions ago, to take out Dominion licenses. The Canadian flag was planted on all the islands visited by the expedition.

WHOLE CREW SAVED.

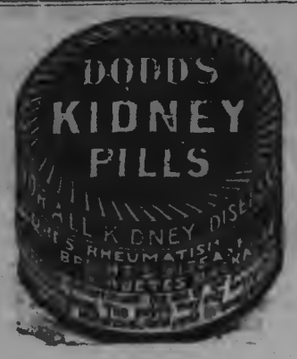
Officer's Noble Deed Averts Terrible Explosion on Connecticut.

New York, Oct. 21.—A terrible disaster on the United States battleship Connecticut was averted by the presence of mind and heroism of Lieut. Wm. Piggott Cronan. According to the story, Lieut. Cronan was in command of one of the eight-inch guns on the Connecticut during recent target practice off New England. As the powder charge was thrust into the gun the lieutenant noticed that from a small hole in the bag a quantity of powder had escaped and fallen into the threads into which the breech-block of the gun screws. Realizing that the action of screwing the breech-block home would ignite the powder before the block could be firmly screwed home causing the entire charge to explode back into the turret, Lieut. Cronan shouted an order which stopped every man in the turret as he stood, except the man who was closing the breech of the gun. He did not hear the shout, and continued to swing the block home.

Lieut. Cronan sprang forward and thrust his hand into the breech of the gun. The breech closed on his hand, badly mangling it, and cleanly cutting off the first finger, which fell into the grooves and caused the closing mechanism to clog. The sailor at the breech of the gun fainted when he discovered what he had done and what he had narrowly escaped doing. If the breech had been closed it is likely that every man in the turret would have been killed.

A board of inquiry was called to determine how the hole came in the powder bag. Lieut. Cronan refuses to discuss the incident.

The jewellery store of M. Simkevitz, Cornwall, was robbed last night.



TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

Gas Expert and Assistant Are Blown to Death.

New Hartford, Conn., Oct. 21.—A machine used in the manufacture of illuminating gas from petroleum in a small structure on the Farmington River, in the upper village, exploded with terrific force Saturday morning and Thomas O'Connell, the maker of gas, and his assistant, Michael Donovan, who were standing nearby, were instantly killed, and George Gagnon, a helper, was seriously hurt.

The building was wrecked.

Only the three men mentioned were in the building.

The reason for the explosion is not apparent.

Thaw Working on Brief.

New York, Oct. 21.—Harry Thaw has been working on a brief to be used by his attorneys at his second trial for the murder of Stanford White, and turned the document over to Martin W. Littleton, his chief counsel, Saturday.

Thaw has had frequent conferences with Russell Peabody and Daniel O'Reilly, two of his counsel.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has recovered her health and visits her husband daily. As she was leaving on Saturday she said Thaw was in good health and spirits.

Crashed Into Freight.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The C. P. R. North Shore train which left Ottawa at 6.20 p. m. Saturday crashed into a heavy freight train which was trying to make the siding at East Templeton. Several cars and one locomotive were badly smashed but fortunately no one was injured. Traffic was blocked for five hours. The Montreal football team were on the train.

Alfonso's Close Call.

Manresa, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso had a narrow escape from a serious accident near here yesterday. In his automobile the King was going over a temporary bridge, when the structure collapsed under the weight of the car, which was precipitated into the river. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

Floater Found at Kingston.

Kingston, Oct. 21.—The body of a man was found in the water near Macdonald Park yesterday afternoon. It was badly decomposed. There was no clothing upon it. The deceased appeared to be about 55 years old and 175 pounds in weight. There is no clue to the man's identity.

NURSE'S AWFUL CRIME

Fourteen-Year-Old Girl Arrested on Charge of Murder.

Killed Six Small Children — Drove Hairpins Into Their Brains Through the Top of Their Heads—Could Not Bear to Hear Them Cry—In Pity Ended Their Sufferings—Was Only Fourteen.

New York, Oct. 21.—The World has received the following cable despatch from Munich, Bavaria: Ida Schnell, a nurse girl, 14 years old, was arrested yesterday, charged with murdering six small children by driving hairpins through the tops of their heads.

The girl confessed, the police say, that she "could not bear to hear children cry," and so, pityingly, ended their suffering. Then she took another situation, and if the children there cried she was equally "merciful."

Her arrest was delayed by the difficulty in proving medically the cause of death of each victim. When the sequence of deaths was established her arrest was inevitable.

WILL MEET 28TH NOVEMBER.

Absence of Ministers In Europe Delays Opening of Parliament.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—At a meeting of the Cabinet Saturday afternoon the date of the opening of Parliament was set for Nov. 28. It had been hoped that the departmental reports and preparation of the legislative program would have been sufficiently advanced by this time to enable Parliament to open on Nov 14 or 21, but unavoidable delays and the absence of several of the Ministers in Europe on business of state during a large part of the summer have resulted in holding back the opening by two weeks.

At Saturday's council the principal question discussed was the mission of Hon. Mr. Lemieux to Japan. It is confidently expected that when Canada's case is presented to the Japanese Government by Mr. Lemieux Japan will consent to abide by the understanding as to a limitation of immigration to Canada in force when the treaty was signed, but it will be made perfectly plain by Mr. Lemieux at Tokio that if the immigration is not limited as desired by Canada, the Government at Ottawa will promptly give the six months' notice necessary to abrogate the treaty. Mr. Lemieux, in order to reach Tokio as quickly as possible, has again changed his plans, and instead of going via London has cancelled his passage on the Virginian for Friday next, and will now go via Vancouver, sailing from that port on the 28th inst., as originally intended.

FATHER AND SON SHOT.

One Dead; Other's Condition Serious —Mistaken For Deer.

Canton, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Martin and Edwin Clohosey, father and son, of Colton, were accidentally shot Saturday evening in a hunting field in the southern part of St. Lawrence County, while deer hunting.

Martin was returning to his home at South Colton, when, about 5.30, he met his son Edwin in one of the runways. They stood face to face talking and were seen by another hunter, James Crowley, who mistook them for deer.

He shot once, the bullet passing through the right arm of one of the men and the left arm of the other. He then shot again, the bullet fired from a 38-calibre rifle, passing through the abdomen of the two men.

Martin died yesterday morning, and the condition of Edwin is serious.

BITSHEK SURRENDERED.

Found Guilty of Attempting to Blackmail Salvation Army.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—Solomon Bitshek, who was found guilty in United States District Court of attempting to blackmail the Salvation Army through threats of publishing a poem written by him in criticism of the army, and entitled "The Salvation Army," and who defaulted and became a fugitive in Toronto, has returned to Boston through the efforts of his bondsmen, and gave himself up to the authorities.

Dragged to Death.

Uxbridge, Oct. 21.—John A. Johnson, who lived on the third concession of Scott, about five miles from here, met with a very peculiar accident on Saturday that caused his death a few hours later.

It appears Mr. Johnson was watering the horses at the pump and in some manner got his leg caught in the tug. The horse becoming frightened, ran away, dragging him for about fifty rods. When found the clothing was all torn from his body, and he was terribly mangled.

Postoffice Robbed.

Brussels, Ont., Oct. 21.—Some time between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning the postoffice was entered by burglars, access being gained by the back window. The safe was blown open and all the contents, consisting of stamps and cash to the value of over $300, were taken.

Woman Burned to Death.

Montreal, Oct. 21—A Mrs. Stephens, living at 519 St. Urgain street, was burned to death at her home Saturday night. The woman was alone in the house at the time, her husband being out, and it is supposed the fire was caused by a lighted candle.

LEFT SIX PASSBOOKS.

Cassie Chadwick Apparently Had $385,000 In Pittsburg Banks.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 21.—The startling statement was made by Nathan Loeser, referee in bankruptcy for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, Saturday, that he had come into possession of six passbooks between Mrs. Chadwick as a depositor and banks in Cleveland and other cities. According to one of these passbooks Mrs. Chadwick was a depositor in the Second National Bank of Pittsburg, on June 10, 1902, to the amount of $305,000, and at intervals during that month for smaller sums. There are no marks indicating that the money has been checked out.

Mr. Loeser said that he has written the Pittsburg bank officials for a full statement of Mrs. Chadwick's dealings with the bank, and that he is also making an investigation concerning the passbooks with local banks.

"Whatever money is found," said Mr. Loeser, "will go to the creditors, and not to relatives of Mrs. Chadwick. I do not care to state just now all of the information that has come to me concerning probable funds belonging to Mrs. Chadwick, but will probably make several trips soon in pursuance of an investigation made necessary by this discovery.

The date of June, 1902, it is said, corresponds with the period in which Mrs. Chadwick is alleged to have had considerable business dealings with the late James W. Friend of Pittsburg. Referee Loeser is of the opinion that Mrs. Chadwick had the money on deposit in Pittsburg when she was arrested, and that she never called for it.

Story Is Denied.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 21.—Thomas W. Walsh, Jr., second vice-president of the Second National Bank of Pittsburg, said yesterday that Mrs. Cassie Chadwick never had an account at the bank.

At the time Mrs. Chadwick is said to have deposited $305,000 Mr. Walsh was cashier of the institution.

TRIED TO BLACKMAIL ACTOR.

Detectives Were Hidden In Room When Money Was Proffered.

New York, Oct. 21.—Hugo O. Voecksh and Frank O. Tornberg were arrested Saturday night at the Astor Theatre on complaint of Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, charged with blackmail.

The arrest followed the publication of a number of stories in which an unnamed "prominent comedian," who is described as "the star of a successful Broadway production," was accused of gross misconduct.

It is said that Voecksh had recently written a number of threatening letters to Hitchcock demanding money, and that he finally called at the theatre last Friday night and demanded $1,000 for the suppression of certain stories which were discreditable to Hitchcock and which Voecksh threatened to have printed unless he received the money. He was asked to call again the next afternoon and was given a ring as security for the money he demanded. He called later and was offered a $1,000 bill, but declined it, saying that he must have now $2,500 in small bills. Detectives were hidden in the room at the time.

HUNTER DROPPED DEAD.

Coroner Summoned as Foul Play Was Suspected—Heart Failure Cause.

St. Catharines, Oct. 21.—Charles Tremeer, moulder, at the McKinnon Sash and Metal Works, while out shooting with a number of fellow workmen on Saturday dropped dead near Martindale Creek. Tremeer's absence was not noticed by his companions for some minutes, and when the body was found, with the gun beside it, foul play was feared, and Coroner Merritt was summoned.

Examination of the body failed to reveal any wounds, and the doctor soon discovered that death was due to heart failure. Tremeer came to this city from Whitby. His mother and sister reside in Toronto.

Wife Goes Insane.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—A despatch from Cincinnati states that the wife of the man named Krakauer, living at 630 Central avenue in that city, became insane on learning of the death of her husband in Toronto.

Krakauer's body was found in a room at the Vendome Hotel, corner Wilton avenue and Yonge street, Friday, with an empty carbolic acid bottle nearby. Among his effect was found an accident policy for $1,000, taken out on Oct. 12.

Letters in his possession indicated that Krakauer was in straitened circumstances financially.

Police to Explore.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Detachments of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police will probably be asked next year to explore the unknown districts of Ungava, Keewatin and Mackenzie, one party striking west from Chesterfield Inlet to Great Slave Lake, and one traversing the territory of southern Keewatin on the west shore of Hudson Bay. In these districts the Indians are subject to no control, and nothing is done to preserve the forest areas.

Killed by Automobile.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Gen. Jas. C. Grindley, an employe of the state comptroller's office at Albany, was struck by an automobile here Saturday, and was so severely injured that he died. The automobile was driven by C. A. Beckford, also of Albany.

Beckford was taken into custody and arranged on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000.

Fatal Railway Collision.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Harry Larson was killed and 10 other persons injured, none fatally, in a head-on collision between two suburban passenger trains on the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, near Grand avenue, Saturday night.

The Waterloo Knitting Company, of Carleton Place, is incorporated, with a capital stock of $250,000.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for chronic kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

FIRE AT SEDGEWICK.

Alberta Town Scorched by Serious Blaze—Two Men Injured.

Sedgewick, Alta., Oct. 21.—Fire broke out on Saturday in the implement warehouse of Matchett and Hampton and completely destroyed the building and contents. The fire spread to the dwelling of C. F. Arkinstall and the newly-completed Massey-Harris warehouse, and destroyed both buildings.

Arkinstall's furniture was saved by citizens by means of hard work with buckets. Fortunately there was no wind or the loss would have been much larger. While trying to save the Massey-Harris building Charles Gammon and Sam McAllister was struck by falling timber and received severe scalp wounds.

Losses follow: Matchell and Hampton, $4,000, insurance, $1,800; Arkinstall, $500, no insurance; Massey-Harris, $400, no insurance.

ATTEMPTED ASSAULT.

Discharged Brakeman Sent to Kingston For Thirty Months.

Tillsonburg, Oct. 21.—James Burns, aged 21, recently discharged from the employ of the M. C. R. as brakeman, was arrested on Friday for an assault on Ada Belle Sitts, aged 13 years, daughter of a prominent farmer. Burns met the girl in a lonely place on the road at noon, and when she raised an outcry attempted to choke her. A farmer named Tillon happened along and overpowered Burns, who was taken before Squire Hole on Saturday. He confessed the assault, and was sentenced to two and one-half years in the penitentiary.

Dog Stopped Steamer.

St. Catharines, Oct. 21.—Acting upon a telegram from the chief of police of Prescott, Chief Parnell Saturday night stopped the steamer Cormna in the new canal at Port Dalhousie to search for a dog said to have been stolen by a deckhand. The purser claimed the dog came aboard at Ogdensburg and that it had been given to a man in Toronto. The purser sent word to return the dog to its owner in Prescott, and the steamed was allowed to continue its journey through the canal.

Sawmill Burned.

Lindsay, Oct. 21.—The Rider & Kitchener sawmill was totally destroyed by fire at 5 o'clock Saturday. The loss is $5,000; insurance only for a small amount. Ten men are out of employment. The mill was formerly the property of the counterfeiter, Burke. It had been running all summer, and it was intended to keep it going for nearly the length of the winter. The mill was a frame one and burned like tinder.

Spoiled Fan-Tan Game.

London, Oct. 21.—A squad of police under Sergt. Birrell made a raid on Quong Wing's laundry at 11.30 o'clock last night and gathered in 50 Chinamen, who were sitting in at a game of fan-tan. The same joint was raided in June last, when the police gathered in $2,000 on the table.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

As I spoke—as she raised her eyes to me—there was a heavy step on the gravel outside, and a man appeared at the window. A little cry burst from Flavia as she sprang back from me. My half finished sentence died on my lips. Sapt stood there, bowing low, but with a stern frown on his face.

"A thousand pardons, sire," said he, "but his eminence the cardinal has waited this quarter of an hour to offer his respectful adieu to your majesty."

I met his eye full and square, and I read in it an angry warning. How long he had been a listener I knew not, but he had come in upon us in the nick of time.

"We must not keep his eminence waiting," said I.

But Flavia, in whose love there lay no shame, with radiant eyes and blushing face held out her hand to Sapt. She said nothing, but no man could have missed her meaning who had ever seen a woman in the exaltation of love. A sour yet sad smile passed over the old soldier's face, and there was tenderness in his voice as, bending to kiss her hand, he said:

"In joy and sorrow, in good times and bad, God save your royal highness!"

He paused and added, glancing at me and drawing himself up to military erectness:

"But before all comes the king—God save the king!"

And Flavia caught at my hand and kissed it, murmuring:

"Amen! Good God, amen!"

We went into the ballroom again. Forced to receive adieus, I was separated from Flavia. Every one when he left me went to her. Sapt was out and in of the throng, and where he had been glances, smiles and whispers were rife. I doubted not that, true to his relentless purpose, he was spreading the news that he had learned. To uphold the crown and beat Black Michael—that was his one resolve. Flavia, myself—aye, and the real king in Zenda—were pieces in his game, and pawns have no business with passions. Not even at the walls of the palace did he stop, for when at last I handed Flavia down the broad marble steps and into her carriage there was a great crowd awaiting us, and we were welcomed with deafening cheers. What could I do? Had I spoken then they would have refused to believe that I was not the king; they might have believed that the king had run mad. By Sapt's devices and my own ungoverned passion I had been forced on, and the way back had closed behind me, and the passion still drove me in the same direction as the devices seduced me. I faced all Strelsau that night as the king and the accepted suitor of the Princess Flavia.

At last, at 3 in the morning, when the cold light of dawning day began to steal in, I was in my dressing room, and Sapt alone was with me. I sat like a man dazed, staring into the fire. He puffed at his pipe. Fritz was gone to bed, having almost refused to speak to me. On the table by me lay a rose. It had been in Flavia's dress, and as we parted she had kissed it and given it to me.

Sapt advanced his hand toward the rose, but with a quick movement I shut mine down upon it.

"That's mine," I said, "not yours—nor the king's either."

"We struck a good blow for the king tonight," said he.

I turned on him fiercely.

"What's to prevent me striking a blow for myself?" I said.

He nodded his head.

"I know what's in your mind," he said. "Yes, lad, but you're bound in honor."

"Have you left me any honor?"

"Oh, come! To play a little trick on a girl"—

"You can spare me that. Colonel Sapt, if you would not have me utterly

"Flavia, I am not"— a villain—if you would not have your king rot in Zenda while Michael and I play for the great stake outside— You follow me?"

"Aye, I follow you."

"We must act, and quickly. You saw tonight, you heard tonight"—

"I did," said he.

"Your cursed acuteness told you what I should do. Well, leave me here a week and there's another problem for you. Do you find the answer?"

"Yes, I find it," he answered, frowning heavily. "But if you did that you'd have to fight me first—and kill me."

"Well, and if I had—or a score of men? I tell you, I could raise all Strelsau on you in an hour and choke you with your lies—yes, your mad lies—in your mouth."

"It's gospel truth," he said. "Thanks to my advice, you could."

"I could marry the princess and send Michael and his brother together to"—

"I'm not denying it, lad," said he.

"Then, in God's name," I cried, stretching out my hands to him, "let us go to Zenda and crush this Michael and bring the king back to his own again."

The old fellow stood and looked at me for full a minute.

"And the princess?" he said.

I bowed my head to meet my hands and crushed the rose between my fingers and my lips.

I felt his hand on my shoulder, and his voice sounded husky as he whispered low in my ear:

"Before God, you're the finest Elphberg of them all. But I have eaten of the king's bread, and I am the king's servant. Come, we will go to Zenda."

And I looked up and caught him by the hand. And the eyes of both of us were wet.

CHAPTER XI.

THE terrible temptation which was assailing me will now be understood. I would so force Michael's hand that he must kill the king. I was in a position to bid him defiance and tighten my grasp on the crown—not for its own sake, but because the king of Ruritania was to wed the Princess Flavia. What of Sapt and Fritz? Ah, but a man cannot be held to write down in cold blood the wild and black thoughts that storm his brain when an uncontrolled passion has battered a breach for them. Yet, unless he sets up as a saint, he need not hate himself for them. He is better employed, as it humbly seems to me, in giving thanks that power to resist was vouchsafed to him than in fretting over wicked impulses which come unsought and extort an unwilling hospitality from the weakness of our nature.

It was a fine bright morning when I walked, unattended, to the princess' house, carrying a nosegay in my hand. Policy made excuses for love, and every attention that I paid her, while it riveted my own chains, bound closer to me the people of the great city, who worshiped her. I found Fritz's inamorata, the Countess Helga, gathering blooms in the garden for her mistress' wear and prevailed on her to take mine in their place. The girl was rosy with happiness, for Fritz, in his turn, had not wasted his evening and no dark shadow hung over his wooing save the hatred which the Duke of Strelsau was known to bear him.

"And that," she said, with a mischievous smile, "your majesty has made of no moment. Yes, I will take the flowers. Shall I tell you, sire, what is the first thing the princess does with them?"

We were talking on a broad terrace that ran along the back of the house, and a window above our heads stood open.

"Madame!" cried the countess merrily, and Flavia herself looked out. I bared my head and bowed. She wore a white gown, and her hair was loosely gathered in a knot. She kissed her hand to me, crying:

"Bring the king up, Helga; I'll give him some coffee."

The countess, with a gay glance, led the way and took me into Flavia's morning room. And, left alone, we greeted one another as lovers are wont. Then the princess laid two letters before me. One was from Black Michael—a most courteous request that she would honor him by spending a day at his castle of Zenda, as had been her custom once a year in the summer, when the place and its gardens were in the height of their great beauty. I threw the letter down in disgust, and Flavia laughed at me. Then, growing grave again, she pointed to the other sheet.

"I don't know who that comes from," she said. "Read it."

I knew in a moment. There was no signature at all this time, but the handwriting was the same as that which had told me of the snare in the summer house. It was Antoinette de Mauban's.

I have no cause to love you [it ran], but God forbid that you should fall into the power of the duke. Accept no invitations of his. Go nowhere without a large guard—a regiment is not too much to make you safe. Show this if you can to him who reigns in Strelsau.

"Why doesn't it say 'the king?'" asked Flavia, leaning over my shoulder so that the ripple of her hair played on my neck. "Is it a hoax?"

"As you value life and more than life, my queen," I said, "obey it to the very letter. A regiment shall camp round your house today. See that you do not go out unless well guarded."

"An order, sire?" she asked, a little rebellious.

"Yes, an order, madame—if you love me."

"Ah!" she cried. And I could not but kiss her.

"You know who sent it?" she asked.

"I guess," said I. "It is from a good friend—and, I fear, an unhappy woman. You must be ill Flavia, and unable to go to Zenda. Make your excuses as cold and formal as you like."

"So you feel strong enough to anger Michael?" she said, with a proud smile.

"I'm strong enough for anything while you are safe," said I.

Soon I tore myself away from her, and then, without consulting Sapt, I took my way to the house of Marshal Strakencz. I had seen something of the old general, and I liked and trusted him. Sapt was less enthusiastic, but I had learned by now that Sapt was best pleased when he could do everything, and jealousy played some part in his views. As things were now, I had more work than Sapt and Fritz could manage, for they must come with me to Zenda, and I wanted a man to guard what I loved most in all the world and suffer me to set about my task of releasing the king with a quiet mind.

The marshal received me with most loyal kindness. To some extent I took him into my confidence. I charged him with the care of the princess, looking him full and significantly in the face as I bade him let no one from her cousin the duke approach her unless he himself were there and a dozen of his men with him.

"You may be right, sire," said he, shaking his gray head sadly. "I have known better men than the duke do worse things than that for love."

I could quite appreciate the remark, but I said:

"There's something beside love, marshal. Love's for the heart. Is there nothing my brother might like for his head?"

"I pray that yes wrong him, sire."

BEER BUILDS BODIES

PURITY

Ontario beers are pure, above all else—far more pure than most of the milk sold in cities, because made under conditions of absolute hygiene.

FOOD-VALUE

Boiled potatoes contain not nearly the nutriment that is in pure beer; milk will not feed most folks so well, nor digest so thoroughly.

LAZY stomachs mean poor digestions—they don't work hard enough to extract the good of one's food.

Beer* is a food-drink that makes the stomach do its work better, because it increases the flow of the digestive juices and gives the stomach muscles more strength to do their work.

Beer* is better for run-down people than medicine; and for thin-blooded people nothing else will enrich the blood so surely and quickly.

Ask your own doctor if you hadn't better drink beer with your meals.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter, and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, duplex beverages made under most hygienic conditions, from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 3

JUROR ATE GUM DROPS.

Candy Made Him Ill and Divorce Case Was Stopped.

New York, Oct. 21.—A juror's fondness for eating candy, which made him ill, brought the Burnett divorce trial to an abrupt adjournment Saturday. The juror was Jacob Regensberg of 2,300 Seventh avenue.

He complained at the morning session of indigestion, and at the lunch hour indiscreetly ate a lot of gum drops.

When court convened after the noon recess, Regensberg was seized with a chill, and Justice Giegerich adjourned the hearing till this morning.

Arthur Humphreys, broker, who is named as the co-respondent, was the interesting witness Saturday.

He testified that he met Mrs. Belle Burnett at the Waldorf-Astoria, being introduced by a stock broker partner. At the request of Mrs. Burnett's mother, he visited the family home, 150 West Eighty-Second street. He explained that they called each other by affectionate names and that the elder Mrs. Burnett often called him "Dearie," "My child," "Arthur dear" and "Darling."

There was a roar of laughter, and the dignified Mrs. Burnett, who is reputed to be worth more than $1,000,000, smiled broadly.

COST NEARLY $3,000,000.

Immense Expenditure Involved at The Hague Conference.

The Hague, Oct. 21.—Now that the International Peace Conference has closed it is interesting to study some of the figures that have been prepared on the cost of the four months session. The general expenses of all the delegates are estimated at $2,970,000, of which $523,600 was spent to pay the cost of 317 dinners, including those given by the various foreign ministers accredited to The Hague. Of all the elaborate dinners given the conference, those of Senor Ruy Barbosa of Brazil were the most expensive, flowers alone sometimes representing an item of $2,000.

The amounts spent by the various delegations, the press associations and individuals newspapers for telegraph tolls, amounted to $225,072. More than a million words of press matter concerning the conference were sent out, of which 30,000 words were sent on the opening day, June 15.

The expenses to the Dutch Government amounted to $112,590.

Suits Against Thaw.

New York, Oct. 21.—Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, the well-known alienist whose testimony formed an important part in the trial of Harry K. Thaw, is preparing to sue the Thaw family for his services.

The suit, which will be for between $6,000 and $7,000, will probably be followed by similar proceedings on the part of all the other alienists employed by Thaw's counsel to testify in his behalf.

In explaining his absence from court Mr. Hartridge made affidavit that private cares (the sensational disappearance of his wife about two weeks ago) had rendered his state of health such that he was unable to leave his home.

Sold Liquor to Minors.

Woodstock, Oct. 21.—At the Police Court Saturday Harry Kumph and William Greenlees, both hotelkeepers of Embro, were fined the minimum penalty, $10 and costs, in all $17.03, for selling intoxicating liquor to minors. P. M. Ball presided. J. C. Makins of Stratford appeared for defendants, and R. N. Ball, K. C., prosecuted. The liquor was sold on Oct. 3, Embro Fair day, during a rush.

Suicide at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Oct. 21.—William Drysdale, a young man, went to the home of his brother, near the corner of Jackson and Wellington streets, last evening and shot himself. He had been drinking. The body was removed to the morgue at the City Hospital.

Two Killed by Natives.

Brussels, Oct. 21.—News has been received that M. Ranewaert, manager of the Concessionare Companies in the Congo Independent State, and another white man were killed by natives during a recent revolt.

Killed In Cement Mill.

Atwood, Ont., Oct. 21.—Felix Vernia was accidentally killed while working in the cement works here Saturday evening. He leaves a wife and family in Germany.

Montreal's exemptions this year total fifty-four million dollars, an increase of twelve million over last year.

WILL ESCAPE DEATH PENALTY.

Execution of Goolds For Trunk Murder Would Injure Casino.

Monte Carlo, Oct. 21.—The trial of the Goolds, husband and wife, for the murder of Mrs. Levin, a Swedish acquaintance, will begin ten days hence.

It is well understood here, however, that neither of them will suffer the death penalty.

"An execution could not take place here," said a high official at the Casino, to a correspondent. "Such a thing is not to be thought of. It would seriously affect the Riviera season, and they would not tolerate such an unpleasant thing at Nice for the same reason. If course the demands of justice should always be satisfied—provided they do not damage the Riviera as a resort for pleasure-seekers. Our undeviating aim here is to associate Monte Carlo with everything gay, brilliant and fascinating in life, and it would be most inconsiderate to our patrons who come here for relaxation, if we opened the season by erecting a guillotine.

"The Goold affair has been grotesquely magnified. It is an ordinary, sordid murder, such as occurs everywhere. We intend to get the trial over quickly, and the culprits will get a few years' imprisonment at Nice, for we have no prison at Monaco. We shall arrange to pay a lump sum for their keep; so, probably, they will be at large in five years if they survive."

The police here say that Madame Goold's eyes have the extraordinary property of gleaming in the dark, like those of a cat. She is declared to be a mysteriously repellant creature, an alcohol-sodden weakling.

Did Taft Mean It?

Manila, Oct. 21.—At a banquet given in his honor in this city Saturday night, United States Secretary of War William H. Taft, made a most significant statement. He was referring to the fact that he had already visited the Philippines three times, and in saying that he purposed to come here again, he used this phraseology: "I hope in another two years to visit Manila again, but then I probably will come as a private citizen."

The significance of Mr. Taft's statement, in view of his probable nomination for the Presidency next year, did not seem to strike his audience.

Will Not Oust Cables.

London, Oct. 21.—(C. A. P.)—Fred Ward, manager of the Commercial Cable Co., speaking to the Canadian Associated Press, said he had as yet not seriously considered the Marconi wireless as even a probable competitor with the Commercial and other cable line companies.

"What I cannot understand," he said, "is that with all the talk of wireless communication over long distances, cables are now being laid for short distances. Marconi has much yet to accomplish before his company can be considered a competitor."

The Hamilton police say drunkenness is increasing in the city.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions o society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity for earning power. In many a home it prevents the dispersion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than than do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business, in times of stress and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

The Sun Life of Canada

Offers a man something as good as gold. Its policies give the maximum of security at the minimum of cost. If you have obligations; if your life means something to others, insurance is for you. Investigate the cost of absolute protection in the SUN OF CANADA.

Construction Gang of Canadian Machine Telephone Company in Lindsay

Mr. W. H. Lytle, foreman of outside construction for the Canadian Machine Telephone Company was in the city over Sunday, on his way from Brantford to Lindsay, where the company is commencing operations in connection with the installation of the system. He left for Lindsay this morning, taking with him W. Trout of this city, and Dan McCabe, of Brantford, formerly of Peterborough, who also spent Sunday here. The Dan McCabe referred to, is none other than the original 'Dan the one-armed hero who used to send the whizzers over the plate, when he pitched on the old Peterborough ball team. He is looking after the stores department of the outside construction work.

Mr. Lytle also had several men from Brantford with him, and will have the force of workmen augmented by some from Lindsay.

Both the overground and underground construction work will commence at once.

More Constables are Badly Needed

Present Police Force Should be Increased to Ten Men

A well known business man called at the Review office today, and stated that, while the present police force did good work, the outlying sections received little or no attention, in spite of the fact that considerable stealing of apples, Chickens, etc., is going on. "Of course, I recognize that a police officer cannot be in three places at once but we, who live in the wards, should have more protection. This city should have at least ten men. Peterborough in some respects should be more progressive. It is false economy to try and get along with four or five constables. We should also have a scavenging system here. It cannot come any too soon, and I hope when a plebiscite is taken on the question at the January elections, it will carry by a good majority."

Bishop of Calgary Here This Morning

Returned From T.C.S. Port Hope on Way to Toronto

The Rt. Rev. Cyprian Pinkham, D. D., was in the city this morning on his way from Port Hope, to Toronto, where he will attend the annual meeting of the Church of England Board of Missions, to be held this month. While in Port Hope he was present at the distribution of prizes presented by His Excellency Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, to those students at T.C.S. who won them by reason of their scholastic standing. The occasion was a most auspicious one, and was attended with much speech-making and congratulations to the winners. His Lordship's youngest son, who is a pupil at T.C.S., was fortunate enough to win one of the prizes. For the past few days the bishop has been the guest of Dr. Rigby, Principal of T.C.S. He speaks highly of the hospitable treatment he received, and enjoyed his visit to Port Hope very much. His Lordship left for Toronto on the 11.16 C.P.R.

Train Was Late This Morning

445 Sandwiches and Hot Coffee Taken to C.P.R. Station

The 5.16 C.P.R. train was about a couple of hours late this morning and the station officials say that the delay was due to the heavy traffic on this road. There were large numbers of people on board and as many of them would not reach their destination until considerably after breakfast time Spence's restaurant received an order for 445 sandwiches and hot coffee. The sandwiches and coffee were taken to the station and served as a breakfast for those ordering impromptu repast.

CHILDREN PLAYING WITH MATCHES CAUSE $5,000 FIRE

House and Barn of Harry Lowes, 14th Concession o Cavan, Destroyed on Saturday.

Children playing with matches were the cause of a disastrous fire at the farm of Harry Lowes, lot 15, in the fourteenth concession of Cavan, on Saturday morning about ten o'clock. A fine brick veneer house and a large modern barn, were burned to the ground entailing a loss of $5000.

It appears that children were playing around the barn with matches, and almost before it was noticed the structure was a mass of flames. The neighbors quickly gathered and worked hard to extinguish the blaze but a strong wind was blowing and their efforts were of no avail. The fire spread to the house and it was completely destroyed. By hard work however, nearly all the furniture was saved, and the cattle were got out of the barn in time to prevent their perishing in the flames.

The house was a new one having been erected this year. The barn had also been fixed up this summer. The total loss is placed at $5,000, with insurance amounting to $2,200.

The fire was a severe blow to Mr. Lowes, but he intends rebuilding at once.

Board of Works Authorizes Sewers on Several Streets

Will be Built on Jackson Avenue and Cedar Street and Several Other Thoroughfares if Requisite Petitions Are Received.

A meeting of the Board of Works was held on Saturday night, when sewers were authorized on Jackson avenue and Cedar street. Several other matters were also dealt with. The city intends keeping at the C.P.R. for the footbridge across the Otonabee at the C.P.R. bridge and also for gates on Aylmer street, where it is crossed by the C.P.R. tracks. The clerk was instructed to write the company regarding these matters.

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Duncan, chairman; Mayor McWilliams, and Ald. Johnston and McIntyre.

A petition was received for a sewer on Jackson avenue, as a local improvement. It was sufficiently signed and on motion of Ald. Johnston and the Mayor, was granted.

It was moved by the Mayor and seconded by Ald. Johnston that the City Engineer be instructed to build the sewer on Jackson avenue from Albert street to the end of Jackson avenue, and on Cedar street, from Cross street west to the foot of the hill and to build the sewer on Rubidge street from Brock to north of Kirk street, and on Hunter street from Water to Queen, provided sufficient petitions are presented.

On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, the clerk was instructed to write the General Superintendent of the C.P.R. again, as to gates at Aylmer street, and also in regard to the footbridge.

Mr. R. Wright waited on the Board and asked for a sidewalk on the east side of Jackson avenue. This sidewalk was authorized some time ago, and will be put down this fall.

A communication was received from G. W. Bennett, enclosing a letter from Mr. Stewart and Mr. Smithson, in connection with the condition of Lansdowne street.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by the Mayor that the clerk write the clerk of North Monaghan, that the city intends building new sidewalk on the street, and that then the street will be fixed.

A letter was received from W. H. Moore, voting for John Irwin, 365 King street, in regard to the condition of this thoroughfare.

The matter will receive attention.

Company Find it Necessary To Secure Larger Premises

It is learned that the German Card Company, whose factory is at present located at the corner of Dublin and Bethune streets, intend securing larger premises in the near future. They find that the accommodation of their present location is not sufficient as the business has prospered since it was established a little over a year ago, and more room is needed. The company manufacture high-grade cardboard by a new process, and the goods turned out have met with ready sale.

It is probable that a new factory will be built, but at any rate, larger premises have to be secured at an early date.

More Information Regarding Estate of Late Dr. Campbell

Brother of the Deceased Explains His Position in a Letter to the Buffalo Times.

Below is found a letter taken from the Buffalo Times of October 16th, written by Rev. Jas. Campbell, referring to some matters in connection with the estate of the late Dr. Campbell. It is published at the request of Rev. Mr. Campbell:

As one of the papers has given over a column to the matter, perhaps you and your readers would be interested to know the real issue and facts involved in the litigation now pending over the estate of my late brother, Dr. Robert E. Campbell. Indeed, I fail that it is only right to others who may be in the same situation at any time to know what happens when a man dies there suddenly and intestate in the absence of the relatives. Dr. Campbell was taken taken suddenly ill at a hotel in Buffalo, where he was living on May 27, 1907, and Dr. Edward N. Pfohl was called to attend him. On the same day and before Dr. Pfohl had called again Dr. Campbell died, immediately after which Dr. Pfohl came again and took possession of his person and effects. Dr. Pfohl then employed an undertaker who took charge of the body and subsequently put in a bill of $1,800, of which only $30 was expended for a lot. Before the funeral and on the 29th day of May, 1907, Dr. Pfohl filed a petition in the Surrogate's Court to have himself appointed administrator of the estate on the ground that he was a creditor in the sum of $6,000 for medical services, and asking that a citation to the relatives be dispensed with as none of them lived within the State of New York. Not one of the relatives except the sister of the nephew who came there had any notice or knowledge of Dr. Campbell's death, his funeral or the proceedings for administration though some of them live in Toronto, and Dr. Pfohl being in possession of all Dr. Campbell's papers could easily have reached them. No reason whatever was alleged or shown why such unusually haste was necessary. As appears from the papers in the case, Dr. Pfohl and his attorney both knew that I was a brother of the deceased, and lived in San Francisco.

The law of New York, as of most other States, provides that administration must be granted to relatives in the order of their relationship, provided they are citizens of the United States and not disqualified. I, being the only brother of Dr. Campbell, who was a citizen of the United States, had the absolute right to the administration of this estate, and had I been notified and appeared the Surrogate could not have appointed any one else. As soon as I heard of my brother's death, which was some two weeks later, I came to Buffalo and made application to the Surrogate to revoke the letters granted to Dr. Pfohl under these circumstances and give back to me the right which had been taken away behind my back.

The Surrogate, however, felt obliged to hold that having once appointed Dr. Pfohl he could not remove him. I was entitled absolutely, if I had been here, both morally and legally, to the administration of the estate. The suggestion made by Dr. Pfohl's attorney, as quoted in the paper that my only interest in this matter, was to get the fees, is ridiculous and absurd on its face, and comes with very ill grace from the attorney of the man who grabbed the estate in the manner above described, with no other possible purpose or interest. I can't believe that this sort of thing is intended by your law or will be approved by your courts of last resort. If, I can end this baneful practice I shall do a good thing for the community, and other non-residents of the United States, as well as accomplish what I consider to be my duty in this case. Those are my only objects in this litigation. I shall give whatever fees come out of it to charity.

I had serious provocation, having waited here in Buffalo over 90 days, trying to get what seemed to me my simple right, only to be told by Dr. Pfohl's counsel in open court, that my object was to get a small sum in fees.

The Judge of the Surrogate Court did not give his decision re the removal of the administrator for over sixty days, until it was too late to reach the Appellate Court at its first meeting, and in my application to restrain the administrator from paying those infamous bills, pending the decision of the Appellate Court, the judge seemed to hesitate again. My remark, aside, to the lying counsel of the administrator, and repeated by him to the "high and mighty" judge, viz., "we have a quicker way with thieves in San Francisco," brought a decision instanter, with a rap of his official knocker, adverse to me, but expected after long delay otherwise.

The above pungent remark was before the court's decision was given, and not after, as reported in the press.

I came from California at the urgent and repeated request of other heirs, my nephews and nieces, most of whom have since signed a request for my substitution as administrator and at great sacrifice to myself and loss to several thousand inmates of hospitals and other public institutions in San Francisco, to whom I have for many years given my time and my surplus income, without salary.

Yours very truly,
JAS. CAMPBELL, M.A.

COAL WILL NOT GO ANY HIGHER

General Consensus of Opinion Among Dealers

A Toronto papers says:

The general consensus of opinion among coal dealers in Toronto seems to be that coal will not advance beyond $7.25 a ton, which has been the ruling price for some time. However, there are none so bold as to predict that there will be any decrease in the price in the immediate future. In this connection it was stated, on excellent authority yesterday, that at present coal costs Toronto dealers $5.5h on car in this city. It was claimed that the cost for delivering this coal varies all the way from 80 cents to 1.50 a ton. Besides there is other work, such as screening, to be taken into account before the question of profit is considered. One dealer said that there is coal being delivered in Toronto today at from $6.25 to $6.75 a ton, which was ordered by the consumers last spring, and for which the dealer had to pay the increased October prices.

With reference to the question of the price of coal the mayor said yesterday, that a coal dealer had told him that all the profit he made was 25 cents a ton, and the price of coal was controlled at the mines. His Worship said if the public feeling seemed to warrant it, he would ask the Board of Control to recommend that the City Council ask the Government to appoint a commission to investigate the question. However, at present he did not think the public feeling in favor of this course sufficiently strong for him to move in the matter.

MANY FARMERS ENTER PROTEST

Against Increased Rate for Post Office Boxes—Call it an Injustice

The announcement that the rent of post office boxes is to be increased from $3 to $4 per year, has brought forth a storm of protest from the farmers living in the vicinity of the city. The feeling on the matter is so strong that steps are likely to be taken to place the matter before the Postmaster-General, with the object of having the injustice removed.

Practically all the farmers within a radius of three miles of the city, receive their mail at the Peterborough post office, the majority of them having boxes. A gentleman who is in a position to know, informed the Review on Saturday that the majority of the farmers would give up their boxes if they had to pay $4 per annum, and would receive their mail at the general delivery.

While the post office department are no doubt right in wanting to do away with the boxes as far as city people are concerned, in order that the delivery system may be carried out in a more efficient manner, they should make provision ofor the farmers who do not enjoy the advantages of free delivery. There is no reason why the farmers should suffer because the department desire to have all mail in the city delivered. The matter can be easily remedied by allowing those living outside the corporation to have the boxes at the old rate, and charging those residing within the city limits the higher fee.

$740. for One Load of Seed!

Smith Township Farmer Gets Record Price for Alsike Clover Seed

$740.00 for one load of seed!

This statement is apt to make the average man sit up and take notice. And it's no fairy tale either. The man with the load was Mr. George Simpson, who resides on the 3rd concession of Smith, and the purchaser was Mr. J. A. Storey, who bought the seed for the firm of Storey & Leary.

The seed was that of Alsike Clover and the load that brought $740 was the product of nine acres of Mr Simpson's farm. The load was not a remarkably large one either, and was brought to the city on an ordinary farm waggon.

The Review may be mistaken when it says that this was the most valuable load of farm produce ever brought to Peterborough, but it's going to venture the statement at any rate.

Asked if the seed was good, Mr. Storey replied that the crop was too good for the seed to be bad.

AN ADDITION TO SCHOOL HOUSE

Classes too Large for Miss Hamilton, the Teacher in Charge, to Instruct Alone

Notices asking for tenders for the building of an addition to May's school house S. S. No. 2 North Monaghan, have been published in local papers and, according to Mr. G. H. May, the secretary-treasurer of the section, it is expected that the work will be started on Monday next. It was decided to take this step at the last meeting of the ratepayers on September 17th. The matter has been left in the hands of the trustees Messrs. A. G. Webber, D Johnston and A. Saunders. Tenders will be received at Secretary May's residence at Lansdowne avenue, until October 28th. At the meeting, Mr J Coyle Brown, rural school inspector, took occasion to remark that May's school house was one of the finest equipped, one-roomed school houses in the county.

It is large enough to accommodate all the scholars, as far as seating them is concerned, but the class is too large for Miss Hamilton, the teacher to instruct, without an assistant, so the new addition, which will consist of a commodious and well ventilated room was regarded as necessary, and an assistant for Miss Hamilton, the principal, will have to be secured. The assistant will instruct the Part I. and Part II. classes.

It is expected that the work will be completed by the first of December. Mr. W. Blackwell is the architect in charge.

Kingston, Oct. 20.—Kingston bakers are not raising the price of bread, but are reducing the weight of the loaf. Five years ago, a four-pound loaf was sold for ten cents, then a half-pound was taken off, and the price maintained at 10 cents; now another half-pound goes, and 2 1-2 pounds of bread, will hereafter be sold at 10 cents. At this rate the old four-pound loaf is worth 16 cents or 8 cents the half loaf.

George Heffernan Aged 19 Meets With Terrible Death

Had Both Legs Taken Off and Died in Hospital at Blind River—Was Well Known in This City and Left to Enter Employ of Sheppard's Lumber Camp Last September—No Particulars Concerning the Fatality.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Patrick Heffernan, 610 Reid street, at the corner of Edinburg, received the shocking intelligence by telegram that his 19 year old son George was lying in the hospital at Blind River, Sault Ste. Marie, with both his feet cut off and in a very dangerous condition. The telegram also stated that the young fellow was not expected to live. This morning they received another message saying that the unfortunate youth had passed away at four minutes after eleven last night. The deceased was employed prior to the fatal accident in Sheppard's Lumber camp on the North shore, but whether he met his death there or some other place and by what means is not known to his father as the telegram he received simply made bare announcement of the accident that befell his son and of his subsequent death. Mr. Heffernan and his wife and family are naturally grief stricken at the suddenness and awfulness of the calamity. Mr. Heffernan has wired to North Bay two or three times instructing the authorities of the hospital to forward the body here, but up to two o'clock this afternoon had received no reply to his telegrams. Mr. Heffernan said he may decide to personally go to Blind River to make arrangements in connection with the forwarding of the body to Peterborough.

The late George Heffernan was 19 years of age on June 30th last and was employed for about three years before he left this city for the lumber camps, as took fitter at the Peterborough Lock Works. He thought he would like to work in a lumber camp for this variety and his offered and consequently went to Sheppard's lumber camp on September 12th. Since then he has written home frequently, the last letter he wrote being dated on Friday last the 18th, and was received here on Saturday. He stated in the letter that he thought he would be home soon.

He is survived by his father and mother, two sisters Mrs. O. Tremaine, Smith Street, and Della at home, and three brothers, John, William and James.

Interment will take place in St. Peter's cemetery after the remains reach the city, but no definite arrangements will be made until they arrive.

Four Cars Left Track Near Keene

Auxiliary Brought Down From Lindsay to Clear the Line

Four cars, loaded with wheat, attached to a double header freight train, left the track four miles east of Keene, yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock. The cause of them being ditched is attributed to the rapidity with which the train was moving. The auxiliary train in charge of Mr. J. Irwin, soon arrived from Lindsay and commenced clearing up the wreck. Before the cars could again be placed on the track it was necessary to unload the wheat and place it in other cars. The line was cleared in time for the regular from Belleville to pass this morning. Fortunately no one was injured.

The Wild Geese Homeward Fly

Large Flocks Pass Over the City on Way to the South

"When the wild geese homeward fly," may not sound as poetic as "When the swallows homeward fly," but, nevertheless, the geese are getting there just the same. Yesterday morning about seven o'clock, two large flocks of wild geese passed southward in the vicinity of Jackson Park, and a large flock passed over in the same locality on Saturday morning at an early hour. There would be about a hundred geese in each of the flocks that passed yesterday morning, and as they were flying low the "honk honk" of the birds could be heard quite distinctly. They travelled in a V. shaped formation, with the younger birds in the centre of the two extended lines.

The geese have spent the summer at the northern lakes and, like the American tourists, go back to the south for the winter.

Canada's Gravest Responsibility Is the Quality of Her Population

The White Race is Bound to Rule and to Lead—More to be Feared From Danger of White Peril Within Than the Yellow Peril Without—Urgency of the Call for Meeting the Religious Requirements and Work of the Church in the West Forcibly Pointed Out by Rev. Dr. Talling in St. Paul's Church.

"Canada's gravest responsibility is not in agriculture, or commerce, or finance. It is in the quality and type of her population; not material things, but people. Material interests are not first in the character of her nationhood. Emmerson was never nearer the mark than when he said, "England's greatest achievement is the production of her type of manhood."

Thus spoke Rev. Dr. Talling in an impressive, patriotic sermon in St. Paul's church Sunday morning on the subject of "Canada's Greatest Responsibility."

"Some," he continued, "might say that Canada's gravest responsibility was her agricultural interests, for the Dominion is pre-eminently an agricultural country. Two-thirds of the wheat belt of the continent is her's. Some might say her mines, her timber, her pulpwood. No, these like her agricultural interests, are safe. Others say, that transportation should be first, and that what is needed are canals and railways and additional facilities of trade. None of these should rank first. Canada's supreme responsibility is in the quality and type of her population.

Canada has recently become a nation. Her cradle has been relegated to the lumber room and to the pages of history. She stands a youth among the nations, not separated from the Mother Country, but "daughter in her mother's house, she is mistress of her own." Britain's responsibility is her dominant place on the sea and to defend herself against the gangrene among the submerged elements. Russia's problem is material development and a struggle for the liberty of her people; China's responsibility is internal reorganization, which, like Russia, includes a religious revolution. Canada has a better chance than any country on the globe in the part of nation building and can avoid those difficulties which have been insuperable with other countries and profit by their experiences.

TWO DANGERS.

Dr. Talling, continuing, said that the success of Canada was threatened by two dangers. One was immigration. This had now touched over the 200,000 mark per year, and in a few years immigration would reach half a million, besides the natural increase in population. The coming of the Doukhobors, Galicians, Poles, Italians and Hindoos constituted problem enough with the fact that many of them were ignorant, with low conceptions of religion, citizenship, etc., but we had more to fear from a colony of 6,000 or 7,000 Mormons in the West, who are increasing, and likely to establish a kingdom within a kingdom.

ORIENTAL INVASION.

Touching upon Oriental invasion, Dr. Talling added; "I do not believe we should feel an irrational fear regarding the influx of the Oriental. We need hewers of wood, and if the lordly, intellectual white man will not do certain kinds of work, some one must do it. We must have our railways built and canals dug and our sewers laid. We have more to fear from the white peril within than we have from the yellow peril without. People, black and yellow, can never blend with the whites. The nation seems to put her ban on that. But cross fertilization of races is necessary to preserve the virility and development of the race. The whites are getting that as the colored races are not, and the whites by every dominance of quality are destined to hold first place. The white man must do that. Canada must realize that right here is the battle ground, made so by the actual coming and presence of the Orientals. We cannot keep them out; we must surpass them. The East and West is in competition, and the battle will go to the strong. Canada, by the very nature of her position, by reason of her broad acres and vast expanse, will not be able to keep out the Orientals.

ANOTHER MENACE.

There is one other danger to face—notu like that of the American West in 1849, but the violation of financial laws, excessive speculation, exploitation of doubtful financial schemes, etc. Then there are loose living and reckless excesses, not in immorality alone alone, but in luxuries as well. We want a firm administration of the law and clean politics.

How can Canada meet the situation is the problem that the church of Canada asks her people to consider today. There is too much impurity in politics and laxity in trade and in social life.

The splendid interests of the nation rest with the church.

Dr. Talling quoted some interesting statistics to show the Greatness of Canada, and said she possessed three-quarters of the wheat belt of the continent, and that Canada led the world in asbestos, pulpwood and water power. Canada was on the path between the Orient and Europe, with two great transcontinental railways. The geographical situation of the Dominion required a hardy race and would produce it. With a hardy, pure people the Dominion stands invincible. Already we have provided law and order, schools and churches for the West. Loyalty demands that we do for this pioneer land what Britain and the missionary did for our pioneer land. The very greatness of the work constitutes an appeal. Every man should have a personal interest in home missions.

AN URGENT CALL.

A man should feed his own family before distributing to strangers, but he should not see strangers starve. If we fail to provide for the West in the matter of religious facilities and work, no one else will do it. We have the largest field and heaviest responsibility ever laid on a country of our size. It is a solid and solemn reality. The Presbyterian church has done its noble share, but the crisis is on us.

Today is the critical period of Home Mission work. Every dollar invested now will return a thousand fold when the country becomes developed. The population is pouring in. The supreme appeal for this work is loyalty to God. God has laid upon the Christian church the conquest of the world, and the best investment of missionary funds is in Home Missions.

What is St. Paul's Church doing in the matter of this supreme appeal? According to figures from the clerk of the session, out of some 780 communicants, only 110 contribute by envelope to the schemes of the church. There is a considerable falling off in contributions of 1907 as compared with those of the corresponding date of 1906. The estimated expenditure of the Home Mission Committee, Western Section, is about $40,000 in excess of the total sum contributed last year for Home Mission purposes. A question very materially arises in connection with this matter; "Will St. Paul's church members and adherents willingly and heartily bear their share of this responsibility resting upon them and provide for a just proportion of the money required for the Home Mission and other work a rapidly expanding in the western section of the church?

SPECIAL SERMONS ATTRACT CROWDS

Large Number Hear Second of Series of Sermons to Young Men

At George street church last night, Rev. Mr. Pearson gave the second of his series of sermons to young men the subject of his discourse being "The Call of the City." The church was again crowded and the words of the reverend gentleman were followed with deep interest. After referring to the drift that had always been from the country to the city, the cities being recruited from the country, villages and towns, Mr. Pearson dealt with the different conditions in the two spheres, making the point that there were many more temptations that the young man had to resist in the city than in the districts. He did not mean to imply that there was no sin in the country, for Satin was everywhere, and his wiles always had to be fought against. There was no reason, however, why a young man should not lead a Christian life in the city. If Christ was accepted and his teachings followed there would be no going astray.

This speaker dwelt with the importance of having the home life right so that when the sons and daughters went forth into the world the wise counsel of the loving father and mother would not be forgotten.

Rev. Mr. Major Critizes Letter Concerning Sermon

Says Person Who Wrote it Was Unfamiliar With Facts —Second of Series of Sermons on Heaven.

In the second of the series of his sermons on Heaven, at All Saints' church last night, Rev. Mr. Major, stated that the letter appearing in the local papers commenting on his sermon said the writer of the letter apparently got his basis for his communication from the reports of his sermon in the press and not from what he actually stated. He also inferred from the correspondent's remarks that he did not hear the sermon preached. Mr. Major said he had no desire to enter into any controversy and never under circumstances replied to a letter in the papers. He remarked that the letter was a very peculiar one and stated that what he really said was that we should have material bodies "after the resurrection," and not simply "after death." He further said that he never mentioned that Paul or Lazarous were ever in Heaven in their earthly bodies. With reference to Paul's visit to the "Celestial City" as the writer of the letter expressed it, Mr. Major said that if the former knew his Bible he would see that it was stated in the Scriptures that Paul was caught up into the third heaven. He said that judging from the tone of some of the statements he would not be surprised if the writer were a Christian Scientist.

As far as the Review is concerned it is still of the opinion that it reported Mr. Major's sermon correctly in the essential details and concerning our state after death. The report reads in part:

"The Lord Jesus Christ has a material body. Enoch and Elijah were transfigured to Heaven without seeing death, and so like them shall have material bodies after the resurrection and must therefore have a material place in which to dwell."

In the second of his series of sermons on Heaven, Mr. Major used the same text he did last Sunday, from Matthew 18-10, "In Heaven."

"We feel as sure of the existence of heaven," he said, "as Columbus felt of America, when he crossed the Atlantic."

It is quite natural that we should desire to know something of its inhabitants. The most high in Heaven, is its Sovereign, God. There is no doubt that there is a God for the Bible states that it is only the fool, who says in his own heart "there is no God." God is not a mere influence, which is diffused through space. God is a real, personal being, who knows, who loves, who rules, who nots. There never was a time, when He was not, and there never will be a time when he will cease to be. The preacher then went on to say there was no human being, who could ever comprehend the mysteries concerning God. The finite mind could never hope to understand the infinite. It is impossible for us to grasp the doctrine of the Holy Trinity. God exists, and though we cannot see Him now, we shall some day see Him face to face in Heaven.

LAW OF SUBORDINATION.

The law of subordination is traceable in all plant, animal and human life. Different ranks also exist among the occupants of heaven. The last link in the glorious chain which binds the Creator to all he has created, are the cherubim, who differ greatly from the popular conception of them. They are not merely little child-like winged creatures, but are majestic and glorious beings, carrying out the will of God. The speaker told of their exalted position in heaven and of their great splendor and power.

"If the servants," he said, "are so magnificent and glorious what must the King Himself be?"

Canadian General Had Fine Exhibit at Electrical Show

Referring to the exhibit of the Canadian General Electric Company at the first annual show of the Canadian Electrical Exhibition Company at Montreal, September 2—14, the Canadian Electrical News says;

"Probably the most popular exhibit at the show was that of the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, largely owing to the fact that in their modern kitchen viands were given away and coffee served, all cooked by electricity. Every cooking device needed in a household was ably demonstrated by a corps of enthusiastic young ladies, who dispensed coffee with their descriptions of electric ovens, chaffing dishes, frying pans, disc heaters, cereal boilers, corn poppers, sad irons, water heaters, curling iron heaters, etc.

Next to the kitchen was seen a sewing machine riven by an electric motor, which may be attached to any house circuit. Portable electric drills for alternating current and a special fan for forcing a fine spray of water to humidify the atmosphere, were among the novelties.

Tables were covered with samples of electric devices of all kinds; one table contained a large piece of crude rubber, which was used to insulate the many-colored finished cords and wires shown in profuse variety; another contained incandescent lamps in all stages of manufacture, from the glass bulb and cellulose filament to the finished lamp.

Electric motors of many kinds were shown, all connected so as to show their actual working, one of which made a record on paper of the actual current used every minute of the day, and another in which it was necessary to deposit a ten cent piece before you could obtain an equivalent amount of current. At the further end was seen a train of seven direct current motors being operated from the alternating current circuit, through the medium of a mercury arc rectifier. Distributed through the exhibit were a number of handsome stands, each containing three arc lamps of new and artistic designs.

The whole was lighted by groups of high efficiency incandescent lamps, including the well known G. E. M. lamp of different sizes, and the new Tungsten lamp, giving a most brilliant light on a small consumption of current. The most attractive lamp was the German Nernst, emitting a beautiful white light and fixed in most artistic holders. Above were hung the new C. G. E. flaming arcs burning 700 hours with one trimming.

On another aisle was the overflow exhibit, comprising a full line of type H transformers from 600 watts to 50 kw., and a mammoth 200 kw. for central station work. Here a 1,000 pound electric hoist for warehouses attracted much attention, lifting a steam pipe, of which there were several shown, made by the Canadian Foundry Company, Limited, as well as a complete line of Buda jacks and track drills.

Two Chicken Thieves Caught Red Handed on Sherbrooke St.

Were Killing Fowl in Jonn Williams' Yard When the Owner Discovered Them—Lively Chase After the Youthful Culprits Who Were Each Sentenced to Two Months in Gaol To-day.

For stealing three chickens from John Williams on Saturday afternoon, Wesley Crouter and Roy Scriver were each sentenced to two months in the county gaol this morning at the police court. Crouter was also fined six dollars to be paid forthwith or twenty days in gaol to run concurrently with his other sentence for assaulting Mr. Williams.

This bold-faced act of thieving took place on Saturday afternoon between three and four o'clock on Mr John Williams' premises, Sherbrooke street. On going out in his yard Mr Williams saw the two prisoners, with large clubs in their hands, two dead chickens, and another almost killed. The men stumbled to run when they saw that they were found out but they were closely followed by Mr. Williams. He caught Scriver and held him down. Crouter threatened to knock his brains out if he did not let him up. Crouter hit Williams several times on the head and hands. Letting Scriver up Williams went and phoned the police and then followed the thieves on his bicycle. Police Constables Newhall and McGinty were soon on the chase, and finally arrested the two near the C. G.E. works.

This morning both pleaded guilty. Crouter's father asked for ten days in which to pay the fine, but His Worship replied that he would give ten minutes.

On the charge of theft, his Worship gave the accused each two months in gaol, remarking that it was time these young men were stopped in their courses. Both have been out on suspended sentence, and have appeared on numerous occasions in the police court.

Several citizens have complained lately of having their poultry stolen, and it is the intention of the police to get after all the chicken thieves, of whom, it is said, there are a number in the city.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY

Chas. Cassidy will spend the next ten days at Castle Nesbitt. He pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly, and was fined two dollars to be paid forthwith. He had not the two-spot, so was obliged to take the other alternative—ten days on the hill.

STRANGERS NOT WELL TREATED

A gentleman from Toronto, who has been in the city on a business visit for the past few days says that he is very indignant with the way strangers are treated in a church that he attended last Sunday. He says he counted forty people in the church, who had not been supplied with hymn books. "I think people should be warmly received when they visit a church, and not slighted and shown no consideration whatever," he said.

MRS. F. BURT.

Minden village is again visited by the messenger of death, and Mrs. Frederick Burt was the person called to join the great number who have passed to the glory world, just a little sooner than we who remain, says the Minden Echo. She never entirely took to her bed, however, until a few hours before the end of life, but walked about at times. It is notable that she was born on the 15th of October, married on the 15th of October 19 years ago, and died on the 15th of October, at the age of 49 years 1 day. She is survived by her husband and an aged mother, who has lived with the daughter, now deceased, ever since their residence in Minden. An only sister resides in Glasgow, Scotland, and there is a brother in British Columbia.

THE WAR SCARE

Nothing could be more foolish than the attempt on the part of certain agencies in the United States to lash the public into a war scare. Two interests seem to be concerned in the conspiracy: one a stock market interest which is engaged in hammering stocks downwards, and in making profit thereby, the other a political interest, which is engaged in attempting to create a situation in which prostration before the strong man armed becomes an apparent necessity. The conspiracy for such, it really appears to be, is more likely to be injurious than any other of our time, says the Toronto News. It is idle to talk of secret information about the supply of armament to Japan. Japan has become a military nation, and is under the necessity of maintaining her military position in the East. Her armament must be kept up, in order to resist when the time comes any attempt on the part of Russia to recapture her lost ground. Although Japanese ambitions are no doubt, unbounded, yet there is no sign whatever on her part of any present desire to try conclusions with any western power, other than Russia.

As a matter of fact, she cannot do it. If she tried to do so by gratuitous provocation, she might find that East is East, and West is West, and that for another quarter or a century at least, the West has by far the predominance of fighting power. No evidence has as yet been made public to justify the conclusion that Japan has any design on the Asiatic territory of any European power other than Russia, or upon the Asiatic possessions of the United States.

The fresh announcements of the movement of ships to the Pacific with this object of checking Japan are thus gratuitous attempts to create a situation in which war might take place. So far as the friction between the United States and Japan arose out of the San Francisco difficulties that is a thing of the past. Although public opinion in Japan seems to have been excited, it does not seem to have been so at any time, to a dangerous pitch. The difficulty has been transferred to this country, and steps are being taken to settle it in an amicable manner. The interference of the United States in the situation would almost inevitably turn out to be a gaucherie of the most extraordinary kind. If President Roosevelt contemplates an Eastern naval adventure with the object of strengthening his political position, he ought at once to return the Nobel prize as a common act of justice. Nothing has come to light since the close of the Russo-Japanese war that has otherwise than strongly confirmed the conclusion that both parties were exhausted by the struggle, and that they are not yet, either of them, in a position economically or otherwise to enter upon another campaign.

If the new diplomacy consists in flimsy demonstrations and disregard of historical facts, we may well pray to be saved from the new diplomatists. It may be that some day the white races will have to fight the yellow ones, but this Armageddon is not in sight and the longer it is postponed the better. There never was a time when cool and cautious diplomacy was more necessary. Great Britain with her great interest in India and Egypt has much to gain by keeping the peace, but the general interests of humanity would suffer incalculably by a renewal of conflict at the present hour.

This Pet Dog Showed Sagacity

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Left in Columbus Ohio, more than three hundred miles away, on March 13 last, Trix, a pet dog owned by May Clark, aged 16 years of 235 North Clark street, was found here yesterday, and discovered his mistress, having made one of the most remarkable journeys performed by an animal, on record, and accomplished the additional feat of singling out the family with whom he formerly lived from among 2,000,000 other persons. When Miss Clark came out of a restaurant the dog was sitting wan and gaunt, in front of her lodgings.

THE EQUALIZATION OF TWEED WAS RAISED

The equilization court had a sitting on Monday at the village of Tweed to consider the assessment and equalization of that village, and also the township of Hungerford. The result was that the equalization of Tweed was raised a considerable amount, but in the case of the township judgment was deferred. The next sitting of the court will be in Madoc village on November 6, to include the village and township of Madoc.

GOOD HOME RECIPE

Says Any One Can Prepare It, and Knows Nothing Better.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well known authority. Every man, woman and child here should dress as warmly as possibly, and, above all else, keep the feet dry. Avoid colds and exposure, and don't become constipated.

Rheumatism is strictly a blood disease caused by inactive kidneys, which, through cold or exposure or improper diet, fail in their duty of filtering the rhumatic poisons from the blood. The poisonous waste matter uric acid, oxilate of lime, urea, etc., if not strained from the blood promptly, decomposes and settles about the joints and muscles, causing rheumatic disease.

In damp or chilly cold weather the kidneys are made to do double work. The pores of the skin all over the body do not assist in eliminating the poisons of the body, throwing this work to the kidneys, which become clogged and feeble, thus causing not only rheumatism, but all forms of kidney troubles, backache, weak bladder and urinary troubles, and sometimes terrible blood disorders.

At the first sign of any of these troubles the following simple prescription should be mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Any good pharmacy can supply these ingredients, and all the mixing required is to shake well in a bottle.

WAS ELECTED TO A COMMITTEE

AMUSEMENTS

THE BONNIE BRIER BUSH.

The play made famous by the veteran actor, J. H. Stoddart, "The Bonnie Brier Bush," will be presented at the Grand on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 25 and 26, with the original production and a number of the original cast.

Since Mr. Stoddart's retirement, this part of the stern old Scottish elder Lachlan Campbell has been played by J. Palmer Collins, who was for three season's Mr. Stoddart's understudy in the part. While Mr. Collins is Mr. Stoddart's junior by twenty years, he brings to the part ripe experience, coupled with a closer observation of the older and more widely known gentleman's familiar methods, and his performance this season, has received favorable mention from coast to coast.

Able Address on New Zealand

Dr. J. M. Bell Interestingly Describes the New Dominion

The Canadian Club of Perth after enjoying the usual holiday during the hot months, says the Perth Expositor, began its autumn and winter series of monthly meetings last Monday evening when the town hall was filled to the doors and the large audience enjoyed an illustrated description of his "Explorations in the Hinterland of New Zealand," by J. M. Bell, Ph.D., F.R.G.S., director of the geological survey for New Zealand. Mr. J. A. Stewart, President of the Club, presided, as chairman, and in his introductory remarks called attention to the many young Canadians who had risen to eminence in the British Empire, in the realms of science, art, literature, politics, etc., and spoke of the lecturer of the evening as one of the most successful of them all in his chosen life work, that of explorer and geologist. Being a Lanark County representative — an Almonte boy — the people of this county, took an especial interest and a good deal of pride in Dr. Bell's rapid advance to the topmost rung of the ladder; and after this visit the interest of the Perth people would doubtless be accentuated, and his future career would be watched with increased pleasure. On coming forward Dr. Bell was given a hearty reception, and after a reference to the pleasure he had in visiting the beautiful town of Perth, on his present tour around this world, he at once plunged into his subject, and for an hour and a quarter, with the aid of one hundred limelight views, thrown on a large canvas, described in graphic terms the people of New Zealand, its industries, scenery and resources, and dwelt exhaustively and entertainingly on the exploratory trips made by his parties over the hinterland of the new Dominion of New Zealand. The magnificent views of forests, lakes, flora, and particularly of the immense mountains, geysers, glaciers, and some of its famous volcanoes, gave the audience an excellent idea of what the exploring parties saw in their difficult trips over this hitherto unexplored regions of their colony; while the exciting and dangerous experiences related by this speaker showed what thrilling positions they are placed in at times by the great snowstorms that overtook them. Dr. Bell possesses an easy fluency, and clear enunciation, and while he makes no pretensions as a platform speaker, he was heard distinctly in all parts of the hall. The views were shown by Dr. Bell's private secretary, Mr. Clarke, aided by Mr. W. McLennaghan, who manipulated the lantern. At the close of the address, Dr. Bell was warmly applauded. Rev. A. H. Scott, M. A., in concise and graceful terms moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Bell for his visit and his excellent contribution to the pleasure and edification of the audience. Principal McKim seconded the motion, which was carried amid hearty handclapping. The chairman announced that circumstances had prevented Dr. McGregor from being present to give an address, explained some of the plans of the executive in connection with the future of the Canadian Club and asked those citizens who felt disposed to help the club, to give their subscriptions to the treasurer, Mr. W. P. McEwen, or Mr. W. B. Hart, vice-president. "God Save the King" was sung with heartiness, as a fine view of His Majesty was thrown on the canvas, and the first autumn meeting of the Club was brought to a close. Many in the audience had a pleasant interview with Dr. Bell after the lecture.

Season Has Been Busy One at the Havelock Ice House

On an Average Thirty-Six Cars per Day Have Been Iced—Some Interesting Details of an Important Part of Railway Transportation.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Oct. 18.—This has been a very busy season at Swift & Co's ice house here, of which Mr. J. W. Bryans is manager, the number of cars iced per week ranging as high as 250 or an average of 36 cars per day. When it is considered that it requires from 6 to 15 cakes of ice for each car, according to the lowness of the ice in the tanks, it can be judged the large amounts of ice that is used in a season.

The regular season for icing cars commences about March or April, according to the warmth of the weather, and although it slackens up a little about September, it does not quit until November, and then any cars of extra importance are iced even in the middle of the winter.

The regular shipment of cars to be iced comes in on train No. 52, which is due at Havelock at 7.30 p.m., but stray cars come in at all hours, even in the middle of the night. For night purposes ice is kept in a room level with the platform, already loosened up, which can be pulled out on to the platform without the aid of a horse. The men that are called out during the night do not have to get around as early as the others in the morning. It takes considerable judgment to tell what time to start to prepare the ice for the trains, for it must not be gotten out too soon, as the train cannot be kept over a certain length of time at Havelock.

The ice is first loosened up as it is put in, in cakes, and is frozen together. It is next hauled up to the platform, which is the same height as the cars, by a horse, and there it is broken into pieces about the size of a man's fist. A report is first received by mail that certain cars have been shipped out. The next report is got by wire from Windsor that the cars have left there, when it is necessary to loosen up the cakes in the rooms. A report is also received when the cars leave Toronto, and when they pass Myrtle they commence to pull the ice up. If they start to pull up when the train leaves Burketon they have the ice fully prepared when it reaches Havelock, if nothing has hindered its progress. But sometimes the train is delayed for some reason or other, and a large amount of the ice melts before it reaches Havelock.

When the cars arrive the tops, which are placed on each end, are opened down and the water is then allowed to run out. Rock salt is then placed on the old ice in the tanks, and ice placed on the top of that up to the top of the tanks, when another large layer of salt is placed on top of that.

Some of the cars just go as far as Montreal, where the contents are transferred to steamboats to be taken to foreign countries, and these cars are merely filled with blocks of ice, but if the shipments goes farther it has to be iced with broken ice.

Sometimes a shipment of cars will be divided and will come in two or three different trains, and then it is necessary to pull up several times.

THEATRICAL ATTRACTIONS THAT HAVE BEEN BOOKED

It will be interesting to local theatregoers to know what attractions are booked for this season. The list given below does not include by any means all the theatrical performances that will be seen at the Grand this season, and many more will be booked to fill in dates other than those mentioned.

On Friday and Saturday, the 25th and 26th of October, Ian McLaren's famous "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" will be here, with a matinee on Saturday afternoon.

On Wednesday, Oct. 30th, George F Hall will appear in his new vehicle for this season, "I'm Married Now."

"The Real Widow Brown" will be here on October 31st, Thanksgiving Day, followed on Tuesday, November 5th by the famous Ben Greet and his company, who will present a Shakespearian drama, the title of which is not yet chosen.

"The Shadow behind the Throne," is billed for Saturday, November 9, and no other attractions have been booked at the present time, from then until November 23rd, when Chas H. Yates, spectacular melodrama, "The Way of the Transgressor," will hold the boards.

Anybody who follows matters theatrical has heard of the musical success, "The Burgomaster," by Frank Pixley and Gustave Luders, authors of the "Prince of Pilsen. This comic opera will be seen here on Monday, December 2nd.

On Wednesday, December 4th, a dramatization of Harold McGrath's popular novel, "The Man on the Box" will be the attraction.

"Hooligan in New York" comes on Saturday, December 14th, followed on Monday, December 30th, by that perennial production, "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

"The Minister's Son" will be here on Saturday, January 18th, and on Wednesday, February 5th, a very strong dramatic offering, "Zira" with Mabel Montgomery in the star role, will be presented. Charles Grapewin who was so well received in Peterborough, when he appeared in "It's Up to You, John Henry," will revisit this city on Thursday, March 12th, in the play that has won him more admirers than any in which he has ever appeared in his brilliant career—"The Awakening of Mr. Pipp. As the booking for the latter end of the season has practically just begun, the contracts for a large number of companies that will appear here during the spring months, have not yet been forwarded, and from the date of "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," no attraction has been booked until Monday, April 6th, when the fascinating musical play by Rosenfield, Peck and Bowers, "The Vanderbilt Cup," will favor this city with a visit. Elsie Janis, the wonderfully clever comedienne who is now appearing in vaudeville, at a salary in the four figures, made the hit of her life in this piece, and the part she formerly played is filled by a worthy successor. "Ma's New Husband" is here on Saturday, April 11, and "Raffles" comes soon after him on Monday, April 20th. The last attraction booked is that far-famed black faced show, "Primrose's Minstrels," an offering of great merit and considered second to none in its class, with the possible exception of Dockstatter's Minstrels."

Below is the list;

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 25 and 26. "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush."
Wednesday, Oct. 30, "I'm Married Now."
Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 31, "The Real Widow Brown."

Material Progress Has Been Made In Improvement of the Potato

A System Suitable for Use Among Canadian Growers Has Been Drafted and is Being Applied by Several This Year—Possibility of Variations in the Productive Capacity Recognized.

During the past year very material progress has been made by way of perfecting methods of potato improvement, and in instituting their application throughout the country. At the last meeting of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association a very excellent paper on "Potato Improvement" was read by Mr. W. T. Macoun, Horticulturist at the Central Experimental Farm. Upon the work which Mr. Macoun and many other authorities on the potato plant, both at home and abroad, have done, a system of potato improvement suitable for use among Canadian growers was drafted and is being applied by several this year. The system adopted is simple and practical, yet is founded on scientific principles, the individual plant being taken as the basis for improvement. The tubers produced by each plant are, morphologically considered, simply swollen portions of the vegetative and not of the reproductive system. The question has therefore been raised as to whether or not the principles of breeding which apply in the case of sexual reproduction through the seed, obtain in a sexual reproduction or perpetuation through parts of the vegetative system. Bud variation is, as a rule, more narrow than is seed variation, and some investigators claim that a part of any plant cannot possess qualities which differ materially from those of another part of the same plant. The best obtainable evidence at the present time does not support this view, and the individuality of different parts is now generally recognized. Since the tubers produced by any single plant are all distinct parts of that plant the possibility of variation in the productive capacity and other qualities is recognized.

STRONG HEALTHY TYPE

The system drafted for use by this Association enables the grower to plant the seed tubers taken from the different hills which were especially chosen for seed purposes the year previous, so that any promising variation which may result, may be selected and used in endeavoring to build up a strong, healthy and productive type. Furthermore, an almost all parts of Canada, no matter how suitable may be the conditions, there are many adverse conditions with which the potato has to contend. Unfortunately man himself is often the worst enemy of the potato and unconsciously, though very materially, assists in its downfall. The using of small potatoes from degenerate hills is perhaps one of the most glaring examples of this as far as the seeds is concerned. The practicing of improper cultural methods is another common error. Against these things this plant is continually struggling, year after year, and while there is a continual survival of the fittest, wherein a few plants succeed in rising above the prevailing difficulties, in an endeavor to maintain the standard of the race, yet unfortunately these are quickly gathered in and hurried off to market, leaving the smaller, less desirable and often degenerate tubers remaining to be used for seed purposes. With such a system is there any wonder why many of our best varieties have suffered a rapid decline, until they are now practically worthless? What is needed among potato growers today is some practical system, whereby it may be possible to select for seed purposes those hills which have shown themselves superior to others enjoying equal opportunities. In this way seed tubers, which rank above the average would be chosen, while those falling short would be ignored hence making for an upward instead of a downward tendency. The need of just such an arrangement has been met by the Association in its system of potato improvement already referred to.

CHOOSE STANDARD VARIETY

In undertaking systematic work according to this system, it is recommended in the first place, that a good standard variety be chosen, and that the best possible seed of that variety with which to start, be secured. The new beginner is advised to test two or three leading varieties the first year in small plots side by side, to keep the hills separate when digging and, after having decided which variety has given the best results, to select and keep separate 25 of the best hills of this variety for planting in the breeding plot of the following year, in accordance with the regulations as drafted. While the minimum size of the seed plot recognized by the Association is 1-4 acre, yet in the case of potatoes it was thought advisable to depart somewhat from this rule, and to reduce the size of the plot to one consisting of 25 rows with eight hills in each row, both rows and hills to be at least 24 inches apart. A plot of this size, it was thought should not require more work than the average grower can well afford to expend and and more careful work on the part of the grower should be encouraged. From each of the 25 chosen hills 8 of the most uniform, smooth and sound tubers are then chosen, and each set of 8 tubers so selected is used to plant one of the eight-hilled rows, a single whole tuber being used to plant each hill. At harvest time each row is dug separately and the individual hills within the rows are likewise kept separate for examination. This arrangement permits the grower to determine first, the best rows, and secondly, the best hills in those rows. The required number of specially desirable hills can then be laid away for planting on the plot the following spring, as above indicated. Special blank forms are sent each grower in duplicate, in order that he may record certain information regarding the performance of each row, referring especially to yield, quality and freedom from disease. While it is urged that the crop on the improved plot be sprayed for blight, yet the spraying of the breeding plot is left to the discretion of the individual grower. In districts where disease is troublesome, the desirability of developing strains capable of withstanding these maladies is such that spraying is ignored, and those plants which have shown the greatest power in resisting disease, are chosen. The difference between varieties in their attitude toward blight and other diseases as observed at the different experiment stations is so noticeable, that the development of disease resistant strains seems to offer great possibilities.

Note.—Potato growers looking for maximum crops are recommended to try the above system. While anyone may carry on the work independent of the above Association, yet there are certain advantages which come through organized effort. We advise all, therefore, who desire to know more of this work to communicate at once with the secretary: Canadian Seed Growers' Association, Canadian building, Ottawa, Ont., as the best time for selecting for next year's crop is not far distant.

JUNIOR ATHLETIC MEET AT OVAL WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL

The field day of sports held at Nicholls' Oval on Saturday, under the auspices of the Boys' Clubs of Knox and All Saint's churches, proved a most successful event. The athletic forces of the two organizations were largely represented, and the different events were keenly contested. The fact that there is some excellent talent among the boys, was much in evidence, as fast time was made in the speed events, while the distances in the jumps were very creditable. The junior all-round championship was won by Roy Smith and the senior all-round championship was captured by Walter Perks, both of Knox church club.

The relay race was one of the most interesting features of the afternoon and was won by the All Saint's team, composed of W. Flowers, E. LeBarr, and D. Layfield.

The meet will have an important effect in awakening an interest in athletics among the junior element in the city. To those who promoted the event great credit is due.

The following were the results of the different events,—

100 yards, junior—Roy Smith, Knox; Norm. Patterson, Knox; Howard Cranfield, All Saint's.

100 yards, senior — Walter Perks, Knox; Walter Flowers, All Saint's, Douglas Layfield, All Saint's.

Running Broad Jump, junior — Roy Smith, Knox; Howard Cranfield, All Saint's; Cecil Armstrong, All Saint's.

Running Broad Jump, senior — Alf. Gilbert, All Saint's; Walter Perks, Knox; Douglas Layfield, All Saint's.

220 yards, junior — Roy Smith, Knox; Cecil Armstrong, All Saint's; Howard Cranfield, All Saint's.

Relay Race—W. Flowers, E. LeBarr and D. Layfield, All Saint's; W. Byers, R. Thompson, and W. Perks, Knox.

220 yards, senior—1, Walter Perks, Knox; 2, Douglas Layfield, All Saints'; 3, W. Flowers, All Saints'.

1-4 mile, junior—1, Carl Quinn, Knox; 2, Morin Patterson, Knox; 3, Max Patterson, Knox.

1-2 mile, senior—1, Garney Tovey, All Saints'; 2, Douglas Layfield, All Saints'.

High Jump, senior—1, W. Perks, field, All Saints'; 2, Harold Hatcher, Knox.

Hig jump, senior—1, W. Perks, Knox; 2, E. Droxee, Knox.

Fatigue race—1, W. Byers and R. Thompson, Knox; 2, W. Perks and R. Smith, Knox; 3, J. Moore and A. Gilbert, All Saints.

The officials were as follows,—

Judges—Messrs. D. Campbell, H. Campbell, A. Flowers, and W. Galley.

Starters—Messrs. Wm. Carther, and J. Runnett.

Scorer—Mr. A. E. Wilson.

Rev. Messrs. Keith and Major were present and were deeply interested in the sports.

The distribution of prizes will take place next Friday evening, Oct. 25th, at eight o'clock, at All Saint's church.

GOOD PRACTICE ON SATURDAY

About 25 Were in Attendance at Riverside Park

The rugby team had a splendid practice at Riverside park on Saturday, in the neighborhood of 25 men being in attendance. A scrub half line and the relular wings lined up against a scrub wing line and the regular backs breaking about even. A good general workout was held and if the team lines in Toronto on Saturday it will not be because of inferior physical condition. About all the members with the exception of Willie, were out.

PROSPECTS OF THE CITY LEAGUE

Annual Meeting on Friday Night —Nine Clubs May Play Hockey

On Friday night next, at 7.45 o'clock the annual meeting of the City Hockey League, will be held in the Y.M.C.A.

All those interested, and all teams intending to enter are urgently requested to have representatives present. The prospects for City League hockey this winter, are brighter than ever, and the hockey loving public may rest assured that good exhibitions of the popular game will be played here. In addition to the six teams that constituted the league last year, there is a possibility of there being three more, Omemee, Keene and Bridgenorth, having signified their intentions of entering septettes. Last year's teams were Strathconas, Charlotte street Guild, Auburns, High Life's, Orphans and Lakefield. With nine teams, a most interesting league no doubt could be formed, and greater interest would be stimulated.

The election of officers will also take place at this meeting on Friday night. It is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance, and thus support the progress of good hockey.

A LIMERICK COMPETITION

Something of Interest to Review Readers—Watch for Announcement Tomorrow

Tomorrow's Review will announce the particulars of what promises to be a most interesting competition. The world is full of people who possess the rhyming instinct or quality, or whatever it may be designated, and the Review purposes a Limerick competition, which will give free and profitable scope to all who possess any talent in versification. In this competition contestants will be required to furnish only one line to rhyme with the preceding lines of the Limerick. To illustrate for those who do not know, the following constitutes a Limerick:

A couple in Pinafore Park
Play'd golf until it got dark,
Then a break in the line
Made the car behind time,
And they sat on the benches to spark.

In the competition the contestant would be required to supply the last line, which would be left blank, with any climax they saw fit to add.

Watch for announcement and full particulars of conditions and prizes

Wareham Leads in Competition

The competition at the Majestic Bowling Alleys for Mr. Smyth's prize of $5 for the bowler making the highest score during the month in three consecutive games, is going on merrily. At present, Mr. W. Wareham leads with a score of 548, although on Friday last, Mr. Geo. Cairns, came pretty nearly beating it, getting 536. Mr. Smyth will present a prize of $5 every month during the bowling season, to be awarded the bowler who makes the highest score in three successive games.

EXECUTIVE MEET TONIGHT

Conservative Leader Begins His Campaign in Manitoba

Hase Been Welcomed Everywhere With Great Enthusiasm—His Platform Has Been Received With Satisfaction at Every Point Visited.

Winnipeg, Oct. 20.—Mr. R. L. Borden begins his campaign in Manitoba tomorrow night, opening in the evening at Hamiota. Following his three weeks' tour of the three western provinces, the opposition leader is much encouraged by the enthusiasm displayed. From Vancouver, to Weyburn, Sask., where he spoke Saturday night, he has been received with the most cordial feeling. Weyburn is on the "Soo" line, in the most prosperous part of the province, and overflow meetings were not sufficient to accommodate the crowds of farmers.

The rural districts have turned out heavily to greet Mr. Borden in Manitoba he will be accompanied by Premier Roblin, Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, and other members of the provincial government. The campaign in this province will be concluded next Monday night, Oct. 28, with a rousing reception and banquet extended Mr. Borden by the Young Conservative Club of Winnipeg. Tickets are already at a premium, and it is estimated that eight hundred seats, the limit of any hall in the city, will be too few to satisfy the young Conservatives who are engineering this function.

FOOLISH STORY REFUTED.

This crowning event of Mr. Borden's tour in the west by the young crowd, is the most emphatic denial possible of the silly story that some members of the Young Conservative Club had contemplated presenting Mr. Borden a petition of protest at the time of his first visit to Winnipeg, some weeks ago, urging more violent action in some phases of his platform. The Liberal press made the most of this absurd rumor, and in spite of the most formal and official denial that any such measure was ever taken or contemplated by any Conservatives in Winnipeg, or any other place in the west, the Liberal editors have repeated this report. Of course they have given no names or anything in the nature of facts on which to base an enquiry. Many prominent Young Conservatives from all parts of Manitoba will visit the city on the occasion of this event to testify their enthusiastic loyalty to Mr. Borden, personally. As a matter of fact, at no time has Mr. Borden enjoyed more enthusiastic support of both the younger and older elements of his party than today.

FORMER RESIDENT EXPIRES

The death occurred on Sunday morning in Chicago, Ill., of a former well-known resident of this city in the person of Mrs. Luke Fisher. The deceased had been ill for some time with stomach trouble. She was 60 years of age. Her maiden name was Mime Martin. Thirty-one years ago, she was married to her now surviving husband. Seventeen years ago, along with her husband, she removed to Chicago, but previous to that, resided in this city.

The late Mrs. Fisher leaves no family, but besides her sorrowing husband, one sister, Mrs. John Mowry of this city, is left to mourn her loss.

The remains arrived in the city on the noon train today. The funeral service will be conducted in the Little Lake Cemetery chapel, tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Club Will Run an Excursion

To Toronto on Saturday Next—Return Fare Will be $2.05

At a meeting of the executive of the Rugby Club, it was decided to run an excursion train to Toronto for the game with the Vics on Saturday next. Secretary McDonough has made arrangements with the C.P.R. to have the train leave the Peterborough station at 9.30 on Saturday morning, so that those going will have plenty of time to see their friends in Toronto, or to do any shopping they may wish to. The train will leave Toronto at twelve o'clock on Saturday night, giving those who take in the trip, an opportunity of attending the theatre. The return fare will be $2.05 for adults and $1.05 for children under 12 years of age. Tickets may be secured at the up-town C.P.R. ticket office.

Those who wish to stay over Sunday, may do so as tickets are good on all trains, returning Monday.

Helped Himself at Various Houses

Some young fellow, a young Englishman, it is said, the day after the fair, was or had been at Dwyre's camp, and called at Dwyre's, and there being no one at home, he took some tobacco and two pipes, says the Norwood Register. He then called at John Hubble's and finding no one there, took two gold watches and two oranges. He then went to Ruttan's, and finding no one there either, took a pound of candies that Ruttan got at the fair. He then went to Frank Newall's and stayed there for some time. In the meantime Hubble's returned home, found him at Newall's, and took the watches from him, and then went to Havelock for the constable, who came and took him to that village. We have not heard what was done with him, but he must have been a greeny or he would not have stayed so long along the road.

Suit for Damages Over Plate Glass

Mr. L. G. Bennett has gone to Winnipeg, where he will act as plaintiff in a case against R. A. Kirkpatrick, a former merchant of this town. Mr. Bennett is suing Mr. Kirkpatrick for $225, this amount being the value of the plate glass front in Fred. Pedlar's store. This front was in Kirkpatrick's store when he carried on business where the Queen's Hotel dining room now is. Mr. Kirkpatrick contends that the front was given to him by Mr. Bennett in consideration of vacating the property before his lease had expired. The case is likely to come up next week and promises to be very interesting.—Port Hope Guide.

Makes Threat That Kaid Sir Harry McLean Will be Killed

Raisuli Threatens to Retaliate For French Interference.

Followers of Bandit Chief Desert Him and Arrive at Tangier—Mulai Hafid Wins First Encounter With Sultan's Troops — Raid on Customs House — Rifles and Ammunition Carried Away.

Tangier, Oct. 22.—The first conflict between the forces of the rival Sultans, Abd-el-Aziz and Mulai Hafid, occurred Oct. 17 near Hettat, between Shawla and Mequinez, according to reliable reports received here from Mazagan with the result that a detachment of troops fighting with Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of the South, and consisting of eight regiments under Mulai Rachid and known as the first division, defeated the forces of Abd-el-Aziz, the Sultan of the North, and captured Kaid Bushta Bagdanf, the commander-in-chief of all Abd-el-Aziz's forces in the field, who had with him eight pieces of modern field artillery. The favorable effect of this victory to the standing of Mulai Hafid is incalculable.

During the night of Oct. 17 some of Mulai Hafid's men made a third raid on the custom house at Mazagan and seized 100,000 cartridges, and on the following night they made a fourth raid on the same place and captured 200,000 more cartridges.

The first division of the Imperial troops, consisting of 800 men, destined for Mogador, arrived at Tangier yesterday. Communication with Mogador is interrupted.

Some of Raisuli's followers have deserted him and come to Tangier. The native report of the occurrence gives as a reason for the desertion that Raisuli in retaliation for the French interference in the steps taken to secure the release of Kaid Sir Harry MacLean, "intends to kill MacLean by inches."

Fate of the Bavarian.

Montreal, Oct. 23.—The North American Wrecking Co., Limited, have finally decided to sell the steamship Bavarian as she now lies at Point Levis. It is understood that American engineers who have recently examined the ship, believe that she can be cut in two, somewhat similarly to the C. P. R. boat, the Keewatin, which was recently in the drydock at Quebec for that purpose. The ship will be sold by auction before the close of navigation, even is she to be scraped, and it is believed that she would realize for this purpose over $125,000.

Engine Broke Through Bridge.

Arnprior, Oct. 22.—James Hudson of Glasgow station, was driving a traction engine to the farm of William McComb in McNab Township, when the engine crashed through a bridge into a gully about 70 feet deep. The unfortunate man was pinned beneath the engine and killed instantly.

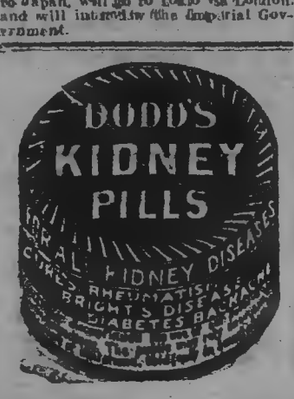
Killed Greek Laborers.

Versailles, O., Oct. 22.—A Big Four train struck a handcar, on which were 19 Greek laborers, killing three and injuring five others. The train was immediately stopped to care for the injured, whereupon the uninjured Greeks attacked the train crew, but were overpowered.

Former Legislator Dead.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—F. W. Colclough, ex-M. P. for Selkirk, died in the General Hospital yesterday, from an attack of apoplexy. He was mayor of Selkirk for a number of years and sat for two sessions in the House.

Hon. R. Lemieux, Canada's envoy to Japan, will go to Tokio via London, and will interview the Imperial Government.



EARTHQUAKE IN ASIA

Many Buildings Thrown Down In Central Towns.

Severe Shocks at Samarakand—Lasted From Early Morning Till Afternoon—Two Women Killed by Falling Houses — The Population Is Now Camping Out—Khokand Also Visited.

London, Oct. 22.—Prolonged earthquake shocks beginning at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and lasting for several hours have been recorded on the instruments on the Isle of Wight, and at Laibach, Austria. The distance of the disturbance is estimated at over 3,000 miles. Telegrams received here from St. Petersburg report earth shocks in Central Asia, at Lattujargan, Samarakand, Khokand, and elsewhere, which caused the injury or collapse of many buildings. At Samarakand the shocks lasted intermittently from early morning until yesterday afternoon. Two women were killed by falling houses, and the population of Samarakand is now camping out.

TO UPSET THE FINE.

Standard Oil Co. Counsel Preparing to Appeal.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Plans for the tremendous effort that will be made by attorneys for the Standard Oil Co. to have the $29,240,000 fine imposed by Judge Landis wiped out by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals were discussed yesterday.

The principal argument is that the Government attorneys failed to inform the defence of the Alton immunity agreement. 2. That the Elkins Act, under which the conviction was secured, was unconstitutional. 3. That as the Hepburn Act was passed before indictments were returned, prosecution under the provisions of the Elkins law was illegal. 4. That Judge Landis did not compute the number of violations correctly. 5. That the Standard Oil Co. accepted the rates in question with the understanding that they were authorised rates.

Mr Lawrence, M.P. for Colchester, is slated for a Nova Scotia Judgeship.

The Entomological Society and the Wellington Field Naturalist Club yesterday elected J. W. Eastham, C. A. D. Gadgh, as president.

CONVICTS BREAK JAIL

Desperate Attempt to Escape From Penitentiary.

Police Inspector Almost Murdered—Felled to Ground With Hammer—Men Were Friends of Notorious Bill Miner—Warder Held Them Up With Revolver.—Placed In Solitary Confinement.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 22.—A desperate attempt at a jail delivery was made at the penitentiary in New Westminster late on Saturday afternoon. The ring-leaders were George Stone and T. Walker, former close companions of the notorious Bill Miner. Chief Inspector Imlah narrowly escaped being murdered, and will have to remain in bed many days on account of his injuries.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Stone approached Imlah from behind and dealt him a fearful blow on the head with a hammer. Imlah fell prostrate to the floor, and Walker, who had been standing near, attacked the prostrate man and dealt him several blows with a scantling. Imlah turned over and tried to crawl away, but was practically helpless.

The two convicts, followed by others, then made a break for the fence. A moment later Assistant Warden Stewart appeared and held them up with his drawn revolver. The desperate men were cowed, especially when another convict named Campbell came to the assistance of the officers. Stone and Walker were overpowered and have been placed in solitary confinement.

DEATH AT KIPLING BANQUET.

Rural Dean Emery Seized With Heart Disease at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Stricken with heart disease just prior to the luncheon given to Rudyard Kipling yesterday, Rural Dean Emery, one of the oldest Anglican clergymen in Canada, died shortly afterwards. Dean Emery had preached three times on Sunday at Kemptville. During his ministry he labored in Toronto, Quebec, Ottawa, Smith's Falls and other places.

Over three hundred attended the Canadian Club's luncheon to the soldier's poet, Sir Wilfrid Laurier being one of the guests.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier paid tribute to the individuality of Kipling. He would not reproach him for his "Lady of the Snows." The Canadian winter was the glory of Canada. He hoped that when Mr. Kipling spoke to the world he would say the same fields that were in winter covered with snow produced the finest grain and fruit that could be found in any place.

Dig, Then Sail.

Stockholm, Oct. 22.—The secretary of the Swedish legation at Washington, A. Bkengren, cabled to the Royal Swedish Yacht Club yesterday, to the effect that the New York Yacht Club certainly would not accept a challenge for the America Cup with a 70-footer.

Contrary to expectations, not enough money has yet been subscribed to provide for building a 90-footer, so the board of directors of the Swedish Yacht Club, after a three hours' session yesterday, deferred the question of a challenge for the America's Cup to an extraordinary meeting of all the members of the club, which has been called for Oct. 30. In the meantime the subscription list, which is headed by the crown prince, Gustavus Adolphus, is being circulated.

Alleged Plumbers' Combine.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—Attorney-General Ellis yesterday filed in the Circuit Court of Franklin County a quo warranto suit against twenty concerns doing business or making supplies for plumbers. They are charged with being members of an association whose object is to control trade and fix the prices of their goods.

The association covers the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas. Its headquarters are in Chicago and the secretary is Paul Blatchford.

Will Support Redmond.

Dublin, Oct. 22.—William O'Brien, member of Parliament for Cork, speaking at Tralee Sunday, indicated his desire to return to the Redmond party in order to influence the decisions during the next session of the House of Commons on the question of land purchase, finance and university settlement.

The Archbishop of Cassel, the Bishop of Dromore and John Dillon, M. P., have also written letters declaring their adhesion to Mr. Redmond's policy.

These are significant signs of the collapse of the attack on the Irish party.

Suicides by Electricity.

London, Oct. 22.—The first case of suicide by electricity has occurred at Kingston. The victim was William Brown, a carpenter.

A little while before his death Brown made enquiries as to dangerous parts of the switchboard. It was supposed he was anxious to avoid risking his life. Subsequently he was seen with his hands on two of the terminals, and instantly fell dead.

A letter was found indicating his intention to commit suicide.

Writ For Nicolet.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—It is believed that the issue of the writ for Nicolet, made vacant by the transference of C. R. Devlin to provincial politics, will not be delayed.

The general opinion here is that the Government will also take a hand in this contest and will have Dr. Turcotte of Nicolet nominated. He is a brother of the late Hon. A. Turcotte and a life-long friend of the Premier.

MURDER TRIAL AT QUEBEC.

Demonte Will Plead That Shooting Was Justified.

Quebec, Oct. 22.—The trial of Mattie Demonte began in the Criminal Court yesterday morning. A mixed jury was sworn and Mr. Belleau, son of ex-Coroner Belleau, was sworn as interpreter.

Demonte is accused of having wilfully murdered on Oct. 1st one of his fellow-countrymen named Carmono Gardi, in a boarding house at Hervey Junction, in the Parish of St. Remi du Lac Aux Sables.

Gardi was unknown in the locality. About 8 o'clock in the evening of Oct. 1 he went into the boarding-house in question, apparently to pass the night. There he was immediately met by the prisoner. In the large room used by all as a common bedroom the prisoner fired at him, killing him instantly.

Demonte was immediately arrested and delivered in the course of the night to the constables of the provincial police. The lawyers for the defence will try to prove that Demonte was justified in killing him.

CHURCH THIEF CONFESSES.

Tells Who Were His Accomplices In Robbery of Art Treasures.

Limoges, France, Oct. 22.—Antoine Thomas, the Frenchman who conducted the series of thefts of religious works of art from churches in France, the discovery of which a fortnight ago aroused such astonishment throughout this country, has written a letter to the judge by whom he will be examined to-day, detailing the extent of his thefts, disclosing the names of his accomplices furnishing dates, and indicating witnesses. He tells the magistrate also that he threw a Eucharistic dove, one of the missing treasures, into the River Seine, near the Pont des Arts, the day before he surrendered.

The examining magistrate has received from London a package from an unknown sender, containing the statue stolen from the church at Sauvetat. Thomas has declared that he received a commission of $600 for this statue, which subsequently was said to have been sold in the United States by a Paris dealer.

PROSECUTE TORPEDO COMPANY.

Have Refused to Leave Town Limits of Petrolia.

Petrolia, Oct. 22.—A Toronto detective, employed by the Torpedos Limited Co., whose premises were wrecked by an explosion recently declares that the evidence of burned fuses indicates that the explosion was due to outside interference. The stove, which had been blamed, was not in use the night of the explosion.

The Bradley Torpedo Co., which have ignored the order of the town council to remove from the town, will be prosecuted.

Fatal Elevator Accident.

London, Oct. 22.—Charles Doyle was killed and William Patrick is dying as the result of an accident in the International Harvester Co.'s warehouse shortly after six o'clock last evening.

Doyle and Patrick, in company with a man named Turville, were descending in the elevator. A board left lying across the opening at one floor stopper the elevator and the cable continued to unwind.

Turville stepped off to ascertain the cause of the stop and at the same instant the board broke and the elevator dropped, carrying both men, as they fell, twenty feet.

Both were removed to Victoria Hospital. Doyle died at 9.15. At a late hour last night no hope was held out for Patrick.

General Booth's Illness.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The condition of General William Booth of the Salvation Army remained unchanged yesterday. A consultation of several physicians was held, and Dr. Oscar Cleff announced that unless unexpected complications arose General Booth would be able to continue his trip in about a week. On account of his advanced age, precautions are being taken to prevent the cold, from which he is suffering, from turning into pneumonia. The general remained in bed all day at the home of Commissioner G. A. Kilbey, who is in command of the western territory of the Army.

Supposed Bank Burglars Sentenced.

Welland, Oct. 22.—The two young men, arrested at Niagara Falls for having explosives in their possession, and who are supposed to have blown up the Royal Bank of Chippewa, and who, it is believed, were on their way to Hagersville to do a burglary there, and who were arrested when they were leaving Niagara Falls, were yesterday sentenced by Judge Wells. Harding received 18 months in Central Prison and Parquelle three months in jail.

Hotelman Arrested.

Hamilton, Oct. 22.—P. M. Barker, proprietor of the Flamboro Hotel, was arrested last evening, charged with aggravated assault. J. J. Aggard was the complainant. His story is that the offence was committed in the hotel bar-room Saturday night, and he says he was attacked by the hotelman with a knife. He was cut on the head and on the arm, which was put up to protect his head.

Fatal Accident in Camp.

Peterboro, Oct. 22.—Word reached here yesterday that George Hefferman, aged 19, son of Patrick Hefferman of this city, had both legs cut off in Turner's lumber camp, north shore of Lake Superior, and expired shortly after being taken to the hospital at Blind River. Hefferman left here last June.

This Walker Makes Good.

Cincinnati, Oct. 22.—Dan O'Leary, a long distance walker, finished a 1,000-mile walk at Norwood Inn at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. He walked one mile each hour for 1,000 consecutive hours. He is nearly 65 years old, but has shown no signs of faltering.

John A. Johnson, who lived near Uxbridge, was dragged by a frightened horse and killed.

Bowel Troubles

Liver pills, cathartics, mineral waters, often make Constipation worse. They merely irritate the bowels and force them to move—stop taking purgatives and the bowels become "tight" again.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the one certain cure for Constipation because their action is upon the liver, "Fruit-a-tives" are a liver tonic. They stimulate the secretions of bile by the liver, this bile causes the bowels to move in the natural, regular way and completely cures Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives are fruit juices with tonics and antiseptics added. In "Fruit-a-tives" one atom of bitter replaces one atom of sweet in the fruit juices, forming a new compound which is many times more active, medicinally, than the fruit juices could possibly be. 50c. a box — $2.50 for 6 boxes. MAN ABANDONS FAMILY.

Tragic Tales From Brockville—Number of Fatal Accidents.

Brockville, Oct. 22.—A more cruel case of desertion was never brought to light than the one under investigation by the agent of the Children's Aid Society here. Abraham Moshier, a former resident of Athens and Gananoque, but who has been living in Brockville for three years, left his wife and two small children two weeks ago and went to the other side. His wife he left penniless with a baby two weeks old, and another child but eighteen months old. The home was without food or fuel, and, to save the family from disgrace, the poor woman exerted herself to such an extent that she is now seriously ill. The children were taken to the Shelter and the woman cared for.

The funeral of Otto Fasoldt, aged 23, of Rennsselaer, occurred yesterday. While walking in the woods with a companion, the trigger of the latter's gun caught in a twig and the gun was discharged. The shot entered Fasoldt's left leg, above the knee, and death resulted in a few hours.

A little girl named Warren was drowned yesterday morning at the village of Westport, while crossing a dam, into which she accidentally fell.

The Spears' sawmill, in the northern part of Canton, was burned to the ground, together with the lumberyard adjoining. The loss on the mill is from $40,000 to $50,000, with $15,000 insurance. The amount of lumber destroyed has not yet been estimated, and, until it is, the additional loss cannot be stated. About 25 men are thrown out of employment.

John Earl received fatal injuries while working at Burnham's camp, on the Northern Adirondack Railway. He had begun the day's work and was engaged in felling the first tree, which split, striking the unfortunate man in the stomach and pinning him to the ground. During the half-hour it required his fellow workmen to chop down the tree and release him, he implored them to put an end to his misery. The instant the tree was removed he expired.

STEP FOR HOME CONTROL.

Lemieux's Trip to Japan Assertion of Canada's National Rights.

London, Oct. 22.—The Morning Post says the significance of Lemieux's change of plans ought not to be ignored. Instead of going to Japan as Canadian envoy of the Imperial Government, he goes as Imperial envoy of the Canadian Government. Considering all the circumstances his mission seems to mark another step in the development of the demand put forward by the present Canadian Government for power to control negotiation treaties exclusively or principally affecting Canada.

Whether the experiment succeeds or fails it can hardly fail to have a marked influence upon the future course of Imperial evolution. Already it appears His Majesty may be represented at foreign capitals by an envoy of his Government in Canada as well as by an envoy of the Government at Westminster.

Probe Bourassa Charges.

Quebec, Oct. 22.—At a meeting of the Provincial Cabinet, held at the Parliament Buildings yesterday, Chief Justice Sir Francis Langlier, Quebec, and Justice Napoleon Carbonne, Que., of the Superior Court, were appointed the royal commission promised by Premier Gouin to enquire into the truth of the charges made by Mr. Bourassa and his friends, against Hon. Messrs. Prevost, Turgeon and others.

The commission has power to examine, under oath, witnesses in Canada, Belgium and elsewhere, also to get documentary evidence, etc.; in fact, full power to go thoroughly into the matter and sift it to the very bottom.

It Was Only a Horse Deal.

Chatham, Oct. 22.—Minnie Fraelick and Oren Palmer were each fined $54 in the County Court yesterday morning by Judge Houston for being inmates of a disorderly and disreputable house in Tupperville. In default of payment of this amount, they will each spend six months in prison.

Charles Miller, who was charged with horse-stealing by Robert Powers, was dismissed by Judge Houston, there being no evidence to convict him. It was plainly shown by G. Richards, solicitor for the defence, that the trouble arose over a horse trade in which Powers got the worst of the deal.

William Drysdale, of Hamilton, committed suicide by shooting himself.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

"Marshal, I'm leaving Streisau for a few days. Every evening I will send a courier to you. If for three days none comes you will publish an order which I will give you depriving Duke Michael of the governorship of Streisau and appointing you in his place. You will declare a state of siege. Then you will send word to Michael that you demand an audience of the king. You follow me?"

"Aye, sire."

"In twenty-four hours. If he does not produce the king"—I laid my hand on his knee—"then the king is dead, and you will proclaim the next heir. You know who that is?"

"The Princess Flavia."

"And swear to me on your faith and honor and by the fear of the living God that you will stand by her to your death and kill that reptile and seat her where I sit now."

"On my faith and honor and by the fear of God I swear it! And may Almighty God preserve your majesty, for I think that you go on an errand of danger."

"I hope that no life more precious than mine may be demanded," said I, rising. Then I held out my hand to him.

"Marshal," I said, "in days to come it may be—I know not—that you will hear strange things of the man who speaks to you now. Let him be what he may and who he may, what say you of the manner in which he has borne himself as king in Streisau?"

The old man, holding my hand, spoke to me, man to man.

"I have known many of the Elphbergs," said he, "and I have seen you. And, happen what may, you have borne yourself as a wise king and a brave man—aye, and you have proved as courteous a gentleman and as gallant a lover as any that have been of the house."

"Be that my epitaph," said I, "when the time comes that another sits on the throne of Ruritania."

"God send a far day, and may I not see it!" said he.

I was much moved, and the marshal's worn face twitched. I sat down and wrote my order.

"I can hardly yet write," said I. "My finger is stiff still."

It was, in fact, the first time that I had ventured to write more than a signature, and in spite of the pains I had taken to learn the king's hand I was not yet perfect in it.

"Indeed, sire," he said, "it differs a little from your ordinary handwriting. It is unfortunate, for it may lead to a suspicion of forgery."

"Marshal," said I, with a laugh, "what use are the guns of Streisau if they can't assuage a little suspicion?"

He smiled grimly and took the paper.

"Colonel Sapt and Fritz von Tarlenheim go with me," I continued.

"You go to seek the duke?" he asked in a low tone.

"Yes, the duke, and some one else of whom I have need and who is at Zenda," I replied.

"I wish I could go with you!" he cried, tugging at his white mustache. "I'd like to strike a blow for you and your crown."

"I leave you what is more than my life and more than my crown," said I, "because you are the man I trust more than all others in Ruritania."

"I will deliver her to you safe and sound," said he, "and, failing that, I will make her queen."

We parted, and I returned to the palace and told Sapt and Fritz what I had done. Sapt had a few faults to find and a few grumbles to utter. This was merely what I expected, for Sapt liked to be consulted beforehand, not informed afterward. On the whole he approved of my plans, and his spirits rose high as the hour of action drew nearer and nearer. Fritz, too, was ready, though he, poor fellow, risked more than Sapt did, for he was a lover, and his happiness hung in the scale. Yet how I envied him! For the triumphant issue which would crown him with happiness and unite him to his mistress, the success for which we were bound to hope and strive and struggle, meant to me sorrow more certain and greater than if I were doomed to fail. He understood something of this, for when we were alone (save for old Sapt, who was smoking at the other end of the room) he passed his arm through mine, saying:

"It's hard for you. Don't think I don't trust you. I know you have nothing but true thoughts in your heart."

But I turned away from him, thankful that he could not see what my heart held, but only be witness to the deeds that my hands were to do.

Yet even he did not understand, for he had not dared to lift his eyes to the Princess Flavia, as I had lifted mine.

Our plans were now all made, even as we proceeded to carry them out, and as they will hereafter appear. The next morning we were to start on the hunting excursion. I had made all arrangements for being absent, and now there was only one thing left to do—the hardest, the most heartbreaking. As evening fell I drove through the busy streets to Flavia's residence. I was recognized as I went and heartily cheered. I played my part, and made shift to look the happy lover. In spite of my depression I was almost amused at the coolness and delicate hauteur with which my sweet lover received me. She had heard that the king was leaving Streisau on a hunting expedition.

"I regret that we cannot amuse your majesty here in Streisau," she said, tapping her foot lightly on the floor. "I would have offered you more entertainment, but I was foolish enough to think"—

"Well, what?" I asked, leaning over her.

"That for just a day or two after—after last night—you might be happy without much gayety," and she turned pettishly from me as she added, "I hope the boars will be more engrossing."

"I'm going after a very big boar," said I; and, because I could not help it, I began to play with her hair, but she moved her head away.

"Are you offended with me?" I asked in feigned surprise, for I could not resist tormenting her a little. I had never seen her angry, and every fresh aspect of her was a delight to me.

"What right have I to be offended? True, you said last night that every hour away from me was wasted. But a very big boar—that's a different thing!"

"Perhaps the boar will hunt me," I suggested. "Perhaps, Flavia, he'll catch me."

She made no answer.

"You are not touched even by that danger?"

Still she said nothing, and I, stealing round, found her eyes full of tears.

"You weep for my danger?"

Then she spoke very low:

"This is like what you used to be, but not like the king—the king I—I have come to love!"

With a sudden great groan I caught her to my heart.

"My darling," I cried, forgetting everything but her, "did you dream that I left you to go hunting?"

"What then, Rudolf? Ah, you're not going"—

"Well, it is hunting. I go to seek Michael in his lair."

She had turned very pale.

"So, you see, sweet, I was not so poor a lover as you thought me. I shall not be gone long."

"You will write to me, Rudolf?"

I was weak, but I could not say a word to stir suspicion in her.

"I'll send you all my heart every day," said I.

"And you'll run no danger?"

"None that I need not."

"And when will you be back? Ah, how long it will be!"

"When shall I be back?" I repeated.

"Yes, yes! Don't be long, dear; don't be long. I shan't sleep while you're away."

"I don't know when I shall be back," said I.

"Soon, Rudolf, soon?"

"God knows, my darling. But if never"—

"Hush, hush!" and she pressed her lips to mine.

"If never," I whispered, "you must take my place. You'll be the only one of the house then. You must reign and not weep for me."

For a moment she drew herself up like a very queen.

"Yes, I will!" she said. "I will reign. I will do my part. Though all my life will be empty and my heart dead, yet I'll do it."

She paused and, sinking against me again, wailed softly:

"Come soon! Come soon!"

Carried away, I cried loudly:

"As God lives, I—yes, I myself—will see you once more before I die!"

"What do you mean?" she exclaimed with wondering eyes, but I had no answer for her, and she gazed at me with her wondering eyes.

I dared not ask her to forget. She would have found it an insult. I could not tell her then who and what I was. She was weeping, and I had but to dry her tears.

"Shall a man not come back to the loveliest lady in all the wide world?" said I. "A thousand Michaels should not keep me from you!"

She clung to me a little comforted.

"You won't let Michael hurt you?"

"No, sweetheart."

"Or keep you from me?"

"No, sweetheart."

"Nor any one else?"

And again I answered:

"No, sweetheart."

Yet there was one—not Michael—who if he lived must keep me from her and for whose life I was going forth to stake my own. And his figure—the lithe, buoyant figure I had met in the woods of Zenda; the dull, inert mass I had left in the cellar of the shooting lodge—seemed to rise, double shaped, before me and to come between us, thrusting itself in even where she lay, pale, exhausted, fainting, in my arms and yet looking up at me with those eyes that bore such love as I have never seen, and haunt me now and will till the ground closes over me—and (who knows?) perhaps beyond.

To be continued.

Thirty-five bodies have been taken from the St. Lawrence at Montreal in the last six months.

The steamer Corunna was stopped at Port Dalhousie to take off a hog stolen at Ogdensburg.

Hon. J. Prevost and Henri Bourassa, M.P., met in a joint debate at St. Jerome the other day.

CHINESE LABORERS RIOT.

Stoned Police, Who Opened Fire on the Crowd—Man Killed.

Johannesburg, Oct. 22.—The Chinese laborers at New Modderfontein mutinied Sunday night and had to be dispersed by the police. The Chinese barricaded their compound and destroyed the offices. When the police first appeared on the scene, they were vigorously stoned.

They were finally obliged to open fire on the mutineers, with shotguns, but they fired low and only one Chinaman was killed. Nineteen were wounded and many were arrested. The trouble is alleged to have arisen because labor agitators have been assuring the Chinese that they were not obliged to work Sundays.

Governor Brady Penniless.

Seattle, Oct. 22.—John Green Brady, three times governor of Alaska, whose faith in H. D. Reynolds led him to invest the savings of a lifetime in Reynolds' Alaskan schemes, will go back penniless to his old home at Sitka.

"Instead of realizing a competence, everything I have is gone," he said yesterday. "I have been earnest in my efforts to build the Alaska-Nome Railway, and I believed what I told my friends when they asked me for advice. So confident was I that the enterprise would succeed that I continued to put my money into it until the last."

Suit Against Pharmacy Company.

Ottawa, Oct 22.—The Pharmaceutical Association of the Province of Quebec have instituted proceedings against the Modern Pharmacy Co. of Hull for $10,500.

They claim that as the company have been selling drugs without the authorization of the association, these sales are illegal, and allege that the company have been employing unlicensed clerks, as well as making sales of certain drugs without keeping records.

The association sue for $25 a day damages on each store, or $10,500 in all.

Keir Hardie's Fallacy.

London, Oct. 22.—Mr. Morley, in the course of a firm speech on Indian affairs at Arbroath, said that Keir Hardie's recent statement at Calcutta, "If self-government is good for Canada it must be good for India," was the grossest fallacy in all politics, and he would never lend himself to that doctrine.

Mr. Birrell received a deputation from Galway, who urged its claims as a terminal port for the Canadian mail service. Mr. Birrell made a very sympathetic reply and promised to look into the matter.

Held Up Stage.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 22.—The Murray stage, used for the conveyance of passengers on the line between Bingham Junction and Sandy was held up by masked robbers at Leo Odahl.

The bandit took a place alongside the driver, sitting on secreted money, and rode with the party to the end of the stage line, where he escaped.

Lusitania Speeding Eastward.

New York, Oct. 22.—The Cunard liner Lusitania, which passed Sandy Hook Lightship at 5.45 p. m. Saturday, was 975 miles from Sandy Hook at 10 a. m. yesterday, according to a wireless message received by the line by way of Cape Race. At that time the steamer was making 24.58 knots per hour in a southeast wind and rough sea.

Fatal Football.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—W. G. Albrecht, 20 years old, died Sunday night of injuries sustained in a football game Saturday.

Paris Strike Ended.

Paris, Ont., Oct. 22.—The strike which has tied up the Penman Mills here for the past week was declared off last night when the hands at a mass meeting held in the rink decided to return to work this morning.

The terms of settlement have not as yet been definitely arranged, but it is understood that a compromise will be effected. The hands will be required to work Saturday afternoons for some time at any rate, and they may have to work overtime to make up for time lost during the strike.

The final settlement will probably provide for 56 hours' work per week, so arranged as to allow Saturday afternoon off.

Nelson Shields For Schools.

London, Oct. 22.—Conspicuous among the ornate decorations of the Nelson monument is an immense tinted maple leaf bearing an anchor, lichen emblems and a rose, shamrock and thistle from the Victoria Esquimalt branch of the Navy League.

The British Sailors' Society's annual report refers appreciatively to Lord Strathcona's gift of £10,000 towards offering to every school in Canada a Nelson shield made from the copper of Nelson's flagship. Earl Grey and the Duke of Argyll wrote, expressing hearty approval of the object.

Must Not Chew Gum.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The chewing gum habit was handled without gloves Sunday night by Rev. G. I. Campbell in a stirring sermon in Bell street Methodist Church. The habit was declared by the preacher to be almost as great an evil as the tobacco habit. In some respects it was worse, for while the tobacco-user could indulge his appetite only in certain places, the gum-chewer was omnipresent, being seen even in the house of God.

Train Wrecked Bridge.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—A peculiar accident occurred on the Grand Trunk tracks at Lorne Park yesterday morning. An overhead bridge crosses the track at this point and when a C.P.R. freight train was passing some badly loaded iron pipes on a car caught the centre abutment and totally wrecked the bridge.

Saskatoon has sold $250,000 of debentures at 99 to a Scottish firm.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—At the Montreal Stock Yards (west end market), the receipts of live stock for the week ending Oct. 19, were 3288 cattle, 3359 sheep and lambs, 4402 hogs and 733 calves. Supplies this morning for local consumption consisted of 1200 cattle, 1900 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 400 calves. Owing to the colder weather and the fact that the offerings of cattle were fully 200 head smaller than a week ago, a firmer feeling developed in the market and prices for some grades were 10c to 20c per cwt. higher, and the prospects are that still higher figures will rule later on. There were several Quebec buyers on the market, who wanted cattle, but on account of the increased prices demanded they did not operate as freely as usual. The demand from local butchers and jobbers was good and an active trade was done and there were also some small lots taken by exporters to complete shipments with. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade in cattle slow, but noted no change in prices from a week ago; choice heavies here sold at $4.35 to $5.10; good, at $4.25 to $4.60; fair, at $3.50 to $4; common, at $2.50 to $3; and canners, at $1.25 to $1.50 per cwt. Receipts of sheep and lambs were larger than a week ago, for which there continues to be an active local and export demand, especially for lambs. In consequence a stronger feeling has developed in the market for the same and prices have advanced ½c per lb., with sales for export at 6¼c, while local buyers paid 6 cents to 6¾c per lb. Sheep were unchanged and firm at 4c to 4¼c per lb. An active trade was done in calves and prices were firm, with sales of choice stock at $12 to $15; good, at $8 to $10; fair, at $5 to $7 and common, at $4 each. A stronger feeling prevailed in the local hog situation and prices since this day week show an advance of 10c to 25c per lb., with the tendency still upwards. This to some extent is due to the continued strong advices from abroad on Canadian bacon and the fact that cables on Saturday noted a further advance in prices of 2s to 4s in London, and 1s to 3s in Liverpool and Bristol.

Slander Suit Failed.

Orangeville, Oct. 22.—The Assizes opened yesterday afternoon, with Justice Magee presiding. As there were no criminal cases on the docket, the judge was presented with the customary pair of white gloves.

The civil suit of John A. White and his wife, against John Lusty, farmer, of Melancthon, for alleged slander, was heard by a jury. Mrs. White, who is not 20 years of age, was at one time housekeeper for Lusty during his wife's illness, and it was alleged he had accused her of theft of some quilts at the time of her marriage. The jury, after being out half an hour, gave a verdict for the defendant. W. H. Wright of Owen Sound was counsel for plaintiffs, and G. H. Watson, K. C., and G. M. Vance of Shelburne for the defendant.

Brussels post office was robbed on Sunday morning.

Wheat fell from $1.07 to $1.04 in Hamilton Saturday.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

THE FUTURE OF AN OCCUPATION IS DETERMINED BY ITS SERVICE TO SOCIETY AND ITS PERSONAL ADVANTAGES

One of the highest and most altruistic institutions of society is LIFE INSURANCE for PROTECTION OF WIFE AND CHILDREN AND PROVISION FOR OLD AGE.

Only with its advent did it become possible for men who died during their productive period to provide adequately for their dependents. It alone can offer indemnity forearning power. In many a home it prevents the disperaion of the children, is the sole source of food and shelter and their only means of education into good citizenship. It does more to lessen pauperism and the resulting ignorance and crime than than do all charitable institutions combined. It cures thriftlessness, that most prevalent of human maladies.

Life insurance adds moral fibre to every man insured. Through the immediate creation of an estate it widens his outlook, relieves him from anxiety, frees his capital, serves as collateral, secures his business, in times of stress, and accumulating apart from the hazards of trade suffices for his own and his family's needs when his other possessions may have been lost.

The Sun Life of Canada

Offers a man something as good as gold. Its policies give the maximum of security at the minimum of cost. If you have obligations; if your life means something to others, insurance is for you. Investigate the cost of absolute protection in the SUN OF CANADA.

EYESIGHT TESTING

is a science and should be thoroughly understood before attempting to correct eyesight troubles. Eyesight Testing is our business. We have studied it in all its phases and will be pleased at any time to demonstratrate to our patients just what condition their eyes are in, and how that the properly fitted glasses will act on the muscles to overcome the particular defect in their eyes. We have the very best appliances for Eyesight Testing and have never had a dissatisfied customer yet. As regards the fitting of Eyeglasses and Spectacles we consider that work very easy, as we understand that part of the business thoroughly.

County Council in Session; Warden Gives His Address

Special Meeting Has Been Turned Into Regular Fall Session—Will the County Accept Indigents From City Into County House of Refuge?

What was called as a special meeting, but what in reality is the regular fall session of the Peterborough County Council, opened at the Court House this afternoon at two o'clock, Warden McNulty presided and all the members were present.

The meeting was called for the purpose of giving the third reading to a by-law authorizing the issuing of $4000 debentures to provide for the payment of the new bridges being built over the Ouse river in Asphodel, but Warden McNulty decided to hold the fall session at the same time and thereby save time and keep down the expenses.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

In his address to the Council the Warden touched on a matter in which the city is interested, viz., the receiving of the old and indigent men of the city into the county House of Refuge. He expressed no direct opinion in connection with the matter, leaving it to the council to decide. He urged, however, that nothing be done that would be injurious to the interests of the county. His address to the Council was as follows:

WARDEN McNULTY

Gentlemen,—This being as far as we can see at the present moment the fall session, I beg to again address you upon this business of the county.

I can assure you that my occupancy of the office of Warden has depended largely upon your continued assistance since January last, and I may be permitted to say that from my view point, and I presume from all, that harmony and economy consistent with good work, have prevailed. This is an important year in the county from the fact of it being the opening and establishing year of the County House of Refuge. The chairman of the Board will no doubt lay this matter before you to the satisfaction of all.

After considering the reports of the county engineer upon certain bridges that the county was asked to assume, this council as you are aware, assumed a bridge in Belmont, a bridge in Asphodel, and a bridge at Norwood. Other bridges were assumed, namely, Ferry Creek bridge, in Harvey, Doxee bridge in Chandos, the canal bridge in Dummer. At the request of Mr. Colwell, the chairman of the Roads and Bridges committee, and myself, I visited what is known as Black creek bridge in Cavendish and the chairman, Mr. Mosier, will be able to lay this matter before you in committee. We also visited Burleigh Falls bridge at the request of Mr. Booth, who will be able to tell you what action was taken, and also give his opinion after having inspected himself.

We have now $4,000 of debentures sale and hope in the near future to realize upon the same. The object, as you are aware, is to meet the expenditure in connection with the new bridges now being constructed in Asphodel as per ordain-council at the June session. The chairman having convened the special committee and having taken the necessary steps succeeded in securing tenders for both superstructure and substructure of said bridges. The tenders of the lowest tenderers were accepted, namely: Dixon Bros., steelwork, $1,475; John E. Hayes, concrete work, $1,194. Your committee having secured the signatures of all parties together with other conditions asked for, have called upon the county to execute contracts which are now ready for the signature of the Warden and the attachment of the corporate seal and the signature, etc., of the said contractors.

I have been informed that representatives from the city will wait upon you with a view of securing terms upon which the old poor of the city may be received into the House of Refuge. This is a matter for you all to deal with. We have not many inmates there now, but judging from counties there will be from this county many more, perhaps all that could be kept, yet at the same time I would urge upon this Council whatever they may do, to keep an eye single to the requirements of this county, so that if you feel disposed to relieve the situation in the city for the time being until they have made provision for the aged themselves, you will not in any way defeat the object of the county in the accommodation for their own old.

Two Employees Meet Death in Canning Factory at Trenton

Special to the Review.

Trenton, Oct. 22.—A terrible accident occurred this morning at the Canning factory here, in which two men, George Graham and Louis J. Dale, were killed.

The accident was caused by the explosion of one of the retorts in which the contents of the cans are cooked.

An inquest will be held this evening.

Mean Trick Played on Old Man While Waiting for Noon Train mean trick

An old man, while waiting today at the Grand Trunk depot, for the noon train to Millbrook, was the victim of a mean trick by a young sneak. He had an old relic of a gun, along with sundry other bundles. While his back was turned, the gun was picked up and carried off. About the time the old man had discovered his loss, the sneak, who had hidden the gun, was back, and volunteered to get the weapon, which he claimed he had seen carried off, on payment of 75c. The old man hunted around and produced fifty cents, whereupon the party produced the gun, and pocketed the half dollar.

Bystanders, some of whom had a shrewd idea of the real state of affairs, tried to shame the small-calibred man into returning the gentleman's coin, but neither appeal nor threat to report the matter to the police had any effect, and the train carried away the aged victim, lamenting the loss of his hard-earned fifty cents.

Wheat Goes to $1.05 and Oats To 55c on Local Market

Wheat at $1.05 per bushel and oats at 55 cents, are the local market prices being paid for the above grains today. This morning an advance of five cents, in both wheat and oats, was made.

A local firm today, in speaking to the Review, stated that the farmers are apparently holding back their grain and an advance was absolutely necessary in order to have the grain brought to the city. Yesterday the Central Milling Co. had some 2,000 bushels of grain brought up from Rice Lake, paying one dollar a bushel, in addition to the cost of transportation. Another large consignment is expected by this company and the cost will be quite a bit greater.

This advance in wheat will not affect the present price of flour, as what is used in this city, is made from Manitoba wheat. The flour produced from local wheat is all shipped to Montreal, and it is altogether likely the price will go up there.

Swindler Tries a New Scheme

Palmed Himself off as a "Cop" and Asked for Money

A resident of Downie street, called at the police station this afternoon and had a somewhat startling story to tell. He said that shortly before dinner, a man whose name he did not know, called at the home, representing himself as a police officer, and demanded a sum of money. This he claimed was due him.

The somewhat surprised citizen had a suspicion that he was being deceived, being at a loss to know why he had to pay a constable. He refused to hand over the money and notified the police of the affair. It was evidently the attempt of some swindler, to obtain money under false pretences.

STORIES HEARD ON THE STREET

"Do you know your lessons?" inquired one small boy of another, while they were wending their way up George street to school this morning.

"Of course, I do," came the response.

"Well! I'll bet you don't know your geography," persisted the older of the two.

"Of course I do, Now just try me" said the lad.

"Well, what is the equator?"

"The equator," innocently remarked the little chap, "is a menagerie lion around the centre of the earth."

"Who told you that," inquired the other boy, laughing heartily at the words "menagerie lion" (imaginary line.)

"The teacher told me that," and I'd believe her afore I would you," answered the younger, and the hopefuls strode on.

An old man from the head of Chemong Lake, who was slightly intoxicated, walked into a Peterborough livery stable the other day, and said that he wanted to rent a democratic wagon by the month.

"By the month," gasped the attendant.

"Yes, sir! By the month. And how much will you charge me for it."

"Well, we will not charge you a damn cent," replied the clerk. "You will pay before you get the rig."

"Oh, you need not get saucy," observed the visitor, "I have a barrel of money."

"Well! You had better knock in the head of the barrel and get at the cash right away," came the response, and the old man did not get the rig, as he has a reputation of not paying for anything that he can get out of.

Appeals Against the Assessment

275 Had Been Entered up to Noon To-day.

Up to noon today, 275 appeals had been entered against the assessment for 1908. About 25 have come in since Saturday.

In past years the average number of appeals has been about fifty, so it will be seen that much dissatisfaction exists this year. Last year there were only 26 appeals.

"The Blackest Day in Years In N. Y. Financial District"

Knickerbocker Trust Company Closed it Doors To-day After a Heavy Run on it Had Been Made—Women Fainted in Street.

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, Oct. 22.—The Knickerbocker Trust Co., one of the largest institutions of its kind in the country, closed its doors today after a heavy run had been started by the resignation of its president, Chas. T. Barney, and threw the financial district into a panic.

When the doors of the company were opened for business this morning a line of depositors extending from the Manhattan Life Building clear to Broadway was waiting to withdraw their deposits. After paying off for a short time the doors were closed and the announcement made that the company would take advantage of the five day rule in discontinuing payments. The depositors became panic-stricken, while women screamed and fainted right on the street.

Values on the stock exchange went down in a general smash, and one or two Stock Exchange firms failed. It was one of the bleakest days in years in the financial district, and rumors were rife concerning the stability of several other banking institutions. Call money loaned at 60 per cent, and but little offered.

A general meeting of the banking interest is called for 3 this p.m., when steps will be taken to restore confidence before the opening of the Stock Exchange tomorrow, if possible.

Mr. Lawless Thinks Scheme To Enlarge Hotel is Good One

Mr. J. A. Lawless, proprietor of the Hotel National, Peterborough, and Hotel Canada, New Liskeard, arrived in the city last night from New Liskeard where he has been for some time past, looking after the interests of his hotel in that place.

Mr. Lawless, who, it is understood, is the originator of the scheme to have a large addition built to the Hotel National and have an opera house and office buildings constructed in the block of buildings thus formed, when seen by the Review today said "he didn't see any possible chance of the project not being carried out.

The North American Investment Company, of Toronto, who have taken up the matter, upon being approached by Mr. Lawless, seemed to think well of it, and are financially interested to the extent of $5,000. There is also a possibility of them putting more money into it. Mr. Lawless has invested $12,000 towards carrying out the scheme, a personal friend of his of Toronto, is interested to the extent of $10,000, two Peterborough men have invested $5,000 and two others $2,500 each. Besides these there are many others who will probably buy stock when the shares are offered for sale by the $200,000 company, which will be organized to finance the operations in connection with the additions and improvements. Arrangements have practically been concluded for the engagement of a new manager for the Hotel National, and he is expected to take possession on the 3rd of November.

Mr. Lawless said that, while he was not by any means certain when the work in connection with the extensions and modifications to the hotel would begin, he would not be surprised to see them commenced some time in November.

CHURCH UNION NOT FAVORED

Woodstock, Oct. 21.—The report on church union was received with vigorous applause by the Baptist convention here today, and a number of speeches were made endorsing the committee's finding. This means that as far as church union is concerned the Baptists will have none of it if it means the giving up of long held and basic principles.

Steps were taken towards a union of the various Baptist communities of Canada. The committee recommended a basis of union; also, of the various foreign mission boards into one composed of some 18 members, three from each convention, and the balance of six, from the whole union; the formation of a board of Canadian missions, composed of twelve members, the home mission superintendents of the various provinces, the superintendent of Canadian missions, and the secretary of the union; a union Sunday school board of twenty-one members, and a publication board of nine members to publish a Baptist annual and a denominational monthly and other papers. The name of the new body is to be the Baptist Union of Canada. Considerable discussion followed, which occupied the balance of the morning and afternoon. Some amendments of a minor character were made.

Peterboro' Man Gashed His Throat

Became Suddenly Insane on N. Y. Central Train and Caused Trouble

A Rochester, N.Y., despatch says: John Connelly, of Peterborough, Ont., became suddenly insane in an New York Central train this afternoon. He imagined that some one intended to murder him.

Producing a knife he began to jab himself in the throat. Passengers took the knife away from him and turned him over to the police. Going across the tracks he broke away from the police and tried to throw himself in front of a freight train.

He has been removed to the county hospital, where efforts are being made to save his life. The throat is gashed badly, and it is thought his windpipe is severed. Connelly came here from Canada but a few months ago.

The name of John Connelly does not appear in the city directory. Inquiry at the police station elicited the information that they knew of no one in this city by the name of John Connelly.

"We expect to be able to build sidewalks up to about November 10th," remarked Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works today. "That was the date on which we ceased last year. After that we set the sidewalk men on sewer construction and they are thus employed constantly until about Christmas. We have laid a large number of walks this year, but will have to leave about three miles over, which we will be unable to undertake.

Young Man Met With Terrible Accident While Threshing

A Lindsay despatch says:

Albert Murtha, son of Mr. Thos. Murtha, of King's Wharf, aged 19, years, was fearfully injured on Saturday evening at his father's home and is now lying in the Ross Hospital in a precarious condition.

A threshing was going on at his father's place, and when the whistle blew to cease work, at 6 p.m., he jumped off a straw stack, alighting on a fork which was standing upright in the ground. The fork handle tore a gaping wound in his bowels, entering just above the groin. The young man suffered great agony and was brought to the Ross hospital in the ambulance, the trip occupying almost five hours.

The wound is of a most serious nature, and the condition of the victim of the accident is extremely dangerous.

Assessment Figures From Four Cities in Ontario

Peterboro' Not Much Worse off as Regards Taxation Than Other Places of Similar Population.

Peterborough's assessment for 1908, is high, compared with that of Kingston, St. Thomas, and St. Catharines, cities having a population in the same vicinity as that of Peterborough. However, local ratepayers are not in such a bad way, when compared with those in the other three cities mentioned, as the rate here is considerably lower.

The following figures, showing the assessment, population, ratio of assessment as to population, and the rate in the four cities will be of interest,— 1908—Kingston—Assessment $9,423,900; pop. 18,626; ratio. 506.; rate 1907, 20 mills.

1908—St. Thomas—Assessment $6,476,741; pop. 13,414; ratio. 183.; rate 1907, 21 5-10 mills.

1907,—St. Catharines — Assessment. $6,342,619; pop. 12,295; ratio. 516.; rate 1907, 22 mills.

1908 — Peterborough — Assessment $10,590,452; pop. 16,000; ratio. 662; rate 1907, 17 1-2 mills.

It must be taken into consideration, however, that the rate is likely to be reduced in Peterborough for 1908. When one considers that Peterborough's assessment last year was only a little over six millions and the rate was 17 1-2 mills, it will be seen that the ratepayers have been getting down easily, compared with those in other cities.

Queen Alexandra Pupils Will Have Toboggan Slide

A force of men are at work at the Queen Alexandra school, levelling the gully in the piece of property, just north, of the school, that the Board of Education recently purchased to provide for a larger playground. In order not to block the creek which passes through the gully, a large tile drain is being put in and covered over, the material taken out in the excavation of the cellar being used for levelling up. At one point, a nice slope is being left to provide for a toboggan slide for the school children during the winter months. When the snow comes, the slide can be fixed up at very little expense and will provide splendid means of recreation for the pupils. The slide will not be too steep, so that there will be no danger of the little ones injuring themselves.

The gully will make a fine playground when it has been fixed up, and the Board of Education did a good stroke of business when they purchased it.

Audacious Attempt to Corrupt Riding of East Northumberland

Liberals Trying to Buy Support by Promising Public Works—Other Ridiculous Overtures to the Electors Which are Impossible of Fulfilment—An Exposure of Questionable Methods.

Colborne, Oct. 22.—With the near approach of polling day, which falls on Tuesday, October, 29, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Edward Cochrane, who for nearly a quarter of a century represented the riding of East Northumberland in the Dominion Parliament, the tactics which are being pursued on behalf of the Government candidate, Mr. R. A. Mulholland, become daily more bare-faced and unscrupulous.

The popularity of Mr. C. L. Owens the Conservative candidate, and the success which has marked his campaign so far, have evidently alarmed those who are opposed to his candidature, and has led to the adoption of questionable election promises, some of which are audacious in their assumption that a riding can be bribed by wholesale by means of gifts of public works, while others are so evidently impossible of fulfilment, that they are matter only for ridicule. Coupled with this feature of the contest is a substantial grievance against the Laurier Government on the part of the farmers, who are the backbone of the riding, and this grievance will not fail to have its effect when the ballots are being cast on Tuesday, October 29.

THE DANGLING BAIT

In the southern part of the riding, the promise of a new dock, is the bait with which the Government is openly seeking—both through its election workers and local organ— to buy the votes of the electors. To understand the situation it is necessary to rehearse something of the history and the topography of the district. The town of Colborne lies about two miles inland from Lake Ontario, and when lake traffic it possesses has hitherto been served by a dock at Lakeport, about 2 1-4 miles south west of the town. Even in maps, 30 or 40 years ago, Lakeport is described as "Colborne Harbor" and this port has always been found sufficient for the needs of the town. Lakeport, however, though so near to Colborne, is not in the same riding, but is just over the line, in West Northumberland. With the passing of years, the Lakeport dock fell into disrepair, and the Liberal member for the riding, Mr. J. B. McColl, had no difficulty a couple of years ago, in securing from the Government an appropriation for its repair. This ag-ing the section of the pier farthest from the shore, making a substantial landing place for vessels. In the following winter, however, during a violent storm, the older portions of the pier were washed bodily away, leaving a gap of some 300 or 400 feet of water between the shore and the new section.

MR. McCALL'S $7500 "ISLAND."

Lakeport is now without a dock, and the $7,500 expended on the end of the pier is worthless, unless a further appropriation is made to connect it with the shore. It is estimated that this could be done by a further expenditure of $3,000 or $4,000. This, Mr. McColl has pledged himself, in good round terms, to secure, for he has been nettled by derisive references to "McColl's Island," the name by which the isolated section of the pier is known throughout the district.

In the meantime, a vacancy occurred in East Northumberland, and the Government, casting about for some luscious plan to dangle in front of the electors' eyes, decided to gave the riding a dock all to itself. It was incidentally a chance to kill two birds with one stone, for not only was the district receiving the gift of a public work, but a faithful party worker would be enabled to reap some pecuniary advantage. The site chosen for the dock was less than a mile east of the Lakeport dock, and was no nearer the town of Colborne but it was within the confines of East Northumberland, and fronted a summer hotel property owned by Mr Frank L. Webb, a Colborne, lawyer, who has for years been an active Liberal worker. The erection of the dock at this point would naturally enhance the value of Mr. Webb's property.

READY TO BREAK FAITH.

Here, however, a difficulty arose, All the land along the lake front for a considerable distance was originally owned by the Keeler family, including the site of the Lakeport dock. In order that no competition to this dock should arise, the Keeler estate, in selling off a portion of the land holdings, incorporated in all the deeds, a proviso, that no dock should be built on the lands thus sold. Although this condition attached to Mr. Webb's property, the Government of the Dominion of Canada, was quite prepared to violate a legal covenant in order that its party ends might be served. As soon, however, as public announcement was made of the proposed work, notice was served by the Toronto solicitors of the Campbell estate, the present owners of the Lakeport dock site, that legal measures would be taken to enforce the provisions of the deed. The Government, thus faced, by an unexpected obstacle, decided to respect the letter, while violating the spirit of the deed. Running down to the lake, beside the Webb property is a forced road, which, though used for years, has never been taken over as a public highway. The shore end of the dock will be located at the foot of this road, but instead of extending the pier straight south into the lake, it will be run in a southeasterly direction, bringing the greater portion of its length, across the front of Mr. Webb's property, and giving him, practically all the advantages which would accrue has the dock been entirely on his property.

BOLD BID FOR VOTES.

The Government is playing the Colborne dock as its trump card in the campaign in the southern portion of the riding. The advertisement calling for tenders, is being inserted in all the newspapers of the riding, regardless of their political complexions. The plans, nicely framed, hung in the post office at Colborne, where they are likely to be seen by the greatest number of citizens. The Colborne Enterprise, Mr. Mulholland's chief journalistic supporter, in its issue of Oct. 10, flagrantly appealed for votes in order to show gratitude to the Government and secure other public works in the future. In its last week's number it repeats its plea, using these ingenious words, "while it is generally admitted that the principle of expending money for public works, in the hope that the expenditure may influence the voter is wrong, yet the fact remains that this plan is sometimes adopted by both the Conservative and Liberal Governments." After citing the case of Brockville which, "believes in giving friends in both Houses," the Enterprise concludes, "By electing Mr. Mulholland, East Northumberland will have a friend at Court, who will be in a position to see that this riding receives every consideration, to which it is entitled."

So far as the town of Colborne is concerned, the proposed dock offers no advantages over the dock at Lakeport. The summer passenger traffic is the chief consideration, as there are no exports of grain or manufactured articles, while by the ample shipments, (the staple export of the district) are ready, the lake navigation season is almost over. It is stated also that the captains of the Richelieu and Ontario steamers, which call at Lakeport, have expressed to the officials of the company, the opinion that the proposed dock, would not be as safe or convenient place to call.

A PICTURESQUE COMPARISON.

Two Liberal contractors arrived from Owen Sound on Thursday and looked over the site with a view to tendering for the work. In conversation later, with a business man of the town, one of them, in a burst of frankness, remarked that "Colborne has about as much use for a dock there, as a porch climber has for a prayer-book."

Many residents of the district are sceptical as to the bona fides of the Government, as they believe that once the election is over, the dock project will be forgotten. The appropriation which went through was for a dock at Colborne Harbor, which description fits Lakeport, as much as it does the proposed site. It is said that Mr. McCall, of West Northumberland claims that this is the case, and it is certain that, that gentleman will not submit quietly to being made a laughing stock by the diversion of dock funds from Lakeport. Therefore, there are good grounds for the belief of many persons, that the conventional lines inserted in all Government advertisements for tenders to the effect that "the department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tenders," has in the present case peculiar truth and significance.

Art Burn Will Meet Longboat

Calgary Admirers Getting up a Fund to Send Him East

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Freddie Lepper, the Toronto baseball player, who is in Calgary, has written another letter to Herbert Dale here, in which he says the Calgarians are so sure that Art Burn can defeat Tom Longboat that they are getting up a fund to send him to Toronto to meet the Indian. Lepper has revised his opinion of Burn since last he wrote.

He says, "Don't get wild and wager all you have on the Indian when Burn comes down. This Burn is a wise one. He won't run unless he has to, and he never makes a runaway race of it. He is too wise. He wins and that is all. His time may not be as good as Longboat's, but he always wins with lots left. I have been knocking around, and have come to the conclusion that Burn is a whole lot better than he seems. Calgary sportsmen are too wide awake to be banking on a man who cannot show the goods. The relay race I saw him in, certainly made me think he was a four-flusher, but a little inside information, makes me hand you a tip to keep car fare off the roll you bet, when he comes east looking for redskin scalps."

Mrs. Eddy Will Have No Successor

No Person Will Ever Fill the Position Occupied by Her

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—Prompted by the report that a successor had been chosen to take the place of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, as head of the Christian Science Church, after the death of the present leader, Alfred Farlow, the official spokesman for the denomination, today issued this steatement,—

"Mrs. Eddy, founder of the faith and today in supreme control of the Christian Science Church will have no successor.

"Neither Mrs. Augusta Stetson, the leader of the New York Church, nor Lady Dunmore, who has been prominently mentioned will ever fill the position occupied today by Mrs. Eddy.

"With the death of the aged leader, the Christian Science Church will have no single personal leader.

"The business of the organization will undoubtedly be considered by a Board of Directors, while the memory of the founder and discoverer, will remain the only name ever connected with the faith."

Mail Bag Used for Smuggling Goods

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Oct. 21.— Customs officers yesterday accidentally discovered that bags used for transferring mail between Brockville, Ont. and Morristown, N.Y., were being used for smuggling.

The officers happened to be at the Morristown post office when the Canadian mail arrived, and were watching the bags emptied, when they saw an unmarked package drop from an unlocked bag.

Tearing off the wrapper they found two packages addressed to Cleveland, Ohio, ready to be expressed. When seized and opened the packages revealed eighteen beautifully embroidered flannel dresses for children.

Asked for an explanation, the Canadian mail carrier fled from the post office and escaped back to Canada in a sail boat.

THE MARRIED LIFE

Bank clerks are commanded not to marry till they have a salary of at least $1,000. The result is that the poor fellows are aged and grey when the $1,000 comes, and they have lost all thoughts of homes of their own and are content to end their days in a boarding house, says the Hamilton Spectator. The result is that the warm-hearted fellows throw up the job in disgust and seek other employment. It may be a nice thing to be a bank clerk, but it is much nicer to marry a bright girl, and have a home. Conferences recommend young ministers not to marry, because the church pays such small salaries that it is impossible to meet the expenses of a family. In Milwaukee, Wis., the old Methodist preachers gathered together the other day to talk this marriage question over and to inaugurate plans to give the the young men a chance. One thing is certain—an unmarried preacher is not, as desirable for a church as one who has a bright, active family to assist him in his work. Then an unmarried preacher is a mark for all the young maidens in the congregation, and those who have advanced in years and if he looks more kindly on some particular one, all the others are up in arms, forget their religion, and say all manner of mean things about the unfortunate young minister. Better by far they marry even though the salary is small, and a large part of it is paid in produce at the highest market price. The richest churches, where the salaries are good and always paid promptly, rarely, if ever, have as pastor an unmarried man, so that the bachelors are kept in the front, on the picket line, and never have a chance at the easy places in Zion.

The brave pioneers of Canadian Methodism married and raised large families, and they would have scouted the idea that any conference should discuss the question or the propriety of their remaining single till such time as the Lord would enlarge the hearts of the congregation, to pay them their hard-earned hire. The church has fallen upon evil days when such conferences as that held in Milwaukee are deemed to be necessary. St. Paul was an incorrigible old bachelor, yet he thought marriage might be better under certain circumstances.

WILL SEVER THE TIE

Lindsay is getting to be a big place. As a municipality it is beginning to "feel its oats." It opines that it should be an entity, a self governing place, wholly free from county restrictions.

An agitation is now on in Scugogville for separation from the County of Victoria. By this unhappy union, the northern town, claims that in a sense it is held to a "mother's apron string." Sometimes such a connection is, to a lusty youth, irksome. Now there is a determined effort to cut the Gordian knot.

Discussing this question, which will come up before the Board of Trade, the Lindsay Post says,—

"When we take the trouble to look into the matter thoroughly, we cannot, but come to the conclusion, that we are a lot of chumps for having remained as we are for such a length of time. According to law, any town of over 5,000 people can, on a vote of its ratepayers, separate itself from the county. Several in Ontario have done so, besides the cities, which are, of course, separate, notably Smith's Falls, North Toronto, Peterborough and others, and not one of them would think of going back. In the case of Lindsay, we are paying anywhere from $1,500 to $2,500 for nothing. Not only that, but our representatives wield no influence whatever—on the other hand, are often slighted. The rural representatives seem to take delight in not only denying us our rights, but add insult to injury, by rubbing the slights into our people with a measly grin that has in times past been very aggravating.

"There ought to be only one ending to this agitation, and that is a unanimous vote for separation. It is necessary, however, that everything be done pro forma, so we hope, as a starter, that there will be a large attendance of the members of the Board of Trade as well as those who are not, but who ought to be."

PEN POINTS

Although you may not be Irish, try your hand at a Limerick.

Sharpen up your poetic instincts and take part in the Review's Limerick competition.

Even the farmer is feeling the problem of higher rental—of post office boxes.

Parliament will open on November 28th. This will in all likelihood be the last session before a general election.

Remember that a week from Thursday will be Thanksgiving day. Remember also that you have much to be thankful for.

That military personage who was so popular in the local post office a few months ago, has not so many dangers around now.—Of course, we refer to General Delivery; not Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers.

A more deliberate, bold and emboldening attempt to bribe a constituency with public works has never come to light, than that which is being practised in East Northumberland.

The Grits have not courage enough to place a candidate in the field in London, in view of Hyman's unsavory record—so they are contenting themselves, shouting for the Labor candidate. There is little danger, but that Mayor Beattie, the popular Conservative standard-bearer will redeem this hitherto corrupt constituency.

(A Toronto coal dealer says;—"There is no more need for an investigation of the coal dealers' business in Toronto than there is for an investigation of any other line of business. We don't average more than five per cent profit on our turnover during the year, and that is less than most other classes of business men get, or try to get." Pretty soon we will be hearing that the fuel merchants are doing business at an actual loss, and are merely engaged in the pursuit of providing fuel for the benefit of their health.

Speaking of what he had noted of Canadian progress and potentialities from Quebec to Vancouver, Mr. Rudyard Kipling says;—"I notice now no exodus across the border, no annexation sentiment. You have become a nation with a proper, national pride. No misgivings now as to your future. You take yourselves for granted." Kipling is evidently a close observer and student. Of all that he has said in his various speeches at different Canadian points visited by him, or remark more truthfully or more accurately sizes up the present situation or feeling in Canada than the foregoing.

After all there is hope and things are apparently not as black as they have been pictured. Here is the view taken by a Canadian bank manger, and it furnishes a careful summary of the financial situation:—"To my mind the most encouraging feature of the present financial situation is that things have got down to where they are now without entailing any failures. This argues a situation fundamentally sound, for a great deal of money has been lost during the past few months, and financiers must have been strong to be able to withstand the drain. It is likewise a tribute to the stability of our commercial conditions that the partial crop failure and the scarcity of money have not created anything approaching a panic."

The bye-election campaign in East Northumberland is in full swing. At Castleton, the other evening, the Conservative candidate, Mr. C. L. Owen, and Mr. F. M. Field addressed an enthusiastic meeting in the town hall No opposition was offered, although an invitation had been extended to the Government candidate, announced in the newspapers and on the bills. Both speakers reviewed the record of the Laurier Government and submitted the Opposition platform for approval. The Fruit Marks Act, and its enforcement, was severely criticized by Mr. Field, and he made effective use of the Colborne Harbor fraud recently exposed in The Mail and Empire, pointing out that it was more brazen even than the "cold justice" proposition in connection with the Patterson bye-election of some years ago, and was moreover a violation of the express terms of the deed under which the adjacent property owner had obtained title to his land. Hon. Geo. E. Foster and Mr. E. Gus Porter will speak in the riding. A great meeting is anticipated in Warkworth today at the official nomination, Mr. Owen having declined the overtures of the opposite party for a quiet nomination.

Says That Drain Should be Put in

Opinion of a Citizen Regarding the Bethune St. Culvert

The residents of Charlotte street near Bethune street, who have been complaining for some time past of the overflow at the culvert at Bethune street, every time it rains and in the spring, have been quieted for a time. The Board of Works made a great improvement, pulling up the culvert, but a citizen residing on Charlotte street, says to complete the job they should have put in a drain to carry off the surplus water. At present the water pipe is not sufficient to carry off the water every spring, or when it rains, the street is flooded with about three inches of water. This one foot pipe has to carry off the water from all the blocks between Hunter street, on the north, Park street, on the west, and the creek running through Charlotte street, on the east. A larger drain should be constructed in order to prevent floods.

Bravely Rescued an Empty Trunk

Amusing Incident in Connection With a Fire in Cavan Township

In connection with the fire, which burned the barn and new house of Mr. Harry Lowes, Cavan township, on Saturday last, it appears all the contents of the barn were consumed, and that Mr. Lowes was left without any feed for his cattle. A large portion of the contents of the dwelling was also destroyed.

While the fire was raging, a girl employed by Mr. Lowes, lamented that her trunk, containing all her clothing, was in her room, and would be destroyed. Mr. Lowes secured a ladder and, climbing up to a window, secured the trunk. When opened it was found that it did not contain any wearing apparel, but was empty. The young woman, in the excitement had forgotten about taking her garments from the trunk a few days ago, and hanging them in the room.

BIG SHORTAGE IN FEED SUPPLY

Ontario Farmers May Have to Use Frosted Wheat

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has been making inquiries, with a view to aiding the farmers of the Province, if possible, to meet with the serious conditions likely to arise this winter, owing to the shortage of the feed supply. The practicability of obtaining frosted wheat from the western provinces, for the purpose, has been especially investigated, and as a result of its efforts, the department on Saturday gave out the following statement.;

"As to the quantity available, the opinion is general that there will be a large amount of frosted wheat of too low a grade to be used for milling. How much of this wheat will be placed upon the market as feed, it is difficult to determine until threshing is completed, but the Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, states that if the total wheat crop of the North-west reaches the eighty million bushel mark, there will probably be from ten to fifteen million bushels that will be marketed as feed wheat.

"As regards the quality or feeding value of frosted wheat, the same authority states that it has been pretty generally demonstrated in the west, and also by experiments at Ottawa, that frosted wheat makes excellent feed. It is the opinion of the secretary of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association that, for the purpose indicated it has all the value of No. 1 wheat, and that it is much safer to use on account of the higher percentage of bran it contains, which would naturally be mixed with it in the grinding.

"As to its keeping qualities, it is stated that the fact that wheat is frosted does not impair it in this respect, provided it is thoroughly dried before being threshed. but there is always a danger of feed wheat heating, where green, half-matured berries are all present, as is usually the case.

"With reference to the practicability of using this wheat for feed in Ontario, the question of cost will be the determining factor. If it can be laid down there at a price that will warrant farmers in feeding it to hogs and other classes of stock, there can be no doubt that large quantities could be marketed in Ontario and fed to advantage. Coarse grains are selling at a good price over the whole continent. Prices have fluctuated during the past month. It is likely that the price of feed wheat at Fort William and Port Arthur will become fairly well established in the course of the next two weeks, and Ontario farmers will then know at what price this grain can be delivered at various points in Ontario. The freight rates will be the same as for any other grade of wheat from Fort William to Ontario points. The secretary of the Grain Exchange, Mr. C. N. Bell, Winnipeg, will doubtless be in a position to place intending purchasers in touch with dealers and commercial houses in the west.

Asphodel to Vote on Local Option

Presentation to Departing Residents of Westwood—Personal Notes of Interest

Westwood, Oct. 21.—On Tuesday evening last the members of St. Michael's English church met in the town hall to bid farewell to Mr and Mrs. Geo. Lancaster, who leave shortly to take up their home in the Northwest. Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster have been life attendants of St. Michael's church, Mrs. Lancaster, for many years, being organist. For her services in that respect, she was presented, by the members of the congregation, with a handsome gold locket and chain, suitably engraved, while Mr. Lancaster was the recipient of a beautiful prayer book. —A most enjoyable repast was served in the form of a fowl supper, after which toasts and best wishes were extended to the departing couple, for their new home in the west.

Mr. Lancaster will enter a harness dealing business, in partnership with his brother Thomas, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Jos. Humphries, in Alberta.

ANNUAL TEA.

The Methodist church held their annual tea meeting in the town hall on Friday evening last. Tea was served from 6 to 8 by the ladies of the congregation. After tea from 8 to 10.30 an unexceptionable program was rendered, Rev. H. A. Frost, pastor of the church being chairman. Seated with him on the platform was Rev. Mr. Elliott of Hastings, who gave during the programme, a very interesting and beneficial address. The Comstock orchestra rendered several selections, while Miss Johnston of Stirling, gave four recitations, which were most thoroughly enjoyed and highly appreciated. The entertainment was a success in every respect, there being a large crowd, and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Messrs. Joseph and Peter Comstock, who have spent the summer in the west, returned recently.

Mr. John Cook has re-opened the Sargent blacksmith shop and will conduct a horse shoeing and general repair business. Westwood needed two blacksmiths, and is at present in need of a doctor.

The I.O.F. oyster supper next Friday evening will be the best of the season. Mr. Archie Moore will be floor manager and the Misses Elmhirst will furnish the music. Be sure and have your ticket at the door.

Mr. Ernest Evans has returned from spending the summer at Carberry, Man.

Mr. David McColl intends moving to the village soon.

The post office and Union Bank have been greatly improved lately, by a coat of paint.

Apple picking gangs are busy in the western district. The apple crop is good they report, much better than expected.

Mr. H. C. Elmhirst intends remaining in the west, and the family will, in all probability, move there in the spring.

LOCAL OPTION.

Local option will again be fought in our village. Last year it was carried by a lawful majority, but owing to a breach of law, Mr. Heffernan, the only hotel keeper concerned, took the case to the High Court and defeated the township. It will be voted on in the entire township, of Asphodel, including Norwood.

Mr. Hilliard Nelson intends moving to near Keene this week, with his threshing outfit and straw blower combined. He has a couple of weeks' work in that district.

Mr. and Mrs. George Renwick have rented Mr. John Sargent's house and will be residents of our village for the next year.

Rev. H. A. Frost and Rev. W. D. Harrison, of Keene, exchanged pulpits on Sunday last.

DOUCETTE WAS TAKEN BACK

Officers With Him in Charge Left City Last Night

Last night Frank Doucette, the army and medical corps deserter, who has been in the county gaol a few days, having been arrested by the local police and held, pending the arrival of regulars from Kingston was taken back to the barracks.

He was brought down from the gaol last night by P. C. Adams and shortly after, Bombadier Kelly and Private Robinson arrived at the station. They went to the prisoner's cell, which was the last one in the row, and Bombadier Kelly, who knew Doucette before this desertion, shook hands with him, and wanted to know by what means he would like to go to the station. He chose a cab to avoid undue publicity, and one was telephoned for. He was taken to the nine o'clock train, where a big crowd quickly gathered, when they heard that he was at the station. His father was present to bid him goodbye and Doucette waved his hand out the car window, as the train pulled out.

TICKET AGENTS PRESENT GIFTS

On Tuesday evening at the Alexandra hotel a pleasing feature of the visit of the Canadian Ticket Agents' Association was consummated. The visiting agents, appreciating the attention paid them by the local committee, gave tokens of their regard by presenting the members with suitable gifts of remembrance. Miss Calder, daughter of A. Calder, the north Main street C.P.R. ticket agent, chairman of the local committee, was also presented by the visitors with a beautiful cut glass bowl. The presentation took place in the rotunda of the hotel, and the retiring president, W. McIlroy, made a few suitable remarks. W. Jackson made the presentation. All the recipients were required to say a few words and were unanimous in offering the courtesies of the city as soon as the association saw fit to meet here again.—Winnipeg Free Press.

New Bridge at McLaren's Creek

Will Shorten Distance Between Lindsay and Fenelon Falls

Supt. J. H. McClelland left today for McLaren's Creek, where he will look into the matter of having some dredging done, so that a bridge can be built, and the distance by road, between Fenelon Falls and Lindsay, shortened by about five miles. The creek forms part of the big swamp between Lindsay and Sturgeon Lake.

The Forty Hours Devotion Begins

Lindsay, Oct. 22.—Ven. Archdeacon Casey celebrated High Mass at St. Mary's on Sunday. Rev. Father Collins delivered the sermon. He took for his text the words found in St. Matthew, xxii., 15-21.; "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's." The message, which was directed principally to young men, was convincing in argument and method of presentation. This morning the important religious exercise, known as the Forty Hours' Devotion began at St. Mary's, when low masses were said at 7 and 7.30 and, high mass at 9. The exercises will continue until Thursday evening. Special sermons will be delivered each evening at 7.30. A number of the priests of the diocese will be present to assist the local pastors.

Rob Roy Left for Jack's Lake

To Bring Back the Members of Jack's Lake Party

The "Rob Roy" left this afternoon to bring back to the city the members of the Jack's Lake fishing and partridge shooting party, of whom there are about a dozen. Several of the other members of the party returned some days ago. The party have had a good season of sport, the fishing being good, although the birds have been rather hard to get this year.

CHOIR DROVE TO SOUTH DUMMER

Local Vocalists Supply Program at Anniversary Tea

The choir of the George street Methodist church drove to South Dummer last night and supplied the programme at the anniversary tea and concert of the Methodist church at that place. Owing to a misunderstanding in the instructions that had been received, the party went to Westwood first, and were there informed that the concert was at South Dummer church, on the Westwood circuit, but six miles distant from Westwood village. The result was that the choir did not arrive at their destination till nearly nine o'clock, but everyone had waited patiently, and the programme was received with much enthusiasm. It was as follows;—

Anthem—"Arise Shine"—Choir.
Solo—"The Flight of Ages"—Miss Mowry.
Anthem—"Sing unto God"—Choir.
Solo—"Life's Pathway"—Mr. Walton.
Solo—"The Little Irish Girl"—Mr. Taylor.
Anthem—"Magnificat"—Choir.
Solo—"No One Ever Marries Me"—Miss Mowry.
Anthem—"God is the Refuge of His People"—Choir.
Duet—"Greetings"—Misses Chasty.
Solo—"Three for Jack"—Mr. Taylor.
Solo—"The Veterans' Song"—Mr. F. Myles.
Duet—"Jack and Jill"—Miss Mowry and Mr. Taylor.
Quartette—"The Lord is My Shepherd"—Misses Chasty, Mr. Myles and Mr. Walton.
Anthem—"From Egypt's Bondage Come"—Choir.

After the programme was given refreshments were served and a social time spent. Rev. Mr. Frost is the minister of the Westwood Circuit, and he was present and assisted materially in the various arrangements.

The choir drove out in three carriages and the drive was a delightful one, the night being perfect.

Bartender Was Heavily Fined

For Selling Liquor in Prohibited Hours—Defendant Did Not Appear

Ernest Armstrong, bartender at the National Hotel, who, on Saturday last, was convicted by Magistrate Dumble, on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday, September 22nd, was today fined twenty dollars, to be paid in ten days, or in default of payment, thirty days in gaol. Armstrong did not appear in court on Saturday and judgment was reserved until today, but the defendant again did not show up.

IN COURT AGAIN

For the sixth time, within the past two months, Alfred Choate occupied a seat in the prisoner's dock this morning. He was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty to being a "rag" but admitted being drunk on several occasions. He is a bricklayer by trade and earns good wages, but apparently spends all his earnings on whiskey. His Worship gave him ten days at Castle Nesbitt to sober up, and said that the next time Choate appeared in court, he would send him to Central Prison.

Difficult Part of the Problem

Referee Has Perplexing Task in York County Loan Matter

The most difficult point to deal with in the York Loan puzzle, which is being worked out before Referee Keppelle in order to decide the merits of the respective classes of claimants was taken up this morning. This is Class 4, which includes the holders of shares payable on demand, or which had matured prior to the date of liquidation, and of shares which were withdrawable at any time on thirty days' notice, whether notice of withdrawal had been given or not or if given, whether it had expired prior to the date of liquidation or not."

Mr. W. H. Hunter represents this class, and a great deal of the morning was consumed in putting in by-laws and minutes of the directors' meetings bearing on the matter.

The "turn-over" claims are being dealt with this afternoon. These are the cases where people who had been paying into the York Loan were induced to purchase pianos or other products of the subsidiary organizations of the company, and were paying for them by handing over the stock they had received.

The question of insolvency did not come up today—Toronto News.

PROVINCIAL CONVENTION

Christian Endeavorers to Meet in Toronto

The Christian Endeavorers of the Province will hold a convention in Cook's church, Toronto, on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Special interest attaches to this from the fact that the founder of the movement, Rev. Francis E. Clarke, D.D., will be present and speak at the opening session on Wednesday evening. Dr. Clarke has given up his whole time to travelling organization work all over the world, and has from the from the first been president of the World's Y.P.S.C.E., called the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

On Thursday sessions will be held in the morning, afternoon and evening. The last convention was held in Toronto two years ago. Arrangements may be made this year for holding annual conventions, as was done for a number of years after the movement was introduced into Canada.

BOYS CAUSED ANNOYANCE

Rang Door Bells of Some George St. Residences Last Night

A citizen stated this morning that last night several mischievously inclined small boys amused themselves by ringing the doorbells of some of the residences on George street between Antrim and Smith. The occupants of the houses would respond to the rings, and on opening the door found that they had been the victims of one of the most ancient and thoroughly rehearsed jokes practiced by troublesome juveniles. The habit is a very common and annoying one, and although the boys in question who, in spite of their fleet-footedness, and general qualities of elusiveness are for the most part known, they will find themselves in the police court one of these mornings. The majority of them belong to respectable families, and, to use the expression of the gentleman who gave the information to the Review, "the use of a little strap oil by the parents, would be a judicious and well-timed action."

Is the Pulpit Losing its Power?

Subject Debated by St. John's Church Young People

St. John's Young People's Association held an interesting meeting last night. There was a good attendance. Mr. Mat. Drysdale, the president, was in the chair. The programme consisted of a debate, "Is the pulpit losing its power."

Mr. Jos. Bell and Mr. Hamon argued for the affirmative, and Messrs. Chas. Coleman and Stanley Richardson in the negative.

The debate became general and a profitable discussion followed. No decision was reached in the debate, as no vote was taken.

NOT SUPT. OF MAIL CARRIERS

Mr. Alf Kingscote Still in Business on Water St.

Mr. Alf. Kingscote told the Review this morning that he wished to correct the misapprehension, to some extent existing, to some extent, in the city, that he was local superintendent of the mail carriers. His son, Charles, occupies the position, and Mr. Kingscote is in no way connected with it. He wishes this explanation made so his customers will know that he still carries on, as heretofore, his regular business on Water street.

Felix Vernia, a German, was killed at the cement works, Atwood, on Saturday.

General Order 130, July 1907, so far as it concerns Sergeant Ernest John Glasgow, is cancelled.

General Order 131, July 1907, under the above heading is amended to read, To be Lieutenant, Lieutenant Gerald Kennin Rackham, from the 10th regiment, Royal Grenadiers, vice W. A. Smith, transferred. 8th July, 1907.

RETURNS AFTER HIS VACATION

Mr. A. C. Colledge Passed Through City on His Way to DeMars, Iowa

Mr. A. C. Colledge, father of Tom Colledge, the crack centre half of the local rugby team, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Kathleen, passed through the city, this morning, en route for his home in De Mars, Iowa, after spending a six months' vacation in the old country. His son, Tom, went with him as far as Toronto, returning today. The latter's father tried to dissuade him playing the game, but finally after a heart to heart talk, he consented to look at matters in a proper light and waived aside all objections to his (that) connection chasing the leather with Peterborough.

RUGBY

The worst exhibition of incompetent refereeing ever seen on an athletic field in Ottawa, is credited to Messrs. McPherson and Woods, two Toronto men, who officiated in the Ottawa City-Montreal football game at Varsity Oval, Saturday, says the Ottawa Free Press. So rank were their decisions the Montreal players admitted after the game, thing like it, and while rejoicing in victory, expressed sympathy with they themselves had never seen anythe Ottawa players for the partial manner in which the decisions were given against them. A member of the Ottawa executive made an effort to get on the field and stop the game, but his way was barred by the police. The game in all probability will be protested by the Ottawa City Club and referred to the Union.

McPherson was much the greater offender of the two, and the manner in which he permitted Craig, Roberts, Lessor and Gordon to lead him by the hand, was really ludicrous. Coach Chaucer Elliott, said that Montreal were talking themselves to victory.

McPherson's veracity is not challenged. He didn't know any better. He admitted before the game to Fred Chittick and others, that he did not know the rules.

PEDESTRIANISM

The Port Hops Guide of yesterday says:—Your can't keep the barber down. Jimmy Reynolds is not to be out-done and to-morrow morning he will start on the famous jaunt from Port Hops to Toronto and return. Jimmy leaves at six o'clock and is betting 1 to 2 that he will make the trip in thirty-six hours or even money on thirty-eight hours.

He is in tip-top shape and with favorable weather expects to spring a big surprise on the Port Hopers. It is his intention to make Toronto without a single stop and his time to the Queen City, he says will be a surprise.

Port Hops wishes Jimmy every success, but if he accomplishes the trip in thirty-eight hours he will do exceptionally well.

It Looks as if Reynolds Will Accomplish the Feat

And Walk From Port Hope to Toronto and Return a Distance of 138 Miles in 36 Hours--He Passed Through Newcastle This Afternoon at 1.40 --Had 4 Hours and 17 Minutes to Complete Remaining 17 Miles and Finish on Time.

Special to the Review.

Newcastle, Oct. 23.—James Reynolds, the Port Hope barber, who left yesterday morning at six o'clock in an effort to walk from that town to Toronto and return, a distance of 138 miles in 36 hours, arrived here at 1.40 this afternoon and left at 1.43. Reynolds appeared tired but was making fair time. He has a little over four hours to cover the 17 miles between here and Port Hope, if he finishes at six o'clock, the hour named to complete the 138 miles within 36 hours. Reynolds' friends are confident that he will do the 138 miles distance in 36 hours.

Langford's time was 39 hours and 3 minutes.

A Toronto despatch says:—When he strode into the King Edward last night, with sprightly stride, Jimmie Reynolds, the 57-year-old Port Hope barber-pedestrian, was in good shape and acknowledged the cheers of the big crowd with smiles and bows. He arrived at 10.14, and left on the 65-mile return trip at 11.05, confident of finishing before 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Reynolds left Port Hope at 6.02 yesterday morning, and, in spite of half a gale which retarded his progress and swept up blinding clouds of dust, the pedestrian was there nearly an hour and a half ahead of the time made by Langford some time ago. At the King Edward he was given a brisk rub by Trainer Henderson, who, with R. Woodcock, accompanied him and who was assisted by the venerable Tom Eck, the best-known trainer of bicycle riders of the age. Tom is home from New York to visit his old home at Newmarket, and gave valuable assistance and advice to the walker and his handlers. Eck was quite pleased with the condition of Reynolds. The latter's feet were just beginning to show traces of playing out, and the aged walker was somewhat apprehensive of them when he left on the return trip. He was given some extract of beef in milk, which agreed with him nicely after his stomach had refused to accept accept other refreshments which were given him. Reynolds will be loser to a considerable amount of private wagers if he fails to get back to Port Hope by 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The pedestrian was given encouraging receptions all along the route, and several hundred people followed him into the city from points along the Kingston road. Near the Norway house on that thoroughfare the crowd in the road raised such a dust that he was unable to see well and tripped on a loose board in a sidewalk. The result was a fall, which jarred him considerably and scraped a quantity of skin from his elbow. While he was at the hotel a 'phone message was received from Port Hope inquiring as to his welfare. Jimmie replied in a matter-of-fact way that he would be back about 5 o'clock this afternoon and informed some local newspaper man that there would be a "hot time in the old town to-night." When he started back his handlers gave him about an even chance of finishing within the thirty-four hours stipulated in the wager, and said that 88 hours would be easy for him.

Stage Slipped off Ferry, Its Occupants Going With it

Passengers on Chemong Stage Given Ducking This Morning—Horses Took Fright and Backed off—Everybody Reached Shore Safely.

This morning the horses on the Chemong stage, suddenly took fright, just as the ferry upon which they had been driven pulled out from the shore at the Indian village to cross to the Enniamore side. The water fortunately was not deep at the point, where the horses backed off the ferry. Being only about fifteen feet from the shore, but they were immersed up to their heads, and much difficulty was experienced in getting them out. On board the stage were Mrs. Dan Whetung, sr.; Miss D. Knott of Hiawatha and two other ladies of Indian extraction, whose names could not be learned, the latter three being visitors to the village and Messrs. Joseph Whetung, Chief of the Chemong Band; Dan Whetung, jr.; L. D. Taylor, secretary of the Reserve; former Chief Joseph Irons, and Noah Taylor, a five year old lad. They all scrambled out onto the shore the ladies going back to the village to change their clothing, while the men labored to get the horses and stage safely on land. Mr. Ben Taylor, who happened to be on the shore with his team waded out and unloosened the traces of the stage team, which made for the shore when free. He also took the heavy chain from the ferry, attached it to the stage and hauled the stage out.

Both steps on the stage snapped off as it slid off the ferry and the gearing was considerably twisted, a brace of ducks got back into what was their natural element when they were alive and the Buffalo robes received a drenching. Everything was rescued from the lake, however. With the exception of little Noah Taylor, all the party continued their journey and came to Peterborough. Mr. Dan Whetung, jr. jovially remarked this morning, that if Noah hadn't been on board, everybody would have been drowned.

The men who were coming to the city, formed a deputation to the County Council to discuss with that body, the necessity of a new bridge being built from Chemong to Enniamore, and the accident this morning seemed to emphasize the necessity of this bridge being built, and the present system of ferrying between the two shores being done away with.

It is lucky that the accident didn't happen when the ferry was out some distance in the lake, as those on the stage would probably have lost their lives, and the horses certainly would have been drowned.

About seven years ago, Mr. Jos. Whetung lost a valuable young team, when the stage slipped off the ferry, taking the horses with it. Groceries valued at $50 or $60 were also lost at the time. This accident occurred about forty yards from the shore, where the water is pretty deep.

COUNCIL HEARS THE DEPUTATION

Mayor McWilliams and Ald. Phelan Wait on the County Council

Mayor McWilliams and Ald. Phelan formed a deputation from the city council that waited on the county council this afternoon in connection with the proposition to have a number of the indigent poor of the city placed in the House of Refuge. They explained what the city wanted and on motion the matter was referred to the Finance Committee who will deal with the question. The city is desirous of having the old men who are in the Protestant Home and in the jail, placed in the House of Refuge and will of course, pay for their maintenance. It is likely that some arrangement will be made to grant the city's request, the county reserving the right to say how many shall be received.

The request of the deputation from the Indian Village at Chemong, for a floating bridge, was referred to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

Creasman's

Price of Cheese is Satisfactory

At today's meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board, 2,850 boxes were registered, and all sold at 12 13-16c., with the exception of five factories, which did not sell. Compared with the last sale held three weeks agom there was a falling off of 121 boxes and a decrease of 535 boxes compared with last year's sale on the same date.

The bidding was fairly brisk, and the sale was over comparatively early. The sales were confined to two buyers, Messrs. Cook and Weir, the former getting the bulk.

At 12 13-16c. Mr. Cook secured the following factories; Keene, Warminster, Shearer, Villiers, Warsaw, Westwood, Oakdale, Daisy D, Myrtle, Ormonde, Indian River, North Dummer, Trewern, Bensfort, Cedardale, Cavanville, Crowe, Norwood, Fleetwood and Brickley.

At the same figure, Mr. Weir purchased the following factories; Selwyn, Lakefield, Otonabee Union, Young's Point, Lang, Mt. Pleasant, and Oak Leaf.

The following factories did not sell; Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Fraserville, East Emily and Killarney.

SCIENCE OF OSTEOPATHY

Will be Demonstrated by Dr Walmsley Who Opens Office

Dr. Asa Gordon Walmsley, late of Toronto, is in the city, and is opening offices over the Canadian Bank of Commerce for the practice of Osteopathy. The doctor is a graduate of the American School of Osteopathy, of Kirksville, Mo., an institution founded fifteen years ago by A. T. Still, M.D., a veteran of the Civil War.

Prior to leaving Kirksville, Dr. Walmsley was for a year connected with the American School of Osteopathy, having charge of the journal of Osteopathy, a publication issued by the college in the interests of the science. While in Toronto Dr. Walmsley practiced with Dr. R. B. Henderson, who has offices in the Canada Life Building. The doctor comes to us well recommended, and we believe he will find this an excellent field for the practice of his profession.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, chronic kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Lydia E. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for a woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing-down pains, scalding or burning sensations or deposits in the urine, unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running through the groin, she may infer that her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the female organs. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all bad symptoms have disappeared.

"I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it."

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it: and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Racers in the Big Balloons; One Landed Near Hamilton

Major Hersey's Racing Balloon Descends After Splendid Trip.

Traveled Over Six Hundred Miles—Has Broken the European Record—Another Is Over Lake Huron Heading For This Province — Racers Seen In Many Towns—Keen Interest In Contest.

Hamilton, Oct. 23.—No. 3 balloon (United States), manned by Major Hersey of the weather bureau at Washington, D. C., and A. G. Aberbolt, landed 12 miles south of here early last evening, after a day's flight across Western Ontario, which was watched by thousands of people.

After crossing Michigan, the balloon was seen in East Dover Township, four miles north of the mouth of the Thames River, yesterday afternoon. It then traveled west to Chatham, and was afterwards seen at Highgate, Ridgetown and Port Stanley. Coming east to Point Bruce promontory, the balloon was only 300 feet above terra firma, the ballast evidently giving out. At 6.13 p. m. it was reported at Caledonia and a few minutes later it landed.

The United States crossed the State of Illinois, thence across Lake Michigan and Lake St. Clair, in the middle of Lake Erie, when a change of wind carried it north into Canada, to the place of landing.

The distance from St. Louis to Hamilton, on an airline, is approximately 620 miles. Therefore the United States traveled about 610 miles, which is far ahead of the record made in the European race by Lieut. Lahm, whose balloon won the international cup by sailing from Paris to a point in England, 402 miles distant.

A second balloon is crossing Lake Huron and will probably land in this province.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The Gordon-Bennett international balloon race has taken on additional interest to the people of Ontario because one of the contestants at least may descend in this province, while another was seen yesterday afternoon and evening over many points in Southern Ontario.

As will be noted in the bulletins, one of the balloons, probably a United States entry, was sighted at Chatham and other points. The probability is that this balloon will land in New York State, or, if the southward indication is maintained, possibly in Ohio.

A second balloon is crossing Lake Huron, going rapidly eastward, and may descend to-day at some point in this province. The balloon seen at Chatham, Delhi and other points yesterday afternoon had been in the air over 24 hours, and was then approximately 700 miles from the starting point. It should be almost a winner, and will probably break the long-distance record.

Chatham, Oct. 23.—One of the balloons, which started in the race from St. Louis Monday, passed over North Chatham at 3.10 yesterday afternoon. It was traveling due north and was going seemingly at terrific speed. It was a large brown colored affair, and at one time it appeared to stand perfectly still, when it was surrounded for a moment with a halo of black smoke. It was being carried along by a strong southeasterly wind, and it disappeared in the distance about 20 minutes after it was first seen.

This One Has Cold Feet.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 23.—The Associated Press last night received the following telegram, dated Marion, Ohio, at 4.30 p. m.:

"Course northeast. Will descend on reaching Lake Erie. (Signed) McCoy and Chandler, Balloon America."

Over Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—Several balloons passed over the state yesterday. A note dropped from one at New Austa, this county, at 10.30, stated that the balloon was the English balloon, Lotus II.

Eaton, Ohio, Oct. 23.—Three balloons passed over Eaton yesterday, the first during the morning and the second and third together at 1.30 o'clock. The second balloon was high and looked no larger than a toy balloon. The third was large enough to make an American flag it carried perceptible.

One Over Lake Huron.

Detroit, Oct. 23.—The Western Union office at Alpena, Mich., 230 miles north of this city, on Lake Huron, reports that a balloon passed over that city about 6.30 last evening. The balloon was rapidly traveling eastward over Lake Huron.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 23.—The German balloon Pommern passed over Cleveland at 3.30 yesterday afternoon, and its occupants dropped a note. It was going northeast.

The prizes are: The international aeronautic cup and $2,500 to the winner, the cup to be held by the aero club to which the winning contestant belongs; second prize, $1,000; third prize, $750; fourth prize, $500; fifth prize, $250. The race is for greatest distance from starting point to landing point. In the race there are three representing Germany, two France, and one Great Britain.

Fleas Threaten Next.

London, Oct. 23.—Sir Lauder Brunton, alluding to the danger of infection from rats and fleas at the School of Tropical Medicine, said it was a dangerous course to allow rat and flea-infested districts to exist in the east end of London and Vancouver, places which are in daily danger of infection by plague from the Far East.

EXPLOSION AT TRENTON

Large Steel Retort Flew Into Pieces in Canning Factory.

Two Men Killed—George Graham Was Hurled Thirty Feet—Body Presented Horrible Sight — Louis Dube Died Within Hour From Terrible Injuries—Women and Girls Had Miraculous Escape.

Trenton, Oct. 23.—A fatal accident occurred about 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the Trenton factory of the Canadian Canners' Corporation, in which George Graham was instantly killed and Louis Dube injured so that he died half an hour afterwards.

One of the large steel retorts used for cooking exploded, throwing Graham about 30 feet. Canned foods were blown 400 feet out through the building.

As there were a large number of men and women at work at the time, it is miraculous that others escaped.

Graham, a man about 48 years of age, had charge of the retorts, and his helper, Louis Dube, was a man about 55 years of age. They were in front of the retort when it blew up. Pieces of the iron door about 3 x 3 feet square and less than an inch in thickness, together with the contents of the retort, 290 cans of pumpkin, and the pans in which they were cooking in the retort, all flew in the direction of the two unfortunate men.

Graham was instantly killed. When found he was a terrible sight. His head was in a pool of blood and was badly cut, some bones were broken, he was badly scalded, and his clothing was nearly torn from his body.

Dube was blown in another direction some 30 feet into a doorway. He was still alive, although unconscious, but died from his awful injuries about an hour later. Besides being badly cut and severely scalded, he had a leg broken. Both men were old and respected citizens of Trenton.

The retort that exploded was just on the outside of the main building. Next to it, on the inside, was another retort. Both retorts were blown into the building, where two men and six women and girls were working.

Within two or three feet of where the inside heavy iron retort landed, William Hickeson and Richard Bryer were washing pumpkins, and close by the women and girls were working at a table cutting up the pumpkins ready for cooking. Two of them were sitting at the end of the table sorting the seeds, and they barely escaped being hit. As soon as the explosion occurred they all rushed in the opposite direction, and in doing so probably escaped being badly scalded, as the escaping steam was terrible for a few minutes. Fortunately the engineer, the moment he heard the explosion, shut off all the steam at the engine-house.

Mr. Thomas Flynn, the superintendent at the factory, said that he could not account for the explosion. George Graham, he said, understood his work and was very careful. On a former occasion Graham had worked under him at another factory, and there a defective door on a retort he was attending to had burst, but had caused no damage. This, however, had made Graham unusually cautious not to allow the steam to get too high. Something must have gone wrong with the safety valve, but if this was known to the two deceased men it was unknown to anyone else, and they are not living to tell the story.

CABINET AND "ALL RED."

Lloyd-George Says British Government Is Considering Scheme.

London, (via Glace Bay), Oct. 23.—Lloyd-George was interviewed yesterday and emphatically denied the rumor that the Government refused to entertain the "all red route" scheme. He said this proposal of Laurier's was commanding the consideration of his department and the Cabinet.

Lloyd-George is rapidly becoming one of the greatest figures in British political life. He is a radical of radicals, and his courage and wonderful success as president of the Board of Trade commands the confidence of all parties.

Brass Works Ablaze.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—Fire of unknown origin broke out in the tool shop in the rear of an upper storey of the James Morrison Brass Works, West Adelaide street, at 9.35 o'clock Monday night. C. M. Morrison, who was in the office, turned in a still alarm, while Night Watchman George Bell, who saw the flames from the outside, turned in a box alarm.

A number of patterns of machinery were destroyed, and the loss will reach nearly $3,000, with $300 damage to building.

Fire starting among oakum caused $200 loss at 59 East Richmond street yesterday morning, and last night $60 damage was done in the office of the Ideal Manufacturing Co., Yonge street Arcade, by the ignition of alcohol in an automatic match machine.

Crushed to Death.

Belleville, Oct. 23.—J. Alexander, a prominent citizen of Consecon, Prince Edward County, near this city, met with a terrible death on Saturday afternoon. He was drawing ties, and when seated on the load the ties began to slip and he fell off, the load falling on him. He was crushed by the front wheel, which passed over his neck.

Before a doctor arrived he had bled to death. The arteries in his neck had been severed and nothing could be done.

Home For Orphan Girls.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—It was announced yesterday that the will of Robert N. Carson, who died last week, provides for a $5,000,000 institution for orphan girls, patterned after Girard College. The will provides that the institution shall not be controlled by any religious denomination.

SUCCESSFUL DISHONESTY.

President Roosevelt Declares This Is What He Is Pursuing.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 23—President Roosevelt was heartily welcomed here yesterday, the city being beautifully decorated and there being thousands of visitors from neighboring cities. The President addressed a great crowd in the railwaymen's auditorium, saying among other things:

"There has been trouble in the stock market in the high financial world during the past few months. The statement has frequently been made that the policies for which I stand, legislative and executive, are responsible for that trouble. Now, gentlemen, these policies of mine can be summed up in one brief sentence. They represent the effort to punish successful dishonesty. I doubt if these policies have had any material effect in bringing about the present trouble, but if they have, it will not alter in the slightest degree my determination that for the remaining sixteen months of my term these policies shall be persevered in unswervingly."

LIKE MANNA FROM HEAVEN.

What Railroad Wreck Did In Local Option Town.

Thamesville, Ont., Oct. 23.—About 3.30 yesterday afternoon an eastbound double-header Wabash freight, while backing up with part of the train from the water tank, came in contact with the rear end with such force that two cars were badly smashed and the main track blocked for four hours. This, however, owing to the switches, did not delay traffic.

The accident, while small, has a very humorous side, happening as it did in a local option town, for the car that was smashed was loaded with brandy, mostly case goods, and was so badly smashed that several gallons leaked away and imbibers and supposedly non-imbibers got the pail brigade running, and as a result the town was not by any means dry last night. At least 15 gallons of what leaked through were carted away.

ASSELIN UNDER ARREST.

Editor Taken Into Custody at Montreal Accused of Libel.

Quebec, Oct. 23.—Olivier Asselin, editor of Le Nationaliste, accused of criminal libel, is a prisoner in the Quebec jail. He will be arraigned this morning and the question of his being admitted to bail decided by His Lordship, Judge Blanchet. The editor was taken into custody by Detective Sylvain at his home in Drolet street, Montreal, Monday night. Asselin was astounded. He said that it was his intention to come to Quebec, but that he was waiting a telegram to this effect from his attorneys.

Yesterday morning he was arraigned in the Criminal Court here and was represented by Mr. Chaloult, who petitioned the court that the prisoner be admitted to bail. Mr. Greenshields strongly opposed this.

CROWDS SURGE AROUND DOORS.

Creditors of Knickerbocker Trust Cry For Money.

New York, Oct. 23.—Sensational scenes attended the closing of the doors of the Knickerbocker Trust Co. at 12.30 yesterday afternoon. The depositors, who crowded the rooms clamoring for their money, were insistent that they be permitted to withdraw even a few dollars, and when this request was refused, many refused to leave the building and police assistance was necessary to preserve order. At the main office, Fifth and 54th street, after the doors were closed the crowd surged its way inward. The police forced them back to the street again, and from that time a guard was kept in front of the entrance.

Shot Brave Policeman.

New York, Oct. 23.—While patrolling his beat in the lower east side yesterday, Eugene S. Sheehan, a policeman, was shot and instantly killed. William Morley, 24 years old, was arrested, charge with the crime. He gave the police a lively chase, and it was not until he had emptied a revolver at his pursuers that he was captured.

Sheehan had incurred the enmity of a gang of crooks in his precinct by making many arrests.

Must Hang For Murder.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—The Court of Appeal has given judgment refusing a new trial to Frank Capelli, the Italian who murdered William Dow on the north shore last Christmas day.

The murder was the outcome of a drunken row, and it was alleged by the crown that Capelli stabbed Dow to death when Dow interfered to protect Mrs. McCormick, at whose house the affair took place.

The effort of the defence was to prove insanity.

Deserted; Gave Himself Up.

Kingston, Oct. 23.—An "A" Battery man named William Leary, who deserted from Petawawa in August, and who was also charged with the theft of clothes, returned to Kingston and gave himself up. He was tried before Major Lesslie and sentenced to six months in jail at hard labor.

Old Salt Works Burned.

Kincardine, Oct. 23.—The Rightmyer Salt Block was burned to the ground Monday night, and the warehouse on the opposite side of the street was badly scorched. The works were built early in the seventies, but have been closed for years.

Eye Shattered by Pop Explosion.

Stratford, Oct. 23.—George Chewington of Grand Trunk Railway news department had one of his eyes shattered and face badly cut by the explosion of pop bottles he was attempting to open. He is in the hospital in a precarious condition.

Barn and Crops Destroyed.

Woodstock, Oct. 23.—The barn on the farm of William Masters, lot 29, concession 4, West Zorra, was burned, together with the entire crops and implements.

John A. Johnson, who lived near Uxbridge, was dragged by a frightened horse and killed.

YOUNG LADY SAVES EXPRESS.

Gives Warning of Obstruction Placed on Track by Wreckers.

St. Catharines, Oct. 23.—At 9.30 o'clock Sunday night a young woman rushed into the tower house on the west side of the canal at the Michigan Central Railway bridge, at Welland, and breathlessly told the men on duty that iron was piled on the westbound track that would wreck the train.

Fast express No. 3 was due. The depot was hurriedly called over the 'phone, as the express was heard approaching, and the semaphore lights flashed against it just in the nick of time.

James Turner of Niagara Falls, yardmaster, and Gerrit Hill, clerk in depot, mounted a handcar and started for the spot, which came so near being the scene of a great railway wreck. They found two rail spreaders and a fish plate placed on the inside rail in a manner that would almost assuredly have hurled the express into the deep ditch alongside the track with frightful results.

The obstruction was removed and the express proceeded on its journey. Miss Sweney, a school teacher, residing three miles west of Welland, who gave the alarm, was walking to town when she discovered the iron piled on the tracks, and she says she removed seven pieces of iron as heavy as she could lift, before hastening to town to warn the railway men.

Officials at the M. C. R. will give out no information and attempt to discredit the story that trainwreckers were at such fiendish business, but nevertheless a force of detectives are in Welland working on the matter, and railway men declare that the manner in which the obstruction was placed on the rails prove conclusively that it was the work of experts.

An Arrest at Welland.

Welland, Oct. 23.—Edward Palmer, an English boy, aged 15 years, is in the county jail, arrested by Detective Monahan for placing a pile of rail plates and iron creepers on the M.C.R. tracks a mile west of here. A Chicago passenger train narrowly missed destruction Sunday night. The boy says he did not know his work would do any harm.

SCARE AT HAMIOTA.

Fire In Hotel Where Mr. Borden Was Staying.

Hamiota, Man., Oct. 23.—While Mr. R. L. Borden's advent cannot be said to have set the place on fire, still it is a remarkable circumstance that within two hours after he had registered at the Hotel Cecil fire broke out in the kitchen basement. The maids ran through the house bringing forth the contents of their wardrobes, guests rushed for their grips, and J. G. H. Bergeron, the Conservative leader's doughty henchman, was seen gliding downstairs carrying his hair brush and comb, having been disturbed in his toilet. The fire was, fortunately, quickly put out, and the company forgot the panic in a hearty supper.

Marconi's Engineer Dead.

Glace Bay, N.S., Oct. 23.—The death took place yesterday at the Marconi towers of Edward Hankey, of the engineers' staff, after an illness of about three weeks. A pathetic feature connected with his death was the receipt of, a few minutes before his demise, of a wireless message from his mother and sister, who reside in London. They expressed sympathy and love. The message was at once conveyed to him, but he was unconscious and remained so until the end.

Death Was Accidental.

Brantford, Oct. 23.—The coroner's jury to enquire as to the cause of the death of Despetovic, the foreigner who was killed at Colborne at the G. T. R. crossing last week, brought in a verdict: "That the deceased came to his death purely accidentally, and we attach no blame to the Grand Trunk Railway Co. We would recommend that some steps be taken to place gates on that crossing."

An Arrest at Chatham.

Chatham, Oct. 23.—Richard Zakoor, a local fruit dealer, was arrested here yesterday morning by Sergeant Nash of the Windsor police force on a charge of receiving stolen goods. He was taken to Windsor. His father, Joseph Zakoor, was arrested in Windsor on a similar charge.

Wahcondah Sprung a Plate.

Port Dalhousie, Ont., Oct. 23.—The steamer Wahcondah, in entering Lock No. 2, bound down, struck her stem on the stone abutment, causing her to leak in the forward compartment. She has had a diver at work all the afternoon and may have to unload her cargo here.

Two Years In Kingston.

Woodstock, Oct. 23.—John Gilbert, a coal heaver in the employ of the Hasting Co., was yesterday given two years with hard labor in Kingston penitentiary for the theft of a $25 ring and $30 in cash from the residence of Jamie A. McKay.

Told the Magistrate That He Walked Across the Ocean

Strange Statement of Young Man in the Local Jail—Will Likely be Sent to Relatives at Berlin, Ont.

There is a queer prisoner at the local gaol at the present time. He is Willis Hastle, who was brought here last week from Havelock, being charged with having stolen two watches and two oranges from a farmer named John Hubble, in Dummer township. He is about eighteen years of age, and apparently is somewhat demented, as he talks and acts very strangely. The unfortunate fellow is an English immigrant, and when asked by County Magistrate Edmison how he got out to this country, stated that he had walked over on the water.

Magistrate Edmison, who has been dealing with the case, hardly knew what to do with the young man, who states that he wants to be sent to Berlin, where, he says, his grandfather and grandmother reside. He knows his grandfather's name, but cannot remember his grandmother's. He has no money, and when brought to the gaol last week, was very poorly clothed, having no socks on and a very bad pair of shoes.

County Magistrate Edmison waited on the County Council this morning, and asked them to authorize the treasurer to buy a ticket to send Hastle to Berlin. He explained the circumstances in connection with the case, and after hearing them, it was moved by Councillor Breault, and seconded by Councillor Thompson, that the treasurer be authorized to pay Hastle's way to Berlin. When it is definitely learned that the young man has relatives there. The chief of police of Berlin has been communicated with to secure the information.

Hastle, who is a slightly built young fellow, offered to walk to Berlin, but in his present condition of mind it is not felt that it would be advisable to let him start.

When Whiskey Was 22c Per Gal.

Mr. A. Rountree, the Water Street liquor merchant today, gave the Review an interesting document in the shape of a letter, written by Campbell and Standly of the Haldimand Distillery, to the late William Clurton, who kept a general grocery and liquor store at this time it was written, 1849. The letter read as follows,—

Haldimand Distillery,
30th March, 1849

W. Clurton, Esq.

Sir,—We beg to inform you that we are now selling whiskey of the same strength (25 U. P. Skye's) and quality as that usually made by us, at the office, at one shilling and twopence per gallon, and at our depot in Cobourg, at the same price, for cash only, or grain at cash prices. Casks to be paid for when taken away, but they will be re-bought if returned within three months in good order. We are,

Your obedient servants,
CAMPBELL AND STANDLY

N.B.—We will take your order for 1,000 gallon, and draw for at three months adding discount.

The letter which is printed and is really the firm's business circular, is postmarked Haldimand, Upper Canada, and the postage on it, although it is under half an ounce in weight amounted to nine cents. Whiskey of the same quality as that referred to in the letter, costs about $2.35 a gallon, which is quite an advance over 22 cents per gallon, the wholesale price at the time the letter was written, the value of the Canadian shilling being 20 cents and twopence of course, two cents.

Dominion Tool Company Has Option on Factory Building

May Purchase Building in East City From T. W. Oke Who, if Deal is Effected, Will Build a New Factory

There is every probability that the plant of the Dominion Tool Company will be located in the building on Hunter street east, owned by Mr. T. W. Oke, and now utilized as a furniture factory by this gentleman. The Tool Company have secured an option on the building and it is learned that the deal is likely to go through. It is said that the price of the building will be nearly $5,000 The site will be an excellent one for the plant of the Tool Company, as the building is well laid out and by purchasing it, the company will be able to start manufacturing in a very short time.

It is understood that if Mr. Oke disposes of his present property he will secure another site, and build and equip a larger establishment for the manufacture of furniture. Mr. Oke has got along well since establishing the factory in east city a few months ago, and believes that there is room for a larger establishment of the same kind.

The machinery for the plant of the Dominion Tool Company, is now being manufactured, and if the deal to purchase the furniture factory is effected, the plant will be in operation in the near future.

JUST A DREAM

I had a dream the other night,
That put me in a dreadful fright,
For in my dreams I saw a sight
That I cannot forget throughout my life,
For I dreamt that I did die,
And flur away to some place did fly,
But where it was I could not tell,
Whether it was purgatory, heavens or hell.
For it was so beautiful and bright,
Lighted up with a million colored lights
Beautiful for the eye to behold,
Streets paved with silver and gold,
Golden chains, tables, sofas, all fit
For emperors, queens and kings to sit,
Myriads of people I could see,
Laughing, talking, full of glee,
And my heart beat with joy so fast,
To think I was in heaven at last
For the gentleman who met me at the door,
The likes of him I never saw before.
For he looked so stately and so grand
As he took me, smiling, by the hand
"Good morning, Charles," he did to me say
I have been looking for you day by day,"
And he looked so gentle and so mild
And innocently smiled, as a little child,
"And Charles now, be good of cheer
For you've come to live with me for number less years.
Yes, Charles, you will now be with me,
Now and henceforth, and for all eternity,"
Then he patted me kindly on the head
And those gentle words to me he said:
"I am going out just for a while,
And you can, Charles, your time beguile,
By reading some books and newspapers,
For we keep tab on the world's capers.
Yes everything that's ever done,
Beneath the ever burning sun.
You will find lots of good reading,"
Then he left me with a very strange feeling
I took up a book off the table,
And commenced to read as well as I was able,
I read and read right along,
Till I fell on the name of Robert Ingersoll.
I turned pale, the chills over me did creep,
Who was that gentlemen I did meet.
It cannot, oh, it cannot be the devil,
For he was so kind, so gentle, and so civil.
In heaven I am not, it is true,
But Henry Ward Beecher is here too.
Spurgeon, Dr. Johnson, Dr. Rudge,
In heaven I am, I will not budge,
I closed the great big book
And around the place I went to look
I opened the door, it was dark and damp,
Lit up with one red, flaming lamp,
I turned sick and my limbs shook,
As through the room I did walk.
For on the wall there were hung,
Dead men's eyes, legs and withered tongues,
I opened another door and sad to tell,
I stood on the brinks of burning hell,
Million upon millions of people I did see
Groaning, groaning in misery,
Thousands I know and millions I did not know.
Jumping, skipping, hopping, all in a row,
On hot cinders each one was hopping,
To hear the groans and cries was shocking,
Mick Sullivan, Dan Lynch, Pat Fitzgerald,
Each with a shovel was shovelling up coals,
Mr. Dumble was all in a blaze,
Forgive me, Charlie, for those ten days,
I know now I did you a wrong,
And that's the reason I'm burning my tongue,
And Charles, my good old man,
Send the fire brigades if you can,
For I am burning in my tongue and my liver,
If you cannot send the fire brigade,
Send the Otonabee River.
For Charles, this is indeed hell,
Send me old Peterborough's well
But joy upon joy, what a pleasing sight,
I saw not the face of my old wife,
It will be Heaven, and God's will be done.
I'd rather be in hell than hear my wife's peevish old tongue.
Like lightning I flew away,
I was only in hell three short days.
For the threshing whistle was loudly screaming,
I woke out of my sleep, and I was only dreaming.

Stopped the Bees Working on Sunday

A story is told by a prominent resident of a neighboring township of a gentleman in his district, who keeps quite a few bees. The gentleman in question, who is somewhat of a religious turn of mind, conceived the idea recently that it was wrong for his bees to be working on the Sabbath and had covers made for his hives so that his bees were compelled to stay in their hives and thus keep the Sabbath. It is said the same person kept a barrel of vinegar in his cellar, but had said vinegar thrown out, because it refused to quit working on Sunday.

Charles Doyle was killed and William Patrick is dying as the result of an accident in the International Harvester Company's warehouse at London last evening. The elevator stopped and then dropped suddenly, with them.

FRENCH ARE REPULSED

Moorish Troops Equipped With Field Guns Attack Camp.

Drove Reconnoitering Party Back to City Walls—Spanish Warship Asked for Aid—Gen. Drude Comes to Rescue—Pursued Moors and Inflicted Severe Losses — French Colonel Placed Under Arrest.

Paris, Oct. 23.—A despatch received from Admiral Philibert, the French naval commander in Moroccan waters, said the 5,000 Moors who attacked the French reconnoitering party recently belonged to the army under the command of Mulai Rachid. Rachid did his utmost to prevent this attack, but his men could not be controlled. Gen. Drude, who came to the rescue, pursued the aggressors for four miles and inflicted severe losses upon them. Col. Defretay, the commander of the reconnoitering party, is held partly responsible for the incident; he had gone beyond the limit of operations fixed in his instructions. The colonel has been placed under arrest for a period of thirty days.

Tangier, Oct. 23—According to semi-official information received at the Spanish legation yesterday the French forces at Casablanca, under the command of Gen. Drude, suffered a serious repulse Monday at the hands of the Moors.

Moorish troops, estimated at 7,000, and equipped with field guns and modern rifles, not only drove the French back to the city walls, but menaced the town to the extent that the French authorities found it expedient to request aid from a Spanish warship in the harbor to repel the attack.

REYNOLDS IN FINE FETTLE.

Feels Confident of Completing His Walk to Time.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—Jimmy Reynolds, the 57-year-old "walking barber" of Port Hope, who left that town at 6 o'clock yesterday morning to tramp to the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, and then return, a distance of 128 miles, in 36 hours, completed one-half of his trip well within time at 10.10 last night.

Reynolds had the advantage of going with the wind on the return journey and he felt confident he would reach Port Hope well inside the time limit.

Norway was reached at 12.03 a. m., where another crowd of about 200 was encountered. Reynolds said he was in good shape and was willing to bet any money he could win out.

At 1.15 a. m. Reynolds was at the Half-Way House and feeling fine.

STORM IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Snow So Deep That Train Was Delayed Three Hours.

North Sydney, Oct. 23.—The worst snowstorm that has ever occurred in Newfoundland so early in the season took place during the past two days and as a result the train from St. John to Port Aux Basques was three hours late arriving at the latter place on Monday. Passengers arriving here yesterday, by the Bruce say that the storm was furious and much damage has been wrought to fishing and coasting vessels.

In Cordroy Valley snow was so deep and heavy along the railway that the engine was detached from the train and had to butt its way through the drift before it could proceed on its journey.

Police Not Absolved.

Kingston, Oct. 23.—The license inspector, being charged with dereliction of duty, replies by a denial and an affirmation that he gets no help from the police.

This has brought the conduct of the police up for criticism for their indifference in so important a matter, and a local paper calls attention to the fact that the police are not relieved from the duty of enforcing the liquor law by the presence of a license inspector.

Don't Degrade Our Bonds.

London, (via Glace Bay), Oct. 23.—The credit of Canadian municipalities is being damaged, and credit generally not helped by the recent touting of municipal bonds in London.

It is believed cities of the Dominion could get money at reasonable rates if they went the right way about it, but if English money is wanted English methods must be followed. Canada ought not to be weakened in the money market.

Train Crew Suspended.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—The crew of the Cobalt Express have been suspended for disobeying train orders in running past Huntsville Monday. They had orders to meet the down train at this spot, but ran three miles past to a gravel pit.

The men say they have a good explanation, which will come out when their case is investigated.

Movement For Local Option.

Kingston, Oct. 23.—There is a petition in circulation in the Township of Pittsburg, asking the council to submit a local option bylaw to the electors in January.

Store and Residence Burned.

Warwick, Que., Oct. 23.—M. Rousseau's general store, and private residence were destroyed by fire Monday night. The loss is heavy.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

Despatch From Ottawa Throws Doubt on Date Named.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The date of the opening of Parliament has not yet been definitely fixed, though it is generally agreed that Nov. 28, as already announced, will probably be the opening of the House. There is some talk of not meeting until next year, and such a contingency is by no means remote.

So far the indications are that private legislation will not be heavy, but there is yet plenty of time for an accumulation of applications, as promoters have until the first six weeks of the session to file their bills without penalty.

Applications for 46 private bills have been received. Most of these are for amendment to existing legislation, though there are five applications for the incorporation of new railway companies, all in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Seven applications for divorce have been made, of which three are from Toronto.

Bigamist Goes For Trial.

Owen Sound, Oct. 23.—Thomas Richardson, bigamist and thief, who was arrested in London on Saturday last, had a preliminary hearing yesterday before Police Magistrate Creasor, and was sent up for trial.

Richardson was cleverly caught by a fake advertisement inserted in Toronto papers for a band sawyer and fitter to go to South America, to which he replied, using his Christian name. The writing was compared, with the result that he was easily captured.

The Act providing for the regulation of the export of electricity will come into force on Monday next.

W. H. HILL, Esq.,
Manager Central Ontario,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244 being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35300, in your Company which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your company and far exceeds my expectations and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $3,078, or an annuity for life of $111.55, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your company the continued success and confidence it so really deserves.

Yours very truly,

We have studied it in all its phases and will be pleased at any time to demonstratrate to our patients just what condition their eyes are in, and how that the properly fitted glasses will act on the muscles to overcome the particular defect in their eyes. We have the very best appliances for Eyesight Testing and have never had a dissatisfied customer yet. WEDDING BELLS

PAYNE—HUTCHINSON

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at half past seven o'clock this morning at St. John's church, when one of the city's most popular young ladies was wedded to a former Peterborough boy, now a resident of Toronto. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Gertrude Alice Hutchinson, only daughter of Mr. George Hutchinson, Sheridan street, to Mr. Ernest Payne, manager of one of McDermid and Jury's drug stores, Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

Punctually at 7.30 o'clock, the bride entered the church, leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mr. R. J. Dewey. The bride was charmingly attired in a travelling suit of brown chalion broadcloth, with hat to match. The bride and groom were unattended. Before and after the ceremony, the following numbers were played by the organist, Mr. Dewey.—

"Angelic Voice."—Batiste.
"Song of Eve."—Arne.
"Hail to the Bride."—Wagner.

After the nuptials, the happy couple drove to the C.P.R. station where they took the eight o'clock train for a trip to Detroit and other American cities. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

A large number of friends gathered at the depot to extend their congratulations to the bride and groom, who departed amid showers of rice and confetti.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful sunburst of pearls. The groom received a purse of gold from the firm of McDermid and Jury.

The bride's parents' present was a handsome Gerhard Heintzman piano.

Mrs. Payne will be at home, 486 Ontario street, after November 20th.

NO STORY TO-DAY

Owing to the large amount of advertising matter in today's Review, the regular installment of the serial story, "The Prisoner of Zenda," is held over until tomorrow.

F. W. Colclough, ex-M.P.P., for Killman and St. Andrew's, died yesterday. Mr. Colclough has long been one of the most prominent Liberals of Eastern Manitoba.

Does Coal Merchant Make An Unreasonable Profit?

Local Dealer Says He Does Not and Gives Figures to Bear Out his Contention—Claims Profit for Peterborough Coal Men is Only 74 Cents on Ton—Cost of Coal for Both Retailer and Consumer.

Is there really a big profit in the retail coal business? One of the largest dealers in the city says no, and gives figures that he declares to be absolutely honest to bear out the truth of his statement. He claims that all this talk of there being a mint in the coal business, or the retail end of it at least, is idle and unfounded, and claims there is less profit in it than in most of the other mercantile lines.

"I thought myself before I went into the coal business," he said, "that it was all profit for the dealer, but since I have been in it, I have found out by personal experience that I was badly mistaken. In spite of what people say about the large amount of money made by the coal merchants, I don't see any of them in this city with palatial residences or with bank accounts large enough to restore the Knickerbocker Trust Company to a solid financial position. No, the coal man certainly earns all the money he makes."

He said the coal at the Suspension Bridge costs the Canadian retailer $5.50 for the long or gross ton, which weighs 2,240 pounds. The net ton of 2,000 pounds costs $4.91. The freight from the bridge to Peterborough is $1.25 a ton, and the expense per ton of unloading cars, and employing men to shovel back the coal in the sheds amounts to 20 cents a ton. In connection with the handling of a ton of coal from the time of unloading from the car to placing it in the consumer's bin, the office expenses are estimated at about 20 cents. The waste and cost on screening per ton also amounts to about 20 cents. The amounts mentioned above aggregate $6.76, which is what the dealer really pays for a ton of coal. The price the coal is disposed of to the customer is $7.50 a ton. The price to the dealer is $6.76, subtracted from what the consumer pays, $7.50, leaves a balance of 74 cents, which represents the dealer's profit. In the 74 cents the cost of cartage is also included.

Below are the facts and figures as stated by the Review's informant;

Cost to Consumer.

Per ton	$7.50
Cost to Dealer.
Net ton	$4.91
Freight	1.25
Handling at car and sheds	20
Screening	20
Office expenses	20
	$6.76
Balance	74
	$7.50

The gentleman who is responsible for the above information stated that one retail dealer in western Ontario weighed the total amount of coal from each of 100 cars, and on the average there was found to be a shortage of from 2 1-2 to 3 tons per car in 90 of the 100 cars.

"No redress can be obtained from the wholesalers," he said, "and the weights given by the railway companies govern all settlements."

We are into the third week of The Daily Review's Newsboys' Competition. It is a big success. The boys have something to work for, and are buckling in for the money. Of course there are many more competitors, but that is what we want—and there are twenty-six prizes in sight for twenty-six boys.

Any boy can get into the swim, by seeing his friends and urging them to buy The Daily Review. The little fellows are among the best canvassers we have, and are doing wonders in securing new names and customers. Come along! There's plenty of time between now and Christmas.

WHAT IS TRANSPIRING AT SESSION OF COUNTY COUNCIL

Committee Reports on Warden's Address and Makes Some Recommendations—Interesting Information About County Bridges.

The County Councils spent the greater part of yesterday afternoon in committee work. The by-law authorising the issuing of $4,000 debentures for the payment of the bridge over the Ouse river, in Asphodel, was given its third reading and passed without discussion.

Mr. F. Moher, chairman of the Special Committee, appointed at the June session, submitted the following report;—

To the members of the Committee on Roads and Bridges;

Gentlemen,—in compliance with a request from the reeve of the township of Galway and Chandos, I have inspected a bridge in the latter township, over Black Lake creek, with a view of having the same assumed by the county, and in my report I might say that the above mentioned bridge is a wooden one, seventy-five feet long, and is in a very bad state of repair in every respect, and some steps should be taken to have it repaired for public safety.

The road on which the bridge is situated is much travelled, leading from Kinmount to the Buckhorn road. A good wooden bridge could be built to replace the present one, at a comparatively small expenditure.

Regarding some bridges which I inspected in the township of North Monaghan, I might say that there are three situated on the concession line between the 11th and 12th concessions, which are 65 feet, 50 feet and 45 feet long, respectively, and are all in a first class state of repair, and will not require any repairing for some time. The road on which they are situated will, on the completion of the Cavan drain, be a very much travelled one as it will then be the leading road from the township of Cavan to Peterborough. I might remark that Monaghan has quite a number of small bridges to keep up.

The chairman of committee appointed to construct a bridge on the seventh concession of Asphodel, begs leave to report as follows;—

In accordance with clause 6 of the report of Committees on Roads and Bridges, at the June session, we have proceeded with the erection of the above mentioned bridges, having let the contracts for two concrete abutments to J. Hayes, for the sum of $1,194.00, to be completed the 15th of November next. The contract for the superstructure has been let to Dickson Bros., of Campbellford, for the sum of $1,475.00, to be completed on or before Nov. 25th next.

I also inspected the bridge recently built on the boundary between North Monaghan and Cavan, by the counties of Northumberland and Durham and the County of Peterborough, and in my report I might say that is is an ideal piece of workmanship in every respect, and clearly demonstrates the wisdom of municipalities building bridges in as permanent a manner as possible, notwithstanding that the first cost may be somewhat more.

F. MOHER,
Chairman

THIS MORNING'S SESSION

When the Council resumed this morning Mr. Burgess submitted the following report of the committee appointed to deal with the warden's address;

That we agree with the Warden in continuing this special meeting necessarily called for the purpose of enacting a debenture by-law a third time at a full session, saving time and expense.

That any assistance that may have been given the Warden in carrying on the business of the year, was given in the same spirit as it was received, namely, as a matter of respect to the office you hold, at the same time recognizing the able manner in which you filled it, and the courteous and straightforward manner that was characteristic of all your dealings with your colleagues, and in the interest of the whole county.

That we congratulate you and your colleagues, who constitute the Board of Management of the House of Refuge, upon the success that has attended your efforts in establishing the same and we heartily concur with you in your advice to take no steps that will congest the institution with inmates from other municipalities, thereby lessening the comfort of our own poor.

That referring to the assuming of bridges by the county during 1907, we believe that justice and equity should be meted out to all municipalities. We also gave expression of satisfaction to the satisfactory position the special committee have placed the county in, to execute satisfactory contracts for the new bridge over the Ouse River in the township of Asphodel, and hope with you that the debentures issued to meet the building expense of the above bridge, will soon be satisfactorily disposed of, and the proceedings placed to the credit of the county to meet the payments necessary during the construction and completion of the said bridge.

That we recognize in the whole of the Warden's address, a ring of sincerity, mingled with good judgment that must also be credited to the county at large.

GET THE BEST ALWAYS

When the best can be had at the same price as the inferior article, why not have the best? If in addition to your local paper, you feel you should have one of the bigger weeklies, then have the best. The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal has stood the test. Its growing popularity is admitted by all publishers. It is a clean, family paper, magazine and agricultural paper without a rival. It costs as little as the inferior papers — one dollar per year,—so why not have the best?

OBITUARY

ELIZA ANN STEWART.

The death occurred very suddenly yesterday afternoon, at her late residence, 61 Argyle street, of Eliza Ann Stewart, wife of the late Jas. Finnie. The deceased had been ailing for some time, but her death came quite unexpectedly. She was 41 years of age and was born in Otonabee, being a daughter of the late George Stewart. Thirteen years ago, upon her marriage to her now surviving husband, she moved to this city, where she resided until her death. She was a lady of sterling qualities and highly esteemned by a wide circle of friends. She was a member of St. Paul's church, and actively engaged in all Christian work.

Besides her husband, one son, Stewart, and four brothers and three sisters are left to mourn her loss. The brothers are Newton, Charles, Frank and Walter, all residing in the Northwest. The sisters are Mrs. Carruth, of Renfrew; Miss Georgina, of Manitoba, and Mrs. Collins, of Otonabee.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

REHEARSAL HELD LAST NIGHT

By Those to Take Part in "Ye Olde Tyme Concerte"

A largely attended rehearsal of the members of the St. Andrew's choir and others taking part in "Ye Old Tyme Concert," was held last night at the residence of Mrs. C. McClelland, Downie street. The entertainment will be held in St. Andrew's school house on November 15th and promises to be very quaint and interesting. The ladies and gentlemen will all be garbed in rich costumes, long since antique, and the programme will probably be of a rather humorous character. Most encouraging progress is being made by those who will take part and "Ye Olde Tyme Concert" from present indications will be highly successful.

NEW BUTTER IS SAMPLED

Butter Made From Whey Pronounced Satisfactory at Cheese Board

A sample of butter made from whey was passed around at this morning's meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board, and was pronounced by those present to be equal to that made from cream. The sample on hand was made at the Lang factory, and was brought to the meeting by Mr. Weir, the cheesemaker at Lang, who also buys cheese on the local board.

The fact that butter can be made from whey has aroused a great deal of interest, and it has been demonstrated at two factories in the Peterborough district, Shearer and Lang, that the process is highly satisfactory. About four pounds of butter can be made from 1,000 lbs. of whey, and it is likely all the factories in the district will be separating the whey and making butter by the new process next season.

TRANSFER NOT DECIDED UPON

No Definite Arrangements Made Concerning Change of Proprietorship

It has been stated that Mr. Geo. Brown, Bridgenorth, would take over the Majestic Billiard Parlors and Bowling Alleys, and run them in future. Mr. Smyth, the proprietor, when seen by the Review this morning, said that while Mr. Brown and he had discussed the matter at some length, no definite arrangements had been made for the transfer.

Three schooners were ashore in Sydney harbor last night as the result of the easterly gale which raged throughout the day. The gale was accompanied by a terrific wind, which at times reached a velocity of sixty miles.

The beginning and the end of the meals of the day should be Chase & Sanborn's SEAL BRAND COFFEE. It's the first thing for breakfast—the last for dinner—and the "best thing" in every meal.

Opening Concert on Monday Night

Talented Artists Will Appear at Conservatory Music Hall

The attractive new music hall in connection with the Peterborough Conservatory of Music will be formally opened on Monday night next, October 28th, by a grand concert. This will be one of the musical treats of the season, and should draw a large audience. The talent engaged is of the highest order, and the celebrated artists need little or no introduction to a Peterborough audience.

Miss Jessie Alexander, the famous reader; Mr. Henry J. Lautz, the renowned tenor; Miss Lois Winlow, the clever and brilliant 'cellist, and Mme. Bessie Bonsall, of Toronto, one of Canada's leading sopranos, will all participate in the splendid programme.

Speaking of Mme. Bonsall, the New York Musical Courier, says;

"She continues to meet with success everywhere. Her rich and beautiful voice reminds the hearer of the 'cello. Cherishing high ideals, and having in addition to other qualifications a musical temperament, an attractive personality, combined with admirable perseverance, it is little wonder that she always pleases."

Tickets for the concert are on sale at McDermid & Jury's drug store, and the plan will open to subscribers tomorrow, morning at ten o'clock.

Thirty-five bodies have been taken from the St. Lawrence at Montreal in the last six months.

Supper was served in the basement, and several hundred hungry ones were amply supplied, but there were others less fortunate. RIFLE MATCHES.

The Cobourg Rifle Association held its annual match at the local ranges east of Cobourg on Thursday, and was well attended by the marksmen of the counties. Roberts headed the list over all local shots, which is certainly a most creditable showing for so young a man in the game. The success of the meet was largely due to the efforts put forth by Capt. Roberts and an energetic committee.—Cobourg Post.

Constable Had Lively Skirmish With Three Crooks Last Night

One of Them Tried to Sell P. C. Newhall a Ring, But Found That He Had Run Up Against Wrong Man —Confederate Came to His Aid With a Revolver—Left Part of His Coat in Officers Hand—One Offender in Police Court—Other Two Got Away.

On the charge of having a loaded pistol on his person, when arrested by P.C. Newhall for committing the offence of peddling without a license, a young man who gave his name as Jas. Murray, pleaded guilty at the police court this morning.

He also pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. On both offences he was remanded for one week.

Murray is one of a gang of three suspicious looking characters who landed in this city yesterday afternoon on the 4.18 train from the east and was arrested at the C.P.R. station as the midnight train was coming into Peterborough.

Knowing of their presence here police officers Newhall and Adams went to the depot. The crooks evidently intended to do up a few people and depart. P.C. Newhall, in civilian clothes, was one of the first to be accosted by the "slick" gents. Murray walked up to him and addressed him with the familiar remark "Good night Jack, do you want to buy a ring?" The officer asked to see it and together they went over to where it was lighter. He offered it to him for $1.50, as he wanted some money to go away.

Murray was then taken in charge but his two colleagues interfered in order to release him. One pulled a revolver, but P.C. Newhall soon put that out of the way with his baton and also stabbed the crook with club. The officer received a few blows, but they were not serious. In an effort to get away one of the desperadoes left a large portion of his coat in P.C. Newhall's hand;

P.C. Adams had been stationed at the west end of the depot to watch for them but, before he could get to the assistance of his fellow officer the two had made their escape in another direction. The constables hunted for them, but were unable to locate them.

Murray admitted having been arrested in Toronto and having served a term some time ago. He stated that he never did any work, so he must live by stealth. He also associated himself with the gang of pickpockets that were arrested here last circus day.

After the police court, a description of the prisoner as to height and otherwise, was taken. He was taken to Mr. R. M. Roy's studio where he was photographed. During the coming week Chief Rozzel will communicate with different places to find out Murray's past record.

Financial Panic on Wall Street; Scenes of the Wildest Disorder

Receiver Appointed for Westinghouse Electric Co.—Pittsburg Exchange Closes Up—Excited Rush on the Trust Companies.

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, Oct. 23.—The financial panic which seized Wall Street and the banking institutions here yesterday was continued again to-day amid wild scenes, both on the Stock Exchange and on the streets in the banking district.

PEOPLE MADE RUSH.

Early in the morning thousands of people thronged up in front of the Knickerbocker Trust Co.'s offices in an endeavor to withdraw their deposits and before long similar lines were formed in front of nearly every trust company in the city, but especially severe was the run on the Colonial Trust Co. and the Trust Company of America.

The Knickerbocker Co. did not open up for business, however, to-day and two superintendents of State Banking took charge of the company and placed a bank examiner in each of its branches at the same time announcing that no more would be paid out for the present as the support which was expected yesterday had not been furnished.

MARKET DEMORALIZED.

The stock market opened demoralized with heavy declines in the active stocks, the heaviest sufferer being Del. Hudson which dropped 11 points. It was seen that the banking interests were supporting prices after the first break, however, and the market was not so active as yesterday. Although call money was quoted at from 70 to 90 per cent. some of the big banks renewed loans at six per cent. and this relieved the tension greatly.

ANOTHER SMASH.

There was a big smash in Westinghouse Electric on the news that a receiver had been appointed for that company. The stock dropped from 98 yesterday to 40 to-day, while General Electric suffered severely in sympathy.

The Pittsburg Stock Exchange closed to-day for a few days and it was rumored at one time that the New York Exchange would also close, but this could not be confirmed.

A BIG RUN.

The run on the Trust Co. of America in the afternoon was so large that it completely blocked Wall street from Broad to William. Mounted police in large numbers and detectives in plain clothes endeavored to maintain order.

Harriman has been in and out of Morgan's office ten of fifteen times and it was rumored that Harriman would have to step aside and let Mr. Morgan have the reins.

Funeral Was Largely Attended

The funeral of the late Geo. Heffernan, son of Mr. Patrick Heffernan, 640 Reid street, took place this afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery. It was largely attended, many persons turning out to pay their last respects to the memory of the deceased.

Attractions at Toronto Theatres

Given for the Benefit of Those Going on Excursion Next Saturday

A particularly large crowd should take in the excursion the Rugby Club is running to Toronto next Saturday morning. The train leaves the G.P.R. station at 8.30 in the morning, and will reach Toronto before noon thus giving those who go a good opportunity to have a look around the city, do any shopping they may wish to or visit their friends. The return fare is $2.00, and $1.00 for children under twelve years of age. A special will be run, returning from Toronto at 11 p.m. This arrangement is made so those taking in the trip will have an opportunity to visit the theatres. For the benefit of any who may wish to do so, a list of attractions at the different playhouses with a brief synopsis of the character of the productions being presented at them this week, is given below. Fortunately, they are all good judging from the criticisms in the Toronto papers.

At the Royal Alexandria, Toronto's beautiful new house of amusement, "The Cowboy and the Lady," is the offering, and the piece is interpreted by the theatre's carefully selected and gifted stock company. It's atmosphere is essentially of the west, and the play is one of Clyde Fitch's many successes, and is highly spoken of by the Toronto press.

Willie Collier, the clever American comedian, holds the boards at the Princess, with the comedy that gave New York convulsions, during its all season's run at the Garrick theatre in the American metropolis last year. "Caught in the Rain." It is one of the funniest and most cleverly cast farces on the stage today.

The bill at Shea's, as usual, is good. Muller and Corelli are the drol' top liners, while the rest of the programme is of uniform excellence.

"Way Down East," the pretty pastoral play, which has been before the public many years, is at the Grand and "The Great Eastern World," dealing with the political complications, some Americans get into in St. Petersburg, holds sway at the Majestic.

For the burlesque spinners the "Rialto Rounders," provide a dashing entertainment at the Star. Sam Howe, the popular Hebrew comedian, is the star of the production, and clatism are introduced.

Grows Peanuts on His Farm

Mr. L. F. Morrice brought into our office on Monday morning last a stalk of peanuts grown on the farm of Mr. Arthur Pitts. They grew, something like a potato, the peanuts being at the roots instead of on the branches, like most other nuts. They were of the early Canadian variety and were well developed.—Madoc Review.

Its a Fever in the Blood

One Man's Explanation as to the Cause of High Prices

"What ever goes up must come down," is an old school boy saying that does not hold good in all things. It may be true of a kite, a stone or an airship, but when one gets married these times and has to provide for a house one quickly discovers that the old boyish rule does not apply when prices of the necessaries of life are in question.

Why is it that everything is increasing but salaries, and nothing is coming down? It is a question many a consumer is asking himself. If farmers are so short to feed that they have to kill their cattle, why is beef up so high?

The answer generally given is, "We are prosperous," and there is a hint that "we" can get too prosperous if it is going to run out that way. The construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific has created an enormous demand for labor and provisions, and this is increased by the building of other railroads and great works. Then in some articles there is a scarcity, and this always means enhanced price. Hay is an instance. But why whiskey should go up when the principal item in its cost is the government tax, is one among other things that puzzle. There is another answer, however.

"I believe it is just a fever," said the purchaser for one of Peterborough's large hotels, yesterday. "The farmer has seen that we will pay through the nose and they're trying to see how much they can sweat. I don't believe the stories about the farmers having to kill their beef for lack of pasturage. I think they're just willing to take advantage of the market. Vegetables are not too bad and will not be found exorbitant in price this winter, I think.

"But I simply give up trying to explain the cause of the increase in butter and eggs. The only thing is that we may have been exporting too much dairy produce, and so butter has advanced, while the good price of fowl is perhaps an inducement to the farmers to kill it, instead of keeping the hens for laying. Flour has, of course, gone up because there is not a full crop of wheat in the Northwest, but I think, as I said before, that there is a fever in it, and producers are taking advantage of our weakness to pinch us."

MEATS WILL BE CHEAPER.

A well known meat dealer gives some consolation to the housekeeper in predicting that meats will be cheaper this winter than last. The price today, he says, is not out of the way. Pork and lamb are both cheaper now than a year ago, and as soon as the weather gets cold enough and the farmers really start killing, he predicts still better prices for the consumer.

HE WAS BARRED AT THE BORDER

Young Man Stopped by U. S. Immigration Officer

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Will the printers of Canada be compelled to erect their own home for the sick and aged?

This question has been forced upon the members of the Typographical Union by the action of the United States government, through the agent at Port Huron, in refusing to allow a printer from Toronto to proceed to the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs.

On July 1st, an order of the government, prohibiting an entrance of persons unfit to earn a living through sickness or other causes went into effect, and since that time the officials at all border cities have been diligently looking for persons crossing from Canada, who cannot pass medical examination.

It so happens that this order of the United States Government prevents the printers of Canada from taking advantage of the Home in Colorado Springs, which they help to maintain, and the probability is that an appeal will be made through the Executive Council of the International Typographical Union to the United States Government, to amend the prohibitive legislation.

The member of the Toronto Union who was refused admission to the United States, had received all the necessary papers to admit him to the Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, and when he reached Port Huron he was taken ill. He was anxious to reach the Home as soon as possible, but notwithstanding the fact that he was in a position to prove that he would not be a charge upon the country, he was not allowed to go any further. The physician who examined him, was disposed to let him go through, but the head official would not pass him.

The printer returned to Toronto and laid the matter before the president of the Typographical Union, who has taken the question up with the authorities at Washington, and with the Executive Council of the International Typographical Union.

This is the first time a printer from Canada, has been refused admission to the United States on his way to the Home at Colorado Springs.

Some Reasons Why an Inspector of Coal Should be Appointed

Should See that Consumer Gets Value for His Money—No Coal Sold That is Guaranteed Perfect—There is a Standard, However, and the Dealer Should be Held to That Standard—A Review of the Present Situation, Price, Supply, Weight and Demand.

There is an agitation in Toronto for the appointment of a commission by the Government to look into the matter of the alleged coal dealers combine or association. It is reported that there is an understanding, more or less definite, among dealers to maintain and to at times advance the price of coal at their calm discretion. It is urged that in no other line of trade is there apparent that which seems to be an understanding, and that the consumer is practically at the mercy of dealers for this necessity of life. Whatever may be the opportunity for such an investigation to get at the facts, it is plain that inquiry will have to be made much further back in the matter than dealing with the local merchant. And it is pretty certain that question and answer will cease at the border line between the States and Canada, and it is from the former territory that our supplies come.

The mining of coal is unfortunately for us continued to a comparatively small part of the States, that is coal producing areas within reasonable freighting distance of the Canadian market. There is plenty of coal in other fields but too far away, and even if the effort were made to ship it that effort would be strangled before it had reached any considerable proportion. The keynote to the situation is recognized in the fact that the producers of coal control the situation and determine for themselves, and for the trade just what shall be done. The local dealer has no voice in the matter. He may buy from any colliery he may choose, subject to regulation, but he must do exactly as he is directed—or get no coal. His orders will be filled in proper rotation—he will take what is sent him, be thankful that he gets it, sell at the regulation price, never undersell his competitors, charge reasonable expense of delivery and remain in the coal business. If he does not choose to do those things—then he sells out the stock on hand and retires for want of further supplies.

There is a section of the community that will not, or cannot see, that in the line of necessities things will cost what the public make them cost. A rapid and permanent demand for an article will infallibly raise the price. When the famous coal strike was on three years ago, a large section of the public, in fact the unanimous call was made that the working miners be given the advance asked for. But the public did not realize that if that advance was made in the end the dear public would pay for it, (just as we are now paying for "free postal delivery.") though it is generally conceded that if any class of labor should be fairly, if not well remunerated, it is that of coal mining, an exhausting, laborious, and dangerous occupation. It is safe to say that the coal strike did not cost the mine owners one dollar, and that as time rolls on they will gain largely by the transaction, for the public pays more and will keep on paying.

Coming back to the matter of investigation. It is quite possible that local dealers would not be adverse to such an enquiry, even if instituted locally. It would develope wrong, if wrong existed, and if not afford the opportunity of setting the facts fairly before the public. Why not have one? If conducted under authority it would not end in a farce, and if the coal dealers dodged and evaded, conclusions could be drawn. If the facts were given to the public fair and square. It would be better all around. It is of little use to compare prices with some other locality. What concerns us all is the price of coal here, and why it is what it is. Is there a remedy? Or are we helpless?

There is one feature of the whole business that is lost sight of in the general recrimination, and that is the value received. In no line of trade, in no field of barter is the buyer so wholly at the mercy of the seller, so far as value received is concerned. One may order from a dealer any of the commodities of life and be reasonably sure of getting what one is paying for. In the case of coal one has to take what the dealer sends. It may be a coal that gives not 70 per cent. of heat value, it may contain stones, slate and other unburnable debris, but everything goes, because the coal man says that he sells coal just as it is sent to him, that if it is inferior, he has to take it and work it off. That he has no remedy because he is not a free agent in the matter and that the coal has passed inspection when shipped, and he is bound to accept.

And this brings us to that point where we look for some assurance that we are getting coal worth $7.50 per ton when we cough up $7.50 for it. (Almost everything we eat, drink and use is subject to inspection. Meats, canned goods, packaged goods, etc., are all inspected to see that they are up to the standard and that the consumer is getting value for the money asked. Why not inspect the coal? There is no coal sold that is guaranteed perfect. There is a saving clause as to the percentage of ashes, stone, bone, etc., but in the face of this hundreds of householders have handled coal that over 50 per cent. of it was useless for heating purposes. The contents of the ash pan revealed a mass of clinkers, slate, charred pieces of half-formed coal, and ashes. Probably 35 per cent. of the heat value of the coal was consumed in melting, frying, charring the useless material mixed with the coal. Still there is a standard, and the local dealer should be held to that standard, and fight it out with his supply agent.

On the other hand there is such a neglect of decent, economical method in burning coal, so little attention paid to getting the best, so much careless firing that result in absolute waste. An inspection of the ash heaps behind the block of stores between Hunter and Simcoe streets, in the early spring, will show careless and wasteful firing during the winter. Even the man at home has his vagaries of handling the range and the furnace, and does not get the best results. Hence it would hardly be a safe proposition to take each man's opinion as to the quality of the coal and recklessly condemn the dealer. If we had some competent man, skilled in the coal business, able to fairly judge quality, value and to size up the method or want of method of the user of the coal, we could look for better things. By all means let us have an inspector, let him be competent, active and appointed to see that the consumer and dealer give and get fair play.

As to the matter of weights. Short weight in coal is a standard joke, and largely only a joke. The coal dealer is as little inclined to send short weight of coal as the lumber merchant is to send short measure in lumber. But the buyer has his remedy. He can order his coal weighed on the market scale (at his expense) and any and every dealer will cheerfully have it done. No one is obliged to take the coal man's weight. If the householder will order his coal weighed at the market, put in the bin, level it off, mark the level plainly as the coal is delivered, he can, from season to season, tell fairly well if he is getting the right weight. As to the quality—that is another story—and one for the inspector.

A Brief History of the Canadian Club Movement

In view of the fact that a Canadian Club has just been formed in Peterborough, a brief sketch of the movement throughout the Dominion may be of interest at the present moment.

The Canadian Club movement dates back to December, 1902, when independent attempts were made to establish national clubs in Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton. The first two organizations were not gratified, although "The Canadian National League" of Montreal, did exercise an influence for a time.

The Canadian Club of Hamilton was more successful, and was the leading national organization in Ontario for some years. The objects of that club were "the encouragement of the study of history, literature, art, music and national resources of Canada, the recognition of native worth and talent and the fostering of a patriotic Canadian sentiment." It was intended to be a "debating of mutual improvement society, with social features founded on the basis of unpartisan patriotic public spirit." The Hamilton Club did excellent work, and its influence flowed far beyond the confines of that city. It still pursues a most useful career.

When W. Sinford Evans, now president of the Winnipeg Canadian Club, and one of the founders of the Hamilton Canadian Club went to Toronto, he advocated the founding of a similar club there. He called a meeting at the Rossin House, but found opinion divided. National sentiment was not strong. Undaunted, he planned a dinner at which the whole matter would be discussed. Even then he found croakers. Nevertheless, Mr. Evans persisted, and a committee drew up a constitution and a list of officers, which was presented at a later gathering. That night some 23 members signed the roll.

The work then began in earnest. The idea was to have monthly meetings, and the weekly luncheon was not thought of. At first the club dragged seriously. To cultivate enthusiasm the president suggested dining together once a week to talk over club matters and get acquainted. A series of public meetings was inaugurated and during its first year the club was addressed by the late Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Gilbert Parker and others, and the treasurer's report at the close showed a balance of 87 cents out of a total of $51.

The club continued to grow, the weekly luncheon becoming more and more important, and ever since it has increased in membership and interest. Other cities in Canada have followed Hamilton and Toronto's example, until today there are Canadian clubs from Halifax to Vancouver.

Among the cities, which have organized within the past week or two are Brantford, St. Thomas and Peterborough.

AN OBJECTIONABLE MEASURE

In the bye-election in East Northumberland, strong opposition has been raised by the apple growers and dealers in the riding against the Fruit Marks Act. They point out that it is altogether too stringent and is jeopardizing the whole industry. Those directly interested maintain that before there was any such a measure, Canada's apples had won such a high reputation in England, that fancy prices were easily secured. The English commission men and consumers were fully able to protect themselves, while the Imperial Government had its own system of inspection, and the Canadian shipper, who sent an unsatisfactory consignment, soon felt in loss of further business the effects of his carelessness or greed. Hon. Sidney Fisher, however, the fruit marks measure was devised and passed deapite the almost unanimous opposition of the interests affected. It is pointed out that a similar measure brought forward in the United States Congress was thrown out after it was found that 90 per cent. of the fruit men were opposed to it.

The objections to the act are twofold. One is the system of grading, which is declared to be too exacting. Apples which were formerly accepted by the English buyers, as first grade, free from scab, wormhole, or any material waste, are now ranked as second grade. As a consequence, the farmers this year, instead of receiving $1.25 per barrel, are getting on an average, only $1 a barrel, a big item, where a crop of 3,000 or 4,000 barrels is raised. The buyer, after packing and shipping the apples, finds himself poorer by about $1 per barrel, than under the former conditions.

The packer has another grievance The packing regulations and the opening of packages for inspection at Montreal, results in a large percentage of barrels reaching England in a "slack" condition, and this also means a loss of $1 on each barrel.

This feature of the act, which is being laid intelligently before the electors of the riding by the Conservative candidate and his speakers, is having a marked effect in making votes for Mr. Owen, the popular Conservative candidate, who will, in view of the strong, independent and clean campaign, that he is waging, and the bold, deliberate, attempts made by the Laurier Government to bribe the constituency with public works, be returned at the head of the polls on Tuesday next.

KIPLING'S MESSAGE

Rudyard Kipling's message to Canada is in plain terms. It was remarked by his hearers yesterday that in his several speeches in the west, he seemed to have touched only the fringes of the subject. The natural suggestion was that he had reserved his solemn exhortation for delivery in the national capital itself. "You see I take you Canadians, very seriously, indeed," he said.

The message is that we continue to develope our already assured spirit of nationality, "without which," he says, "the greatest country on earth can only be an ethnological museum." And this spirit of Canadian nationality is to aspire to nothing else than the headship of the empire. A glittering goal, indeed, but the goal to which Mr. Kipling unhesitatingly points the Dominion.

But the cry is for men and for women. And most important of all, he says, "the family life on which the future of the state is based, suffers throughout the Dominion, for lack of adequate and honorable domestic help which shall release the mother of the family to her proper work."

His message to organized labor, is an unqualified rebuke. He had previously referred in one of his interviews, to the regulation of the affairs of organized labor in Canada, by bodies outside the Dominion. Yesterday he enlarged the general point. The cry is for more men, more people, more labor. But Mr. Kipling is impressed by "the evidence of a desire translated into the policy to exclude, or to regulate to the point of exclusion, all labor except what labor was lucky enough to be on the spot at the time."

Mr. Kipling cannot be accused of lack of sympathy with the working man. In his writings he has ennobled the man who works with his hands, as few writers have been able to do. His message to Canadian workingmen is plainly sincere, as his message to Canadians, as a whole, of whom the workingmen are brothers, is sincere.

Bring in the white labor from the Motherland, he says. Exclude all labor and you starve the body politic and fetter the mind of the nation. Develope the state fabric on the line of a close and selfish corporation and the leadership of the empire will pass away, and with it prosperity and freedom will pass. And finally comes the solemn definition of the newly acquired responsibility. "It is a nation among nations that you stand today, it is as a great nation among nations, that you will be judged."

Mr. Kipling has given us something to think about. He has laid us under a new obligation.—Ottawa Journal.

PEN POINTS

Send in your Limericks.

This beautiful October weather is certainly welcome.

Go with the football boys to Toronto on Saturday and cheer them on to victory.

All the towns and cities are marching ahead in population and assessment. Peterborough is well in advance.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham is taking part in the bye-elections in North Wellington and East Northumberland. If he does not meet with any, better success than he did in the recent Brockville contest, he should stay at home.

St. London is to have another bye-election within a few days' time and indications are that some of the usual main features of the genuine London campaign will be left out. Ten-dollar bills will probably not play such an important part as in a previous London election campaign. The London Free Press says: "Of course, there is a reason for this. There is no Grit candidate running."

A gratifying feature of the municipal assessment statistics for Ontario, which are now being made public, remarks the Brantford Expositor, is the fact that the increases in populations are not confined to the larger cities; in fact, the smaller cities show a larger increase by percentage than the larger ones. It is also very pleasing to see that the cities, which for so many years remained in the "ten thousand" class have at last burst their bonds and are marching toward the 20,000 mark.

Lord Strathcona, high commissioner for Canada, writes to the trade and commerce department, advising Canadian carriage builders to participate in the Franco-British exhibition in London next year. He advises that exhibits be of light rubber-tired buggies and trotting waggons. It is pointed out that the international horse show and Olympic games, which also will be held in London next year, will attract numbers of visitors, who would be likely to interest themselves in an exhibit of Canadian-made carriages.

Broke His Thumb in a Collision

Two Bicyclists Collided on Driscoll Terrace St. Yesterday

Mr. Herbert Fitzgerald, who resides on Douro street, East City, had the misfortune yesterday afternoon to have his left thumb broken. Mr. Fitzgerald was returning to his work at the Quaker Oats Company riding along Driscoll Terrace-st. on his bicycle. Not noticing another bicyclist coming, they suddenly collided and both fell to the road. Mr. Fitzgerald fractured his thumb, but the other gentleman escaped unhurt. No serious damage was done save a few spokes in the wheels being broken. Mr. Fitzgerald will be unable to resume work for a few days.

Boys are Fined for Trespassing

Grand Trunk Takes Action Against Lindsay Youths

Lindsay Post says: Railway property has to be respected. Such is the law, and Police Magistrate Jackson is bound to enforce it.

In police court this morning, Arthur Moore and Ralph Trevor were charged with trespassing on the property of the G.T.R. and fined $4.95 each. They had been in the habit of frequenting the box cars on Sundays and in the evenings, to enjoy a quiet smoke and chat, and kept it up, until the attention of the law invaded their rendezvous.

The magistrate propounded the clause in the statutes, relating to their offence, and informed the youngsters that a fine not exceeding $50 could be imposed.

Try This Recipe for Rheumatism

A Simple Mixture Anyone Can Prepare, Makes the Kidneys Filter Out Acids

To make up enough of the "Dandelion treatment," which is claimed to be relieving nearly every sufferer who uses it for backache, kidney complaint, sore weak, bladder and rheumatism, get from any good prescription pharmacy, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Those who have tried it claim that it acts gently but thoroughly on the kidneys, relieving backache and bladder trouble, and urinary difficulties almost instantly. Many cases of rheumatism are known to have been relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

A well-known local druggist, who is in a position to know, asserts that this prescription, wherever it becomes known, always ruins the sale of the numerous patent medicine rheumatism cures, kidney cures, etc. It is a recipe which the majority of patent medicine manufacturers and even certain physicians dislike to see published. Few cases, indeed, which will fail to fully yield to its peculiarly soothing and healing influence. Being composed of common every-day ingredients, which can be had from any druggist, it makes up a good, honest, and harmless remedy and at a nominal cost.

ARMLESS MAN SUICIDES

Shoots Himself by Pulling Revolver Trigger With Teeth.

Paris, Oct. 22.—One of the most remarkable suicides ever recorded has taken place in Paris. A man without arms succeeded in shooting himself with a revolver. For some time the police refused to believe that such a suicide was possible, but medical examination proved conclusively that such was the fact. The armless man was named Onillon. One of his arms was amputated some years ago as the result of an accident; the other was cut off close to the elbow a few months ago owing to medical reasons.

When the revolver found by the side of the dead man was examined, it was found that the two chambers had been discharged. Curiously enough, these were not consecutive chambers. Between the discharged chambers there was an interval of two that were undischarged. The autopsy proved that it was by means of his teeth and his feet that the man committed suicide. With his teeth he succeeded in fastening a boot lace to a piece of wire and in attaching the wire to a trigger of a revolver. He then took the barrel of the revolver in his mouth, and pulled the wire with his feet.

BEER* BENEFITS THE WHOLE BODY
(NO OTHER FOOD-BEVERAGE DOES THAT MUCH)

NOT six people in a thousand (and those six have either diabetes or gouty tendencies) can get anything but real good from the use of good beer with their meals. Because that kind of beer (and no other kind is brewed in Ontario) benefits the whole body of the normal adult,—enriches the blood, vitalizes the stomach, makes kidneys and liver active, builds flesh and betters nerves.

Beer Is Not A Mere Tonic

Good beer, drank with meals and at bedtime, is not merely a tonic—for a tonic simply gets one part of the system to work better for a while, by stimulating its activity, while beer, rightly used, does the whole system permanent good.

Beer Builds Up Thin Folks

That is why good beer is such a notable flesh-builder, and why it is so effective in changing the too-white blood of aenemic people into the red, strong, healthy blood of the vigorous. It has qualities that are very valuable to women, especially. It is distinctly NOT an intoxicant, nor a hurtful stimulant. Ask your doctor if beer wouldn't be good for you as an item of daily diet.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter and stout; and, in the practise of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 308

ROSS MYSTERY NOW CLEARED UP

Reason Why the Young Horse Dealer Took Flight to Dover

London, Oct. 23.—What appeared to be the strange mystery of the disappearance of Dugald Ross, the young Canadian, has now been cleared up.

Mr. Ross arrived at the Berkeley Hotel, London, and engaged a room. A few days later all the London newspapers were describing a spectacular exhibition of speed on the Brookland's motor track, where, it was asserted, a car had been purchased for $10,000 by a Mr. Ross, after breaking the world's record. Ross gave indications of his sound financial position, and it was not unnatural, when he left the hotel to go to a bank in the city, at the end of two weeks' sojourn, and did not return, that remarks should be made concerning the truth of what he had said. Then the London newspapers took up the search. Finally he was found to be stopping at a hotel at Dover under the name of "Robinson." Later he gave an explanation of his disappearance.

He had invested, he said, in the shares of a South African diamond company, and had had good reason to believe the speculation would turn out to his great profit, and had gone to the city bank referred to on the day of his disappearance for the purpose of obtaining a sum of money representing a portion of the profits.

Much to his surprise, he learned that no money was forthcoming, and inferring that he had been victimized by certain persons who had been connected with his transaction, he promptly set out to apprehend them. His quest took him in the direction of Dover, and, as he explained, he changed his name on registering at a hotel in that city in order to keep his presence there a secret from the men who had imposed upon him, for the the same reason he did not come forward when the newspapers were printing articles about his disappearance.

RULES AND REGULATIONS OF THE CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

The rules and regulations of the City Hockey League are given below for the benefit of any new teams desiring to enter the league, or for any one who does not know them and would like to be familiar with them.

Each player in City League games must hold a certificate from the League to entitle him to play in such games.

O.H.A. rules as far as consistent, to govern all games.

Players violating rules of league forfeit their certificate, and the teams playing such men are subject to suspension.

All games must commence sharp on time.

Any team delaying a game is subject to a fine of two dollars.

In the event of a tie game, same is left to executive to deal with.

Competing teams are to agree on a referee twenty-four hours before each game, and in the event of their inability to agree this matter will be left to the president.

No players is eligible to play in the league, who has played one game of intermediate or senior O.H.A. hockey during the present season.

All of last year's Peterborough seniors participating in O.H.A. games barred.

A player in the City Hockey League must be a bona fide resident of the city from December 1st.

Every team in the City Hockey League must register its colors with the secretary.

No teams are allowed to enter the league after December 15th, and any team that has entered, and paid no entrance fee by that date shall be notified to pay immediately or they shall not be included in the schedule.

The annual meeting of the league shall be held not later than November 15th of each year.

It is expected that Omemee, Keene and Bridgenorth will have teams in the league this year, and they will be most welcome additions. It is understood, of course, that all games will be played in the Brock street rink and the resident rule applies to outside places as well as to the city.

SAYS HE WILL GIVE UP OFFICE

But it is Hoped Secy. Clarke Will Still Stay With City League

Mr. Fred A. Clarke, secretary-treasurer of the City League, states that he intends to retire from that office. Mr. Clarke has always been an earnest advocate of amateur sport, and will be much missed should he retire, but it is hoped, that he will reconsider his present intention of withdrawing from active participation in city hockey matters. He is an honorable and efficient official, and very popular with the members of the different clubs in the league.

SPRINTING

The Harrier Club, of Brockville, is evidently a progressive sporting organization. They have entered five men in the Montreal Herald race on Thanksgiving Day—M. R. Milroy, Gordon Fletcher, Herb. Humble, R. Cuthbertson and E. C. Chester.

C. Russell will represent the club in the Herald road race at Hamilton.

RUNNING

If Shrubb ever expects to meet Longboat, he had better quit talking or he is liable to be out of wind when the match takes place.

Don't forget the excursion to Toronto on Saturday morning. The game will be a corker, and it's a good chance to take a trip to Toronto at a greatly reduced rate. The return fare is $2.05 good on special, which leaves the C.P.R. station at 9.30 a.m. and from the Union Station, Toronto, on returning at 12 p.m., or on all C.P.R. trains coming to the city from Toronto Monday. The rate for children under 12 years of age is $1.05.

HARTLEY CAN FIND NO BACKERS

Prospect for Him Making the Long Walk are Not Bright

Unless there is some one who will offer to guarantee David Hartley's expenses before tomorrow noon, he will not start on Friday on his long walk from Bowmanville to Toronto and return to Peterborough, a distance of 138 miles. The local pedestrian is anxious to make the trip and is confident of his ability to do so. Mr. Hartley does not like the idea of the enterprise failing, but there has been no financial support offered him as yet, and the outlook for the event to take place is not very bright. Considerable prominence has been given him of late in many papers in Ontario, and this is one of the reasons why he would like to start, so as to show the people that he has not been talking for the sake of notoriety. He claims he can perform the feat.

It is hoped that some one will take hold of the affair, and see the enterprise through.

BICYCLE THIEF SENT TO GAOL

Walter Mahaffy Has a Bad Record—Stole Two Wheels

Walter Mahaffy, a boy of 16 years was today sentenced to two months in the county gaol on the charge of the theft of two bicycles. He pleaded guilty to stealing one from W. R. G. Higgins, also one from Wm. Madill, on Saturday, October 19th. He stated that last summer he purchased a bicycle for $3 from Bruce Harrison. On Saturday he came in from his home at Douro, and traded his wheel at Bank's store for a gun. He afterwards came on up the street and seeing Mr. Madill's wheel standing in front of the drug store, he took it and rode it up to Mr. Higgins' store where he left it, and rode away on Mr. Higgins' bicycle.

Yesterday afternoon P. C. McBarry, with Mr. Higgins, went out to the country and located the prisoner. This lad has appeared in police court before for horse stealing. He has a weakness for thieving, and it is said that in a certain church, after the collection had been taken up, he stole cash off the plate.

He is too old to be sent to the Reformatory, and his Worship gave him the above sentence.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

Given by the Ladies Aid Society of George street Church on Thanksgiving Day from 5 to 8 p. m. followed by good musical programme. Admission to Dinner and Concert 25 cents.

A FINE HOTEL

Mr. J. A. Lawless says improvements to Hotel Canada, New Liskeard, of which he is proprietor, have been completed, and he claims it to be the finest hotel north of Toronto. A new addition, with a frontage of 44 feet and depth of 100 feet, including a 30x50 dining room, a kitchen, pantry and barber shop has been completed. The bar is 44 feet in length, and there are six spacious sample rooms, and the same number of drinking rooms. The rotunda of the hotel is larger than that of the National, in this city.

Detective Smith who shot and killed Oscar Gans on Tuesday last, was released yesterday on $20,000 bail. He was held to the Assizes.

Court Stanley Held Meeting

Will Celebrate its Anniversary on November 12th

A regular meeting of Court Stanley A.O.F. was held last night in the S.O.E. Hall. There was a large attendance of members. Chief Ranger Bro. Hendry, presided.

Four candidates were duly initiated, and several propositions for membership, were received.

Considerable business was done for the good of the Order, and it was decided to celebrate the eightieth anniversary of the opening of the Court on the 12th of November, by giving a social evening to members and friends. A strong committee was chosen to arrange a first class program. Several members spoke of the High Court meeting.

Bro. Geo. Record was warmly welcomed on his return from a deep dive into the sea of matrimony, he having lately taken unto himself a partner to help him steer through life. It is a pearly wish of all members that the sea will not be too rough. It is understood that he is opening, on Simcoe street, in a few days, a new French dry cleaning process. If he does as well as he looks after the interests of Court Stanley, he will insure his success.

St. Andrew's Church Young Men's Guild

Officers Elected Last Night—Prospects for the Season

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild, was held last evening. The attendance was large and much enthusiasm was shown. It was also the annual meeting of the Guild and the election of officers took place. Mr. W. S. Campbell was in the chair, and after a few opening remarks the officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:—

Hon. Pres.—Rev. J. G Potter.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. Geo. Evans.
Recording Sec.—Mr. T. Donaldson.
Corresponding Sec.—Mr. H. McCulloch.
Treasurer.—Mr. W. Richardson.
Councillors.—Messrs. W. Mellis, W. S. Campbell, Rutherford and F. W. Glover.

The new officers were afterwards installed by the past president, Mr. W. S. Campbell.

The prospects for the winter's work among the young men are very bright and several good meetings are in anticipation.

BANDAGING CONTEST

The examiners in the bandaging contest of the 1908 graduates of the Nicholls Hospital Training School for Nurses, are Drs. C. H. Amys, T. N. Greer, J. Malcolm McCulloch and W. Caldwell. The contest will take place on Wednesday evening, October 30th.

SOME LIMERICKS

A President grave came to town,
Prepared to put "hustling" all down
The Freshies got tea.
And were pleased as could be,
But the Sophs wear a horrible frown.

Some plutocrats, loaded with stock
Wished to buy an Ontario block,
Said Whitney in glee,
"No million for me"—
And the syndicate died of the shock.

The road called the great G.T.P.
Wished to talk over things in B.C.
But Hays didn't come,
While Morse stayed to "hum."
And McBride is as mad as can be.

There once was a fine Irish Tory,
Who covered himself with much glory,
But the Brockville election,
Brought "A. G." dejection,
While the Globe told with tears the sad story.

Lager, Ale and Porter Go Up Considerably in Price

Brewers Claim Expenses Involved in Brewing are Much Increased—New Schedule of Prices Now in Effect

The brewers of Ontario claim that owing to the greatly increased prices of malt and other materials, used in the brewing business, they have found it necessary to increase the price of ale, porter and lager. The increase is a material one, and comes as somewhat of a surprise to the retail dealers and hotel men, all of whom in this city, have received circulars telling them that the new schedule of prices is in effect since October 23rd. The brewers held the the meeting at which it was decided to take this step, on Tuesday morning, October 22nd, at the Temple Building, Toronto.

The brewers ask that part of the increased cost in the brewing business be borne by the licenseholder.

The following is a list of former and present prices,—

Bottled ale, porter and lager.

Quarts, $1 per dozen, were 90 cents.

Pints, 70 cents per dozen, were 60 cents.

Draught lager.

One barrel, 32 wine gallons, $8, was $7.

One-half barrel, 16 wine gallons, $4, was $3.50.

One-quarter barrel, 8 wine gallons, $2, was $1.75.

One-sixth barrel, 5 1-3 wine gallons, $1.35, was $1.10.

One-eighth barrel, 4 wine gallons, $1.00, was 75 cents.

Draught ale and porter—33 cents per Imperial gallon, no change.

A discount of five per cent. is allowed on these prices, if payment be made within thirty days. The same regulations as before apply to empties, and all broken bottles must be paid for.

The advance of 50 cents on a half barrel of lager, came as a great shock to most of the hotel men, who were unprepared for it.

One out-of-town hotel man happened to drop into a brewery an hour before the increase went into effect, and at once filled an order for three cars of bottled goods.

WHISKIES ALSO DEARER.

The troubles of the trade are not ended with the increase in the price of beer, on which there is a margin sufficient to cover an even greater raise, as advice had just recently been received from the wholesale liquor dealers to the following effect, "Owing to the recent advance in prices made by the distillers in Canadian whiskies, we are compelled to advance our selling prices to the same extent as the distillers have raised theirs." It concluded with the hope that the change would not inconvenience the retail trade, as much as it had the wholesalers, and gave the following increases,—All brands, 25 under proof, 8c. per gallon; All brands, 40 under proof, 07c per gallon; G. and W. special, 15c. per gallon; Walker's Imperial 15c. per gallon; Seagram's '83, 52c. per gallon. The case whiskies have advanced on an average of 25 cents per case, with the exception of Walker's "Club" and "Beronial," which remain as before.

DEMAND FOR SCOTCH INCREASES.

The action of the distillers, it is believed, was induced by the recent advance in the retail price of whiskey to 15 cents. As the same price was charged for Scotch whiskies, it is said that a larger demand was created for the latter goods, the customer soliloquising that if he had to pay the price, he might as well have the better article. As the Scotch whiskies cost from $12 to $15 per case, however, there was less money in them for the retailer, and now he is getting the worst of it again.

With the increases of beer and whiskies, the barman has also other difficulties in making both ends meet and the condition of the cigar trade is causing him much anxiety. It is said that he has now to pay from $10 to $15 per 1,000 more for good goods than formerly and can't get them at that. The reason given is the failure of the tobacco crop, which it is said, will cause a still greater increase in the price before spring. Even now, it is impossible to get an order filled within several months, and smokers are advised to get their supplies in early.

PRICES UNCHANGEABLE.

With all the advances on every side which cover every article used in a first-class bar, the dealer sees no way of getting any of the money back. The price of beer is fixed and the glasses are as small as the public will stand, while in whiskies, the same situation exists. Dealers say they cannot raise the price of cigars and the increased cost will come out of their pockets. Local liquor dealers were congratulating themselves in the success of the move to increase the price of whiskey last spring, but now they fear that the brewers and distillers will reap the benefit, if the boosting of prices continues. No remedy is in sight, but it is anticipated that a meeting of local hotel men will be held next week to discuss the situation.

Saskatoon has sold $250,000 of debentures at 90 to a Scottish firm.

Graphic Story of the Great Balloon Race Just Been Held

Aeronaut Alterholt Gives Account of Sensational Balloon Flight.

Nearly One Thousand Miles Was Covered in Twenty-Five Hours—Threw Out Ballast and Food Over Lake Erie—Wanted to Reach Canadian Shore—German Balloon Wins the Contest.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—From unofficial measurement, the German balloon, Pommern, has won the balloon race by a few miles, with the Isle de France second.

Major Hersey left here last night for his home in Milwaukee.

Mr. Alterholt, who was in the balloon which landed near Caledonia, Ont., said: "We started at exactly 4.05 Monday afternoon from St. Louis. We saw six balloons in the air at once. Inside of 45 minutes we were carried over Missouri, Illinois and the Mississippi River. We sailed northeast over Illinos at an elevation for the entire distance of not over 350 feet. Our drag rope was out for that distance. On Tuesday morning we passed over Zion City, near Chicago. At 6.23, western time, we started across Lake Michigan, reaching the other side about 8.50. We were four and a half hours crossing the State of Michigan. Our elevation in crossing the lake was from 2,000 to 5,000 feet, and the trip was made at the rate of 39 1-2 miles an hour. At 1.18 Tuesday afternoon we were sailing over Lake St. Clair, and at 2.50, western time, we reached Lake Erie. A wind from the south, blowing 40 miles an hour, carried us to the Canadian shore. Our ballast was running short, and we had to throw out food and everything else we could do without. I think we passed into Canada near Port Dover."

Oil King J. D. Rockefeller Has Come to the Rescue

Uses His Millions to Quell Panic on Stock Exchange.

Banks Benefit by His Resources—End of Day Finds New York Financiers In Cheerier Mood—Confidence Returning — Pittsburg Firms In Hands of Receivers—Trust Stands Heavy Run.

New York, Oct. 24.—Mr. John D. Rockefeller has taken an active interest in the present financial situation, and he has arranged to loan very large sums to a number of New York financial institutions.

"I think," said Mr. Rockefeller to a representative of the Associated Press last evening, "that the existing alarm among investors is not warranted, and I hope the good common sense of our American people will control the situation.

"Personally, I have absolute faith in the future of the values of our securities and the soundness of underlying conditions. Instead of withdrawing any of my moneys from the banks, I am co-operating with others in helping to meet that which I firmly believe to be only a temporary crisis. Everyone having the good of his country at heart should, by word and deed, lend a hand now to re-establish confidence, and I propose to do my part to the full extent of my resources."

SITUATION HAS BEEN MET.

Ample Funds Placed In New York Banks For Emergencies.

New York, Oct. 24.—At midnight Frank Vanderlip, vice-president of the National City Bank, made the following official statement:

"The situation has been met. The trust companies will come to the aid of the Trust Company of America. The examination by the committee appointed to look into the trust companies have found that the Trust Company of America has sufficient assets to warrant protective action by the committee, and such action has been agreed upon"

Mr. Vanderlip said that Secretary Cortelyou will place ample funds in the New York banks to meet any emergency.

New York, Oct. 24.—Yet another event which helped the situation was the ability of the Trust Company of America to withstand an all-day run as it successfully did. In the face of enormous withdrawals the officials of the bank expressed their readiness to settle with all depositors on demand, and even for a few minutes after the regular hour of closing the company kept up paying out money at its main office in Wall street and at its Broadway branch. Then it was announced that the institution would be open as usual at 10.30 o'clock today prepared for all eventualities.

So manifest was the strength of the bank that many who withdrew deposits early in the day redeposited them before the doors were closed. The total resources of the company when last reported were in excess of $70,000,000. Several millions were withdrawn yesterday, but funds to satisfy every claim were said to be at hand. This was the only run of importance, and its result was encouraging.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 24.—A flurry in local financial circles caused by the embarrassment of four concerns of the Westinghouse interests was quickly ended here yesterday by the prompt action of the Pittsburg Clearing-house Association and the Pittsburg Stock Exchange. Last night the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the Westinghouse Machine Co. and the Security Investment Co., a holding company for the Westinghouse interests, were in the hands of receivers appointed by Judge Ewing of the United States Circuit Court. A fourth concern, the Nernst Lamp Co., will be turned over to receivers this morning.

The Pittsburg Stock Exchange, which was closed promptly yesterday morning when informed of the situation by the Pittsburg Clearing-house Association, will probably remain closed to-day. This action was taken to prevent unnecessary sacrifice of values or a heavy liquidation of stocks.

Nevada Bank Closed Doors.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 24.—The State Bank and Trust Co. closed its doors at 11 o'clock yesterday. A notice posted on the door says that the suspension was instructed from the home bank at Carson City, and was due to the heavy drain on deposits the last few months, following labor troubles, and inability to make collections. The notice further says that the resources are ample to pay all depositors.

Brantford Stabbing Case.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 24.—The case of Podgorney, for manslaughter, was resumed at the Police Court yesterday. After the evidence was heard the police magistrate sent the case to a higher court.

It will be remembered that a foreigner named Dubroski was stabbed by Podgorney; from the effects of the stabbing Dubroski died in the hospital a couple of weeks ago.

Fire at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—Fire started at 11.15 last night in a barn in the rear of the Toronto and Hamilton Electric Co.'s works, corner of MacNab and Vine streets. The barn was destroyed and a horse burned to death. The fire spread to the electrical works, but was checked before much damage was done. Total loss about $500.

Blew Open the Safe.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 24.—The safe in the G. T. R. freight office here was burglarized some time during Tuesday night. The safe contained no valuables. The burglars were undoubtedly professionals. The handle was broken off and explosives introduced through the hole thus made.

Firemen Stood Helpless.

Stratford, Oct. 23.—The house in Mitchell, owned by George Raines, was completely burned to the ground while firemen stood helplessly by, unable to obtain water through disconnected pipes. The mother and father were absent at the time and had it not been for neighbors entering while the house was in flames their one-year-old baby would have perished.

Will Study the Plague.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Dr. Montizambert, director-general of public health and sanitary adviser of the Government, has been directed to proceed to Seattle to study the bubonic plague conditions there, and to consider means of warding it off from the Canadian border.

Mr Lawrence, M.P. for Colchester, is slated for a Nova Scotia judgeship.

FEDERATION FOR S. AFRICA.

Cape Colony Judge to Report on the Canadian System.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Justice Laurence, a member of the Supreme Court of Cape Colony, is here on a mission from the Cape Colony Government. He will report upon certain questions of importance bearing upon the proposed federation of the South African colonies. And he is particularly anxious to discover in what manner our federal system has worked as regards friction arising between the Federal and the Provincial Governments.

A resolution on this subject, on matters respecting which both parties were able to reach agreement was recently carried in the Cape Colony Legislature, proposed by a Dutch member and seconded by Dr. Jameson.

At present Judge Laurence seems to favor the plan of a legislative rather than a Federal union of the South African colonies as better suited to their peculiar conditions, financial and otherwise. And it is understood that he will prepare a treatise upon all the questions involved in their somewhat difficult problem.

He had an interview with Hon. Messrs. Whitney and Foy at the Parliament buildings.

Judge Laurence has made the trip to Victoria, B. C., and back; has visited Ottawa; leaves this morning for the Falls, and will shortly return to England on his way home. He states that he has enjoyed extremely his Canadian tour.

ANOTHER FLAG INCIDENT.

Chief Justice Demands Removal of "Old Glory" From Hotel.

Cobourg, Oct. 24.—Every live and growing town has its "flag incident." Cobourg is the latest, and Chief Justice Mulock the chief character.

The fall Assizes have just opened in the town, and the ex-Postmaster-General is presiding. On arrival at Cobourg he was met by Sheriff Proctor, a prominent local Liberal, and escorted to the Columbian Hotel, which is owned by J. B. McCall, M.P. for West Northumberland. Sir William was ascending the steps with the sprightliness of youth, when he glanced up. He stopped suddenly, and his companion looked puzzled. Then he, too, looked aleit, and something of understanding broke upon him. He was about to speak, but the chief justice forestalled him.

"I will not enter the hotel unless that flag is removed," he asseverated, with a wave of his hand towards "Old Glory," which has hung above the portal for years as a tacit invitation to the United States tourist.

And then it was that the fealty of the member of Parliament to a former chieftain asserted itself. Orders were given, the flag vanished, and the chief justice entered within.

The incident is a lively topic in Cobourg, and the consensus of opinion is that Sir William's loyalty is of properly active kind.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY ENACTED.

Two Men and Woman Shot at Cleveland, Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—What will result in a triple tragedy was enacted in a house on Buckeye road, in the southeastern part of the city, Tuesday night. Two men are dead and a woman, the wife of one of the men, is fatally wounded. The shooting occurred in the home of the woman, and one of the dead men is her husband, while the other is the triple slayer, who shot the woman and her husband after the woman had refused to leave the latter to elope with him. The murderer, after shooting the other two, turned the weapon upon himself.

The slayer was Michael Szekely, 24 years old, who recently came here from Buffalo, and the other parties to the tragedy were Erman Burray, 31 years, and his wife. The hospital officials say the woman is dying. She told them that she eloped with Szekely some time ago, and lived with him in a small town near Buffalo, but had deserted him to live with her husband.

Golden Lake Shooting Case.

Pembroke, Oct. 24.—The Golden Lake shooting case is now being tried at the Assizes here. It will be remembered that an Indian named Serazin fired upon two constables who were bent upon his arrest, and wounded one of them.

Though the Indian has not been captured, and probably never will be, it is the contention of the Pembroke constables, Young and Dickson, that Juzte Serazin, his wife, and Annie Serazin, his daughter, fired some of the shots. The grand jury brought in a true bill against them.

Gillies Suit Still On.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—In the non-jury Assizes yesterday, Justice McMahon took further evidence in the action to recover $90,000 from the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission, brought by the Gillies brothers.

Several fire-rangers from the north were examined as to the start of various fires, and the damage resulting therefrom along the right of way of the T. & N. O.

The case goes on again to-day.

Ireland Resents This.

Dublin, Oct. 24.—There is much indignation throughout the North of Ireland at a statement that a portion of the world-famed Giant's Causeway is about to be removed to America. The first consignment, weight 200 tons, it is stated, will be shipped to Philadelphia. These wonderful basaltic columns, though in private ownership, are regarded as a national possession.

Drew Revolver on Cop.

Peterboro, Oct. 24.—P. C. Newhall, in plain clothes Tuesday night, arrested a man named James Murray, who attempted to sell him a ring. The man drew a revolver, but the officer drew his baton and knocked it to the ground. Two companions of Murray escaped.

Mr. Oliver Asselin was arrested for failing to appear at the Quebec Assizes to undergo his second trial on a charge of criminal libel.

TRAINMAN'S BRAVE ACT

Gallant Rescue of Little Girl on Track at Rigaud.

Was Standing In Middle of Track—Train Speeding on and She Took No Notice of Shouts—Sicotte Stood on Cow-Catcher and Picked Her Up From Between the Rails to a Place of Safety.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—When the Ottawa train from Montreal left Rigaud Tuesday night, O. Sicotte, brakeman of the Smith's Falls division, performed an action which saved the life of a small child, who but for his bravery and presence of mind would certainly have been killed.

When the train leaves Rigaud the brakeman stands on the front of the engine in order to be able to open the switch a short distance up the line. Sicotte, standing there, saw in front of him a small girl right in the middle of the track.

He shouted to her, but could not attract her attention. There was no time to stop the train, so without a moment's hesitation and at the imminent risk of his own life Sicotte, grasping the cow-catcher with one hand, leaned forward, and as the engine reached the child he lifted her to a place of safety.

SANK WITH BARGE.

Captain and Wife Drowned In Collision on Lake.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—The steamer Norwalk, Capt. Goodrow, bound from Quebec for Detroit with a cargo of pulpwood, came into collision with the Montreal Transportation Co.'s barge Jacques, in tow of the tug Olive, flax laden from Prescott for Montreal, yesterday afternoon in Lake St. Louis.

The collision resulted in the sinking of the barge, which was struck fair amidships, and sank almost immediately.

Nothing has since been seen of the captain of the barge and his wife, and it is supposed that they went down with the boat. Two other men saved their lives by jumping to the other vessel. The Norwalk was not seriously injured.

AGED ENGINEER KILLED.

Fatal Runaway Yesterday Afternoon at Chatham.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 24.—Engineer Augustine McDonell, Dominion civil engineer and surveyor, who lived on the corner of Queen and Harvey streets, was killed in a runaway yesterday afternoon. Mr. McDonell was thrown out of the double rig in which he was driving at the intersection of Grey and Raleigh streets, striking his head on the pavement.

Medical aid was hastily summoned, but he passed away 15 minutes after the accident, recovering consciousness just a short time before he breathed his last.

The deceased was born at Dundee, Que., June 22, 1823, and came to Chatham in 1863, where he has lived continuously ever since.

A RUNAWAY MATCH.

Young Couple Fly to Toronto Where Groom Is Pinched.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Olovia Bogie, an Italian laborer, 19 years of age, who fled from Welland with the 14-year-old daughter of Antonio Barbian of that place, was arrested at the home of his parents, 381 Concord avenue, by Detective McMillan. The girl, to whom he is said to have been married, was with him. An officer arrived from Welland, bringing a warrant charging Bogie with abduction. He will be taken back to-day.

Killed at Ingersoll.

Ingersoll, Oct. 24.—A fatal accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway Tuesday night, the victim being Sidney Guest, an employe of the Ingersoll Packing Co., aged 37. His dead body was found on the tracks at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, but nothing is known as to the time or the manner in which he met his death. It is supposed he was run down by a westbound train. An inquest was opened and adjourned until the evening of the 29th inst.

Prince Arthur May Visit.

London, Oct. 24.—The correspondent of the Canadian Associated Press has heard that the King will be represented by Prince Arthur of Connaught at the tercentenary of the founding of Quebec next year. The prince is to be accompanied by an imposing suite, and it is likely that the prince, after the Quebec celebration, may tour Canada.

Emperor Francis Better.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—Everything yesterday pointed to the health of Emperor Francis Joseph having decidedly improved. His attending physicians admit that His Majesty's convalescence has begun. During the early part of the day he signed state documents with a firm hand.

Negro Lynched.

Okolona, Miss., Oct. 24.—Charged with having insulted and threatened the life of a young white woman of this place, Henry Sykes, a negro, was taken from the custody of an officer near here Tuesday night and lynched.

Blown Off Dam.

Kingston, Oct. 24.—At Westport, the 8-year-old daughter of Evans Warren was blown off the cement dam and drowned in ten feet of water. The body was recovered.

Gowland Guilty of Murder.

Morden, Man., Oct. 24.—Lawrence Gowland, a Barnardo boy, who murdered the sister of his employer at Killarney last year, was yesterday found guilty.

APPROVE OF PREFERENCE.

Dominions Should Shine in National Defence, Says Deakin.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 24.—(C. A. P.)—Discussing the preference proposals, Premier Deakin said the recent Imperial Conference made it clear that no reciprocity was possible at present with the Mother Country. The present proposals, therefore, offered the gift of preference as a tentative one to be extended and adapted according to experience, so as to render it more effective. He strongly urged the gift of preference as a means of diverting trade from foreign to British goods, as a manifestation of attachment to the Mother Country. It was a misfortune that at the conference there had been not only no scheme for British tariff preference, but a proposal for Empire co-operation had been cavalierly set aside. Only a colorless substitute was offered.

The preference was a potent practical means of closer union and would come perhaps before long. All the Dominions had been most generously treated and the widest liberty conceded. They should respond with trade preferences and also undertake a share of the national defence and gradually assume full responsibility.

The Commonwealth House of Representatives approved of the Government's preference proposals respecting Britain, without division.

The Fate of Niagara.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 24.—The question whether the water flow of Niagara shall be utilized for commercial purposes or left for sightseers, will come up for settlement at the convention of the American Civic Association, which will be held simultaneously with that of the National Municipal League at Brown University, during the week of Nov. 19. Agents of the corporations who desire power privileges will appear to present their plans.

Gen. Francis V. Greene of New York will head a party of speakers who favor the utilization of the falls, while J. Horance McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., will advocate that the natural beauty of the waterfall be left unimpaired. A third side of the discussion will be headed by John W. Langmuir of Toronto, president of the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park, which has charge of the Canadian side, and President Charles Dow of the New York State Commission, which has jurisdiction over the American side.

Students Wreck Street Car.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—The students of the School of Practical Science, Toronto, came to Hamilton yesterday morning on an educational trip. There were about 200 of them, and they visited the Westinghouse works and other large factories.

The students distinguished themselves by practically wrecking one of the street cars, seeming to find keen delight in tearing down the advertisements, breaking the bell-rope, and in other ways making what is commonly known as "rough house."

It was the intention of the street railway company to invite the students to the various sub-stations of their Cataract Power Co., but Traction Manager Green announced that the invitation had been withdrawn because of the students' action in damaging the car.

She declares that she will, at the expiration of thirty days, have sufficient funds to save her mother's heirlooms.

Graphic Story of the Great Balloon Race Just Been Held

Aeronaut Alterholt Gives Account of Sensational Balloon Flight.

Nearly One Thousand Miles Was Covered In Twenty-Five Hours—Threw Out Ballast and Food Over Lake Erie—Wanted to Reach Canadian Shore—German Balloon Wins the Contest.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—From unofficial measurement, the German balloon, Pommern, has won the balloon race by a few miles, with the Isle de France second.

Major Hersey left here last night for his home in Milwaukee.

Mr. Alterholt, who was in the balloon which landed near Caledonia, Ont., said: "We started at exactly 4.05 Monday afternoon from St. Louis. We saw six balloons in the air at once. Inside of 45 minutes we were carried over Missouri, Illinois and the Mississippi River. We sailed northeast over Illinos at an elevation for the entire distance of not over 350 feet. Our drag rope was out for that distance. On Tuesday morning we passed over Zion City, near Chicago. At 6.22, western time, we started across Lake Michigan, reaching the other side about 8.50. We were four and a half hours crossing the State of Michigan. Our elevation in crossing the lake was from 2,000 to 5,000 feet, and the trip was made at the rate of 39 1-2 miles an hour. At 1.18 Tuesday afternoon we were sailing over Lake St. Clair, and at 2.50, western time, we reached Lake Eric. A wind from the south, blowing 40 miles an hour, carried us to the Canadian shore. Our ballast was running short, and we had to throw out food and everything else we could do without. I think we passed into Canada near Port Dover."

Oil King J. D. Rockefeller Has Come to the Rescue

Uses His Millions to Quell Panic on Stock Exchange.

Banks Benefit by His Resources—End of Day Finds New York Financiers In Cheerier Mood—Confidence Returning — Pittsburg Firms In Hands of Receivers—Trust Stands Heavy Run.

New York, Oct. 24.—Mr. John D. Rockefeller has taken an active interest in the present financial situation, and he has arranged to loan very large sums to a number of New York financial institutions.

"I think," said Mr. Rockefeller to a representative of the Associated Press last evening, "that the existing alarm among investors is not warranted, and I hope the good common sense of our American people will control the situation.

"Personally, I have absolute faith in the future of the values of our securities and the soundness of underlying conditions. Instead of withdrawing any of my moneys from the banks, I am co-operating with others in helping to meet that which I firmly believe to be only a temporary crisis. Everyone having the good of his country at heart should, by word and deed, lend a hand now to re-establish confidence, and I propose to do my part to the full extent of my resources."

SITUATION HAS BEEN MET.

Ample Funds Placed In New York Banks For Emergencies.

New York, Oct. 24.—At midnight Frank Vanderlip, vice-president of the National City Bank, made the following official statement:

"The situation has been met. The trust companies will come to the aid of the Trust Company of America. The examination by the committee appointed to look into the trust companies have found that the Trust Company of America has sufficient assets to warrant protective action by the committee, and such action has been agreed upon"

Mr. Vanderlip said that Secretary Cortelyou will place ample funds in the New York banks to meet any emergency.

New York, Oct. 24.—Yet another event which helped the situation was the ability of the Trust Company of America to withstand an all-day run as it successfully did. In the face of enormous withdrawals the officials of the bank expressed their readiness to settle with all depositors on demand, and even for a few minutes after the regular hour of closing the company kept up paying out money at its main office in Wall street and at its Broadway branch. Then it was announced that the institution would be open as usual at 10.30 o'clock today prepared for all eventualities.

So manifest was the strength of the bank that many who withdrew deposits early in the day redeposited them before the doors were closed. The total resources of the company when last reported were in excess of $70,000,000. Several millions were withdrawn yesterday, but funds to satisfy every claim were said to be at hand. This was the only run of importance, and its result was encouraging.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 24.—A flurry in local financial circles caused by the embarrassment of four concerns of the Westinghouse interests was quickly ended here yesterday by the prompt action of the Pittsburg Clearing-house Association and the Pittsburg Stock Exchange. Last night the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the Westinghouse Machine Co. and the Security Investment Co., a holding company for the Westinghouse interests, were in the hands of receivers appointed by Judge Ewing of the United States Circuit Court. A fourth concern, the Nernst Lamp Co., will be turned over to receivers this morning.

The Pittsburg Stock Exchange, which was closed promptly yesterday morning when informed of the situation by the Pittsburg Clearing-house Association, will probably remain closed to-day. This action was taken to prevent unnecessary sacrifice of values or a heavy liquidation of stocks.

Nevada Bank Closed Doors.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 24.—The State Bank and Trust Co. closed its doors at 11 o'clock yesterday. A notice posted on the door says that the suspension was instructed from the home bank at Carson City, and was due to the heavy drain on deposits the last few months, following labor troubles, and inability to make collections. The notice further says that the resources are ample to pay all depositors.

Brantford Stabbing Case.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 24.—The case of Podgorney, for manslaughter, was resumed at the Police Court yesterday. After the evidence was heard the police magistrate sent the case to a higher court.

It will be remembered that a foreigner named Dubroski was stabbed by Podgorney; from the effects of the stabbing Dubroski died in the hospital a couple of weeks ago.

Fire at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—Fire started at 11.15 last night in a barn in the rear of the Toronto and Hamilton Electric Co.'s works, corner of MacNab and Vine streets. The barn was destroyed and a horse burned to death. The fire spread to the electrical works, but was checked before much damage was done. Total loss about $500.

Slew Open the Safe.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 24.—The safe in the G. T. R. freight office here was burglarized some time during Tuesday night. The safe contained no valuables. The burglars were undoubtedly professionals. The handle was broken off and explosives introduced through the hole thus made.

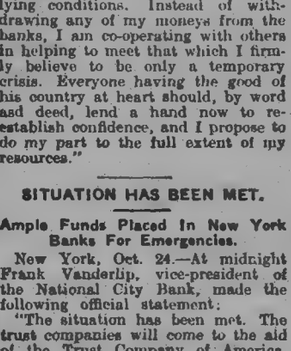
Firemen Stood Helpless.

Stratford, Oct. 23.—The house in Mitchell, owned by George Raines, was completely burned to the ground while firemen stood helplessly by, unable to obtain water through disconnected pipes. The mother and father were absent at the time and had it not been for neighbors entering while the house was in flames their one-year-old baby would have perished.

Will Study the Plague.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—Dr. Montizambert, director-general of public health and sanitary adviser of the Government, has been directed to proceed to Seattle to study the bubonic plague conditions there, and to consider means of warding it off from the Canadian border.

Mr Lawrence, M.P. for Colchester, is slated for a Nova Scotia judgeship.



FEDERATION FOR S. AFRICA.

Cape Colony Judge to Report on the Canadian System.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Justice Laurence, a member of the Supreme Court of Cape Colony, is here on a mission from the Cape Colony Government. He will report upon certain questions of importance bearing upon the proposed federation of the South African colonies. And he is particularly anxious to discover in what manner our federal system has worked as regards friction arising between the Federal and the Provincial Governments.

A resolution on this subject, on matters respecting which both parties were able to reach agreement was recently carried in the Cape Colony Legislature, proposed by a Dutch member and seconded by Dr. Jameson.

At present Judge Laurence seems to favor the plan of a legislative rather than a Federal union of the South African colonies as better suited to their peculiar conditions, financial and otherwise. And it is understood that he will prepare a treatise upon all the questions involved in their somewhat difficult problem.

He had an interview with Hon. Messrs. Whitney and Foy at the Parliament buildings.

Judge Laurence has made the trip to Victoria, B. C., and back; has visited Ottawa; leaves this morning for the Falls, and will shortly return to England on his way home. He states that he has enjoyed extremely his Canadian tour.

ANOTHER FLAG INCIDENT.

Chief Justice Demands Removal of "Old Glory" From Hotel.

Cobourg, Oct. 24.—Every live and growing town has its "flag incident." Cobourg is the latest, and Chief Justice Mulock the chief character.

The fall Assizes have just opened in the town, and the ex-Postmaster-General is presiding. On arrival at Cobourg he was met by Sheriff Proctor, a prominent local Liberal, and escorted to the Columbian Hotel, which is owned by J. B. McCall, M.P. for West Northumberland. Sir William was ascending the steps with the sprightliness of youth, when he glanced up. He stopped suddenly, and his companion looked puzzled. Then he, too, looked aloft, and something of understanding broke upon him. He was about to speak, but the chief justice forestalled him.

"I will not enter the hotel unless that flag is removed," he asseverated, with a wave of his hand towards "Old Glory," which has hung above the portal for years as a tacit invitation to the United States tourist.

And then it was that the fealty of the member of Parliament to a former chieftain asserted itself. Orders were given, the flag vanished, and the chief justice entered within.

The incident is a lively topic in Cobourg, and the consensus of opinion is that Sir William's loyalty is of properly active kind.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY ENACTED.

Two Men and Woman Shot at Cleveland, Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24.—What will result in a triple tragedy was enacted in a house on Buckeye road, in the southeastern part of the city, Tuesday night. Two men are dead and a woman, the wife of one of the men, is fatally wounded. The shooting occurred in the home of the woman, and one of the dead men is her husband, while the other is the triple slayer, who shot the woman and her husband after the woman had refused to leave the latter to elope with him. The murderer, after shooting the other two, turned the weapon upon himself.

The slayer was Michael Szekely, 24 years old, who recently came here from Buffalo, and the other parties to the tragedy were Erman Burray, 31 years, and his wife. The hospital officials say the woman is dying. She told them that she eloped with Szekely some time ago, and lived with him in a small town near Buffalo, but had deserted him to live with her husband.

Golden Lake Shooting Case.

Pembroke, Oct. 24.—The Golden Lake shooting case is now being tried at the Assizes here. It will be remembered that an Indian named Serazin fired upon two constables who were bent upon his arrest, and wounded one of them.

Though the Indian has not been captured, and probably never will be, it is the contention of the Pembroke constables, Young and Dickson, that Juzte Serazin, his wife, and Annie Serazin, his daughter, fired some of the shots. The grand jury brought in a true bill against them.

Gillies Suit Still On.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—In the non-jury Assizes yesterday, Justice McMahon took further evidence in the action to recover $90,000 from the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission, brought by the Gillies brothers.

Several fire-rangers from the north were examined as to the start of various fires, and the damage resulting therefrom along the right of way of the T. & N. O.

The case goes on again to-day.

Ireland Resents This.

Dublin, Oct. 24.—There is much indignation throughout the North of Ireland at a statement that a portion of the world-famed Giant's Causeway is about to be removed to America. The first consignment, weight 200 tons, it is stated, will be shipped to Philadelphia. These wonderful basaltic columns, though in private ownership, are regarded as a national possession.

Drew Revolver on Cop.

Peterboro, Oct. 24.—P. C. Newhall, in plain clothes Tuesday night, arrested a man named James Murray, who attempted to sell him a ring. The man drew a revolver, but the officer drew his baton and knocked it to the ground. Two companions of Murray escaped.

Mr. Oliver Asselin was arrested for failing to appear at the Quebec Assizes to undergo his second trial on a charge of criminal libel.

TRAINMAN'S BRAVE ACT

Gallant Rescue of Little Girl on Track at Rigaud.

Was Standing In Middle of Track—Train Speeding on and She Took No Notice of Shouts—Sicotte Stood on Cow-Catcher and Picked Her Up From Between the Rails to a Place of Safety.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—When the Ottawa train from Montreal left Rigaud Tuesday night, O. Sicotte, brakeman of the Smith's Falls division, performed an action which saved the life of a small child, who but for his bravery and presence of mind would certainly have been killed.

When the train leaves Rigaud the brakeman stands on the front of the engine in order to be able to open the switch a short distance up the line. Sicotte, standing there, saw in front of him a small girl right in the middle of the track.

He shouted to her, but could not attract her attention. There was no time to stop the train, so without a moment's hesitation and at the imminent risk of his own life Sicotte, grasping the cow-catcher with one hand, leaned forward, and as the engine reached the child he lifted her to a place of safety.

SANK WITH BARGE.

Captain and Wife Drowned In Collision on Lake.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—The steamer Norwalk, Capt. Goodrow, bound from Quebec for Detroit with a cargo of pulpwood, came into collision with the Montreal Transportation Co.'s barge Jacques, in tow of the tug Olive, flax laden from Prescott for Montreal, yesterday afternoon in Lake St. Louis.

The collision resulted in the sinking of the barge, which was struck fair amidships, and sank almost immediately.

Nothing has since been seen of the captain of the barge and his wife, and it is supposed that they went down with the boat. Two other men saved their lives by jumping to the other vessel. The Norwalk was not seriously injured.

AGED ENGINEER KILLED.

Fatal Runaway Yesterday Afternoon at Chatham.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 24.—Engineer Augustine McDonell, Dominion civil engineer and surveyor, who lived on the corner of Queen and Harvey streets, was killed in a runaway yesterday afternoon. Mr. McDonell was thrown out of the double rig in which he was driving at the intersection of Grey and Raleigh streets, striking his head on the pavement.

Medical aid was hastily summoned, but he passed away 15 minutes after the accident, recovering consciousness just a short time before he breathed his last.

The deceased was born at Dundee, Que., June 22, 1828, and came to Chatham in 1862, where he has lived continuously ever since.

A RUNAWAY MATCH.

Young Couple Fly to Toronto Where Groom Is Pinched.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Olovia Bogie, an Italian laborer, 19 years of age, who fled from Welland with the 14-year-old daughter of Antonio Barbian of that place, was arrested at the home of his parents, 381 Concord avenue, by Detective McMillan. The girl, to whom he is said to have been married, was with him. An officer arrived from Welland, bringing a warrant charging Bogie with abduction. He will be taken back to-day.

Killed at Ingersoll.

Ingersoll, Oct. 24.—A fatal accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway Tuesday night, the victim being Sidney Guest, an employe of the Ingersoll Packing Co., aged 37. His dead body was found on the tracks at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, but nothing is known as to the time or the manner in which he met his death. It is supposed he was run down by a westbound train. An inquest was opened and adjourned until the evening of the 29th inst.

Prince Arthur May Visit.

London, Oct. 24.—The correspondent of the Canadian Associated Press has heard that the King will be represented by Prince Arthur of Connaught at the tercentenary of the founding of Quebec next year. The prince is to be accompanied by an imposing suite, and it is likely that the prince, after the Quebec celebration, may tour Canada.

Emperor Francis Better.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—Everything yesterday pointed to the health of Emperor Francis Joseph having decidedly improved. His attending physicians admit that His Majesty's convalescence has begun. During the early part of the day he signed state documents with a firm hand.

Negro Lynched.

Okolona, Miss., Oct. 24.—Charged with having insulted and threatened the life of a young white woman of this place, Henry Sykes, a negro, was taken from the custody of an officer near here Tuesday night and lynched.

APPROVE OF PREFERENCE.

Dominions Should Shine in National Defence, Says Deakin.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 24.—(C. A. P.)—Discussing the preference proposals, Premier Deakin said the recent Imperial Conference made it clear that no reciprocity was possible at present with the Mother Country. The present proposals, therefore, offered the gift of preference as a tentative one to be extended and adapted according to experience, so as to render it more effective. He strongly urged the gift of preference as a means of diverting trade from foreign to British goods, as a manifestation of attachment to the Mother Country. It was a misfortune that at the conference there had been not only no scheme for British tariff preference, but a proposal for Empire co-operation had been cavalierly set aside. Only a colorless substitute was offered.

The preference was a potent practical means of closer union and would come perhaps before long. All the Dominions had been most generously treated and the widest liberty conceded. They should respond with trade preferences and also undertake a share of the national defence and gradually assume full responsibility.

The Commonwealth House of Representatives approved of the Government's preference proposals respecting Britain, without division.

The Fate of Niagara.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 24.—The question whether the water flow of Niagara shall be utilized for commercial purposes or left for sightseers, will come up for settlement at the convention of the American Civic Association, which will be held simultaneously with that of the National Municipal League at Brown University, during the week of Nov. 19. Agents of the corporations who desire power privileges will appear to present their plans.

Gen. Francis V. Greene of New York will head a party of speakers who favor the utilization of the falls, while J. Horance McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., will advocate that the natural beauty of the waterfall be left unimpaired. A third side of the discussion will be headed by John W. Langmuir of Toronto, president of the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park, which has charge of the Canadian side, and President Charles Dow of the New York State Commission, which has jurisdiction over the American side.

Students Wreck Street Car.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—The students of the School of Practical Science, Toronto, came to Hamilton yesterday morning on an educational trip. There were about 200 of them, and they visited the Westinghouse works and other large factories.

The students distinguished themselves by practically wrecking one of the street cars, seeming to find keen delight in tearing down the advertisements, breaking the bell-rope, and in other ways making what is commonly known as "rough house."

It was the intention of the street railway company to invite the students to the various sub-stations of their Cataract Power Co., but Traction Manager Green announced that the invitation had been withdrawn because of the students' action in damaging the car.

She declares that she will, at the expiration of thirty days, have sufficient funds to save her mother's heirlooms.

The Prisoner of Zenda

By... ANTHONY HOPE

Copyrighted, 1894, 1898, by Henry Holt & Company

CHAPTER XII.

ABOUT five miles from Zenda, on the opposite side from that on which the castle was situated, there lies a large tract of wood. It is rising ground, and in the center of the demesne, on the top of the hill, stands a fine modern chateau, the property of a distant kinsman of Fritz's, the Count Stanislas von Tarlenheim. Count Stanislas himself was a student and a recluse. He seldom visited the house and had on Fritz's request very readily and courteously offered me its hospitality for myself and my party. This, then, was our destination, chosen ostensibly for the sake of the boar hunting (for the wood was carefully preserved, and boars, once common all over Ruritania, were still to be found there in considerable numbers), really because it brought us within striking distance of the Duke of Strelsau's more magnificent dwelling on the other side of the town. A large party of servants, with horses and luggage, started early in the morning. We followed at midday, traveling by train for thirty miles and then mounting our horses to ride the remaining distance to the chateau.

We were a gallant party. Besides Sapt and Fritz, I was accompanied by ten gentlemen. Every one of them had been carefully chosen and no less carefully sounded by my two friends, and all were devotedly attached to the person of the king. They were told a part of the truth. The attempt on my life in the summer house was revealed to them as a spur to their loyalty and an indictment against Michael. They were also informed that a friend of the king's was suspected to be forcibly confined within the castle of Zenda. His rescue was one of the objects of the expedition; but, it was added, the king's main desire was to carry into effect certain steps against his treacherous brother, as to the precise nature of which they could not at present be further enlightened. Enough that the king commanded their services and would rely on their devotion when occasion arose to call for it. Young, well bred, brave and loyal, they asked no more. They were ready to prove their dutiful obedience and prayed for a fight as the best and most exhilarating mode of showing it.

Thus the scene was shifted from Strelsau to the chatean of Tarlenheim and castle of Zenda which frowned at us across the valley. I tried to shift my thoughts also, to forget my love, and to bend all my energies to the task before me. It was to get the king out of the castle alive. Force was useless. In some trick lay the chance, and I had already an inkling of what we must do. But I was terribly hampered by the publicity which attended my movements. Michael must know by now of my expedition, and I knew Michael too well to suppose that his eyes would be blinded by the feint of the boar hunt. He would understand very well what the real quarry was. That, however, must be risked—that and all it might mean, for Sapt, no less than myself, recognized that the present state of things had become unendurable.

And there was one thing that I dared to calculate on—not, as I now know, without warrant. It was this—that Black Michael would not believe that I meant well by the king. He could not appreciate—I will not say an honest man, for the thoughts of my own heart have been revealed—but a man acting honestly. He saw my opportunity as I had seen it, as Sept had seen it; he knew the princess—nay (and I declare that a sneaking sort of pity for him invaded me), in his way he loved her. He would think that Sapt and Fritz could be bribed, so the bribe were large enough. Thinking thus, would he kill the king, my rival and my danger? Aye, verily, that he would, with as little compunction as he would kill a rat. But he would kill Rudolf Rassendyll first, if he could, and nothing but the certainty of being utterly damned by the release of the king alive and his restoration to the throne would drive him to throw away the trump card which he held in reserve to balk the supposed game of the impudent impostor Rassendyll. Musing on all this as I rode along, I took courage.

Michael knew of my coming sure enough. I had not been in the house an hour when an imposing embassy arrived from him. He did not quite reach the impudence of sending my would be assassins, but he sent the other three of his famous Six—the three Ruritanian gentlemen, Lauengram, Krafstein and Rupert Hentzau. A fine, strapping trio they were, splendidly horsed and admirably equipped. Young Rupert, who looked a dare devil and could not have been more than twenty-two or twenty-three, took the lead and made us the neatest speech, wherein my devoted subject and loving brother, Michael of Strelsau, prayed me to pardon him for not paying his addresses in person and, further, for not putting his castle at my disposal, the reason for both of these apparent derelictions being that he and several of his servants lay sick of scarlet fever and were in a very sad and also in a very infectious state. So declared young Rupert with an insolent smile on his curling upper lip and a toss of his thick hair—he was a handsome villain, and the gossip ran that many a lady had troubled her heart for him already.

"If my brother has scarlet fever," said I, "he is nearer my complexion than he is wont to be, my lord. I trust he does not suffer."

"He is able to attend to his affairs, sire."

"I hope all beneath your roof are not sick. What of my good friends De Gautet, Bersonin and Detchard? I heard the last had suffered a hurt."

Lauengram and Krafstein looked glum and uneasy, but young Rupert's smile grew broader.

"He hopes soon to find a medicine for it, sire," he answered.

And I burst out laughing, for I knew what medicine Detchard longed for. It is called revenge.

"You will dine with us, gentlemen?" I asked.

Young Rupert was profuse in apologies. They had urgent duties at the castle.

Paptists Finish Annual Session

What the Average Members Have Given—Grand Ligne Work

Woodstock, Oct. 22.—The annual convention of the Baptist Association of Ontario and Quebec, was brought to a close after a week's session at First Baptist Church tonight. The morning session was devoted to a number of routine matters, including the report of the Board of Publication, which showed that the Canadian Baptists had had a successful year. Rev. C. J. Farmer, of Brantford, presented the report on the state of religion, which showed the total membership in the Association to be 48,837, a net gain of 1,365. A total of $622,544 had been raised for all purposes, or a total of $12.73 per member.

Rev. W. J. Wright, of the Discipline Body, delivered an address on "Co-operation of the Disciples," in which he contended that modern denominationalism, was a thing earnestly to be contended against, and something that should be driven out of Christendom. He indicated that in the West particularly, conditions were ripe for the union of the Disciples and the Baptists. Subsequently the committee reported in favor of a similar union as advocated in the West, for the Disciples in the East, and urged that the two bodies come together wherever local conditions made it possible. The president of the convention and the superintendent of the Home Mission Board were appointed delegates to the Disciple convention in New Orleans next year. The important feature of their days proceedings was the presentation of the report of the Grand Ligne Mission Board, which has been engaged in French evangelization in Quebec for the past seventy-two years.

NO TIME TO DISCONTINUE WORK

The report said that in Quebec dissatisfaction with the Romish system was rapidly on the increase, while at the same time hundreds of priests and whole communities in that country, were breaking away from the Papacy. It was no time for Baptists to relinquish their efforts in the evangelization of dark Quebec. Thirty salaried workers have been at work in the field during the year, and a large amount of Bible and literature had been distributed. There had been one hundred conversions, and fifteen conversions from Romanism, and $3,914 had been contributed for all purposes by the churches of the society. In connection with the adoption of the report, Rev Mr. Graham, of Sarnia, a former Montreal pastor, delivered a telling address. The report was adopted, and Rev. Mr. Brown was appointed the association's representative on the board.

A MINISTERIAL BUREAU

An attempt was made at the convention on to establish a Ministerial Bureau, which should be charged with the duty of advising the pastors and churches re pastoral settlements when called upon. The committee which promoted the movement recommended longer terms of pastorate. The convention was also asked to affirm the pastor of the local church, students excepted, be clothed with all the functions of a pastor as long as he was pastor of the church. In regard to the latter recommendation some of the delegates questioned the legality of such a move in regard to the marriage laws, and as to its effect upon unordained ministers. The matter was considered too serious to be disposed of at the tail-end of the convention, and the whole matter was left over.

Mr. J. W. Foster, of Brantford, presented the report of the Superannuated Ministers' Fund, which was spoken to by Mr. G. R. Rogers, of Toronto.

The following were appointed to take the place of those retiring on the board: Mr. G. R. Roberts, Dr. Thomas William Craig, Rev. O. C. Elliot, and Rev. S. C. Tapscott.

A good deal of criticism was indulged in as to the impoverished condition of the funds and the pastors in churches were urged to do more for this branch of the work during the coming year. At tonights session the discussion on Grand Ligne Mission was continued, and young people's work taken up in a report in the latter department was presented by Rev. C. H. Shutt, M.A., president. Addresses were given by Rev. O. C. Elliott and Rev. H. H. Burnham, B. A.

The resolution committee presented several resolutions which were adopted. The most important of these was one which prevents the payment to any minister of a salary less than $750 per year. Another resolution expressed appreciation of the services of Rev. E. T. Fox, of Toronto, who, for many years has been the treasurer of the Home, Foreign and Western Mission Boards.

Will Have House For Themselves

Chorus Girls of "Social Whirl" Inaugurate Novel System

Last night's Toronto Star says: Press Agent G. H. Atkinson, of "The Social Whirl" Company is here looking after the advance interests of that big musical play. He stated that the female portion of the chorus had organized a co-operative club, and it was up to him, to rent a furnished house, conveniently situated to the theatre, for the purpose of domiciling the members of the club during its engagement in this city. Instead of looking up boarding houses and hotels, and pairing off, the entire chorus will take up quarters in the house prepared for them by the advance man. All of the house work will be done by these girls, and they will do their own marketing and cooking. The club has elected a chairman who appoints semi-monthly committees on arrangements. It is the duty of these committees to do all the shopping and housework, including the cooking and waiting upon the table. Thus in time, each member of the club will do her share of the work and the only expense to be entailed is the rental of the house and the price of food. Each member of the club is taxed her share of the daily expense.

Serious consequences were averted at Kingston by Zam-Buk. Blood Poison through stocking dye has on more than one occasion proved serious, and such might have been the case with Mr. Thos. Foster, of Kingston, had it not been for Zam-Buk. Mr. Foster, formerly an officer in the Horse Artillery stationed at Kingston, says:—

"Last fall I had a nasty sore on my foot caused by the irritation from a projecting eyelet in my shoe. Before I was aware of it the colored sock I wore had poisoned the flesh and I suffered much in consequence. I tried a good many salves and ointments yet there was no improvement until I began with Zam-Buk. This ointment drew out all the inflammation and poisonous matter and healed the sore in several days after applying. You can publish this statement if you wish for the merits of Zam-Buk cannot be to widely known."

All skin diseases quickly yield to Zam-Buk. Sold by all stores and medicine vendors at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam Buk Co., Toronto, 3 boxes $1.25.

REYNOLDS MADE GREAT WALK.

Port Hope Pedestrian Establishes Record to Toronto and Back.

Port Hope, Oct. 24.—James Reynolds, the local pedestrian, has established a record from Port Hope to Toronto and return in a heel-and-toe walk which will be hard to lower. His actual time was 36 hours 19 minutes, lowering Langford's time by 2 hours and 44 minutes.

The feat accomplished by Reynolds is a remarkable one, especially so when it is considered that he is in his 57th year, and also that he accompanied Langford on the long journey just a few days previous and walked a large part of the distance. His success came as a great surprise to his most sanguine supporters, the general opinion being that 38 hours would be his best time.

The weather conditions were not as favorable as those enjoyed by Langford, the local man having to face a stiff west breeze, and, on the return, he was greatly weakened by a raw wind from the northwest. The result of his return journey was bulletined at many business places in town, and great interest was taken.

Shortly after 12 o'clock his supporters left to meet him, and when he reached Newtonville, 12 miles distant, a hundred stalwarts were there to greet him, and accompanied him to town. At Welcome, fully two hundred citizens were in waiting, and cheered the plucky pedestrian to his destination. The main street for three-quarters of a mile was almost impassable, and large bonfires had been kindled all along the line.

Reynolds kept the road during the entire distance, and stepped into the Queen's Hotel at 6.21. He signed the register and chatted quite freely to his many admirers. He waved his old grey hat high in the air and expressed his satisfaction at the result of his undertaking.

Reynolds is in capital shape, and it is not likely that he will suffer at all from his long journey. The soles of his feet are rather tender, but aside from this he is in the pink of condition. Trainer Henderson stated that had Reynolds been greeted with better weather he would have easily made the trip to Toronto in 15 hours. The heavy west wind greatly hindered him, and at Oshawa he was advised to give it up. His fight all through was a plucky one, and he required very little attention along the road.

ORDERED TO SANITARIUM.

Means Practically Retirement for the Minister of Justice.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—It was reported here yesterday that Hon. A. B. Aylesworth has been ordered by his physician to a sanitarium for one year, which practically means his removal from public life.

This makes possible the return of Sir William Mulock to the Dominion Cabinet.

May Desert Queenstown.

London, Oct. 24.—(C. A. P.)—It was stated in Dublin that the Cunard will probably desert Queenstown for Holyhead in December, with the bigger ships, in consequence of the non-removal of Turbit bank at the entrance of the harbor. If this is true, it means the death knell of Queenstown as a mail port.

Col. Lamb, S.A., speaking of the departure of 400 women and children for Canada, disagreed with Keir Hardie's statement that Englishmen are unliked in Canada. He believed Canada had a warm corner in her heart for London's best type. Prospects for British emigrants were never better.

Theatrical People Elope.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24.—Miss Rose Waterland, aged 23, of Woodstock, Ont., was married to James B. Wells, aged 27, by Justice of the Peace Louis Ott on Tuesday. Miss Waterland is an actress and Wells is an actor. Both were filling engagements in a Chicago theatre when they decided to get married. Instead of having the ceremony performed in Chicago, they eloped to Detroit and had Justice Ott tie the knot. After the ceremony the newly-wedded couple had their wedding breakfast served and then took the next train back to Chicago to fill their theatrical engagements.

Will Not Close Shops.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—H. H. Vaughan, assistant to the general manager of the C. P. R., denies most emphatically the rumor on the stock exchange that the Angus shops were to be closed down or used for repair work only.

After the harvest rush there is always a reduction, and the output has been reduced from 28 to 24 cars daily. That is all, he says.

RUNAWAY BOY CAPTURED.

Was Heading For Buffalo After Having Good Time.

Welland, Oct. 24.—After stealing a horse and rig from W. J. Tufford of Beamsville and driving 50 miles to Port Colborne, Herbert McTaggart, a very small boy of 14 years, was arrested by Ontario Police Officer Moriarty Tuesday just as he was boarding a train for Buffalo. His pockets were well lined with money.

The boy drove up to Hesler's Hotel in Port Colborne on Monday and asked the hostler to look after his horse for a few days, as he was going on a visit to friends in Ohio. Mr. Hesler notified the police, who, after placing him under arrest, found that he had hired the rig from W. J. Tufford of Beamsville. He had also taken a considerable sum of money from his father. At Marshville, where he stopped Sunday night, he left a purse and $10 under the mattress of his bed. The boy was taken back to Beamsville for trial.

Asked to Resign.

Montreal, Oct. 24.—Rev. Dr. G. C. Workman has been asked to resign the chair of Old Testament Exegesis at the Wesleyan Theological College.

The decision was reached by the college board about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, after a six-hour session.

The action of the board is based on allegations of doctrinal unsoundness in regard to Holy Scriptures, diety of Christ, sin, miracle and atonement. It is claimed by the board that Dr. Workman's views on the doctrines mentioned are in general Unitarian.

Dr. Workman was formerly a member of Victoria University faculty, and was asked to resign as a result of utterances regarding Messianic prophecy.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244, being the amount paid me on this maturity of my endowment policy, 35390, in your Company which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your company and far exceeds my expectations and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,078, or an annuity for life of $111.55, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your company the continued success and confidence it so really deserves.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) REV. H. C. GARBUTT

OBITUARY

JAMES WASON.

The death occurred early this morning of an old and highly respected citizen of Peterborough in the person of Mr. James Wason. After a lengthy illness he passed peacefully away at his daughter's residence 417 Rubidge street. The deceased was ninety years of age and was born in Ireland. In 1831, he came to this country and settled in Dummer where he resided until his marriage a few years later to Jane Noble. He then removed to Cobourg. For a number of years he conducted a lumber business at Chamahe, near Colborne. He then returned to Dummer, and lived for a few years, but on retiring of years he came to this city to live. His wife predeceased him, ten years ago. He was a Methodist in religion and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

One daughter, Mrs. M. W. Brown of this city is left to mourn his loss.

Mr. John Wason of this city is a nephew of the deceased.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from 417 Rubidge street, to Little Lake cemetery. Friends are requested not to send flowers.

OLD RESIDENT GOES TO REWARD

Township of Emily Looses One of its Most Esteemed Citizens

On Sunday evening last there passed away in the person of Michael Lowes one of the oldest and most respected residents of the township of Emily. The deceased gentleman was in his eighties year, and was born in the county of Limerick, Ireland. When very young he came with his parents to Canada, and saw the county in its primeval state. Fifty-five years ago Mr. Lowes was married to the widow who survives him, and came to live on the farm in the 7th concession of Emily, where he resided until his death. Of his four children, only one survives him, Mr. Wm. Lowes, the present reeve of the municipality.

The deceased was a warm hearted and kindly man, whose unassuming manner and straightforwardness of character won him a host of friends. Michael Lowes was a man whose friendship was worth having, among whose neighbors he will be sadly missed. A kind husband and an affectionate father has been called to his reward. In politics he was a life-long Conservative and in religion a member of the Church of England.

The funeral, which took place on Tuesday afternoon, to Emily cemetery, was one of the largest ever seen in the township. His clergyman, the Rev. J. H. Teney, conducted the service, and spoke feelingly of his late parishioner, whose death is regarded as a personal loss. His loyalty to his church, his simplicity of character, his unbounded faith in God, his generosity of heart were among the distinguishing features of a man whose memory will be fresh and green for many a day to come.

Professor Workman's Belief Don't Suit Theological Board

Montreal Theologian Asked to Resign—Board of Inquiry Says His Tendencies Are Unitarian.

A despatch from Montreal has the following concerning Rev. Dr. Workman, who is well known in these parts having spent his summer vacations at Keene for some seasons past;

Montreal, Oct. 23.—The Board of Governors of the Wesleyan Theological College, has requested Rev. Dr. C. C. Workman to resign the chair of Old Testament exegesis on the ground of doctrinal unsoundness, the decision of the Board being summed up as follows;

The doctrines relate to the Holy Scriptures, miracles, sins, the deity of Christ, and the atonement. On these it is held in general that his position is Unitarian.

The Board sat until two o'clock this morning, when the decision was arrived at, there being nineteen members present, including Rev. Dr Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, who presided. The vote on the resolution asking Prof. Workman to resign stood ten to seven. The inquiry into the matter has been going on for some months, and some time ago the Professor presented his views on the above subjects to the Board, and after due consideration, the above is the result.

County Council Adjourns Close of the Fall Session

Report of of the Read and Bridges and Property Committees—Warden Will be Elected by Vote by Ballot in Future.

The county council concluded its fall session this morning, and the majority of councillors left at noon for their homes in the county.

The session has been productive of considerable business, which has been transacted in a manner that has many things to commend it. No time was wasted in useless or superfluous discussion and everything was put through in a business-like manner.

When the council met this morning, the chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee reported as follows;

1. That the report of the chairman re bridges in the county be received.
2. That the bridge on Black Lake Creek and known as Black Lake Creek Bridge, in the township of Cavendish, and the bridges in North Monaghan, known as Payne's bridge, be assumed by the county.
3. That the Trent Canal engineer be interviewed by Messrs. Shaw and Moher and urged to put a fifteen-inch face of concrete on sides of Buckhorn bridge, placing steel railing above said fifteen-inch concrete face, the same of course being subject to the approval of the Government, and report to this committee tomorrow.
4. That the sum of $100 be granted towards the road known as Shannon's hill in Douro.
5. That the matter of assisting the Chemong band of Indians to impress upon the Government, the necessity of the Government providing a bridge from the village to the Enniskmore shore, be left in the hands of the warden and chairman of this committee to report at the earliest possible moment.
6. That clause 1, Roads and Bridges Committee, June 23, 1906, be changed to read, "that providing the Government grant $100 and the township complete it."
7. That the report of Mr. Brown be received re Wallace Point bridge.
8. That the caretaker of Burleigh Falls bridge receive $10 as a salary dating from January, 1907, and be also appointed to look after Perry Creek bridge for the above amount, or in other words, $5.00 for each.
9. That the floats, 100 in number, be procured by Mr. Shaw, for the floating bridges.

Bylaw No. 619 confirming the report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, was passed on motion.

TO VOTE BY BALLOT

Councillor Booth brought up the matter as to whether it would not be advisable to have the warden elected by ballot, instead of by open vote, as has been done in the past.

Councillor Hanes asked what did the statutes say on the question.

Councillor Shaw said that according to law it was optional whether the vote was open or by ballot.

Councillor Burgess considered the ballot would be the best system, but said he did not care which way it was; he did not care who knew how he voted.

The warden favored the ballot system, and on motion of Councillors Moore and Thompson, it was decided to change the bylaw governing the election of warden to read election by ballot, instead of by open vote.

As a result of this action, the voting will be by ballot, when the new warden is elected in January.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

The chairman of the Property committee submitted the following report:—

Gentlemen,—As chairman of the County Property Committee I beg leave to report on the following work which has been done through the past season. We have had the jail painted and repaired. We also had a new bath tub placed in the gaoler's residence and also had the eave troughs repaired and sewer connections cleaned out. Some general repairing was also done. Steel shelving is now being put in the treasurer's office.

I would recommend that a letter box be placed in the door of Judge Weller's office, as the city now has a street delivery of mail, also one in the Sheriff's office, in the jailer's residence and in the door of the treasurer's office.

The accounts in connection with most of the above work will now come up before you.

A FASHIONABLE WEDDING

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, Oct. 24.—The marriage of Miss Louise Beresford LeFevre, youngest daughter of Mr. H. J. LeFevre, of "Uplands," Lakefield, to Mr Wm. Robert Grieve, of Vernon, B.C. was solemnized at St. John's church this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, incumbent of the parish, and was witnessed by a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the happy couple. Mr. Britton Osler, of Toronto, an old friend of the family, acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Stewart Fraser, Hugh Lewis, Lionel Glass and Eldred Cumberland.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked most charming in white embroidered chiffon over white silk, the skirt, "en traine," being finished with broad bands of white velvet, which also formed the girdle. Rich Brussels point lace, the gift of the bridegroom's mother, veiled the corsage. A wreath of orange blossoms and lillies-of-the-valley, fastened the enclosing bridal veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, lillies-of-the-valley and mignonette. Her only ornament was a necklet of peridots and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Three little maidens preceded the bride to the alter. The first, Phyllis Atwood, a niece of the bride, was attired in a white silk frock, and wore a quaint lace cap with blue rosettes. She carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums in her hand. Her two companions, Winifred Mackenzie and Phyllis Cumberland, were dressed alike, in white silk, lace caps, and tan shoes and stockings. Each carried a sheaf of golden brown chrysanthemums. All three wore pearl and turquoise brooches, the gifts of the bridegroom.

The bride's travelling dress was of brown cloth, the coat, with vest of white cloth, being embroidered in gold and turquoises. A large brown felt hat, and collar and muff of white fox, completed a most becoming costume.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at "Uplands." In the course of the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Grieve departed for Peterborough, en route to Toronto, where they will spend a few days, prior to leaving for their western home.

A number of most valuable presents were received by the bride, prominent among them being, a beautiful pearl and diamond neck-lace, the gift of the bridegroom's father, and a travelling case, the gift of the bridegroom's sisters. Several cheques and the many beautiful presents received, testified in abundant measure, to the bride's well deserved and widespread popularity.

Case of Selling Liquor to a Minor

Was Dismissed—No Evidence to Make a Conviction

This morning at the police court Patrick Hogan, proprietor of the Albion Hotel, East City, was charged with selling liquor to a minor, Chas. Stevens. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for the defendant, pleaded not guilty.

Stevens was the only witness called. On Monday morning the, the day the offence was said to have been committed, he was in the bar about half an hour. He denied ever having any intoxicating liquor there that day or at any other time.

Chief Roszel remarked that there was no use going on with the case, as Stevens was the principal witness and the informant must have made a mistake.

ADVOCATES THE TORRENS SYSTEM

Mr. T. Hurley Addresses County Council Urging its Adoption

Mr. T. Hurley, a local real estate man, addressed the County Council this morning, and urged the adoption of the Torrens system of land transfer in the county. He pointed out that the system had been adopted by many of the leading municipalities in the province, and had been found to give every satisfaction. The Torrens system he said, greatly facilitated the transfer of titles when real estate was sold, as it made it unnecessary to go back over all previous transfers and examine them. Mr. Hurley went on to say that he could not understand how such an intelligent body of men as the County Council could refuse to adopt the Torrens system and he was sure they would not hesitate for a minute if they understood the conditions like he did.

As it was nearly train time, however, the Council did not have time to take up the matter, but the Warden informed Mr. Hurley that it would be considered later.

The Conference Closes at Cobourg

About Thirty-five Clergymen Present—Next Meeting in Lindsay

The Archdiaconal Conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, was held in Cobourg this week. Those in attendance from Peterborough were Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, Rev. Canon Davidson and Mr. R. J. Devey. About thirty-five clergymen were present in all. The ladies of St. Paul's congregation were very kind, and hospitably entertained the visitors.

On Tuesday evening addresses were delivered at a public meeting by Mr. J. P. Cleal, who is well known in Peterborough and Rev. Dr. O'Meara, of Wycliffe College, Toronto. Rev. W. J. Creighton, of Lakefield, was elected secretary of the Archdeaconry in place of Rev. W. L. Armitage, of Picton.

The archdiaconal conference will meet next year in Lindsay, having accepted the invitation of Rev. C. H. Marsh.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. R. J. Devey gave an interesting address on "The Brotherhood of St. Andrew and its Relation to the Church."

ANOTHER SEANCE

Mrs. Howland's Clothing Apparently Changed to White.

Toronto, Oct. 23.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rynex, 572 Bathurst street, Mr. and Mrs. Howland gave another Spiritualistic seance, in which Mrs. Howland's body appeared as a medium of a number of ghost-like forms. The demonstration took place in the presence of a number of newspapermen and of Mr. and Mrs. Howland's class of sensitives. Prior to the entertainment, Mr. Howland made a statement to the effect that neither he nor Mrs. Howland made any claim as to how the so-called materialization were produced and that those who were not satisfied with the genuineness of the entertainment would receive their money back.

A committee of strangers were allowed to examine Mrs. Howland's clothing, while several ladies made sure that no fraud was perpetrated by Mrs. Howland, who, prior to entering the cabinet, was clothed in a gentleman's coat and ladies' skirt. During the production of the spirits, however, her form appeared clothed entirely in white.

The Steamer Was Damaged

Boat on Which Mr. Jack Laing is Purser Ran Into Wall of Locks

Mr. Jack Long, of this city, is purser on the steamer Wahcondah referred to in the following despatch from Toronto:—

The steamer Wahcondah, of the Merchants' line, bound from Fort William to Montreal, with a cargo of wheat, met with a mishap in the Welland canal yesterday afternoon. The canal takes a very sharp bend at lock 2. As the steamer approached the lock, the wind was blowing a heavy gale, and she was unable to make the turn, and struck against the wing wall of the lock. Her stem was stove in, and before they could get out of the lock her fore peak was full of water, and she was soon drawing fifteen feet forward, the canal being only about fourteen feet deep. With difficulty the steamer made her way to lock one, where the Government divers examined her, and found the plates on her stem were stove in. Capt. Hollingshead at once notified the underwriters. It is thought that the Wahcondah's cargo was not damaged, and it is expected she will be able to proceed down the lake to-morrow.

ELECTRIC BELLS AT SCHOOL

A system of electric bells has been placed in the public school building. This modern convenience will prove to be very useful. The system is so planned that signals can be exchanged between the superintendent and the various rooms. Perhaps the thing that will best warrant the placing of the electric bells is the fact that they can be used to hurriedly give the alarm in case of fire. Mr. Grein will give the children a number of fire drills in order that there will be no confusion in case the real trouble comes. — Tweed News.

There promises to be an exciting contest for the reeveship of Emily, when the municipal elections come off in January. The present occupant of the position, Mr. Shaw will be opposed by Mr. Jas. They Honored Their Warden

County Councillors Present Address to Mr. McNulty

The closing session of the County Council this morning was marked by an incident somewhat different from the ordinary business of the above important body. Warden McNulty was presented with an address by his colleagues, giving expression to the high esteem in which they hold him, and referring to the excellent manner in which he has filled the post ion of warden.

The address was read by Councillor Thompson, and was as follows;

Peterborough, October 24th, 1907.

To the Warden of the County of Peterborough;

Dear Sir.—We, your colleagues in Council during your occupancy of the Warden's chair, ask your permission to allow us to address a few words to you to impress upon you our appreciation of the courteous way you have treated our actions, in electing you by acclamation to the Warden's chair.

We, as a body, join you, as you stated in one of your addresses in recognizing the hand of a kind Providence, in bestowing upon our county harvests equal to the requirements of the country.

In all the new and regular duties you, as a Warden, were called upon to perform, we always found you fair and considerate of the best interests of all parts of the county. Your position on the Board of Management was occupied, as was your position as Warden, in such a manner as to bring credit to the county.

We congratulate the township of Asphodel on sending such an able representative to the County Council, and trust she may always be so fortunate in this respect.

We all give expressions to our recognition of your courtesy and kindly disposition, and trust you may be long spared to occupy even more prominent positions in the county.

Signed on behalf of the Council.

JAMES THOMPSON,
Chairman of Finance Committee.

In replying, the warden said he was taken entirely by surprise and could not find words to express his gratitude for the kind feelings expressed. He thanked the members of the council heartily for their words of praise. It was a satisfaction to know that his efforts, however humble they might have been, had been appreciated, but he did not expect such flattering remarks from his fellow workers. In all his dealings in any capacity, he had never met a body of men with whom he found it more pleasure to do business. All had been harmony during the year, and he believed that whatever had been accomplished was due entirely to the support the had been given by the councillors.

The present year, Mr. McNulty continued, had been an important one in the county. A large amount of work had been done, but despite this, the council had been able to reduce the tax rate. He believed that the affairs of the county had been administered on an economical basis, and for this, credit was due every member of the council, and to the county, clerk and other officials.

The Warden concluded by again thanking his fellow councillors, and resumed his seat amid much applause.

Has Not Accepted Chicago Church

Rev. J. J. Rae Remains Enthusiastic Canadian

The following letter to the Kingston Whig from Rev. J. J. Rae, formerly of Peterborough, who is now in Chicago will be read with interest:

Will you permit me to correct a statement which appeared, first in your columns, to the effect that I have been invited to the pastorate of a Methodist church in Chicago paying $5000 salary. The aim of Chicago Methodism has been not to have great churches but to add churches as the city extended, giving a definite territory and adequate support to each. Hence there is not a church in Chicago Methodism paying the salary stated. There is one church pays $4,000 and provides a residence for its pastor, and this is the highest salary paid.

A cordial welcome has been given me here, good offers have been made me and Bishop Warren and his cabinet very kindly opened the way and invited me to join this conference but I did not do so and am still an enthusiastic Canadian staying for a time in the United States.

I would not make this correction only that I fear that the statement which has been widely copied, might be considered as emanating from me or with my authority. I know the kindliness of the motive which induced your correspondent to give publicity to a rumor which he fully believed and which he and you and I no doubt heartily regret avoids verification.—Faithfully yours, J. J. RAE.

JOHNSON—YOUNG

A pretty wedding was solemnized this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at St. John's church by Rev. Canon Davidson, when Mrs. Elizabeth Young daughter of Mr. Chas. Simmons, Thomas street, was united in marriage to Mr. S. Johnson of Toronto.

The wedding march was played by Mr. R. J. Dovey, and the ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a travelling suit of blue with hat to match. She carried white carnations. The bridesmaid Miss Mable Simmons, sister of the bride, was gowned in cream panama cloth. She carried pink carnations. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Edward Simmons.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of, and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the happy couple. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, including a silver cake dish from the Girls' Guild of St. John's church.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left on the 4.48 train for Toronto, where they will reside in future.

They Will Fight Local Option Issue

Liquor Men Conclude Their Convention in Toronto

The Peterborough delegates, who this week attended the convention of liquor men in Toronto, have all returned home, well pleased with the result of the gathering and the harmony and good feeling which prevailed.

"It was the best meeting I ever saw for a crowd like that. We got through lots of business, and there was no dissatisfaction on the part of any section of the liquor men."

This was the statement of an hotel man in reference to the big convention of liquor men in Toronto.

The convention was concluded in the afternoon session, and nearly all the men left the city last night, or on the early trains this morning, says the News. Those who were here this morning were very reticent about the discussions or business transacted at the convention apart from the formal recognition of the liquor men of the Province.

"Local option, no doubt, was one of the chief subjects of discussion," remarked this report of the News.

"Well, we weren't asleep," was the brief reply of the northern hotel man.

"Several suggestions were made in the matter of raising the tone of the hotel business," he added, but he declined to say along what lines the suggestions were.

A LOCAL OPTION CIRCULAR.

Mr. J. Grimes, Ottawa, stated that local option was not discussed at any length, and was only referred to as necessitating the more effective organization of the liquor men, for which purpose the meeting had been called.

"The executive committee met last night," he said, and they will probably issue circulars to the trade, regarding the campaign in opposition to local option."

There was warm discussion on the question of fees, many contending that the $5 to $25 schedule was too high. It is also understood that some criticism was directed towards their solicitor, Mr. James Haverson, whose defence of certain alleged law-breakers in the courts gave rise to the suspicion that the association was backing up people who disobey the law.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The fees for membership for the new association, which will be called the Liquor Licenseholders and Allied Trades' Protective Association, was fixed at $5 for Toronto licenseholders, $10 for towns, and $25 for cities. The new association will thus take in every branch of the liquor trade in the province. The officers elected are, President, T. P. Phelan, Toronto; Vice-Presidents, J. K. Paisley, Ottawa., and George Graham, Toronto; Hon.-Sec. W. T. Thompson, Toronto; Treas., George J. Foy, Toronto.; Solicitor, James Haverson, K. C.; Executive Committee, R. H. Reid, Ingersoll, A. R. Breuer, London, P. J. Mulqueen, Toronto; A. H. Coffin, Georgetown, R. H. Simpson, Hamilton; and William Marshall, Kingston.

The representatives of the other branches were, Distillers, C. T. Mead and Geo. Hargraft, of Toronto; wholesale liquor dealers, L. A. Howard of Toronto, and James Wrigley of Kingston; brewers, T. D. Brown and W. T. Kernaghan of Toronto; shopkeepers, John Sutton of Simcoe and T. K. Raffey of Toronto.

WEDDING BELLS

HALL—SHERRIS

A pretty wedding took place at half-past two o'clock this afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherris, Beverley street, Toronto, of their second daughter, Miss Ethel Alice Sherris, to Mr. John Bertram Hall, secretary of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, of Waterloo, says the Toronto Star.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lewis Hill, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, in the bow window of the drawing room, which was banked with palms and ferns. An orchestra played the wedding marches, and during the service Mr. M. Sherris, brother of the bride, sang Gounod's "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee."

The bride, who was brought in and given away by her father, was attired in a gown of rose point lace, mounted over chiffon and satin, the deep Maud arms sleeves ornamented with bow knots of seed pearls. Her filmy tulle veil was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bridal bouquet of roses and lillies of the valley. Her only ornament was a gold chain and pearl cross. The attendants were Miss Lillian Wilcocks, maid of honor, and Miss Glenna Sherris, bridesmaid, both wearing dainty frocks of pale blue silk with Irish lace trimmings, and carrying crisp bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Walter Somerville, of Waterloo, was best man, and the ribbon bearers were Mr. M. Sherris and Mr. B. Breton.

After the ceremony a reception was held by Mrs. Sherris, when about one hundred guests were present. She was gowned in black silk veiled with spotte dnet. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Sherris drove away to catch the train for Buffalo and Rochester. After the wedding trip they will reside in Waterloo. The bride went away in navy blue cheviot coat and skirt, and blue hat with green foxtail plumes. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch bracelet, to the maid of honor gold cross inlaid with pearls, to the best man a gold watch fob, and to the ribbon bearers silver match boxes.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Winter, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Macdonald, Miss Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown, Mrs. Wilcocks, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. Miles Vokes, Mr. George Wilson, Mrs. Hall, Peterborough; Miss Agnes Hall, Mr. A. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Juston, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Keith (Chicago), Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw, Mr and Mrs. James Brandon.

JONES—FIRTH

The marriage of Miss Alice Adessa Firth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Firth to Mr. Archibald Stewart Jones took place very quietly at St. Augustine church at two o'clock this afternoon, the rector, Rev. Frank Plummer officiating. Mrs. Bastedo Mills presided at the organ and played the bridal music.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white embroidered Swiss muslin inserted with Val. lace with girdle and sash of white satin ribbon. Her tulle veil was hemmed with pearls and arranged over a chaplet of orange blossoms, and she carried a white leather prayer book.

Her sister, Miss Eva Firth was bridesmaid, wearing soft cream net and silk cream chiny lace hat with plumes, and carrying pink roses.

Mr. McCallum was best man.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Firth held a reception at her home on Carlton street, where only the immediate family and friends were present, and later in the afternoon the newly-married pair left to spend their honeymoon in Buffalo and Detroit, the bride travelling in brown broth smartly tailored, and brown panne velvet hat with plumes and mink furs, the gift of the groom. —Toronto Star.

FURGUSON—WINDOVER

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at the George street Methodist parsonage by Rev. Jas. O'Hara, when Miss Florence Windover, second daughter of Mr. Geo. Windover, was united in marriage to Mr. George Ferguson, also of East City. The young couple were unattended. The bride was becomingly gowned in white silk with trimmings of point desprit lace, and silk ribbon. She wore a black picture hat and carried white carnations. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of by the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties at Maple Leaf hotel, and hearty congratulations were bestowed upon the bride and groom.

Among the beautiful and costly presents received by the bride, was a handsome dinner set from the boarders of the Maple Leaf hotel, and a silver cabinet from the Peterborough Lock Co., where the groom is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have taken up their residence on Concession-st., East City.

The Convention Was Big Success

Mr. W. Bunton Returns From Ticket Agents' Gathering in Winnipeg

Mr. W. Bunton, former president of the Canadian Ticket Agents Association, and a member of the executive, who has been attending the annual meeting in Winnipeg, has returned home. On his way east he spent a day at Sudbury and the Soo. He says that the gathering in Winnipeg was a great success and the people of the Prairie City could not do too much for the visitors. There were about 125 ticket men in attendance. The place of the next annual convention will be decided by the executive.

Mr. Bunton says that some of the representatives took a trip west to the coast as guests of the C. P. R. while others went over the C. N. R. to Edmonton. A few are returning by way of Chicago and St. Paul.

Speaking of Winnipeg, Mr. Bunton remarked that it was going ahead rapidly and the people are confident. There is not as much building in the wholesale and mercantile line, but the number of houses in process of erection is marvellous. Mr. Bunton did not notice any unemployed and found all the people cheerful and happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McIlroy, who were also present at the convention, are expected home this week.

Local Delegates Returning Home

From Attending the Sunday School Convention at Brampton

The local delegates to the Ontario Sabbath School Convention at Brampton returned home today. The convention has been a great success, and all speak in the highest terms of the discussion and papers read before the gathering.

A Brampton despatch says:

With the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers" pealing forth from the great pipe organ as an accompaniment to the singing of the large congregation, five hundred young men, members of Toronto Bible classes, marched into St. Paul's Methodist church to take part in the great Adult Bible Class Demonstration, conducted by Mr. Justice Maclaren, in connection with the Provincial Sunday School Convention. One of the most unique features, perhaps, ever introduced at a convention of this kind. Long before the special train arrived, every available seat in the church, with the exception of the space reserved for the class, was occupied, and between two and three hundred had to be turned away. These were conducted to Grace Presbyterian church, where an overflow meeting was held.

The march to the church was one which astonished Brampton—it was an impressive sight.

A VETERAN TEACHER

The object of the demonstration was ostensibly to show how a modern city Bible class of young men should be conducted. For a number of years Mr. Justice Maclaren has taught a large class of young men in the Metropolitan Methodist church. Last night he exemplified his teaching methods with a large class. There were present 120 members of his own class, and 370 members of other classes, reported representing nearly every church in Toronto. Besides these there were others who came up on the excursion but who, in order to remain all night, used the regular convention tickets, and were thus not counted. The number in the class thus run over the five hundred mark.

A FOREST OF HANDS

One of the first questions was: "How many have their Bibles?" The forest of hands that arose, brought a round of applause from the audience.

"The lesson," said His Honor, "is the one for next Sunday — 'Caleb's Faithfulness Rewarded.' Now just here we will go through a little "exercise" (we go through in our own class)."

The "exercise" proved to be a series of questions regarding the chapter from which the lesson was taken, followed by that well known request: "Who can repeat the Golden Text?"

Sharply to his feet sprang a young Englishman, and the text was repeated.

"Now, the whole class repeat." With a thunder of sound the class repeated it.

ALL ON THE ALERT

Every member was on the alert. No sooner was a question put than it was answered. Everyone was ready when the request for the reading of a passage came. Quietly, in a conversational tone, and introducing words of explanation here and there for the benefit of the audience, the leader conducted his class quite without the use of sensational questions or methods. But every detail seemed to have a direct bearing on the lesson; the questions were alive with interest—and so was the class. A personal bond of sympathy seemed to have been established between the teacher and his pupils, from the first word, and the lessons went with a "swing."

THE FOUR W.'S

"Just here," explained Mr. Justice Maclaren, to the audience, "I would probably ask how many have read the chapters intervening between last Sunday's lesson and this. By next Sunday I think the majority will have read the intervening chapters."

To the class: "What was last Sunday's lesson about?" Question, answer and comment brought out the main points in last Sunday's lesson.

"Now, we will put the four W's—who, where, when and what—in connection with today's lesson."

SECRETARY'S REPORT

At the conclusion of the class, the secretary was asked to make his report. He announced that the members of this class numbered 212; that those present numbered 120, and those of other denominations 370. These numbers, it seemed, had been obtained by the silent calling of the roll, each member marking himself present so quietly as to not make any disturbance. The class was closed sharp on time.

Mr. C. W. Pearce, of Chicago, gave an address on "The Five Essentials of Bible Class Work."

Mrs. Thos. Jackson spent Monday with friends in Peterborough.

There were no services in St. John's church on Sunday owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. H. Caplan.

The death of Mr. John Pethick, of Round Lake, took place on Friday. The funeral took place on Sunday from the family residence to the Maple Grove cemetery. The deceased was 82 years of age, and one of the early settlers in Belmont township.

Work is being hustled at Healey Falls, under the able management of the director, Mr. Culverwell, of Port Hope, who is expending every energy in rushing the work, which promises in the course of a few years, to build up many of the surrounding towns and villages.

Havelock had its first visit of "the beautiful" on Saturday, when a few flurries of snow gave the people of the town their first sight of that congealed water which, before the birds fly north again, will block up all the roads and passages, and provide work for the snow shoveller.

Work on the Grand Trunk Pacific through Saskatchewan is being greatly delayed through scarcity of ties and scarcity of men.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, OCT. 24, 1907.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

The news from the New York and Pittsburg stock market is rather discouraging and the fact that the Knickerbocker Trust Co. and other great trust corporations have gone under in the struggle is somewhat disheartening. The prospect in Uncle Sam"s domain appears to be none too reassuring. The announcement that the Westinghouse Electric Company and allied establishments are also in difficulties—even though they may be temporary—does not add to the satisfactory aspect of the situation. The low levels of cetain stocks seem to be constantly going down.

A leading Boston banker says that the present financial conditions are due to a combination of causes, and that it is difficult to tell what the ultimate effect will be.

"We are right in the midst now of a panic worse than the panic of 1893, so far as the stock market is concerned. It has lasted longer. I look to see it effect industrial conditions. It may not go to the extremes of hard times, but I look to see and I hope to see business dull and time slack.

"There is not enough money to carry on the business in the country at the rate it is progressing to-day. The amount of money and the amount of business must be equalized no matter how painful the process if we want the financial conditions straightened out."

This appears to a calm review of the situation across the border, but how will the existing stringency or rather threatened stringency effect Canada.

Canadian general bank managers say that there is no cause for viewing the present crisis with alarm. They can see no reason why this country should suffer by reason of the present upheaval in New York. It is said that Canadians have been conservative in their money transactions of late and that the buying of stocks in the Dominion has been largely for investment, and not for speculation. Canadian banks have gone out of the business of loaning money on stocks. It is hoped that the rather optimistic forecastes will prove true, but there appears to be a general tightening up and rather slow buying on the part of merchants, jobbers and others who do not intend to get overstocked or "loaded up" as it is generally expressed.

In Toronto we are informed that five hundred mechants and tradesmen, who have already been laid off, have applied for employment on construction work now being carried on by the G.T.P. and C.N. railways.

Word also comes from Montreal that the order has gone forth on the Canadian Pacific system to apply the pruning knife and reduce expenses. No more new work will be done in the Angus shops, the company giving "hard times" as an excuse for curtailing expenses. Some of the men will be placed on half time and many others laid off.

This state of affairs is happily not yet general, but such straws show which way the financial wind is blowing and give an index to what may be expected.

"In times of peace prepare for war," is a wise apothegm and in prosperity always keep your weather eye open for a blast of adversity is an equally sensible observation as well as being a good precautionary measure.

A FLIMSY DEFENCE

The Examiner justifies, condones or excuses—call it what you please—the Laurier Government's action to deliberately bribe the electors of East Northumberland by retorting that the Conservatives have done likewise.

In the absence of any convincing argument to uphold the iniquitous proceedings of its party in the adjoining riding, the local Liberal organ resorts to the tu quoque style of discussion. Very forcible and clear, you know. If one man calls you "a chump" give the retord that "he's another." That's a clincher which your opponent cannot get around. The "you are another style" is on a par with the dictum "put up or shut up."

As a matter of fact, in connection with the Brockville Asylum and the statement of Mr. Donovan, the newly elected M.P.P., that an extension would be built for the asylum, this addition was promised months before any bye-election was thought of—long before any one believed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier could not obtain suitable and honorable men in his crowd of followers in the Commons, for cabinet preferment, and had to step outside and select Mr. Graham. Where then does the attempt to influence Brockville come in. Increased asylum accommodation was, as already stated, promised before Mr. Graham ever thought of a "call" to Ottawa.

As for an increased Federal subsidy to British Columbia promised by Mr. Borden on his recent visit, no election campaign is now on, or likely to be for many months. Mr. McBride, premier of the Pacific Coast province feels that he has not secured justice from Ottawa in comparison to the increased subsidies granted other provinces, and there has been little or no attempt on the part of the Laurier Government to defend the comparatively parsimonious allowance.

All this is vastly different from having plans drawn for a new dock, placarded in the post office, and advertisements inserted in all the papers of East Northumberland, during an election campaign, such as is being done by the Liberals in the adjoining constituency. It is a great bluff, an audacious attempt to buy support in the midst of the fray.

The Liberals know it, but such practices are too common with that corrupt party, to expect anything better—even common decency.

The financial crash in New York and Pittsburg just now is almost as severe as the earthquake which struck San Francisco many months ago.

The trusts companies across the border are hard hit. In fact the depositors just now regard them with considerable distrust.

A railway conductor has been sentenced at Montreal to one month in gaol for being drunk while in charge of a freight train. The sentence is none too heavy.

There is one source of satisfaction and that is if Jimmy Reynolds is ever in a train wreck and escapes, he need not wait for the line to be cleared. He can easily walk to his destination.

All the members of the Young Conservative club are asked to remember the annual meeting which will be held on Thanksgiving Day afternoon at three o'clock. Don't forget the date and hour.

Peterborough's long distance pedestrian was willing to Hartley undertake the walk to Toronto and back. He could not find financial backers, and the performance which was to have been on to-morrow, has been declared off.

It is no joke to desert military ranks. A member of "A" battery, Kingston, who took French leave over a year ago after having served nearly half the period of his three year enlistment was arrested in Peterborough a few days ago and taken back to the barracks where he will have to serve his three year term over again. Another batteryman, who deserted from the camp at Petawawa and carried off his clothes, has returned to Kingston where he gave himself up. He has been sentenced to six months in gaol at hard labor. Military discipline must be maintained.

Canada is getting its share of Britain's emigration. Of a total of 194,671 emigrants who left the shores of Britain last year, 105,178 or 54 per cent., went to British possessions, and of these 91,263 came to Canada. The remainder were destined for other countries, 85,941 going to the United States, and 9,920 to Australia and New Zealand. In 1901, Canada's share of such emigration was only 7,121. Nor do we admit all comers. Britain had 570 sent back last year, a good many of whom were rejected by our immigration authorities. We shall more and more carefully select those we admit.

One of the latest, and what many of the users of electricity may think to be the most serviceable inventions, is a little contrivance which, attached to an electrical meter, not only will prevent the meter registering the amount of electricity expended, but if desired will cause the meter to go backward instead of forward. This instrument is an electro-magnet, contained in an oblong box, with side pieces so that it may conveniently be placed over the meter. The inventor, of this swindling device, Herman Bartha, has just admitted his guilt. It is said that not only had he sold several of the magnets for $200 each, most of which were installed in saloons, but at the time of his incarceration he was constructing a larger one, which was to be bought by a garage where a large amount of electricity is needed day and night for the charging of electric vehicles.

At the nomination proceedings in Warkworth on Tuesday, in connection with the East Northumberland bye-election, Mr. Owen, the Conservative candidate, declared for clean government, and counselled the electors not to be led away by promises of canals, etc. He could make no such promises, but would do his utmost to serve the people faithfully and well, as the late Edward Cochrane had.

Mr. Mulholland, the Liberal standard bearer, stated he was working for the riding. It had no money spent upon it, and he would try to have the Government have electric roads built, revoke the C.P.R.'s contract, secure the new dock at Colborne, and get the early completion of the canal.

Mr. Northrup, M.P., of Belleville, criticized "the smallness of Mr. Mulholland's politics." He thought of nothing but getting Government grants to the riding, a species of bribe. He outlined the increase of taxation under the Laurier Government, and the Western land deals and other scandals.

Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann have a Dominion subsidy of $864,000 on the James Bay Railway from Toronto to Sudbury and the province has guaranteed the bonds to $20,000 a mile. They have a Moose mountain of iron ore, that they got from the discoverer for a trifle, and they propose smelting this ore at Toronto, into pig iron, for which the Dominion will give them a bounty of $165 a ton, and a similar amount, if they make that pig iron into steel. The iron business depends of course, on Toronto making these gentlemen a gift of a few hundred acres of land for the smelting works. Naturally, they could never think of buying anything if there are fools around to give them what they want. When Toronto has presented these gentlemen with the lands, and freedom from taxation, Toronto will probably banquet the gentlemen, and crown them with laurels. All that is necessary to become a millionaire is to have gall to talk millions, and ask millions. As you think, so you are.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Operation of the House of Refuge Since Establishment

Chairman of Board of Management Submits Reports at County Council—The Cost of Management.

Wednesday, Oct. 23

At this morning's session of the County Council, in Committee of the Whole, Councillor R. N. Scott, chairman of the Board of Management of the House of Refuge, submitted a report covering the operations of the institution, since its establishment. It was as follows;

Gentlemen; We, the Board of Management of the County House of Refuge, beg to submit a report re cost and management of the above institution. According to the bylaw governing said house, this is not called for at the present session but, as a matter of courtesy, and to give our appointment to the Board of Management, the respect we feel disposed to do, we submit the following in order to give the whole council a more accurate insight to the institution than you might otherwise get and if not absolutely endorsed by you, to herewith give expression to the readiness of your Board to act on any suggestions you may make towards the improvement of said management, and further expenditures. We find, this being the initial year, expenditures cropped up that will, it is presumed, not appear again. You are all aware of the addition to the water system, an expenditure of about, or nearly $500. The same will have to be met from current monies, as the capital account provided for by the sale of debentures last year realizing $29,214 and the second sale of debentures made 1st February this year realizing $1,950, together with the $4,000 received from the Government, has all been paid out or contracted for.

There are now twenty inmates at the house, but they are all well, and none of them requires special attention. One old inmate was confined to her bed for about four months, necessitating extra care and attention, but at the age of 93 she has been called to her long home. Another inmate, a man afflicted with an unusual affliction, has also passed away, and we are thankful to say the remaander are in fairly good health and apparently happy. We are glad to report that the crops have been good, a report of which the superintendent gave to the press and no doubt, you all have seen it.

There is some work now under consideration, and we hope to complete the same this fall. We are requesting the treasurer to prepare a statement for the year, showing the different expenditures, under the different headings, so that our successors will be better guided in future, as to the actual cost of a going concern. We have also arranged with the directors of the Little Lake cemetery for a large lot, for the burial of all unclaimed bodies. We have not settled for it yet, on account of the property not being surveyed yet, and they were unable to give us a deed.

How Construction Work is Proceeding at Healey Falls

Ploughing, Scraping and Blasting Being Done and Buildings Going Up—Plans for an Extensive Electric Railway Being Laid.

The Campbellford Herald says:—Construction operations of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co. at Healey Falls and rapids, which commenced a few days ago, are rapidly advancing. Twenty men and four teams are already working, and a construction building, blacksmith shop, stationary forge and dynamite hut have been erected. Half a mile of road has been made, and ploughing, scraping and blasting is being done on the power development under the direction of the Company's civil engineer, assisted by Managing-Director Culverwell.

The company is now constructing two different power developments, one being a dam at the foot of the lower rapids, to flood the water back on the top and several chains above the big falls, this being done to hold the Ontario Government lease. This will be completed if the Dominion Government do not settle with the company as to their portion of the upper rapids which intervenes the Ontario Government lease portion and portions of the upper rapids owned by the company.

The other where work is going on also, which the company hopes they will be allowed to finish, is a four thousand foot head-race to extend from above the bridge along the high table and on the south-west side, to a point nearly opposite the foot of the rapids, and from that point the water will be carried down the hill to the power house by two twelve foot pipe lines.

This headrace which would give a total head or fall of seventy-three feet, of course cannot be completed until the Dominion Government settle with the company as to their intervening portion of the upper rapids which will be of no use to anyone except the company. This power, with reservoir above, would give fourteen thousand horse power during working hours of day in dry season, which the company wish to supply to the whole of south midland Ontario. The twenty directors are composed of the leading manufacturers and business men of that district, and the company's applications are officially endorsed by eighteen councils.

The company has waited two years for canal surveys to be finished and are disappointed that all the rest of Trent river surveys were completed first and contracts let and work started. Who are the greedy political obstructors? The new Minister of Railways and Canals, it is to be hoped—and we feel he will—give them short shift, and thus enable the district to have cheap light and power.

The company offer the Government lands for locks and canal cuttings and also water for lockage; and the company's engineers report that the head-race power development will not interfere with proper canal operations.

New York capitalists visited Healey Falls recently, with Managing Director Culverwell, who states they are satisfied with the project. Their engineer returns to Healey Falls the beginning of next week, to collaborate with the company's engineer as to details of construction. He will also drive over the projected electric railway to connect the C.P.R. at Havelock with Campbellford, Warkworth and Cobourg, and Port Hope, with branches—one of which will connect Hastings with Brighton, making a junction at Warkworth.

Mr. Culverwell and his associates will apply for this charter at this session of the Local Legislature.

Of nations yet to be;
The first low wash of wave
Where yet shall roll a human sea."

Havelock Confident That Peterborough Will Get Go-by

Our Chances of Getting a Smell of the New Grain Route Are About as Slim as Havelock's Hopes of Knowing How it Feels to be Busy.

Havelock, Oct. 4.2—The citizens of Havelock, and especially those who are employees of the C.P.R., are anxiously watching the proceeding with the new grain route from Victoria Harbor, Georgian Bay. Everything points to the fact that operations will begin in the near future. Large amounts of ties, rails and rail connections are being piled in the yards in Havelock ready for operations.

The people of Peterborough have the idea that the divisional point on the new line will be at that point, or at least that the new route will apass through that city. Stories have arose of surveying for the new route was being done near Peterborough, but it is very likely that the line will not even run through Peterborough let alone that place being made a divisional point. If Peterborough was made a divisional point, the Toronto line would be much too short, only about 75 miles long, while the Smith Falls line would be much too long, 128 miles. At Havelock the divisions are about the same and of the right length, as Toronto is about 99 miles from Havelock, and Smith Falls 103 miles in the opposite direction.

When the route for the new Georgian Bay grain line was being first surveyed the surveyors stated that the line could best be built by meeting the main line from Toronto, about half a mile above Havelock. Starting from Victoria Harbor the line would run in an easterly direction for quite a distance, gradually turning south and passing a little south of Lakefield, near Warsaw, and joining the main line at Havelock. Havelock is just about 100 miles from Victoria Harbor by the line proposed, while Peterborough would be only about 69 miles, too short for a division, and again making the division to Smith Falls too long.

The surveyors also stated that the best grade would be by the proposed line, as by passing through Peterborough many large hills and contra grades would be encountered.

This seems to put Peterborough strictly out of the question, and in the near future this will be proved. The C.P.R. would not gain anything by passing their line through Peterborough. On the other hand it would be disadvantageous to them. The C.P.R. Company will construct the line by the shortest distance, the best grade and the least cost, and these being all taken into consideration, it is an undisputed point that Havelock will become the divisional point of the grain route, and thus being the divisional point for the two lines, it will become a very important centre as the new line will be a busy one. Peterborough is a fine place as far as it goes, but it is too far from Havelock to become the divisional point of the C.P.R., or to become of any practical importance. It it was a little nearer to the prosperous and growing town of Havelock, perhaps in a few years, when Havelock has extended its limits, it might annex Peterborough.

Malt Beverages Have Real Food Value

Though mistaken zeal sometimes classes beer* with the intoxicants, common sense and medical knowledge will teach you its real worth as an item of daily diet.

For beer is four times as rich in food elements as potatoes, nearly as rich as fresh wheat bread, and its proteids (body-builders) reach the stomach in the form easiest digested.

The very small proportion of alcohol in Ontario beers helps the other food to digest quickly and easily.

Quit thinking of beer as an intoxicant—learn how valuable it is for people with weak stomachs or slack digestions.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 291

Limerick Fever Is Spreading

Has Caught on in Peterboro'—Many Replies are Coming in

Since the announcement of the competition in the Review, the Limerick fever so prevalent in other places has broken out in Peterborough with all the virulency of an epidemic. Scores of people are interesting themselves deeply in the assessment and what to do with the "men they selected, with their ballots elected."

Attention is again called to the explanation of the contest, which appears on another page. Intending competitors are requested to send in their replies as soon as possible, as the competition closes on Saturday, the results to be announced in the Review of Monday, Oct. 28th.

Some interesting climaxes are being furnished in the missing fifth line.

MRS. R. R. BIRD.

Sincerest and deepest sympathy is extended by our citizens to Mr. R. R. Bird, chief operator at the G. T. R. station, in the sudden and severe bereavement which has come into his home, which called the bright young wife and loving mother to a brighter and better world. Mrs. Bird was ill only about a week with pneumonia and in spite of the best medical skill and good nursing passed away Thursday evening, aged 35 years. Deceased was Nellie Rogers, daughter of the late James Rogers, Whitby. She leaves besides a sorrowing husband, a family of seven children, four girls and three boys—the eldest fourteen years and the youngest two years old. The funeral took place Sunday morning from her late residence, Liberty street, and was largely attended by relatives, neighbors and sympathizing friends who will miss her cheery smile and presence. Father Galvin, Peterborough, conducted the service, and spoke words of comfort to the sorrowing ones. The bearers were: Messrs. Thos. Bottrell, A. Mingeaud, F. C. Pethick and Chas. F. Rice. The interment took place in the Union cemetery, Oshawa, by the side of her little son.—Bowmanville Statesman.

Rugby Club's Excursion Should be Well Patronized

Train Leaves C. P. R. Station at 9.30 a. m., Returning From Toronto at 12 p. m.—Tickets Good Till Monday.

All those who intend to go to Toronto next Saturday on the Rugby excursion, should buy their tickets at once, so the railway company will have an idea of what train accommodation they will be required to provide. It was an enterprising move on the part of the club when it made arrangements with the C. P. R. to run the excursion and the public should give it's heartiest support. The game between the locals and the Vics. needs no special reference. Everybody knows the Queen City bunch are going to try their hardest to redeem themselves after the trimming they received here, and everybody knows also that the Peterborough fourteen have no intention of letting them do so. The amusement season is at its height in Toronto, and a strong list of attractions holds the boards at the various theatres. Besides, when such reasonable inducements are offered it's a nice thing to take a run to the city, just to look around, go shake hands with friends or to do little buying.

It was first thought advisable by the executive of the local club to run the special at about one o'clock in the afternoon, but on second thoughts 9.30 a.m. was decided upon as a more convenient hour. The train will arrive in Toronto about noon, giving those who take in the trip plenty of time to take lunch-eon and a stroll around the city before the game begins. If train were to leave here at 12.30 p.m. or 1 p.m., there would be a rush for the hotels and eating houses on its arrival at the Union Station, and the trip would be deprived of much of its pleasure by the hustling and confusion that would result.

The special returns at 12 o'clock on Saturday night, but those wishing to stay in the city over Sunday may do so, as the excursion tickets will be honored on all trains returning Monday. The return fare is $2.05, and $1.05 for children under 12 years of age. Tickets are on sale at the C.P.R. ticket office, Mac's Tobacco Shop, the Oriental and the Examiner office.

Reynolds Made a Great Walk; Warm Reception at Port Hope

A Most Wonderful Feat—Lowered the Time Made by Langford More Than Two Hours—His Actual Time Was 36 Hours and 19 Minutes—Finished in Good Shape.

Port Hope, Oct. 23.—James Reynolds, the local pedestrian, has established a record from Port Hope to Toronto and return in a heel-and-toe walk which will be hard to lower. His actual time was 36 hours 19 minutes, lowering Langford's time by 2 hours 44 minutes.

The feat accomplished by Reynolds is a remarkable one, especially so when it is considered that he is in his 57th year, and also that he accompanied Langford on the long journey just a few days previous and walked a large part of the distance. His success came as a great surprise to his most sanguine supporters, the general opinion being that 38 hours would be his best time.

The weather conditions were not as favorable as those enjoyed by Langford, the local man having to face a stiff west breeze and on the return the was greatly weakened by a raw wind from the northwest. The result of his return journey was bulletined at many of the business places in town, and great interest was taken.

Shortly after 12 o'clock his supporters left to meet him, and when he reached Newtonville, twelve miles distant, a hundred stalwarts were there to greet him and accompanied him to town. At Welcome, fully two hundred citizens were in waiting, and cheered the plucky pedestrian to his destination. The main street for quarters of a mile was almost impassable, and large bonfires had been kindled all along the line.

SIGNED REGISTER AND CHATTED.

Reynolds kept the road during the entire distance, and stepped into the Queen's hotel at 6.21. He signed the register and chatted quite freely to his many admirers. He waved this old grey hat high in the air and expressed his satisfaction at the result of his undertaking.

Reynolds is in capital shape, and it is not likely that he will suffer at all from his long journey. The soles of his feet are rather tender, but aside from this he is in pink of condition. Trainer Henderson stated that had Reynolds been greeted with better weather he would have easily made the trip to Toronto in 15 hours. The heavy west wind greatly hindered him and at Oshawa he was advised to give it up. His fight all through was a plucky one, and he required very little attention along the road.

Whitby, Oct. 23.—Reynolds reached here on his return trip at 8.05 a.m. and to the surprise of everybody he was walking at a brisk pace and appeared as strong and fresh as when he passed up yesterday afternoon. He stopped for five minutes at the Windsor house, where he drank a glass of milk, and then pushed on as blithely as before. His confidence was even stronger than yesterday, for the hardest part of this work is over.

He made the up trip to Whitby in 8 hours and 40 minutes, and he has 9 hours and 50 minutes in which to get home in order to keep within his wager of 36 hours.

Everyone here who saw him felt confident of his winning out. It would not surprise his friends if he were to make it in 35 hours.

Bowmanville, Oct 23.—Intense excitement prevailed here on receipt of a telegram from Whitby, saying Jimmy Reynolds the pedestrian tonsorial artist of Port Hope, had reached that town at 6 o'clock on his return journey, and was walking a strong gait.

He entered Courtice, half way between Oshawa and Bowmanville, on the striking of twelve, and after a brief stop for refreshments and a rub-down at the Bennett House he left at 12.20, apparently as alert and astrong as when he passed westward yesterday.

WALKING TOO FAST.

So eager was Reynolds to accomplish this stunt on time that he was told repeatedly by Henderson, his trainer, to go slower. He said his feet are all right, that he is not overcome like he was in June by that tired feeling, and really feels in first-class condition in every sense. He has some bad hills and rough road to cover, but the 22 miles of remaining distance can easily be covered in 5 hours and 40 minutes if his strength holds good and barring all mishaps he is likely to cut down Langford's record considerably, and complete the 132 miles well within the 36 hours.

Calgary "Albertan" Waxes Sarcastic About Flanagan

On Wednesday evening the editor of The Albertan telegraphed W. A. Hewitt, the sporting editor of The Toronto Star, asking him to see Longboat or his manager, and find out if Longboat would give Calgary's great distance runner, Arthur Burn, a race.

The reply, which was received yesterday afternoon, is as follows.—

Toronto, Oct. 17th.

Editor Albertan, Calgary: Longboat says that if Burn wants to meet him, all he has to do is to come to Montreal and start in the twelve mile road race there Thanksgiving Day.

T. C. Flanagan, Irish-Canadian Club says that the Indian cannot take up every challenge any Tom, Dick and Harry may hurl at him. He says Tom is competing in open events and any amateur can take a whirl at him there. If Burn comes east and wants to prove his class, he will match him with any of a half dozen good road runners, in the Irish Canadian team from five to twenty-five miles.

W. A. HEWITT.

This is even a better reply than was expected and as the manager of Longboat, Burn will probably have to run a couple of preliminaries to to show his class. The fact that Flanagan, the manager of the famous Indian, is willing to give Burn a chance at his protege is all that is required. It is natural that the Longboat society down there should have a certain amount of enlarged head and a severe pain in the chest from over-expansion, but it is safe to say that they will promptly lose this, when they see Burn operating on the proud chesty Flanagan's half dozen members of the Irish Canadian team.

Flanagan's message is a typical "cent bait," and one can see the same Flanagan walking along Yonge street with a five-cent "see-e-garrr" in his face, and the diamonds sparkling on his manly chest. The picture is humorous, about as humorous as the Flanagan message. But wait, gentle reader, wait until the "Tom, Dick and Harry" Burn gets action on that Indian, the "see-e-garrr" will turn to a cuddy and the diamonds will rest with the "uncle."

As for Burn starting in Montreal on Thanksgiving Day, Indian Thomas is not yet sufficiently educated to know Calgary is a few miles beyond the Caledonia reserve, and that a man would require a few days' training, after four days' journey on the train.

This message is very satisfactory, as it will greatly increase the enthusiasm of the Calgary people in sending Burn east, if only to have him take a drop out of the "cent belters."

BURN IS SATISFIED.

When shown the wire, Burn appeared to be very pleased, and remarked, "That's all I want. Of course, down there a western record doesn't count for much, it is too far away, but I would sooner have a couple of trial heats with some of the men, who have met their Waterloo at the hands of the Indian.

"I'm sure I can beat him, if I only get a chance to race. I may be a Tom, a Dick or a Harry, but I will let you know more about it after I have raced Longboat down there."

When Jimmy McEwan saw the wire he had a few things to say about Flanagan in particular, and remarked with a hard light in his eye, "I have a man here that will stick to Longboat's heels like a mustard plaster, and then beat him out with a spurt when the Indian is all through, but this fellow Flanagan. (Well — — — — —!" — Toronto Star.

David Hartley May Get Expenses

A Subscription List is Being Circulated on His Behalf

David Hartley may yet make the attempt to walk from Bowmanville to Toronto and return to Peterborough, in 38 hours. Since the report appearing in another column stating that he could find no backers, a prominent citizen has opened a subscription list to get up the pedestrian's expenses and headed it with a large amount. The list is being circulated around town, and a number have already given something.

There is no doubt but what an amount sufficient to bear all expenses will be raised, and Hartley will undertake his long walk the first of next week. Reynolds' victory has so enthused a number of local sports that they are anxious to see what Hartley can do. The pedestrian himself is greatly pleased today to see that his enterprise is not going to be a failure. He is confident of victory and is in fine condition for the great feat.

There was a riot among Chinese laborers on the Rand. They barricaded themselves in their compound and destroyed much property. The police opened fire with shot guns, killing one, and wounding nineteen.

Basement of All Saints' Church Too Small to Accommodate Crowd

Most Successful Annual Harvest Supper Ever Held—Receipts Were $122.90 and Proceeds Will Go Towards New Church.

The annual harvest supper under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of All Saints' church is always a success, thanks to the untiring endeavors and executive ability of the members of the Guild, but the one held last night was the crowning success of all the other successes. From 5.30 in the afternoon until 8 o'clock at night, the hours during which supper was served, the basement of All Saints' church, where the bountifully laid tables were spread, was simply overflowing with people, who came to enjoy the rare good meal the Guild is noted for providing. Many of them had to wait some time before they could find places at the tables, and the ladies in charge of the tables and the numerous waitresses were kept very busy catering to the wants of their guests. The bill-of-fare provided was a most appetizing one, and expressions of approval were heard from all quarters concerning its excellence of quality and the satisfactory way in which the supper was served. Despite the size of the crowd patronizing the supper, there was no confusion of any kind in meeting the requirements of those in attendance.

The basement was profusely hung with flags, placed here by the practical hand of Mr. A. Kingscote. The decorations were of a very appropriate character and were arranged in good taste. Mr. Kingscote gave his services gratis, and the members of the Guild wish to thank him for the pains he took to improve the appearance of the festive hall.

Last year there were about four hundred tickets sold, while this year there were five hundred, or to be more exact, four hundred and ninety-two, making the receipts from the sale of tickets, $122.90. After the expenses in connection with the supper are paid, the proceeds will be devoted towards the building of the new church.

FIVE LECTURE.

After the supper was over, Rev. Mr. Major, the rector, gave an interesting lecture on "Round About London," illustrated by Mr. A. E. Wilson, with beautiful limelight views.

The speaker described the scenes depicted by each slide, and took his listeners for an interesting mental ramble around the many places of interest in old London. The first scene shown was that of the ancient Abbey church, of St. Alban's, then the scene shifted to various places of historic interest—Windsor Castle, Round Tower, Greenwich Hospital, and Observatory, Rochester Castle and many others.

The officers and members of the Woman's Guild, and those in charge of the different tables were,—

WOMAN'S GUILD.

Below are the officers of the Woman's Guild,—

President, Mrs. J. J. Lundy.

Vice-President, Mrs. J. H. McClellan.

Secretary—Mrs. A. Methieral.

Those in charge of the tables were Mrs. J. H. McClellan and Mrs. Babcock; Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Wolstenholme; Mrs. Melleville and Mrs. Coughlan, Mrs. Walton and Miss Wells. The members of the Girls' Guild acted as waitresses.

Morgan is Hero of Wall Street; He Came to the Rescue To-day

Handed $25,000,000 in Cash Into the Stock Exchange and Loaned it at Ten Per Cent—This Broke the Call Rate and Saved the Day in New York.

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, October 24.—J. P. Morgan is the hero in Wall street this afternoon. With call money quoted at 100 per cent. and none to be had, the stock market on the verge of a disastrous panic, and stock price falling off like snowflakes, Mr Morgan about 1.30 this p.m. hauled $25,000,000 in cash into the Stock Exchange and loaned it at 10 per cent., breaking the call rate and saving the day.

There had been a tremendous decline in prices, with Union Pac. down to par, St. Paul, par, Nor. Pac. off from 111 to 100 1-2 and the other in proportion. It looked as though the bottom would fall completely out of things, when Mr. Morgan stepped into the breach, bought thousands of shares of his Steel stocks and Erie and closed them up at the high of the day.

THREE BANKS FAIL.

The banking situation was even worse than yesterday. Three banks failed and there were heavy runs of nearly every big trust company in the city. A trust company in Providence, R. I., also suffered a heavy run. People in the financial district were panic stricken, and thousands crowded the down town streets, all determined to get their savings out of the banks before they should be ruined.

Secretary Cortelyou was on deck all day and did heroic work in helping the big banks along, while the big financiers to a man put their shoulder to the wheel and fought off financial demoralization. Stock Exchange houses would buy stocks for nothing but cash.

Situation Working Itself Out To a Satisfactory Condition

Special to the Review.

New York, 10ct. 24.—After a conference with Secretary Cortelyou this morning, George W. Perkins, of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., said; "The situation is working itself out satisfactorily. Confidence is being restored, and I can say that the finance institutions of the city are perfectly solvent. Today is better than yesterday, and tomorrow will be better than today."

At the office of the State bank examiners, it was stated today that up to 12.47 a.m. they had receive the report of the suspension of only three suburban banks, and it was believed by the examiners that no other suspensions would be recorded today.

Would Welcome an Inquiry Into Alleged Coal Combine

Mr. Robt. Hicks Says if People of Peterboro' are Paying an Exhorbitant Price for Coal They Are Entitled to Know it—Public Should Have Facts Through a Commission.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In the times this morning I notice an article re coal investigation reporting me in a manner entirely foreign to my expression.

What I did say to the Times reporter, who called on other business, and in a conversation (which I stated was not for publication), I now state publicly. That is if the citizens of Peterborough are paying an exhorbitant price for coal, they are entitled to know it, and, on the other hand, if coal is sold in Peterborough by the retail dealers at a reasonable price, in justice to the retail coal men, the public should have the facts.

The proper way to ascertain the facts is by the appointment of a commission enquiring into local conditions. As to the matter of an alleged coal combine that is a question for the commission to determine.

I might say here that our company is not conducting business to conform with public sentiment. When we do that we will have no business to conduct.

On the other hand, we try to conduct our business on a conservative line with the same object in view as any other company in any line of business, that of making the investment yield a reasonable and fair profit.

As far as the appointing of a commission is concerned, our company will support any move that will place the retail coal business in its proper light to the public.

Yours, etc.,

R. HICKS.

JACK'S LAKE PARTY RETURNS

The party report that the fishing was good, although the partridge are rather scarce this season.

Left for Next Year's Council

County Does Not Desire to Make Agreement With City at Present

The present County Council will do nothing towards making an arrangement with the city to receive a number of the city's indigent old men into the House of Refuge at Lakefield. The request of the deputation, consisting of Mayor McWilliams and Ald. Phelan, which waited on the council yesterday, was referred to the Finance Committee, who have decided that they will do nothing this year. As a result the matter will be left for next year's Council.

PLATE GLASS WAS SMASHED

The large pane of plate glass in the south show window of A. W. Greesman's handsome store, was this morning smashed. Two employees were carrying out iron bedsteads, and accidentally the foot of one of the beds struck the glass, knocking a large portion of it in. The glass had only been placed in at the rebuilding of the store and had not yet been insured.

John A. Johnson, who lived near Uxbridge, was dragged by a frightened horse and killed.

LIVELY MEETING AT HASTINGS

Mr. C. L. Owen, Conservative Candidate, Got Good Reception

Hastings, Oct. 23.—A meeting was held in the town hall on Tuesday evening, in the interest of Mr. C. L. Owen, Conservative candidate in the coming election, and a large number of followers of both political parties attended to listen to discussion of the questions of the day. Dr. Wilson occupied the chair in a very acceptable manner and called upon Mr. Owen for the first speech of the evening. Mr. Owen was heartily received by the meeting and very strongly advocated his rights to the seat vacated by the Mr. Cochrane, and promised to work for the interests of the riding and the country at large if elected. Mr. Owen stated that he was in favor of the canal, and had been for the last 20 years, and his opponent had never done anything towards the canal until Edward Cochrane died and there was a chance of filling his shoes. Mr. Claude McDonnell, of South Toronto, followed Mr. Owen in a short address dealing with the present policy of the government at large, and was followed in turn by Mr. Northrup of East Hastings, who gave a choicely worded address which was listened to with the best of attention by the meeting. As the hour was getting late Mr. Northrup cut out a large part of his speech and the meeting was concluded with three cheers for the King and the candidate.

HAS PLUMB-LINE LEVEL HEEL AND SOLE

Improvement Number Eleven

How unlevel soles stoop the back — How unlevel soles cause bow-legs — How unlevel soles cause knock-knees — Foot-rites make legs straight from hip to toe

A locomotive that bumps along on an unlevel track soon bumps into deformity and loses its power to pace the steel highway with ease, style and fleetness.

A man who treads an unlevel heel and sole is jolting along on a track that's certain to stoop his shoulders, swell his knees and ankles and bend them in or out, producing knock-knees or bow-legs and feeble ankles. (See first three illustrations.)

The uneveness of the heel and sole bends the shoulders forward; stretches the muscles and wears off the knee and ankle bearings until they cause inward or outward inclination of the legs and convert the smooth, careless, athletic gait of youth into a slouchy, awkward, lumbering stumble.

Foot-rites are built with a Plumb-Line Level Heel and Sole—level as a plumb-line from rear of heel to tip of toe and just as level from side to side. Unless hopelessly deformed, the Foot-rite Plumb-Line Level Heel and Sole will keep the back erect and line up the legs as straight as a straight edge from hip to toe, as per fourth illustration above.

There never was a successful runner, long walker, graceful carriage, nor smart hanging pair of trousers without straight legs.

The Foot-rite dealer is a clever shoe man. He'll show you the Foot-rite Plumb-Line Level Heel and Sole which gives erect backs, straight legs, ease of carriage, fleetness of foot and won't tire you.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00 and $5.00. Every pair Goodyear Welt Sewn.

Libel Action by German Count Creates Interest in Berlin

Sensational Evidence In Action Against Society Editor.

Von Moltke's Nephew Plaintiff—Kaiser's Name Mentioned In Court—"Round Table" Accused of Using Undue Influence—Spiritualistic Circles—Divorced Wife Testifies to Queer Incidents.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The libel action brought by Gen. Count Kuno von Moltke, against Herr Maxmilien Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, a free-lance political weekly and long an organ of the editor's extreme radical opinions, began here yesterday before Justice Kern.

The public awaited the trial with extraordinary interest, because it was believed that many secrets of the Imperial court would be drawn from the distinguished persons summoned to testify, some of whom are members of the Imperial entourage.

Harden began last November to assert that Prince zu Eulenburg was the head of a group at court that sought to influence the Emperor's political actions by subtle, indirect suggestions. Prince zu Eulenburg, Count Kuno von Moltke and Lieut.-Gen. Count William von Hohenau, one of the Emperor's adjutants, were mentioned by Harden as members of the so-called Camarilla, or "round table," and he further alleged that they were spiritualists and of abnormal temperaments and habits.

Crown Prince's Charge.

According to report, the Crown Prince Frederick William made an enquiry into the charges in May and went to his father with the result of his investigation, which caused Prince zu Eulenburg, von Moltke and Count von Hohenau suddenly to resign.

After the clerk of the court had read all of Herr Harden's articles on the subject, the defendant rose and said:

"I have followed political aims alone in my articles, and in so doing have been compelled to mention Count von Moltke's name. I did not say he had practiced disgraceful vices, but said that he was abnormal in temperament."

Count von Moltke said that such a circle as the "round table," which, as the defendant alleged, had sought to influence Emperor William's political actions, often in a sense contrary to the views of his constitutional advisers, had never existed, and could not exist in the entourage of the Emperor. The count added that his old friendship with Prince zu Eulenburg was "wholly without ulterior significance."

French Diplomatist Charged.

Herr Harden questioned the plaintiff about the testimony presented at the time of his divorce from his wife, Frau von Elbe, and said he had heard things about the plaintiff five years ago which, if he could prove, would [illegible] form to be torn from him, but he had kept silent.

Continuing, Herr Harden declined to withdraw anything he had written, but admitted frankly that he had twice been imprisoned for insults to the sovereign, each time for six months, and that he had also been fined several times for the same offence.

Harden said he did not accuse Count von Moltke of criminal acts, but he regarded his friendship with Prince zu Eulenburg as unusual in character, for the plaintiff, he said, had once pressed the prince's handkerchief to his lips and cried: "Phili, my Phili," and in writing him a letter had made use of the terms: "My soul" and "My beloved."

Frau von Elbe, the divorced wife of Kuno von Moltke, testified to the epithets that her former husband had applied to married life. She then described the handkerchief incident, which she said she saw from an adjacent room. She declared also that Prince zu Eulenburg once knelt to her and begged her to give up her husband. Referring to her divorce, Frau von Elbe said she had asked von Moltke:

"What will his majesty say to our divorce?"

To this von Moltke replied:

"His majesty only hears what I allow him to know."

These words created a great sensation in the courtroom.

The new rural line will serve about a dozen farmers. The capital invested is about $500, and the farmers will each pay about $20 a year.

There will be a special line for each six patrons.

ENGLISH SHIP ATTACKED.

Serious Affray With Chinese at Santa Cruz—Many Wounded.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 25.—A despatch from Santa Cruz, Mexico, says that because 200 of their countrymen were detained on board by the sanitary inspectors of this port, 400 Chinese, who had just been landed, made a murderous assault Wednesday night on the English ship Woolwich and her crew. Many men were seriously injured in the affray and five may die from their wounds. The Chinese would have swept all before them but he timely aid brought by a large force of Federal troops and gendarmes.

Hanged In Old Mill.

Wallaceburg, Oct. 25.—John Thompson of Sombra committed suicide Wednesday night by hanging himself on the premises of the old grist mill, Sombra village, in which deceased was a shareholder to the extent of $1,200.

His wife missed him and thought it strange that he had not returned as usual, and instituted a search. The body of deceased was found suspended by a rope at 9.30 o'clock. It cannot be learned how long he was dead.

The loss of money invested in the grist mill had a tendency to turn his mind, and in a state of despondency, it is believed, Thompson committed the rash act.

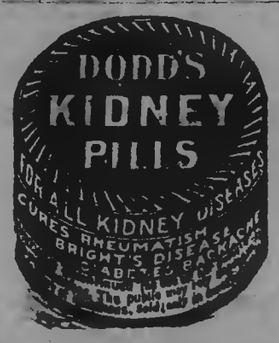
A Cripple's Revenge.

New York, Oct. 25.—Promised a position for life, if he would withdraw a damage suit for the loss of his right leg, then given a job at a dollar a day and kicked into the street when he went to protest, Maraino Petrosano, a youth of 18, took the law into his own hands Wednesday night and shot William J. Murphy of the Erie Railroad, through the heart.

Murphy was head clerk in the office of Chief Engineer Taffney of the Erie Railroad.

Jealousy's Fatal Work.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 25.—William Klinger of Locust Gap, near here, was shot dead by his sweetheart, Miss Lucy Doughton, of this place, last Wednesday night, in front of her father's residence, after which she shot herself, death resulting instantly. Jealousy was the cause. Miss Doughton was 18 years old, and Klinger five years her senior.



RAZED BY EARTHQUAKE

Many Lives Lost by Disturbances in Calabria.

Towns and Villages Laid In Ruins—Cathedral Tower Thrown Down—Houses Collapsed Burying Occupants In Debris—People In Panic—Rain Fell In Torrents Adding to the Desolation.

Rome, Oct. 25.—The details received here during the day regarding the earthquake at Calabria Wednesday tend to show that the damage done was much more extended than at first estimated, but that the loss of life has not been great. The lowest estimates place the number of killed at about 20, and the highest at about 120.

Half the houses at Ferruzzano and Brancaleone collapsed and many persons were buried in the ruins at Sinopoli and St. Illario many are said to have lost their lives. Panic prevailed everywhere.

Rocella, Jonica, Reggio, Cosanza, Baracdia, Citta Nova, Palmi, Gerica, Marina and other towns also suffered from the shocks, but not severely.

Half the houses in the village of Gerace are in ruins.

To add to the desolation it was raining in torrents, which resulted in much suffering among the homeless people.

The cathedral at Torre Di Gerac was thrown down, as was an ancient tower which had withstood all the Calabrian earthquakes for centuries.

The confusion caused by the earthquake was increased by a mutiny of the prisoners in the Catanzaro jail, which was subdued with difficulty.

The troops sent with the relief trains to the scene of the disaster had a calming effect on the population.

SOLD WIFE FOR $20.

Then Ordered Her to Return — A Curbstone Romance.

Glace Bay, Oct. 25.—A Dominion, C. B., man bought a wife for $20 a short time ago and has now lost her.

A few weeks ago a young Englishman desired to marry, and paid court to a married woman of Sydney Mines, also from England. A bargain was made with the woman's husband, who sold his wife for $20, the sum being paid in the presence of witnesses.

The young man went to Port Hood with his prize, apparently satisfied with his purchase. A week ago the lawful husband ordered his wife to return, bringing whatever property of the other fellow she could get away with. She obeyed, and now the purchaser of the bride is seeking legal advice.

ORDERED OFF FREIGHT TRAIN.

Brantford Man Stumbled and Lost Right Arm.

Galt, Oct. 25.—Lloyd Brown, claiming Brantford as his home, met with very painful injuries on the C. P. R. afternoon westbound freight train, necessitating the amputation of his right arm above the elbow.

Brown was endeavoring to obtain free transportation to some western point and when discovered on one of the oil cars and ordered to get off, stumbled and fell underneath the wheels.

To those who witnessed the accident it is surprising that he did not meet with instant death. He was removed to the Galt hospital in the ambulance.

Inspected Phoenix Works.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The Canadian royal commission which is investigating the Quebec bridge disaster yesterday inspected the plant of the Phoenix Bridge Co. at Phoenixville, Pa., where the steel for the collapsed structure was made.

The members of the commission went over the works with officers of the Phoenix Co. and inspected material and the methods of structural steel making, but took no testimony. They returned to this city last night.

The members of the commission said it might be several days before the point is reached where they will begin taking testimony, but expressed themselves as satisfied with their labor so far, and with the treatment and assistance they had received from the Phoenix Co. officials.

Crippen, statistician of the department, who examines the reports filed by the big insurance companies, admitted that the valuation of securities reported by the insurance companies is never questioned; that he had practically accepted everything turned in by the companies at its face value.

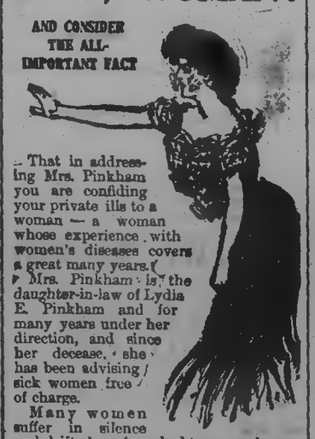
STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman — a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years. Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it "I do not believe it will help me."

SWINDLER MAKES HAUL.

Works Bogus Check Business on St. Catharines Bank.

St. Catharines, Oct. 25.—With apparent ease and without creating the least suspicion till after the deal had been consummated, a clever bogus check artist duped the local branch of the Bank of Commerce to the extent of $169 last week.

An honest-looking young man, about 23 years of age, giving the name of Charles Wilson, entered the office of Principal Warner of the local business college on Friday, and said he wanted to take a college course, and asked the principal to go to the bank and identify him. Together they went to the Canadian Bank of Commerce, where Mr. Warner introduced the stranger to Mr. Cowdry, accountant, who has been acting manager during the absence of the local manager, Mr. Connolly.

Wilson produced a check for $300, drawn by the Buffalo Lumber Co. on the National Bank. This he deposited to his credit in the bank, but at once drew out $175 for current expenses. Then he paid Mr. Warner $50 for tuition fee.

The young man then made his way to McLaren & Co.'s store, where he purchased a new outfit, which cost him $34. For this he tendered a check. The firm telephoned to the bank, asking if the check was all right, and received a favorable reply, and the stranger departed with the purchases. W. W. Tyrrill, jeweler, was next induced to part with a watch valued at $55, accepting a check for the purchase.

When the bank forwarded the $300 check to Buffalo for collection it was returned with information that there is no Buffalo Lumber Co. A warrant was then sworn out for Wilson, but the police, although they have kept the affair a strict secret, have been unable to locate him. The business college has returned the $50 to the bank, which loses the amount of two checks, $34 and $55, and $75 balance of the $125 drawn out by Wilson when the $300 check was deposited.

FORGED ATTORNEY'S NAME.

Found Guilty and Was Lectured by Judge on Infidelity.

St. Catharines, Oct. 25.—County Judge Carman yesterday found Walter Northrope, Toronto, guilty of forging the name of Crown Attorney McKay of Orangeville, to a check for $40. Northrope made a plea for leniency, as his wife was in a state of collapse, and his mother at the point of death.

It was claimed that he had registered as McKay, who had been connected with him in a patent apple peeler, to shield his identity from persons infringing the patent. He admitted to the judge that the woman at the hotel with him had not been his wife.

"There is too much of this thing going on," said the judge. "You ask me to show mercy for your wife and mother, although you showed none when you were running about the country with another woman. I'll take till to-morrow to consider what sentence I'll give you."

Duck Hunters Having Great Sport at Rice Lake This Fall

Mr. Jack Dinsdale, of Allendale, Holds the Record, Securing 25 Ducks on Tuesday—Many Sportsmen on the Lake—Wild Geese Sighted But None Bagged So Far.

Mr. David Moore of Keene, was in the city yesterday, and when asked by the Review concerning the duck shooting situation at Rice Lake this fall, said that ducks were very plentiful at the lake, and most of the hunters were having good luck.

On Tuesday, Mr. Jacke Dinsdale, of Allandale, who is one of the most enthusiastic of periodical duck hunters of Rice Lake, made the record bag of the season, securing 25 of the birds in the vicinity of Upper Foley.

The maskinonge fishing is good in the lake and the Indian River, particularly in the lake, and the trawlers there are having good luck. However, duck shooting is the most interesting sport now, and the incessant "bang bag" of the breech loaders sounds the death knell of many a duck.

The members of the Bank of Toronto staff, do considerable shooting in the afternoons, and many other residents of Keene and vicinity are out frequently to try to get their share of the game.

As before mentioned Mr. Dinsdale holds the record for the largest number of ducks, secured so far this season, and among the other hunters on the lake are Dr. Fairbanks, Cobourg; Messrs. Marsh and Weir, Keene; G. N. Smallie, Boston; Harry Neill and Alexander Patterson, Peterborough, who are encamped at Walker's Landing; a party of eight gentlemen from Brampton, and several others.

Mr. Moore states that a large number of wild geese have been seen flying around Rice Lake, but they are shy and elusive, and really not as great geese, as the ducks, as they always manage to make themselves scarce before the hunters can get to them.

WILL PREACH AT GOSPEL HALL

Mr. W. J. Maplesden Returns to City From Bancroft

Mr .W. J. Maplesden, of Buffalo, has returned from the district convention at Bancroft, and will preach at two meetings in Gospel Hall Sunday next. At four in the afternoon, his subject will be "Caught up," or will Christians—known as the church —go through the great tribulation. This is a subject of the greatest importance to the present day Christians, no matter where they are and should bring another large company on Sunday.

At seven o'clock on Sunday evening, Mr. Maplesden will speak on "A Great Gulf Fixed." Everyone will be made welcome.

RECEIPTS WERE SATISFACTORY

A directors' meeting of the Agricultural Society was held on Friday last to receive a statement of the fair and pass the prize list. The receipts altogether were a little befast year, but quite satisfactory considering the wet night of the first day. Any irregularities were straightened out and the treasurer will begin to pay for the prizes very soon. The ladies of the Presbyterian church rent $3 for the use of the dining hall.—Millbrook Reporter.

Liberal Gifts to Mission Cause

Splendid Showing by Murray St Baptist Church

The annual report of the Peterborough Association of Baptist churches, published in the Cobourg World, shows that the congregation of Murray street church contributed $1,200.14 to missions during the past year. This sum was donated, besides several personal subscriptions, forwarded directly to the various mission boards of the denomination. The congregation certainly has been generous in the great cause and work of missions, the total givings surpassing those of many larger and wealthier churches.

Barrie May Vote on Local Option

Barrie will likely have a local option contest in January. At a meeting held on Monday evening in the Congregational Church, it was decided to force an issue and, if the required number of signatures to the petition is forthcoming, the battle will be fought out at the ensuing municipal elections. The statutes provide for a petition which shall contain at least twenty-five per cent. of the total number of persons appearing on the revised voters' list. This petition must be presented to the town council on or before November first. Should this bylaw be defeated in January, three years must elapse before the question can again be submitted.—Barrie Examiner.

LOCAL OPTION AT MILLBROOK

Large Attendance at Meeting to Discuss it

The meeting in the town hall on Thursday last by the Rev. Mr. Smith to discuss local option, was quite largely attended, yet not so fully as would have been the case had it been known the real object of the gathering. Mr. Smith is a good speaker, and presented the working of local option in Toronto Junction very fully and favorably. The resident ministers also spoke, and Mr. Neville sang a solo. By a standing vote the meeting expressed its favor of local option.—Millbrook Reporter.

APPELS GROW "THREE IN ONE"

Evidently having ambition to bring themselves into public notice, three apples growing on a tree in the orchard of Mr. John Conroy, Douro, conceived the idea of growing together and forming one, is usually called a "freak of nature."

Mr. D. N. Minicolo, of the firm of Minicolo Bros, recently bought the apples in Mr. Conroy's orchard, and while picking them the other day came across the "three in one" specimen. It is of the russet variety, and consists of one well developed apples and two smaller ones. There are three distinct cores, but only one stem. The apples are on exhibition at Minicolo Bros, Hunter street.

Prevents Utter Chaos and Restores Confidence—Crisis Is Now Passed —Trust Company Meets All Demands — Three Minor Establishments Suspend Payment Temporarily—J. P. Morgan Heads Pool.

New York, Oct. 25.—As a result of yesterday's developments in the financial world there was every indication last night that the crisis in the banking and trust company situation has been safely passed. The Trust Company of America all through the day's banking hours paid out money to depositors as rapidly as possible and closed the day with all demands having been met. A very favorable feature of the situation respecting this company was that it was able to make its payments with very little assistance and another was that the company received over its counters in the morning hours in ordinary deposits more than $1,000,000. The crowd assembled at the company's banking office throughout the day was smaller than it was, and the sums withdrawn were not so large as those taken out on Wednesday.

The aggregate amount of money which has been contributed in order to weather the storm and restore confidence assumes truly colossal proportions. Roughly estimated it includes $25,000,000, which Secretary Cortelyou deposited in New York banks; $25,000,000 which the Morgan pool brought to the floor of the Stock Exchange, $10,000,000 which John D. Rockefeller deposited with the Union Trust Co., as a means of stemming the tide at the Trust Company of America, and finally another fifty millions, which it is understood Mr. Rockefeller stood ready to advance to meet any further stress of conditions —in all considerably in excess of $100,000,000.

Events Come Fast.

First and earliest in the day came the announcement of trouble in three minor state banks in the outlying districts of Harlem — the Hamilton Bank, the Twelfth Ward Bank, and the Empire City Savings Bank. These banks transacted only neighborhood business and their suspension of payment was absolutely without significance as bearing on the general condition. The Empire City Savings Bank was controlled by a Tammany Hall politician, and its business operations were confined to a small area. Although these banks were obliged to close because of lack of ready cash, State Bank Examiner Pudson declared yesterday afternoon that all three were solvent and that their depositors would lose nothing.

The second episode was a rather more serious run inaugurated against the Lincoln Trust Co. The run against this company was steady throughout the day, but was not serious at any time, and the sums withdrawn were not large.

By far the most notable, even dramatic, episode of the day was the emptying of millions of money into the Stock Exchange through a pool headed by J. P. Morgan and other financiers.

A Run at Providence.

Providence, Oct. 25.—For three hours yesterday a stream of depositors passed before the window of the paying teller of the Union Trust Co., and withdrew their deposits. An unofficial estimate of the number withdrawing deposits was 700.

NEW YORK MURDER MYSTERY.

Man Found Dead From Stab Wounds In Madison Park.

New York, Oct. 25.—In the death of a stranger, whose body was still warm when found in Madison Square Park Wednesday evening, the police are confronted with a puzzling case. The victim had been stabbed over the heart. The man was lying on his back under a tree in a perfectly composed position, almost as if asleep, when the attention of Policeman Michael O'Brien was called to him by a passer-by.

O'Brien thought the man asleep and shook him vigorously. Getting no response, though the man's hands and face were warm, he called Ambulance Surgeon Stewart from the New York Hospital. The doctor said the stranger was dead and the body was taken to the West Twentieth street station.

Two deep wounds, not more than half an inch apart, that looked as if they might have been made with a pair of sharp-pointed sheares, were found directly over the heart. Coroner Shrady, who later inspected these wounds, said they had undoubtedly pierced the heart.

CHATHAM'S TEETH CHATTER.

Gas Main Burst, Cutting Off Supply—Factories Shut Down.

Chatham, Oct. 25.—The main which carries the natural gas to Chatham from the Tilbury wells burst at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and the escaping gas later caught fire.

The Volcanic Oil & Gas Co., from whose wells the gas is brought, are experiencing great difficulty in repairing the break. As the boilers at the Chatham Steam Heating Co.'s plant are heated with natural gas, the result has been that the stores, offices, factories, city and county buildings, as well as the schools, have been without heat all day. Traffic on the C. W. & L. E. Railway ceased yesterday morning. The boilers at the power house are heated with gas and there was no means of generating steam.

Many factories which use gas engines have had to shut down for the time being. Both local newspapers came out last evening all "hand-set," there being no gas to melt the metal in the typesetting machines, and in the stores and offices men may be seen working with their overcoats and hats on.

ONE KILLED; THREE INJURED.

Workmen Buried Under Tons of Casting at Oshawa.

Oshawa, Oct. 25.—Without warning, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the second floor in the machine room of the Oshawa Steam and Gas Fitting Co., gave way and tons of casting and debris fell upon the machinists who were working below.

Harvey Perkins, a young married man, was instantly killed, and three others were seriously crushed and bruised.

The work of rescue was undertaken at once, but it was two hours before the last man was released.

The Oshawa Steam and Gas Fitting Co. employs about 175 men. It was about five years ago that the plant was established, and the business has been increasing rapidly ever since.

As a result the casting had accumulated in the storage section and the men had evidently overestimated the sustaining capacity of the floor.

A representative of the company last night said that the disaster could not have been foreseen, and that they were in no sense to blame.

BROTHER AGAINST BROTHER.

Mulai Hafid's Holy War Not Against Foreigners—France Warned.

Paris, Oct. 25.—Mulai Hafid, Sultan of Southern Morocco, is quoted in an interview as insisting that he had not declared a holy war against the foreigners, but against his brother, Sultan Abd-el-Axis, who, he added, was ruining the country, and gradually delivering it over to foreigners. Continuing, Mulai Hafid is quoted as saying: "If France wishes security for property in Morocco, she must remain neutral."

Thanksgiving Day next Tuesday.

SHOT TWO WOMEN.

Returning From a Dance at Welland —Man Escaped.

Welland, Oct. 25.—Miles Milakouie, an Austrian, while returning from a dance with his boarding-house mistress and another woman, got into an argument over $6 that the woman said was owing for board. He pulled a 38-calibre revolver and fired in such haste that the bullet pierced the thigh of Mrs. Petro Valietch, and then lodged in the knee of Mrs. Milka Yojic, who he had intended to hit. He immediately fled into the darkness. Both women are recovering.

Indians on Warpath.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The tribe of Ute Indians which more than a year ago wandered away from their reservation in Utah and created trouble in Colorado and Wyoming by threatening to take the warpath and raid ranches is reported to have again broken out on the Cheyenne River reservation in South Dakota, where the tribe was given temporary quarters. At the request of the Secretary of the Interior, the War Department yesterday ordered troops from Fort Mead, S. D., to the scene of the trouble.

Captain and Wife Saved.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—The rumored drowning of two people on the barge Jacques Wednesday night as a result of its collision in Lake St. Louis with the steamer Norwalk turns out to be false. There were no drownings. The captain, his wife and the crew escaped to another barge. The sunken vessel will be raised.

Frost Ruined Grapes.

St. Catharines, Oct. 25.—Hundreds of tons of grapes in the Niagara fruit belt were ruined by frost Wednesday night, and the grape-growers have lost heavily. Ice to the thickness of half an inch formed. Growers made every effort to save their crop, many of them starting fires around their vineyards.

Manitoba Speaker Retires.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 25.—Speaker Johnson, in the last Manitoba Legislature, is still in bad health. It is regarded as probable that he will decline to be re-elected speaker in the present Parliament. Thomas Taylor, M.P.P., will be his successor.

Slapped With Frying Pan.

Kingston, Oct. 25.—Constable John Thompson of Gananoque was smashed in the face with a frying pan while an arrest for disorderly conduct was being attempted against two young men, Arthur and John Bryan, of Seeley's Bay.

A justice of the peace heard the action for assault, and a settlement was effected whereby the constable will be paid $300 for damages and $40 given the court for expenses.

Convicted of Perjury.

New York, Oct. 25.—The jury in the case of Dr. Walter R. Chillette, former vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., who was charged with perjury, last night returned a verdict of guilty. The verdict was accompanied with a recommendation for mercy. Dr. Chillette was remanded until Monday for sentence.

Old Friends' Fatal Quarrel.

New York, Oct. 25.—In the course of a desperate fight over the storage of an automobile, Dormans Ormsby shot and killed Frederick Wehmann Wednesday night. Ormsby told the police that he did the shooting in self-defence. Ormsby and Wehmann had been friends for years.

Exporters.

Excepting a few export bulls, there was nothing doing in the export class. Bulls sold at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked cattle, in twos and threes, sold at $4.50 to $5 per cwt, the latter price being for two or three exporters, 1400 lbs each, bought for butcher purposes. There were very few cattle sold over $4 per cwt, and the bulk went between $2.50 and $3.50. Cows $2.50 to $3.60; canner cows and bulls at $1 to $2.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report not as large receipts of stockers and feeders this week, with prices about holding their own with last week's quotations.

Quite a few steers of the feeder class with a little flesh and weight sold for butcher purposes to-day, which helped a lot to keep up the price of this class, but for this demand they would have sold lower.

Messrs. Murby bought 275 this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 1050 to 1100 lbs, at $3.35 to $3.65; fair feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs, $3.25 to $3.50; best stockers, 700 to 900 lbs, $2.50 to $2.70; medium stockers, 700 to 900 lbs, $2.25 to $2.50; common feeders, 500 to 700 lbs, $1.50 to $2.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair demand for all of the good cows, and prices were firm. Good to choice cows have been scarce, and the market was a little higher than a week ago for the best grades, which were quotable up to $65 for something fancy, and one extra fancy Holstein springer, one of the largest cows seen on the market for some time, weighing 1650 lbs, sold at $85 to Fred Rowntree. Most of the medium to good cows, sold at $40 to $45, with the common very dull at $25 to $35 each.

Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging this receipt of the cheque for $1,244, being the amount paid me on this maturity of my endowment policy, 35390, in your Company which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your company, and far exceeds my expectations and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,078, or an annuity for life of $111.55, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

Yours very truly,

Playing Jokes on Market Clerk

The Alleged Burglar Has Taken His Departure

For the past two or three mornings the market clerk, Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, on coming down to the office has noticed signs of what looked liked as if someone had been in the place during the night.

Yesterday morning one of the doors was standing open and things were generally upset.

This morning a note on the clerk's desk read "The burglar is gone." This caused considerable fun at the scales to-day and the clerk and frequenters of the market are at a loss to know who the joker is. At no time has there been anything stolen from the office and evidently it is only someone playing a joke on the clerk.

The window is easily raised and it is this way the intruders gain their admittance.

John A. Johnson, who lived near Uxbridge, was dragged by a frightened horse and killed.

Some Freak Roads Built in Galway

Certain Irregularities Pointed Out Under Expenditure Made by Mr. Stratton

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—As the editors of newspapers are expected to know everything, I take the liberty to ask you for a little information. The editor of the Examiner is posing as an expert in road building, and finding a great deal of fault with the work done on the street of Peterborough. I would like to know if he was an expert, in road building before he became editor of the Examiner, and taught Mr. Stratton how to build roads; or if he was a pupil of Mr. Stratton's and was taught by him. No matter which, I would advise the road commissioner, to be very careful about taking any instructions from him. If the aldermen and road commissioner will take a trip to Galway I will show them some of the work done by these experts. Now here is a sample of the road building by those experts. On one road, just a mile and a quarter long, the Government's estimates show that $4,000 had been appropriated. The road had been built by the settlers before this money was appropriated and after all it is no better than an ordinary waggon road today. On another road, two and a half miles long, six thousand dollars were appropriated, and the work done was to make a road through the woods that distance. It is a very good winter road, and a careful driver can get over it with a waggon in the summer, but any good lumber foreman could have done the work for six hundred, instead of six thousand dollars.

There is another matter in which the road commissioner could get pointers, and that is how to fill in his pay list, giving names of men employed, also exact days of the week and month engaged, whether with team or without team, their wages, etc., and the pay lists completed and signed two or three months before one dollar was spent on the road.

Now the ratepayers of Peterborough can decide which way they want their work done, as at present, or under the guidance of the Examiner experts. Another question I would like answered is why the name of Bobcaygeon road, was changed be-Silver Lake and Kinmount. Were experts ashamed of the large amount of money spent, and so little work done that they had to deceive the public by changing the name.

Yours, etc.

GALWAY.

1,500 BAGS OF POTATOES SHIPPED TO CITY YESTERDAY

Largest Scow Load Ever Brought to Peterborough—Delivered to Grocers and Private Dwellings.

The largest scow load of potatoes that ever came to Peterborough arrived at the Wolfe street wharf this morning, when the Water Lily brought up a scow from Harwood with a cargo of 1,500 bags, fawhich were shipped here by Mr. S. J. Isaac of the above place. The Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co. have four teams and a single cartage equipment busy for the greater part of the day, delivering the potatoes to local grocers and private householders. Jas. R. Bell took 500 bags, R. C. Braund 200, T. T. Braund 200, R. J. Munro of the Munro House 200, E. F. Mason & Co., between 200 and 300 and the balance of the shipment was bought by J. Malane, W. Routley, A. J. Wayne, H. Bradshaw and to some private residences in the city.

This makes 2,300 bags of potatoes that Mr. Isaac has delivered in Peterborough this fall, having sent 900 bags up by the Water Lily, and scow in different sized lots for some time past. He will have 60 bags more shipped to the city on Saturday morning, and in the near future will also fill an order for 200 bags for the Cavendish Lumber Co. for consumption at the company's camps. Mr. Isaac raised a crop that supplied 900 bags on his own farm and bought the other 1,500 bags from farmers in the vicinity of Harwood. He is the biggest buyer in this district, and has found his operations in the wholesale potato line very profitable.

Dr. McClelland Returns From Northern Ontario Trip

Is Interested in Some Claims There—Says Country is Rich in Minerals—Had Good Luck in Hunting and Fishing.

Dr. McClelland, Brock street, has returned from a trip to Northern Ontario, where he spent a few days looking around the country with a view to ascertaining something concerning its mineral wealth and incidentally enjoying some live sport in the shape of moose hunting and trout fishing at Seseikiniki Lake. He was accompanied by Dr. Hayden of Roseneath, and the two were joined at Englehart by Mr. Alex. Skinner. The party staked claims on a tributary of Seseinika Lake and another on the Montreal River, about five miles from Latchford. The doctor thinks Northern Ontario is a great mining country, and says between Cobalt and the height of land lies, in his opinion, one of the richest farming sections in Canada. He and his two friends visited many of the famous mines in the new country and this morning he showed the reporter who called on him, many samples of gold, silver, cobalt, copper and iron ores. Dr. McClelland says the people in this country have no comprehension, whatever, of the wealth of the northern part of the province, and says the ore of different minerals fairly abounds in the rocks there. He was in Cobalt for a day, but said everything in the silver town was depressingly quiet. This was accounted for by the low ebb of the market in New York by reason of the recent serious financial failures.

"At the present time," he said, "I don't think you could get a ten dollar advance up there on the best mining property in the district."

From Sekikinika Lake the party journeyed to McDougall's Chute, the celebrated mining centre. Dr. McClelland states that he believes there is not a square foot of land between North Bay, and 45 miles beyond McDougall's Chute, that isn't staked out, and with rich showings, too. It is definitely decided that the the G.T.P. will cross the T. and N. O. about eight miles north of McDougall Chute, where the foundation of Driftwood City, has already been established, and the people are flocking into that place rapidly. Deputy Minister of Agriculture James was at Driftwood a short time ago, and located there the position of an experimental farm for Northern Ontario.

GOOD SPORT.

While Saskenika Lake, the party were fortunate enough to make a good catch of trout and bagged three moose. Provincial Secretary Hanna and party were also there at the time on a moose hunting trip, but Mr. Hanna evidently does not have the power over the moose that he does over his constituents, and none of the antlered monarchs bit the dust to accommodate either him or any of the members of the party, in spite of the fact that they were assisted by two sagacious Indian guides.

Fifty Workmen Are Dismissed Owing to Present Stringency

Toronto, Oct. 24.—A report was circulated here this morning that the Canada Foundry Company had laid off 200 hands on account of the financial stringency.

Frederic Nicholls, interviewed, admitted that the night gang of blacksmiths had been laid off.

This was the result of the demand of the blacksmiths, eighty-five in number, asking for an increase in wages of 10 per cent. The men are paid 25 to 30 cents per hour.

Mr. Nicholls pointed out the necessity for retrenchment on account of the diminished purchasing power of the dollar, and instead of granting the increase, about fifty of the night gang were dismissed.

The Hidden Parts

The charm of originality and true artistic merit attaches to every production of the Semi-ready tailor shops.

The hidden parts of the Semi-ready Coat are made as carefully and honestly as the parts that show, and that's why Semi-ready quality is backed by a broad, full guarantee.

Semi-ready Tailoring was not achieved in a moment. The idea was born, and its present perfection graduated from years of experiment and experience. First pronounced as good as custom tailoring it is to-day a better product than any custom tailor can produce.

Semi-ready

A small thing to look for, but a big thing to find.

Ask the man who bought a Semi-ready Suit at $20 if he does not believe he is $15 ahead.

Postmaster T. C. McFadden of Trent Bridge Leaves for West

There is at present no post office at Trent Bridge. The former postmaster, Mr. T. C. McFadden, at one time a resident of Peterborough left for Abernethy, Sask., this week, and no successor has been appointed by the department. This laxity on the part of the department is causing great confusion in the delivery of mail to residents of the Bridge.

Explanation of Dust Nuisance

Only two Carts Out—Shut off at Standpipes Not Installed

Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, when asked about the dust nuisance to-day said that there were only two watering carts out. The others ceased work on October 15th as the water has to be shut off in the standpipes, otherwise they would freeze up and burst. Some time ago the Board of Works contracted, at an expense of $25 apiece, with the water commissioners, to install "shut offs" at five standpipes so that they could be used late in the fall and early in the spring.

The alderman stated that only one "shut off" had so far been installed to prevent the standpipes freezing up, therefore only one standpipe was at present available. The water in the others has been closed off, hence there are only two sprinkling waggons out at present.

New York Banks Have Hard Time

Number of Them Close Their Doors to Protect Their Depositors

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, Oct. 25.—The situation in the financial district was not greatly changed from yesterday, although prices on the stock exchange were a trifle firmer, and the support seemed to be more effective than any day during the present demoralization.

There was more trouble in banking quarters, however. There was a big run on the Industrial Trust Co. of Providence, R.I., an institution with $41,000,000 on deposit, and the runs on the Trust Co., of America, and the Lincoln Trust Co., showed no signs of abatement.

In the afternoon it was announced that the First National Bank of Brooklyn, had closed its doors, and that the Williamsburg Trust Co. has suspended. The Central Falls Branch of the Union Trust Co. at Providence opened for ten minutes and then closed, and notices were posted that the company had been closed to protect its depositors.

RATES GO UP.

Notwithstanding the relief given by Morgan and Rockefeller late yesterday afternoon, to the call money market, rates today rose to 75 per cent, and things began to look serious again, when 12,000,000 was taken to the floor of the exchange, and loaned to brokers needing so badly. This action strengthened the stock market in the last half hour, and prices rose to the high of the day, and the market closed strong, with a much improved tone.

FELL OFF ROOF OF THE SHED

Painful Injuries to 5 Year Old Son of Mr. R. G. Sturgeon

Yesterday morning the five-year-old son of Mr. R. G. Sturgeon fell off the roof of the sheds adjoining his father's place of residence on Charlotte-st., and had the skin torn off the side of his face, and was badly shaken up generally. He fell between two packing boxes at rear of McDonough's cigar store, and by the merest chance escaped alighting on one of them. Had he done so, he doubtless would have sustained injuries of a very serious character.

Mr. Lou McBrien who is employed in the barber shop on the rear of tobacco store, ran to the little fellow's assistance, immediately after he had fallen, and carried him into this father's home, where his injuries were attended to.

Nearly all the members of the Canadian Club belong to the Board of Trade, and will attend the latter's banquet on November 20th, at the Oriental hotel.

Woman's Missionary Society Concludes Profitable Session

Rev. Robert Emberson, Returned Missionary From Japan, Tells of His Work in the Island Empire—Encouraging Reports Presented From Auxiliaries—New District Organizer Appointed.

The closing meeting of what was a most successful convention of the Women's Missionary Society, was held last evening, when the George street Methodist Sunday school was crowded to hear a very able and earnest address delivered by Rev. Robt. Emberson. The meetings yesterday were the most interesting that have been held at George-st. church for some time.

The pastor, Rev. E. A. Pearson, occupied the chair. After the devotional exercises he congratulated the Women's Missionary Society on the splendid work they were doing in the cause of missions. The hymns also were interesting themselves in missions, and the students were offering themselves for the work.

A recitation was then given by Miss Gladys Pentland, after which a solo by Miss Clara Bellingham was well received.

A Japanese drill by Misses L. Elcome, G. Pentland and V. Mitchell, in costume, was next given.

Rev. Robt. Emberson, a returned missionary from Japan, gave a very interesting address on his work in that country. In commencing he referred to the great work the Woman's Missionary Society was carrying on. The band of women recently sent out by the Society were laboring heroically in the foreign field for the cause of Christ. The speaker was on the mission field of Japan laboring for over seven years, and during that time had many interesting experiences. He remarked that the sympathy of Great Britain was with Japan. This was a great stimulus to the Japanese in accepting the Christian faith. During Mr. Emberson's stay in that Eastern land, he with his family, received great kindness, and had the protection of the law. In the past few years, and at the time of the war, the missionaries were given police and military protection. "Have we," asked the speaker, "shown the same consideration to the Japanese?" He was sorry to say they had not.

The Methodist church is especially interested in Japan, because it was there the first missionary work of the church began.

The reverend gentleman had little Ada Lane and Lester Pearson on the platform, dressed in the costumes of the Japanese. These dresses were very curious, and created much interest. The customs, and the homes and surroundings of this Oriental race were all vividly pictured to those present, and many amusing incidents of life in that country were related.

MODERN JAPAN

Leaving old Japan, the speaker referred to what he termed modern Japan. Japan has made rapid strides in modern civilization. She has a splendid school system, and law courts, equal to those to be found on the continents of Europe and America. The country has been opened up to trade and commerce, and the newest inventions for manufacture have succeeded the old practices.

Some say Japan is a Christian country, added the speaker. In many ways she has displayed principles of Christianity, but yet there is a great work to be done. Over forty million Japanese are yet bowing to idols of wood and stone. The veteran missionary commended the work to the people, and asked that they give it their help and prayers.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr Jas. Kendry and seconded by Mrs J Carlisle, was tendered the speaker of the evening, for his splendid address.

Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour also moved a vote of thanks, which was seconded by Mrs. Lightfoot, to the ladies of George street church for serving dinner and tea to the visiting ladies.

After a well rendered solo by Miss Reesor, the doxology was sung, and Rev. Jas. O'Hara pronounced the benediction.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session opened with a consecration service conducted by Mrs. (Rev.) Bedford, of Lakefield and Mrs. Allison, after which came several reports, which had not been read in the morning. They showed the same progress as the other reports read.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry referred to the fact that though the Cavanville Auxiliary considered themselves as disbanded, they still paid their fees, and moved that a letter of appreciation be sent by the convention. The motion was carried.

Mrs J Carlisle read a short, but interesting and profitable paper on the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, referring to a number of things necessary for the success of the work. A general discussion on the subject followed.

Mrs. (Rev.) Nickle was then called upon to address the gathering on the subject of how to make the meetings attractive. Mrs. Lightfoot also spoke on the same subject.

The next topic discussed was "How to interest women of our church who are not members."

Able addresses along this line were given by Mrs. (Rev.) Bedford, of Lakefield, and Miss Burnham, of Millbrook. Mrs. Moore addressed the convention on the subject of the responsibility of the women of the church towards the auxiliary.

Miss Linster, of Bridgenorth, and Mrs. Jas. Kendry and Mrs. J Speer also spoke on this subject.

A Mission Band conference followed, led by Mrs. Robt. Mann, in which Miss Davis, of Lakefield, Mrs. (Dr.) Neal, Mrs. Throop and Mrs. Shiner took part.

An exercise, "Sidelights on Africa," was conducted by Mrs. Kendry. Mrs. Turner referred to geographical features of Africa, while Mrs. Heartley spoke on the work done in Egypt and North Africa, and Mrs Carlisle in West Africa. Greetings were received from St. Luke's being conveyed by Mrs. Gaskins.

An invitation was received from the Lakefield Auxiliary to hold the next convention there. Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour, district organizer, announced that she desired to resign from the position and Mrs. Kendry was appointed to fill her place.

The session was brought to a close with devotional exercises.

Simple Home Recipe Said to do Wonders for Many People.

A well-known authority says that backache is often nature's danger signal, which notifies the sufferer that the kidneys are sick.

The following simple home-made mixture is said to relieve backache and cleanse and build up weak, disordered kidneys, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime.

A well-known local druggist is authority that these ingredients are mainly of vegetable extraction and harmless to use, and can be obtained at small cost from any good prescription pharmacy. Those who think they have kidney trouble or suffer with lame back or weak bladder, or, such symptoms as frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, painful, thick, discolored urine, etc., should give this prescription a trial, as no harm can possibly follow its use, and it is said to do wonders for many people.

CLARION CALL TO LAYMEN TO MAKE CHURCH LIVING FORCE

Rev. J. A. MacDonald Gives the Message to Men of Peterborough at Banquet in St. Andrew's Hall—An Able Exposition of What is Meant by the Laymen's Movement in the Church, its Inauguration and What is Being Accomplished.

ADDRESS MAKES DEEP IMPRESSION

Responsibility of Citizenship Outlined in Forcible Manner.

Cynicism One of the Curses of the Age.

Over one hundred and sixty laymen and the majority of the ministers of the city, gathered in the Sunday school hall of St. Andrew's church last night at the banquet arranged under the auspices of the laymen of the Presbyterian churches of the city. The speaker of the evening was Rev. J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Globe, and his address on "The Laymen's Movement in the Church," will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present. He made what might always be called a wonderful plea for greater activity in the church work by the laymen pointing out their responsibility and the duty they should perform. Those who heard Mr. MacDonald last night can understand why he has been and is now such a force in the public life of Canada. His oratory is somewhat different from the ordinary. He grasps one with the force of his convictions, the sincerity of his words, the originality and depth of his thought. Back of it all is a powerful personality, the type that leaves its impress upon those who come in contact with it. Mr. MacDonald made a plea for higher ideals and better manhood in the daily affairs of life and the support of the church as the instrument for placing the nation on a higher standard and setting an example to the world.

The hall was prettily decorated and over 160 men sat down at the four large tables. The catering was done by McEwen Spence and was quite satisfactory. Ex-Mayor G. M. Roger presided very aceptably.

The banquet was a great success in every way, although the words may seem hackneyed and to those who promoted and carried it to a successful great credit is due. Everyone present was pleased beyond expression and delighted that they had the opportunity of hearing such a gifted speaker as Mr. MacDonald.

Although the banquet was arranged by the Presbytorians of the city other churches were largely represented and co-operated heartily. It was a most representative gathering and no doubt Mr. MacDonald's words will have a far-preaching effect.

In opening the "after dinner" proceedings, after the toast to the King had been honored in the usual way, Mr. Roger referred to the success of the gathering and heartily congratulated the promoters. "The Laymen's Movement," upon which they would be addressed was comparatively new, but was growing rapidly because the public was interested and because it was to be far-reaching in its effect. He asked Sheriff Hall to propose the toast to the guest of the evening.

Sheriff Hall said Mr. MacDonald had been a force in the church and since entering newspaper work had been a force in Canadian public life. He was also a great power in the laymen's movement and a man whom it was an honor to have present and a privilege to hear speak.

The toast to Mr. MacDonald was heartily honored and was followed by the singing of For He's a Jolly Good Fellow. Mr. MacDonald was greeted with loud applause on arising.

MR. MACDONALD.

When the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" had been concluded, Mr. MacDonald commenced speaking. He said he was glad to learn that the was a jolly good fellow, good if he was not always jolly. "Here we are at a banquet," he continued, "a banquet being held in connection with a church, something that in our boyhood days would have been called an unholy profanation by our honored fathers. But why shouldn't we be at a banquet? Why shouldn't we adjust ourselves to present conditions? The church is an instrument that should be used to do the work of the day. The purpose of the church is to do things, to be a force and a power in the community. If a banquet will keep up the interest and do something to fulfil this purpose let's have a banquet. The work of the church should be regulated to meet the needs of the day and the requirements of the time. Since the days when we were boys we have changed our commercial life, we have changed our business methods, we have changed the machinery with which our factories are equipped and the implement with which we till the soil. We have changed our methods to suit the needs of the day. (Why not have a banquet if it's going to help in the work?"

THE LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT.

The subject upon which he was going to speak was the Laymen's movement within the church. It was not for missions alone; that was only one of the branches. The speaker went on to tell about the great gathering of laymen of the Presbyterian church in the city of Indianapolis last November when the laymen's movement was practically inaugurated. Mr. MacDonald had been asked to be present as one of the speakers at the convention, and although somewhat busy he went across the line. "I have usually plenty to do," said Mr. MacDonald, "it's a hard task trying to keep two political parties straight and often failing in both." He continued with a comprehensive and striking description of the conditions that led up to the laymen's movement. The men had awakened to the fact that they weren't doing their share and they convened to discuss how best they might utilize and make tell in the church their experience in business and politics and other spheres. The laymen were beginning to realize that they had been leaving too much of the work of the church to the minister and the women. The movement started in the United States and had spread across to Canada. It was one of the bright features of the life of the republic during the past year and had taken root not only among the Presbyterians, but among the other denominations also. There had been a great need for such a movement in the United States and that same need rested upon us in Canada, that same need for a refreshing of our views of what is right, that clamor for men who were enthused in the things that remained, not alone the passing event. There was a need for men who could put things through in business, in the board of trade, in the council, in commerce, to throw themselves into the work of the church. There were some people who had the idea that the duty of the church was to send as many as possible to heaven when they die. There were many in the church permeated with the selfish motive of trying to save themselves. Trying to get people into heaven was not the primary duty of the church. The object of the church should be to have an influence upon the community, to be a power in promoting those things that were right. The laymen's movement was not a new organization; it was simply a movement, the background of which is democracy. We were living in a time when the power was with the people; every institution in the land, educational, political, etc., showed that such was the case. The power was with the people, not that the average man simply had a right to vote, but that he took a share in the government of the nation. The school was a great factor in the life of the nation, whether it was the little red school house out on the side line, or the state university.

HON. G. M. ROGER
Who Presided at Last Night's Banquet

The child in school to-day was the ruler of the nation to-morrow. The educational institutions of Canada showed the spirit of the age, democracy, and they were mighty factors. So was the press with all its faults, all its limitations and all the vexations of which it was surely the cause. The press was a mighty instrument in the hands of the people. Mr. MacDonald enlarged upon this point further and made the statement "that the man who does not take his share in the public affairs of the community is a traitor to the country to which he belongs."

"Don't say that politics is too vile for you," Mr. MacDonald continued. "If your influence will help to raise the standard, and that's what it should do, take your share of the great responsibility and get away from shirking and the don't care attitude."

The church, continued the speaker, was one of the great moulders of public opinion in this country, and more so on account of the democracy. The great fact that democracy prevailed could not be ignored. There could be no taking from the people the rights that had been given them. We must not shut our eyes to the weakness of democracy. There was too much leaving to men who had axes to grind the carrying out of the most important obligations. And then there came the reflex of this indifference, the lack of trust in anything that makes for good, the cynical attitude of the men who called themselves descent men. If a man set about to do what was right with the accomplishment of some good object in view, ulterior motives were credited to him, and some one asked, "What graft was he working; whose graft was this now?" No country can come to true greatness, said Mr. MacDonald, "unless there is a genuine belief in the goodness of that which is good. Acynicism is the dry rot that works for the destruction of democracy, and the downfall of all the democratic institutions of the land."

The church, continued Mr. MacDonald, had a great opportunity in democracy. The church wasn't perfect; none of the institutions of the country, no business, in fact nothing was perfect, and if the church had weaknesses and infirmities, it was all the more useful. In connection with the laymen's movement, the church was the instrument that was to make the work tell. Mr. MacDonald pleaed for a devotional tone in the great movement. There was not enough devotion nowadays. The boys were not being brought up as they were fifty years ago; they were not being given the same chance. Their parents did not seem to have the time to instruct them in the affairs of God like their grandparents instructed their boys and girls. "Many of us," he continued, "were brought up in God's own place, out in the country: with its great distances, its woods and stars, where God speaks to us through a million voices that are never heard in the city's streets."

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

The success of the laymen's movement hinged almost entirely upon the study of the Bible by men, men's Bible classes, if you would call them such. "We must grip the great truth that is enshrined for us in the book," said Mr. MacDonald. "And if we are Presbyterians we should know what our church stands for, and the same if we are Methodists, or Baptists or Anglicans, or Catholics. Each one stands for something, and to work successfully we should know what it is. We are not in the church for the good we can get but of it, but are there to serve, to serve other men and help save the world."

It was easy to give money to the church, nowadays, said Mr. MacDonald. That was the easiest part of it. "What the church wants more than money," he continued, "is you and I to get out and work for it, to deal more lightly with the passing show and stand true on matters that are permanent in the life of man and the eternity of God."

LEADERSHIP AND FIDELITY.

Continuing, Mr. MacDonald spoke of the success of leadership in democracy, and more than leadership, the regular fidelity of the average man to the duties of the common day that make the church tell in the life of the community.

THE CHURCH AND NATION.

The church's relation to the nation was next dealt with. The speaker said he believed in a national church, not a state church, but a national church that shared the responsibility of the nation, that mourned when the nation was brought low, and exulted when the nation was placed on high. A great responsibility rested on Canada, the nation coming on the stage at this time of the world's history. The laymen should realize their responsibility and not wait until it was too late to make the effort. They should have a vision of the future, should believe in the things they never see more than the things that were close at hand. The church should have a vision and look forward into the future.

In drawing to a conclusion Mr. MacDonald said we were going through the world but once, and should accomplish all we could to do well that which out hands were best fitted for. The men of Canada should see that the national life was kept pure and strong. It was not merely a case of Canada for the sake of Canadians, but Canada for the world's sake.

Mr. MacDonald closed with an eloquent peroration, in which he urged the men present to bear their share of the responsibility and to make themselves powerful in the work by having faith in Jesus Christ and living according to the commandments.

VOTES OF THANKS.

A vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. MacDonald for the great treat provided and the inspiration and new line of thought opened up by his words was moved by Mr. G. B. Van Blaricom, and seconded by Mr. Richard Lees. In his remarks Mr. Van Blaricom made a great plea for greater interest in church work by the young men of the community. All seemed to be holding aloof from the church at the present time, thus dimming the outlook for the work in the future.

Mr. Lees said he knew Mr. MacDonald would far more appreciate the knowledge that something good might result from his words more than the formal vote of thanks. Words could not express his indebtedness to the speaker of the evening for what Mr. MacDonald had given him. It was a great inspiration.

CLERGYMEN SPEAK.

Short addresses were then given by the president and vice-president of the Ministerial Association of Peterborough, Rev. J. R. Webb and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt respectively. Mr. Webb in his brief but excellent remarks, said he did not like the word "layman." All men were ministers of Jesus Christ, whether they were in the pulpit or the pew. He enlarged upon this point, and his words were very impressive, being in harmony with those of Rev. Mr. MacDonald.

Dr. Langfeldt, after expressing his appreciation of what he considered the best address ever given in Peterborough, said there should be hearty co-operation between the laymen and the minister, all working together for the advancement of God's kingdom. He claimed that the man who was neutral as regards religion was a greater drawback than the man who came out and said flatly that he didn't want to have anything to do with it.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

The musical programme during the evening was of much excellence. Mr. Freefand sang in splendid voice, and Mr. Duncan Campbell rendered "Heroes and Gentlemen," in an excellent manner. The St. Paul's church choir quartette, Messrs. Gillespie, Bennett, Nelson and Watt were also heard to advantage. Mr. John Crane played the accompaniments.

The gathering dispersed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Hon. R. Lemieux, Canada's envoy to Japan, will go to Tokio via London.

THE LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT

Nearly 200 men listened with keen interest to Rev. J. A. MacDonald, of Toronto, in St. Andrew's hall last evening, as he delivered a stirring, convincing and powerful address on the Laymen's Movement in the church.

The talented speaker aroused the latent feelings of all his hearers; his burning, impressive words cannot fail to have a beneficial and progressive effect. He made point after point on what the laymen should do, how they should act, and how they should live. He called for a more aggressive and forward stand on the part of the laity, in the interest of the moral, upright and spiritual well being of the democracy. The work of the church was not so much to get so many souls to heaven, as it was to teach and instruct man how to live, to do the duty that lies at hand, to take advantage of the numerous opportunities and openings that daily and hourly present themselves and to animate all with the conception of service. Why should the work of the church be left to the pastors and to women? What were laymen doing? Were they exercising an influence for good; were they playing the part they should? He severely scored the cynicism so prevalent on all sides that every man has his price; that men, clean, pure men, should keep away from politics because it was vile. He unsparingly denounced the tendency to scoff at workers and to impute to them unworthy motives, by cynically observing; "I wonder what is in it for him." The speaker's words stimulated his hearers to take a larger vision, a broader view, to adapt themselves to the necessities of the times and to uphold the belief that the purpose of the church was to do things, to be a real, living force in the community, and a power for good in the elevation and uplifting of mankind.

The church should be so regulated as to meet the needs of the day, and the requirements of the times. What are the laymen doing? Are they utilizing that experience, that talent and that perspicacity which they display in business, politics and other spheres of activity, in behalf of the work of the church? There is no doubt that if the world is to be evangelized, the church progress and public life enriched and purified, it cannot be effected solely by the clergy. Here is where the laymen should come to the front. Our givings will not suffice. They are really playing a small part. What is needed is the man, his active sympathy, support and encouragement. He must step into the firing line; he must take his place in the vanguard. The laymen's movement in its different branches, is now enlisting the enthusiasm and co-operation of many leading manufacturers, business men and artisans. They are throwing themselves into the work of the church as never before. The signs are hopeful. There is an awakening. The church is one of the greatest moulders of public opinion, and will be as long as democracy prevails. No institution is perfect or ever will be. The church is the vital instrument to make work tell, and the laymen must recognize this. A deeper spirit of devotion, more Bible study, a firmer grip on eternal truths, and enduring principles, and a proper knowledge of what the church stands for, were all eloquently set forth, in the inspiring address as prime essentials. The laymen should be in the church to serve and to help save the world, making the church tell in the life of the community. A great responsibility certainly rests upon the laymen. They must realize it. They should look into the future and do that which their hand is best fitted to do. The layman touches the world at many points, where the average clergyman never does, and can never hope to do. It is the duty—the obligation—of every man to bear his full share of the great responsibility resting upon him and make himself a living personal force, in the redemption of the race, and the lifting of the world and its affairs, to a higher, purer and more exalted plane.

It is a duty, a weight, a responsibility which no one worthy of the true name of man, can escape.

BASELESS CHARGES REPUTED

During the past few weeks the Liberal newspapers have been teeming with with charges about the gigantic campaign that the Conservative party had at its command in the last federal election. They have sarcastically dubbed it a "putity fund" contributed largely by Mr. Hugh Graham of the Montreal Star. The man mostly responsible for circulating these malicious reports about how this fund was used for corrupt and debasing purposes is "Slippery Bill" Pugsley, the new Minister of Public Works. He has hurled insinuation after insinuation that a deliberate attempt was made to buy up Liberals, purchase constituencies and debauch the electorate, and that Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader was fully cognizant of how the money was being spent for illegal practices. Mr. Pugsley has daily grown bolder in his charges, which, no one but himself seemed to take seriously, until the Liberal newspapers, anxious to cover up the iniquity in their own party ranks, seized upon this as a splendid opportunity to drag a herring across the odoriferous trail of boodlery and bribery so openly practiced by demoralized Liberal aggregations.

Mr. Graham has now come out, with a full and frank statement of all the contributions made by him toward meeting the legitimate organization and election expenses in Quebec. The real amount of his contributions are small compared to the colossal sum which it has been persistently reported he shelled out.

Mr. Graham is a man who does not believe in shouting for the cause of reform and calling on the people to support such measures, without giving something himself to help the good work along. He has generously supported any campaigns waged by his newspapers with his private means. He believes in substantially backing the views presented. In organization work, he united, aggressive move along a certain line of policy or action can be effected unless the scheme is upheld with means with which to help bear the burden of the struggle. When he has called upon others to assist he has always been ready to aid personally, whether the agitation has been for municipal, legislative, or federal reform. Mr. Graham emphatically points out that the Montreal Star's contributions have at all times been specifically given on the distinct understanding that they were employed for legitimate expenses, and he further states that in many cases, the donations were devoted to the prevention of illegal acts by the other party.

Mr. Graham even goes farther and says that he will not be ashamed to have these donations come to light. He would advocate and support a law compelling all election contributions to be made publicly with the name of the giver attached. He also denies that Mr. Borden had any personal knowledge of any fund or was directly or indirectly cognizant of any. Neither Mr. Borden nor Mr. Graham has any intimation or knowledge of the resignation of the late Hon. A. G. Blair, former Minister of Railways and Canals.

Mr. Graham courts—in fact urges—a thorough, rigid and searching investigation into any alleged plot, conspiracy or corruption campaign fund. He stands ready and willing to meet any charge or charges that may be preferred. He invites any member of parliament or defeated candidate to come forward and substantiate any such charges. Surely this is a stinging refutation to the many malicious allegations made by Liberals or Liberal newspapers about Mr. Graham or a Conservative corruption fund. Let those who have been shouting the loudest either come forth and establish the truthfulness and foundation of their reckless and scandalous utterances, or forever after hold their peace.

PEN POINTS

Naturally the Conservative party is willing to stand or fall by their expressed policy, which includes a host of good live planks and which has been so ably presented throughout the Dominion by Leaderr R. L. Borden. by this policy and on this platform the party expects to be returned to power. But there are even other reasons why Mr. Borden and his party should secure consideration in the Dominion. The prevalence of graft is so flagrant and undisputed as to be a shame to the country; the mismanagement of public service is monstrous; and Mr. Geo. Johnson summing up the matter recently at Ottawa puts the question wittily as follows:—"The other day," says Mr. Johnson, "I saw a man vainly trying to light a match, and said to him, 'try the other end.' He did so and succeeded. We have tried the Grit end without success and will, I think, have to try the other end before we can hope to secure a right to turn up the old Grit idol—graft."

LEG BADLY SHATTERED

Old Tweed Resident Rides Seventeen Miles With Broken Limb.

While alighting from a carriage near Flinton on Monday afternoon, Mr. W. J. Bowell had the misfortune to fracture his right leg, the bone being broken in two places.

On Monday morning, Mr. Bowell, accompanied by Mr. Wm. Wright, started for a day's trip to Flinton. They accomplished their business there, and were about a mile on their way to Tweed, when the horses they were driving became frightened, and Mr. Bowell jumped from the rig to quiet them. In the excitement of the moment he must have jumped too hard, with the result that the bones in his right leg were fractured in two places. Mr. Bowell, who is an elderly gentleman, insisted on finishing the journey, so Mr. Wright succeeded in getting the injured man into the carriage, and hurried the horses toward home, arriving here about six o'clock when Dr. Tuttle was summoned and quickly set the broken limb.

The grit and determination of a man of Mr. Bowell's age, in riding the seventeen miles, from Flinton to Tweed, with a fractured leg is remarkable, and his many friends are wishing for his speedy recovery in order to congratulate him upon his old-school pluck, and his narrow escape from more severe injuries.

Eighteen months in the Central Prison for Thomas Harding for carrying explosives and weapons, and three months in Welland county jail for Robert Pasquel for carrying weapons were the sentences imposed by Judge Wells yesterday.

MR. HUGH GRAHAM INVITES PUBLIC INQUIRY INTO ALL HIS CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

Not Afraid of Having Any of his Donations Brought to Light—His Newspapers Have Always Endeavored to Make Their Views More Effective by Helping to Finance the Campaigns Which Represented Them—Mr. Graham Had Nothing Whatever to do with Mr. Blair's Resignation—No Attempt Was Made to Purchase Liberal Candidates—A Strong Refutation of Certain Malicious Statements About Conservative Campaign Fund.

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—From several attempts which have been made to interview me since my return to Canada, touching the subject of my subscriptions to the Conservative election fund for the Quebec district during the last general elections, I infer that there is still some public interest in the subject and as it is of importance to myself, at least, that any impression which goes abroad, shall be accurate, I have judged it better to deal with the matter in a signed statement than in an informal interview. Perhaps I may say to begin with, that I do not regard it as a very serious offence to have been attacked in my absence. Political eagerness should hardly be expected to consider such a circumstance. The somewhat kindred fact that the published report of my evidence, given in a lawsuit in Quebec city, some eighteen months ago, was a garbled report, wherein important features were omitted altogether, I am ready, as a newspaper man, to credit to lack of space rather than malicious intent.

As to my subscriptions to the Conservatives in the Quebec district, in 1904, I have nothing to conceal. The amount subscribed was $4,000 for a contract for literature, $1,381 for expenses during the year in the City of Quebec, $250 for each rural constituency for preliminary expenses, $300 for the campaign in each rural constituency, and $4,000 for each of the Quebec City constituencies. The ridiculous smallness of the total amount, will be a reply to those who see anything suspicious in the affair. At the trial in question, prominent Liberals, cognizant of my testimony, smiled at the amount saying that it was very small, and adding that the idea of carrying elections in the district on such sums was amusing.

The explanation of how I came to give these sums is very simple. I was deeply interested in the elections as all the world knew, and when asked by the party managers, how the immediate necessities of the campaign would be met, as the subscriptions might come in tardily, I promised to make advances against these expected contributions. When the time came for the contributions to materialize, they were not forthcoming; but I had kept my promise in advancing the money. I consider the amount sent to the Quebec district, when used with the most rigid economy and absolute purity, to have been most reasonable; but, to their credit, be it said, it was all that the Quebec district managers asked when they sent their estimates.

If they had asked more, I would have sent it up to a reasonable amount.

When Mr. Borden wrote me that funds should be distributed only through committees acceptable to the local party friends, he had, as far as I am aware, no personal knowledge of any such funds, and is not today, so far as I know, cognizant of any such fund, except, possibly, from hearsay. The fact that he took a natural way of putting his friends on their guard against possible mistakes and breaches of the election laws, has been seized upon as a text for his condemnation, but I scarcely think that his action will be so regarded by fair-minded men.

In thus contributing financial assistance to the public cause in which I believed, I was only following the policy I have accepted and lived up to for a third of a century. For thirty-three years the Star has taken a keen, aggressive interest in municipal, provincial and federal elections, and has always endeavored to make its views more effective by helping to finance the campaigns which represented them. When the City of Montreal, was being robbed by selling franchises for a song, by expropriation schemes and contract-grabbing schemers, the Star fought the derelict aldermen at the polls, and contributed to the full extent of its power, to the driving of three-fourths of them into private life. These campaigns were expensive and The Star contributed more than three-quarters of the money necessary in many of the constituencies to carry them through. I have always believed it to be my duty as a citizen to bear some of the electoral burdens, which in my papers, I was constantly urging others to carry. When I called upon my neighbors to help elect honest aldermen to the City Council, I thought that I should do my best, as a citizen to take my own advice and help personally and financially to secure their election.

When successive Provincial Governments were shown to have been guilty of exploiting the public treasury for party advantage, The Star took up the cudgels, first against Conservatives, and then against Liberals who were equally guilty; and The Star subscribed liberally to the funds for carrying on this work.

In 1871, The Star took up the question of protection for Canadian industries, being the first of the Canadian dailies to do so, and hammered away at it persistently. Seven years later, Sir John Macdonald came out for a National Policy. In the campaigns of 1878, 1882, 1887 and 1891, this question was to the fore; and The Star supported the party of Protection in its columns and by generous contributions to its funds. In 1896 the Conservative party showed signs of having been too long in office, and the Star was much inclined to hold that it was time for a change, until it became all too clear that the Liberal party was bent upon getting from the country a mandate to destroy the National Policy. Then effort the Star could not resist; and so it again gave its adhesion to the Conservative cause and aided the party financially.

The Liberals came into power; but they did not tear down the National Policy. Still, there was a feeling that they were but biding their time; and the question of Protection was kept to the front as any issue, both by the uncertainty as to the Liberal future, and by the insistence of the Conservative Opposition. This gave the Star no choice but to stand by the National Policy party, and to back its opinions with financial aid. On all these occasions, I need hardly say that the Star's contributions were specifically given on the understanding that they were to be employed for legitimate expenses; and, in many cases, they were devoted to the prevention of illegal acts by the other party. As for the National Policy, it now appears to have disappeared from politics as a live issue. Faith in the perspicacity of the Liberals is growing; and few now think that they will venture to abandon Protection. Of course, the National Policy has never been carried out to the full, as those of us who aided in its initiation hoped. The share of the workingmen in its benefits has never been carefully safeguarded; and this may easily become a question of the future. As for the policy itself, if it were again in jeopardy, I would do precisely as I did in the past—support it with every influence of which I might be possessed. It is the only safeguard against Annexation; and, when its blessings are fairly shared with the workingman, it will constitute one of the surest guarantees of a contented Canada within the Empire.

Today the Star is not in accord with either of the two political parties, but in reflecting upon this, it must be borne in mind that the Star gives its support to measures rather than to men, and it regards the present policies of the two parties as unworthy of their best traditions, and insufficient for the needs of the country.

I happen to be the owner of newspapers with vast interests in every province of the Dominion, more widely dispersed than those of any bank or industrial concern in existence. So long as I have a dollar to spare, I will consider myself free to aid which ever party has in my opinion, the policy best adapted to the needs of the country, but it will always be contributed for legitimate purposes, and to suppress illegitimate ones. Nor shall I be ashamed to have these contributions come to light. Rather would I favor a law compelling all election contributions to be made publicly, with the names of the givers attached.

As to Mr. Blair's resignation. I had not seen Mr. Blair for eleven months before the election, nor for five months afterwards, and then only by casually meeting him on the street. When I did meet him, there was no discussion about resigning. The first knowledge I had of Mr. Blair's having resigned, was when I saw a statement of the fact that he had done so, over his own signature. There has come into my possession documentary evidence to prove this, and there is written proof that Mr. Borden had nothing, even remotely, to do with the resignation. These are accessible to those who may investigate charges.

The purchase of La Presse was a business transaction on a commercial basis, with which Mr. Borden had no connection whatever, directly or indirectly. The owner was willing to sell on a commercial basis, and exhibited his balance sheets, which fully justified the purchase on a ten per cent. dividend prospect. The negotiations for the purchase of La Presse, according to documentary evidence in my possession, commenced in the spring of 1903, and were consummated in the fall of 1904. That a man happens to own a newspaper and, through illness, or other good reason, wishes to dispose of it, it is surely not an extraordinary state of affairs. That he should accept the highest offer amongst a number for the property can scarcely be ranked as an inhuman act.

As to the charge that there was an attempt to purchase Liberal candidates, to bribe them to desert their party, or anything of that nature, in regard to them it is, as far as I am concerned, and as far as my knowledge extends, without any basis whatever, and I invite, in the public interest, any member of Parliament, or defeated candidate, to substantiate any such charge.

There has come into my possession documentary evidence of an indisputable character, proving Mr. Borden had no connection whatever with the Blair resignation, and had no knowledge of it, although he has been otherwise charged by guessing newspapers.

If precedence is given to what is written with such an appearance of knowledge in certain newspapers, about plots, conspiracies, and other dark doings, by all means have an investigation into all those matters. Although I intended going abroad shortly, I will remain in Canada, or within easy call, and will be ready at any time during the next four months to give evidence before any impartial tribunal appointed to inquire into the charges referred to, and anything of a kindred nature.

Yours, etc.,
HUGH GRAHAM.

MR. BERT FEE GETS 4 PARTRIDGE

Made Good Bag at Sandy's Landing, Near Keene, the Other Day

It's pretty hard to secure any partridge, even in a week's hunt this fall, and most of the hunting parties going back north, fail to even get a single brace. In view of this fact, Mr. Bert Fee, of Keene, had pretty good luck when he shot four partridge the other day at Sandy's Landing, on the east shore of Indian River, near Keene. Partridge in Keene as elsewhere are very scarce this season, and Mr. Fee certainly made a good bag.

BEER* IS A FOOD

LAGER is a mild appetising product of malt and hops, with less alcohol than sweet cider, which cannot ferment in the stomach. It is specially suited to women as a dinner drink.

ALES as brewed in Ontario are so rich in the food elements of malt that they rank above milk as an item of diet, and are far purer than most milk in when city-dwellers get it.

PORTER differs from ale in that the malt is roasted (like coffee) in the brewing process, and this makes porter so nourishing that it is a real specific for anaemic and run-down people.

STOUT is the richest and most strengthening of malt beers; it contains nearly as much nourishment as eggs, and digests easier. Thin people will find it builds healthy flesh.

BEER, used with meals and before bedtime, increases digestive power, gets you more good out of the food you eat—and is itself a food.

¶ Beer does not contain enough alcohol to react upon the system — just enough to induce the stomach to do its work better.

¶ Beer is not an intoxicant—it is a beverage with definite value for almost every grown person.

¶ Ask your own doctor whether it wouldn't be good for you and the adults of your household.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; and, in the products of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water.

MEETING WITH GOOD SUCCESS

Miss Bawden Formerly of Peterboro' is Now With Kingston Y.W.C.A.

The Kingston Whig says:

The opening of the new Y.W.C.A. establishment, of which Miss Bawden, formerly of Peterborough, is the domestic science teacher, in the spacious old Gunn house, on Johnson-st. on Tuesday, was most auspicious. The gas was lighted in all the rooms and coal fires glowed in all the grates. Mrs. McCammon, the president, and Mrs. Donald Ross, received the visitors, of whom there were nearly 300. Mrs. J. S. R. McCann and Mrs. L. L. Henderson were in charge of the pretty tea table laid in the dining room, Miss Isabel Ross, the Misses Fairlie, and Miss Eleanor Macdonnell being among those assisting them. Donations of linen and money were generous, among the former being towels, table napkins, sheets, pillow cases and pillows, with d'oylies and tray cloths galore.

The domestic science classes under Miss Bawden are progressing well. So far, however, there are only nine classes, but when the Collegiate Institute girls, to the number of twenty-five, join in on Friday, there will be ten. There is still room for five more classes, the original programme having provided for three a day. The girls of the junior and senior fourth classes comprise nine classes. The junior fourth girls, who are the more numerous, receive their teaching in morning, there being two classes of an hour and a half each. The senior fourth class girls receive a two-hour period in the afternoon. One lesson a week is given each class. As there are five periods of the week unoccupied, the Board of Education will have to take steps to fill these. A couple of classes for boys would meet with favor. It is understood that Trustee W. H. Godwin is the originator of this suggestion, and perhaps he will be able to have it carried into effect.

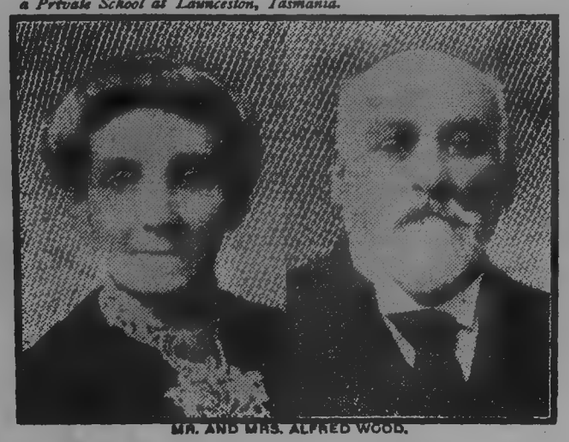
PE-RU-NA PROMPTLY RELIEVES

A Case of Dreadful Suffering Which Had Continued For Months.

An Account of a Remarkable Recovery Given By Mr. Alfred Wood, Teacher of a Private School at Launceston, Tasmania.



MR. AND MRS. ALFRED WOOD.

Mr. Alfred Wood, who has a private school at 22 Frederick street, Launceston, Tasmania (Australia), has been a teacher for 37 years under the Educational Department of Tasmania. He writes, concerning his wife's case, as follows:

"My wife was suffering for months from gastro-enteritis, and was given up by her medical attendant.

"By good fortune I was induced to try Peruna in her case, and I can truthfully state that from the first dose her dreadful suffering ceased; and after taking five bottles she is permanently cured."

HOW does Peruna make such extraordinary cures as above recited? By simply arousing the forces of Nature to throw off the diseased action.

Peruna contains no magic and does not operate in any mysterious way, but it does help Nature to combat disease, and thus many times comes to the rescue of the patient in some important crisis.

There is always a time in the course of any disease when a little help goes a great way.

Just as the scales are beginning to descend, when one ounce more would determine the fate of the patient, a little lift will turn the scales in favor of the patient.

Peruna is a handy medicine to have in the household.

It helps many diseases by imparting a natural vigor to the whole system.

As a tonic or catarrh remedy, its reputation is well established all over the world.

As a remedy for stomach and bowel disease, the fame of Peruna is undoubtedly destined to become greater than that of any other medicine in the world.

A great many cases like that above referred to have found Peruna of untold value when no other help seemed of any avail.

Pe-ru-na For Indigestion.

Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, member Independent Order of Forresters, writes:

"While on a visit to Boston, I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed.

"Peruna was recommended to me and after using three bottles I was entirely cured.

"I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Mr. Chas. Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes:

"A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion and it cured me in a short time."

Secured Employment With the Object of Stealing Goods

Couple Who Were in Peterborough Have Been Taken Into Custody by Toronto Police—Trunks Found Filled With Household Goods.

In to-day's Toronto Globe appears an article referring to the arrest of Charles and Saber Manvers, who are charged with stealing household goods They have been going from house to house staying for a short time as employees and then leaving with a large quantity of household goods.

It is thought this is the same pair who were wanted by the local police About a month ago a young couple came to this city and took up their residence at a boarding house on Charlotte street. The man worked at the C.G.E. works for awhile. After remaining here a little over a week, they left again for Hamilton, the reason given being that the gentleman had received a better job there. On the evening of their departure from Peterborough, one of the other boarders missed sixteen dollars, and other articles were also reported gone.

The story of their arrest in Toronto is as follows:

That they have been securing employment at a number of houses with the object of systematically stealing is the complaint of the police against Charles and Saber Manvers, found last night at an Elm street house and taken into custody on the charge of stealing household articles. With the prisoners were taken to the detective office two big trunks and a satchel, all filled with household goods and wearing apparel. Both working some weeks ago at the home of Mrs. Oag, 142 Bloor street west, and left with a lot of articles which they were accused of stealing. Mrs. Oag says she spoke to the couple, and the man threatened to shoot her if she informed the authorities. Eventually they gave back all they had taken, and the police heard of them again when the woman, it is alleged, sent a threatening letter to the wife of Dr. Howland, Spadina avenue. From Toronto the couple went to the home of Mr. G. Kennedy at Grimsby, and returned again soon, taking up their residence at a dwelling on St. Alban's street. Inquiries made by the detectives at the house made them leave again and take up their residence at the house on Elm street. Mrs. Manvers was known as Sadie Jones at the home of Dr. Howland. She once served a term of 30 days for theft. Mr. and Mrs. Manvers are out from England only about a year.

The Latest From New York; Banks Close Temporarily

Special to the Review.

New York, Oct. 25. — The United States Exchange Bank, capital, $1,000,000 announced this morning that it would not open today. The International Trust Co. of Brooklyn, with other branches, the Brooklyn Bank, and the Borough Bank, of Brooklyn, closed doors this morning, owing to inability to secure cash. The Trust Co. of America, of this city, opened for business as usual this morning. The line of depositors waiting to withdraw money was much smaller than yesterday. A much calmer tone was apparent in business circles this morning.

Providence, R.I., Oct. 25.— A despatch says; The Union Trust Co. on which a run was made yesterday, has suspended payment temporarily.

Ate Too Much and Board Was Raised

Two Englishmen called at the police station this afternoon and related some trouble of theirs. One of them said that his boarding house lady would not let him take his articles out of the house. She claimed that he ate four meals a day, and she wanted four dollars a week, whereupon the Englishman said that he had agreed to pay her only $3.50

THOUGHT NASSAU WAS LAKEFIELD

Local Runner Somewhat Confused in Location of Nearby Cities

Wednesday evening a well known young man, who is employed as clerk in one of the local grocery stores, was travelling up George street on his wheel, homeward bound, with several parcels, when he heard a pattering of feet beside him, and espied a youth in running outfit, jogging along in the same direction he was going. The runner asked the man on the wheel if he would pace him for a while, and the bicyclist, who thought he needed a little fresh air, was agreeable to the proposition. The man deposited his parcel in a fence corner for safe keeping, and decided he would pace him as far as Nassau. The pair travelled along for some time, the cyclist going considerably past his destination to accommodate the runner. When they arrived at Nassau the latter said, "Well, this is Lakefield; guess we'll turn back."

"Why, this isn't Lakefield," the other replied, "this is Nassau."

The runner, however, was positive that he was at Lakefield, so he turned around and headed for home. The peculiar part of it was he said this time for a run to Lakefield and back was being taken at his starting point in the city. Whether the athlete was simply mistaken in his location of the local option town or the victim of a practical joke regarding the situation of that place is not known, but if his backers judge his ability on the time he made to Lakefield and back, they will certainly think that we have unearthed a story that will make Longboat look about as cheap as a non-union label on a two for five bar weed.

Langford Makes Charges Against Jimmy Reynolds' Pacemaker

The following letter from D Langford, appeared in last night's Toronto Star:

Oshawa, Ont., October 23, 1907.

Sporting Editor, Toronto Star; — Kindly allow me a short space in your medium as to Reynolds' walk. I met him at Oshawa this morning and, to my surprise, found the man, who was supposed to be pacing him, walking behind, with his shoulder against Reynolds' assisting him up hills. This I consider not a fair way to pace a walker. The pacer should be at least two yards ahead of him. The wager Jimmie walked for this trip was so small, that it did not pay those who made it, to accompany him all the way. I had good opposition by taking him with me over the road; he had none, anyway, not from Port Hope to Toronto, and back again to Oshawa.

When I made my record, which really was 69 hours, as I did not start from Port Hope until 3 minutes after six, I was not competing against him, I simply endeavored to make amateur record, and was unpaced at that. If Reynolds makes it in 36 I am certain I could beat him if I tried again. I think my time was good for the training I had. I only walked 2 four-mile clips and one seven-mile before the event. Reynolds, I think, just walks for notoriety. He is a good man for his age, but I can never believe that this last walk of his was a square one.

Yours truly,
D. Langford.

P.S.—Five hundred dollars was offered in Port Hope that he could not make the trip in 39 hours. Reynolds' supporters did not want that. They preferred small bets, which make the walk to me, look not square.

The special that the Rugby Club runs to Toronto tomorrow morning leaves the station at 9.30 o'clock. A large crowd is expected to accompany the boys, and ample accommodation will be provided by the railway company. The train will reach Toronto about noon, returning about 12 o'clock midnight, although tickets will be good on all trains returning on Monday. The return fare will be 90c for adults and 45c for children under 12 years of age. Tickets are on sale at the C.P.R. uptown office, Mac's cigar store, the Oriental and the Examiner office.

Jimmy Reynolds Again at Work

Will Clear Only About $100 as Result of His Walk

Port Hope, Oct. 24.—Fifty-seven-year-old Jimmy Reynolds is the lion of the hour in Port Hope to-day, and the man behind the gun, Jack Henderson, his trainer, is receiving well-deserved credit for the way he handled the veteran from start to finish.

When it was announced that Reynolds had reached Newtonville at 8 p.m. with three hours left to cover the remaining 12 miles, excitement became intense, and from Newtonville down to Port Hope a train of rigs following him resembled a funeral cortege strung along behind the plucky human frame, which, however, was very much alive.

Reynolds rested for about 12 minutes at Newtonville, and that he now believes was a slight mistake. He was reported approaching the town limits at 6 o'clock. The streets were densely packed, packing boxes were made into bonfires along the route, and the plucky barber made a triumphal entry into his home town, touching his old felt hat continuously in salutation as he passed rapidly between crowds lining the way.

"That Jack Henderson is the best man I ever saw," said Jimmy. "He handled me as no other man could, and I cannot repay him for his hard work. He was kind yet firm, and he worked like a Trojan. He's as strong as a horse. Dick Woodcock was a valuable man also."

BACK TO WORK.

Jimmy had a hearty breakfast and intends to be in his shop in the afternoon. "The first man that wants a shave after one o'clock will find me on the job, for I don't waste any more time over this affair."

Perhaps this expressed his condition and feelings better than any of his previous remarks. His feet are in splendid shape, and his only apparent disability consists in a swelling of the lower shin of the right leg.

ONLY MADE A HUNDRED DOLLARS

Asked as to the result financially, Reynolds stated that he would clear only about $100 on the walk. He lost some on the 36-hour wager, but placed most of his money at 38 hours.

"I was trying to do it under 38 hours, and that was what I set out to do. The 36 hours was more or less of a bluff, although I could have done it under 36 hours, barring accident, and unfavorable winds. I wish to thank people of Toronto and those all along the route for the reception they gave me," concluded the busy James, as he picked up the morning paper.

BLAMES THE FALL.

Jack Henderson is confident that Reynolds would have done the trick in less than 36 hours had he not met with a mishap, going to Toronto, and had such strong winds not prevailed.

"I believe Jimmy could have reached Toronto an hour sooner had there been no wind in our faces. Jimmy made a strong finish and did well. I never saw a man of his age possessing so much endurance and pluck."

Henderson was too modest to refer to his part in the proceedings, but the townspeople believe, with Reynolds, that no one could have handled the walker to better advantage than did the same Jack.

NEW OFFICES BY NOVEMBER 1st.

Alterations at City Hall Will Soon be Completed

Work on the rooms at the City Hall, where the tax collector's and city engineer's office will be located, is going ahead rapidly. The interior fittings are now being put in, but as considerable painting and varnishing has to be done, it is not expected that the offices will be ready until the first of November. The improvement is very great and it will be a great convenience to have all the city officials under the one roof.

For Whole Week, Just You Think

There Has Not Been a Meeting of City Council or Committees

The present week has been productive of several big sensations in the news line, but locally there is a bit of news that has never been given a line to date. To those not within the ropes it may not be of great importance, but to those in the know it is of no little interest. There has not been a city council or committee meeting since last Friday night, which pretty nearly constitutes a record in the local municipal world for the past two or three years. The slate is pretty clean just at present and there has been no necessity for calling a meeting of the council or any of the committees.

Division Court Being Held To-day

Many Cases on the Docket—A Real Estate Mix-up

Division Court is being held today and an unusually large number of cases is being heard by His Honor Judge Weller. A case that occupied the greater part of the morning was a real estate mix-up. The firm of J. T. O'Connell & Co., were suing Ruth & Middleton for $45.—a fee for the sale of a farm. Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for the complainant, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams for the defendant.

One agent claimed he made the sale, while the other held that he was the one who effected it. His Honor after hearing the case gave judgment in favor of J. T. O'Connell & Co.

The case that is before the court this afternoon is an employee of Demetre Bros., suing for wages.

Mr. G. W. Hatton is appearing for the complainant, and O'Connell & Gordon, for the defendants.

After Returning From and Extended Trip to the Great West

H. C. Pollock, manager of the flour department, Chicago, and T. H. G. Denne, manager for Canada, of the Quaker Oats Company, have returned from an extended trip through Saskatchewan and Alberta, where they have been looking into the condition of the crops. They give it as their opinion that there will be 75,000,000 bushels of wheat in the west this year and of this 45,000,000 will grade No. 1 northern or better. They found the bulk of the oat crop slightly touched with frost, but reported that there would be more oats for export than there had been last year.—Winnipeg Free Press.

WEDDING BELLS

KELSEY—COLE

On Wednesday evening at seven o'clock a wedding of much local interest took place at Mr. S. Cole's residence, west of Havelock, when his eldest daughter, Miss Maude Beatrice was united in marriage to Mr. Edward J. Kelsey, of Feilding, formerly of Havelock, by Rev. D. Balfour, pastor of the Methodist church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a gown of cream silk collenne, trimmed with all-over lace and silk ribbon. The young couple were unattended, and left on Thursday for a trip to Kingston, Belleville, and other points, the bride's going away costume being of grey cloth, with white hat. Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey's many friends will join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

ELECTRIC PLANT CHANGES HANDS

A transfer has been made in the property of the Tweed Electric Light and Power Co. The old owners, Messrs. Steinoff and Gordon, of Wallaceburg, have sold the entire plant and franchise to Mr. J. T. Kissack, says the Tweed News.

Mr Kissack took over the business on Oct. 19th, and has now assumed personal direction of the plant in Tweed. Mr. Kissack, who is also proprietor, with his brother, of the Paisley Electric Light Company, of Paisley, Ont., is a gentleman of wide experience in the handling of just such an establishment as the Tweed Company. He intends to reside in Tweed and take full charge of the Company's work here. It is his expressed intention to improve and systematize the service along the most approved and modern lines. He intends to establish a continuous circuit, day and night, which should prove a big inventive to prospective manufacturing concerns. They might be induced to locate in Tweed if they are assured a steady, electrical power supply.

The citizens of Tweed will no doubt welcome the change from an outside to a resident proprietor, although the last manager of the company, Mr. A. F. Moray, has made himself liked by his conscientious attention to his business.

Tribute Paid to Peterboro' Man

Who Designed the Equipment of St. Thomas Laboratory

At the last regular meeting of the St. Thomas Board of Education, a letter was read from Mr. E. White, principal of the Ottawa Normal School, as follows, "A short time ago I learned from Dr. Merchant that you have an excellent form of science teaching in your laboratory. I should deem it a great favor if you would give me a drawing of the same to measure, or a simple description of the size, the cupboards, and the equipment of each table.

A similar request was received from Dr. Seath, Toronto.

A plan for physical training classes and chemical laboratories, issued by the Department of Education was laid before the Board. It consisted of seven pages of cuts, illustrative of plans for laboratories, style of tables, chemical stands for use of pupils. The diagrams on 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 5th pages of the seven pages are taken from the equipment of St. Thomas Collegiate Institute, a high compliment to the high efficiency of the St. Thomas equipment.

In the "Plans for Physical and Chemical Laboratory" just issued by the Education Department, all the space except, Laboratory plan No. 3 is devoted to a description of the St. Thomas laboratories.

It is interesting in this connection to note that the plans and specifications for the tables, cupboards and general equipment of the St. Thomas Collegiate Institute, were drawn by Mr. R. Lees, public school inspector, who, previous to his removal to this city, was Science Master for many years in the St. Thomas Collegiate which has undoubtedly the most convenient laboratory of any school in the province.

Spirit of Unity Is Developing

With a view to bringing about some degree of unity, for a common purpose, it is proposed to have a meeting of all so disposed, from nine to ten Sunday mornings, at which the Bible and its daily application to daily life will be discussed. The idea is a sort of mutual improvement endeavor, open to anyone, either members of churches or non-members. The hour is selected so as not to conflict with the attendance of members at their various churches. On Sunday morning the meeting will be held at Miss Orr's, and after that as those present agree upon.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Accident at a Lakefield Mill

Robert Watson Had Miraculous Escape From Death

Lakefield, Oct. 25.—On Wednesday morning, shortly after seven o'clock Mr. Robert Watson, employed in the Cavendish Lumber Co.'s new mill, met with an accident, which might have terminated in a fatality. Mr. Watson was making a lorry, loaded with lumber, which was coming down an incline from the boardway of the mill. The sudden jolt caused the lumber to slide off the car, falling on top of Mr. Watson, and knocking him to the ground. Willing hands soon came to his assistance, and the lumber was removed, when it was seen that he was badly injured. He was taken to his home and Dr. J. R. Fraser summoned, who, on examination, found that the injured man had his collar bone broken, and his right shoulder badly dislocated. His body was badly bruised, and his face severely cut. It will be some time before Mr. Watson recovers from the effects of his injuries.

Moral Character of Canadian Life

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt Points Out Some Present Day Dangers

In its report of the Archdiaconal Conference held at Cobourg this week the Sentinel-Star says:

"Two of the most interesting papers of the day were those on the Present Moral Character of Canadian Life by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, and W. T. Comber. Dr. Langfeldt noted in domestic life the absence of family prayer, of any serious conversation, little obedience of children to parents, ignorance of parents to their children's doings, too great freedom of the sexes in social intercourse, the speculation in business life and prevalent habit of gain at any cost, the self-gratification, and absence of public spirit among public men, even in church life—and he believed the Church of England has the best influence in the world for character and mind; there was too much seeking it for social prestige or business advantage, too much hypocrisy and pronalism. The remedy, as he showed by an impressive quotation from the Literary Digest, lay in a real spiritual visit by the true pastor.

Limerick Man Got Suspended Sentence

Yet He Did Not Burst Out in Song

Harry Fitzgibbon, who resides near St. Ola, in Limerick township, was yesterday afternoon on trial before Judge Fraheck, charged with theft. It appears that Mr. Homer B. Lewis had a camp in Tudor township, which had been closed up for some months. In the camp were some supplies, and these, it is alleged, were taken by the accused. Fitzgibbon admitted that he took some things, but claimed he was informed that the camp had been abondoned. Owing to his previous good character, Fitzgibbon was allowed to go on suspended sentence. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown, and Mr. A. A. Abbott, of Trenton, appeared for the prisoner.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Thanksgiving Day next Thursday.

Was in San Francisco at Time of Great Earthquake

Rev. T. H. Campbell One of the Survivors of the Disaster—Graphic Description of the Scenes That Followed the Shock.

Rev. T. H. Campbell, who is in the city at present, was in San Francisco at the time of the great earthquake, and fire, and gives a graphic description of the terrible events of that time. Today, he gave to the Review, a statement written by one of the survivors of the great quake, and it is a wonderfully graphic word picture of the terrible scenes that followed the shock that wrecked San Francisco from bay shore to ocean beach, and from the Golden Gate to the end of the peninsula.

Part of the description is as follows,—

"A cloud of deep dust hung tenaciously about the City Hall. I realized that there something dreadful had happened. I peered into the cloud, but I could not see even a mark of that building, and as I waited the dust began to settle. First showed the steel shaft on which had floated this country's flag. Imbedded in a ton of steel block, the entire mass had shifted many feet, but still maintained its position atop that pile of structural steel. As the wind carried the dust away, and uncovered the ruins, there stood a mountain sheered of all its crowning glory. It could be fittingly compared with a mountain that had passed through a forest fire.

"The dome appeared like a huge bird-cage against the morning dawn The upper works of the entire building lay peaceably—if that term can be used—in the street below.

"I thought of those guardians of law and order, whose headquarters are in the basement of the hall on McAllister and Larkin streets corner, and wondered, if the sergeants and office men on duty had escaped. I thought of those angels of mercy nursing their patients in the Central Emergency Hospital and the physicians there, all of whom I knew from personal contact, and whom I had learned to respect and revere, no too much for their ability and cleverness, but because of their usefulness to me in my capacity as a newsgetter. I wondered if they had escaped death as they stood by to help the injured that might have been brought to them. After I had drawn myself together, I found my way to my home, where, thank God, the wreck had not been as complete as many others I had witnessed. Then it was that I realized the condition of an excitement crazed populace. Herds of huddled creatures, attired in next to nothing, occupied the centre of the streets, not knowing what would happen next, or which way they would turn for safety. Each and every person I saw was temporarily insane. Laughing idiots commented on the fun they were having. Terror marked their faces, and yet their voices indicated a certain enjoyment, that maniacs have when they kill and gloat over their prey. Women, hysterical to an extreme point, cried, and raved for those they loved when they were standing at their elbow. Mothers searched madly for their children who had strayed, while the little ones wailed for their protectors. It was bedlam.

Strong men bellowed like babies in their furor. All humanity within eyesight was suffering from palsy. No one knew which way to turn, when on all sides of them destruction stared them in the eye. A number of slight tremors, followed the first series of shocks. As each came in turn, fearful agony was spread over the countenances of the afflicted ones. Terror stamped its mark on every brow.

Then an unnatural light dimmed the rising sun, and the word went forth from every throat.

"The city is ablaze. We will all be burned. This must be the end of this wicked world."

From down south of Market street the glare grew and grew. The flames shot heavenward and licked the sky. It looked as if the end of the world was surely at hand.

For an hour or more, after that terrible shock, which shook the buildings of all San Francisco, to the very foundations, people wandered about in an insane fashion. There was no attempt at concerted action to help the sufferers. People were stupefied, and meanwhile the fire burned."

Narrow Escape From Death Of Entire Port Hope Family

Overcome by Fumes From Coal Stove, Father Staggers to Door and Beckons for Assistance—House Was Nearly Burned Down.

Port Hope, Oct. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Sleeman and their four children were nearly smothered to death by fumes from a coal stove at their home, on Burton street early on Monday morning.

Mr. Sleeman, who had been out since 6.30, returned home at 11 o'clock on Sunday night. The other members of the family had then gone to bed. A fire had been previously lighted for the first time in a small heater in the front sitting room, and before retiring Mr. Sleeman, who afterwards acknowledged that he knew very little about coal, placed more fuel on the fire and left the damper closed and the front part of the top of the stove open.

Their 4-year old son slept in a cot in this room, and Mr. and Mrs. Sleeman, with their two younger sons, 1 month and 2 years respectively, occupied a room off this. Their 6-year-old daughter occupied another room off the sitting room. At 6 o'clock on Monday morning the parents were awakened by the smothered cries of their 2-year-old son, who was sleeping in their room. Mr. Sleeman then noticed a strong odor of gas, and shut the bed room door, after which the family again slept until shortly before 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Sleeman then woke up, but found herself unable to raise her head from the pillow. Mr. Sleeman endeavored to reach the door, he fell to the floor. With much difficulty he managed to reach the front steps leading to the house. He was too overcome to speak, but managed to beckon to a party of men who were on their way to work. As soon as they arrived the doors and windows were thrown open. Dr. Powers was sent for and found all the members of the family extremely ill from the gas fumes. They, however, quickly recovered.

On Sunday night the brick house in which they live was nearly burned. Mr. Sleeman on his return home, started to search for a bottle of medicine which was in a cupboard in the summer kitchen. He carried a lamp in his hand, the flame of which had come in contact with a curtain, which hung across the cupboard. In his search for the medicine Mr. Sleeman did not notice the blaze, which had reached the roof and was fast enveloping the cupboard. With a pail of water the blaze was extinguished.

The family have only been residents of this house a few weeks.

Delivery System Works Well

The new mail delivery system, recently inaugurated in this city is working beautifully. That is the way one of the mail carriers expressed himself in regard to it, in conversation with the Review today. At first there was some little difficulty, owing to people not having notified their correspondents of their street address. The postman remarked that the greater majority of the citizens are having letter slots placed in their doors and this is a great convenience. Those who have not already done so, have signified their intention to do so. The carriers expect to have from now on a larger amount of mail to deliver. Those who have boxes at the post office are dropping them when their present term expires, owing to the increase in the price of a year's rental.

The postmen meet with many strange experiences in their daily rounds of the city. They always look for a safe place to leave the letter, and if the door is locked or if there is no response to their ringing of the door bell, they leave that mail until the next day.

A request that is often put to the mail carriers, is to post a letter for someone. They are to deliver mail, not to go after it. "We are quite frequently asked if we have any stamps, or would you mind bringing a few next time, remarked the postman. We are not supposed to carry stamps for sale, and we would like the people to understand that. They do not go over the same road twice a day.

There are seven mail carriers in the city, and all express themselves as being quite pleased with their work, and are now well acquainted with their different routes.

Port Hope Was Much Disturbed

Some One Fired off Gun and Wakened the Lakeside Town up a Bit

Port Hope was disturbed the other night. Chief Bond had a young man in the police court for discharging a gun within the limits of the corporation. He was fined $1. This dangerous practice has become altogether too common and this should serve as a warning. Guilty ones in the future will not be so leniently dealt with says the Guide.

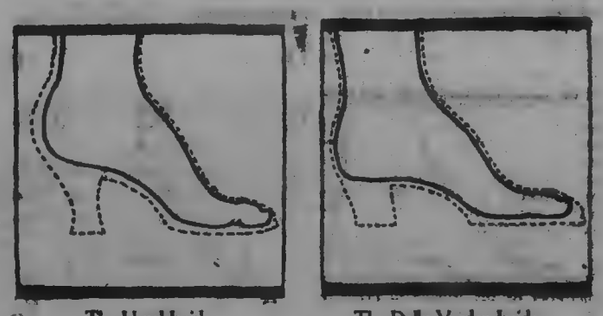
Barefoot Comfort

"One of the 14"



The Usual Inside — The Dolly Varden Inside

We claim that a shoe is as comfortable as a barefoot is a pretty strong claim, but we claim it for the Dolly Varden Shoe and our agent in your city is ready to prove our claim. By trying on a few pairs you can soon find out.

Why are they comfortable?

Because they are copies of perfect feminine feet which allow the feet to lie in their natural position.

Because of their Free, Flat Tread.

Because of their newly devised, restful steel arch support which relieves the fatigue muscles of the arch and prevents crowding of the toes into the narrow front of the shoe, by holding the heel close to the back.

Because of their Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance.

Because of their Harmless High Heels—as comfortable as moccasins.

And because of their new "velvette kid" leather, which is as soft as cloth.

$4.00 to $5.00 in Canada or the States. Every pair Goodyear welted.

Instructive Paper on "Norway" Read Before Ladies' Literary

The Physical Features of this Attractive Country Interestingly Described by Miss Flynn—Splendid Musical Programme Presented.

Last evening the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. added another to its long list of successful entertainments, when an excellent programme was presented to this large audience present. This consisted of an exceptionally bright musical programme and a very able essay on "Norway," read in a pleasing manner, by Miss Beatrice Flynn.

This introductory part of the essay contained a most comprehensive account of the physical features of this narrow, mountainous region. Whose land is much worn and cut by deep stream valleys. Of all the countrys on the Globe, Norway in some respects, ranks as the most wonderful. Its mountains extend directly to the sea, and are penetrated by open avenues, sometimes one hundred miles in length and deep enough for the largest vessels to come directly to the shore. Nature sends the warm waters of the gulf stream to its distant shores and transforms them into fertile lands. Innumerable islands stud its coast. Exposed to all the forces of the North Sea, the navigation of its coast would be impossible, had not indulgent nature made her innumerable breakwaters in the form of large islands, behind which are channels deep enough for the largest vessels. Sometimes a channel is as narrow as a river, and then expands as wide as a mighty lake. The ever-varying isles, fjords, and mountains continually open new and magnificent prospects to view. Nature hallows there a day that is a summer long, and makes its splendid vistas more glorious by a midnight sun.

The industries, government educational system, mode of travel, characteristic features of its people, and its separation from Sweden, were all briefly touched upon.

Continuing the writer gave beautiful descriptions of Norways two most important cities, Christiana, its capital, and Bergen, with its deep, narrow, fjord harbor, and sarcastically called, "The Fatherland of Drizzle," owing to the incessant rain fall there.

Hammerfest, the most northern town in the world, except Upernivik in Greenland, and Trondhjem, the most remarkable place in Norway, in point of historic interest, were also briefly described.

Norwegian scenery was then very ably dealt with by Miss Flynn. The innumerable islands along the coast the boulders split off from over-hanging peaks, the numerous cascades, the river valleys, deeply cut in hard rock, the long, narrow, deep fjords, and the vertical cliffs, rising from the very water's edge were all very picturesquely described. Hundreds of tourists afrom all parts of the world, travel by steamer, along this coast every summer, to enjoy the beautiful scenery, enhanced as it is, by the splendor of the midnight sun.

The audience was then carried in imagination to the most northern promontory of Europe, the far-famed Cape North, whose magnificent headland fronts the sea with a steep rock wall, nearly one thousand feet high, and from whose summit one may gaze on that undiscovered region, which has lured so many gallant explorers to their doom. Not a living object is to be seen except the boundless sea beneath, and above the canopy of heaven flecked with fleecy clouds. The only sounds to be heard are the whistling of the wandering winds, and the occasional plaintive scream of the hovering sea fowl. Straight from the Polar Sea, the northern light steals over the waters like a benediction. To enhance the mystery and the beauty of this place, the midnight sun is seen in the sky, slowly descending until it reaches within twenty feet of the horizon, when in a moment it rises again.

This very instructive essay was written in a clear and concise style and held the interested attention of the large audience present.

This essay was prefaced by a bright musical programme, which was rendered in a faultless manner and which demonstrated remarkable ability on the part of the performers.

The following was the musical programme, introduced by Miss L. L. Coleman, who occupied the chair for the evening.—

Instrumental duet, Misses Kelly and Taylor.
Vocal Solo, Miss Angela Devlin.
Recitation, Miss Olive Tangney.
Vocal Solo, Mr. Gandron.
Recitation, Miss M. Derochier.
Instrumental Solo, Miss M. Fife.

The singing of the national anthem brought this interesting meeting to a close.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, Nov. 8th, when Miss Mary Bowers will read a paper on "Dress."

Doesn't Approve of Langford's Ways

"Lover of Sport" Thinks He is Sore on Account of Reynold's Showing

Sporting Editor Star: I notice, with great regret, in last evening's paper, that our friend Langford, would-be long-distance walker, is now trying to retrast the glory from Jim Reynolds, the champion walker, who has just set a record for the 138 mile walk.

It would seem to me, and I am sure such is the thought to every true and sport-loving Canadian, that our friend Langford, like Shrubb, has taken cold feet, and now that our own Ontario has produced a man to beat his mark, he brings forth such baby talk that Reynolds was assisted up the hills by his trainer pushing him.

Now, anyone knows that by one grasping another while in the motion of a run on walk makes a hindrance more than a help; and it surely seems very baby-like on the part of Langford, to come along with such poor arguments in his endeavor to take away the glory from the man of the hour—Jim Reynolds.

Langford is thus proving himself to the citizens of Toronto as a knocker, similar to many other of his countrymen, who try to make out they know it all, and require to use the columns of the press to do their spelling.

Thanking you for the space in my endeavor to protect our old friend, "Jim" Reynolds.

Lover of Sport.

WHITCROFT NOW IN EDMONTON

Will at Once Get to Work on Oaganization of Hockey Team

An Edmonton despatch says;

Fred Whitcroft, the noted hockeyist, who is to be playing manager of the Edmonton professional hockey team this winter, has arrived from Peterborough, Ont., his old home. He will at once confer with the Management Committee of the club as to the organization of the team. It is expected also that Jack Winchester, the former Pittsburg hockey player, who played ball there two summers ago, will be goal tender for the new team.

The announcement that there is to be a professional hockey league in Alberta this winter, is incorrect. Edmonton, Strathcona, Calgary, and one or two other places will have professional teams, but the organization of a professional league has not even been contemplated.

"Star" Says Vics Will be Strong

Local Rugby Team Clashes With Them This Afternoon at Jesse Ketchum Park

Last night's Star says: The senior Vics had their final work-out last night in preparation for the game on Jesse Ketchum Park Saturday with the Peterborough team. This is a senior O.R.F.U. match. Because of the inability of the Vics to secure enclosed grounds, this game must be played in the open park. It should attract a large crowd. The game is bound to be a strenuous one. Vics. must win to be in the championship finals, and as there are old scores to settle, it will be a dog dong battle from whistle to whistle. Spotty McWhirter whose ankle was injured in the first game with Tammany Tigers was out again last night. He is as strong as ever, and will play right half-back. Stanyan will be centre, and Prince left half. McWhirter II. Elliott, Moseley, or Hewitson will be full-back. The scrimmage will be Hugh Brown, Shorgood, and Jeffries. The wings will be picked from Brunton, York, McCrimmon, Pratt, Minns, Milligan, Dickenson, Chamberlain, Hope, Stollery, Webster, White.

The locals left this morning on a C.P.R. special at 9.30, and feel confident of trimming the Victorias. The Peterborough team will be selected from the following, Hartubise, Crowley, Colledge, Lundy, Evans, Dickson, Quinlan, O'Connor, Creugh, McDonald, Caniff, Fitzgerald, Wilkie, O'Brien, Clarke and Deanuard.

BEER STEADIES THE NERVES

GOOD beer, used as a beverage with meals, makes steadier, stronger nerves because it helps the stomach do its work better.

Your own doctor will tell you that the right use of beer is good for almost every adult,—women especially.

The little alcohol in beer (less than there is in cider) helps digest food. Get the right idea about beer, and be healthier for using it.

"BEER" is a term which covers lager, ales, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions, from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops and pure water 101

J. C. MERRICK NEW PRESIDENT

A meeting of the O.R.F.U. Executive was held last night at the King Edward hotel, Toronto, at which Mr. J. C. Merrick was elected president of the Union to take the place of Mr. Geo. Ballard, who resigned a short time ago.

Those present were: Vice-president W. J. Slee, A. Hamilton, Victorias; M. M. Robinson, Kingston; Mr. Ferguson, Westmount, and Secretary Hay.

Secretary Hay in accepting Mr. Ballard's resignation hinted that ex-President Ballard had not acted fairly towards the O.R.F.U. and said he had displayed "a narrow club spirit."

Preliminary League Meeting

City League Officers and Several Representatives Met Last Night

An informal meeting of the City League was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night to discuss the outlook for the coming season and other matters, relative to the welfare of the league. Those present were President F. A. Clarke; vice-president, Jos. Maher; secretary-treasurer, I. D. Moore; W. Rose, Eight Life's; A. Johnston, Windsors; W. Metheral, Strathconas; Although the Suburbs of Lakefield were not represented, Dr. Gibson of Lakefield sent word to this meeting that the local option eqtette would have a team in the league for the coming season.

A committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Clarke, Moore, Maher and Glover, to revise the constitution of last year, and the revised constitution will be adopted at the annual meeting of the League on Tuesday, November 12th.

The teams that are certain to enter the league are Lakefield, High Life's, Strathconas and Charlotte street. The T. A. S. and Y. M. C. A. will likely be represented, and there is a possibility of Omemee and Keene also having sevens in the league.

It is understood that eight medals will be presented the championship team.

RUNNING

At Winnipeg yesterday while in the 13th mile of the 15 mile race with Marsh, the western runner, O. Shrubb's ankle gave out and the Englishman was forced to retire from the race. At the time of the accident he was a lap ahead of Marsh and the race was easily his.

It now turns out that the champion runner of the Canadian West, Art Burn, of Calgary, is in danger of losing his amateur standing on account of his accusations against W. H. Keary, manager of the provincial Manitoba exhibition, which was held in Winnipeg from October 1 to 5. Burn raced at Winnipeg against Chandler of Vancouver, winning a ten-mile race easily. For the attraction he was promised $250 expense money and a cup. On his return to Calgary, his home city, Burn stated through the press that he had been bunooed out of a $250 cup by the management of the exhibition, and made severe criticisms on the manner in which he had been treated by Manager Keary. Investigation proves that Burn and his manager attempted in every way to secure money instead of a cup from the exhibition people, and as this is strictly against Canadian amateur rules, the speedy Calgarian may find himself barred from racing in those parts.—Toronto World.

WALKING

A BLAST FROM PORT HOPE.

Listen to this from the Port Hope Guide:—David Hartley, of Peterborough, who for the past three months has been letting fort much surplus air as to his walking ability, was billto leave Bowmanville this morning on a trip to Toronto and return. But David did not leave. The first hitch in the proceedings was the unwillingness of the Peterborough citizens to provide a trainer and a rig for the walker and to pay expenses incurred by the walk. This, however, was overcome, a subscription list being started by an old Port Hope boy, Mr. Robert Munroe. But this morning Hartley had a bad cold—or cold feet, at any rate he did not start. He promises to get busy next Tuesday morning and we might add if Peterborough fails to put up the collateral that Hope will come to his assistance if he can lower the Reynold's record.

THE SHORTEST SOLDIER.

How a Young Kansan Under the Required Height Got into the Army.

Charles L. Dagan of Keats, Kan., a young army recruit who enlisted in Kansas City and left with a squad of recruits for Jefferson Barracks, near St. Louis, is probably the shortest soldier in the United States army. His height is five feet two inches. He was accepted only on the recommendation of President Roosevelt, to whom he wrote explaining the situation after he had been rejected on account of his height at the auxiliary recruiting station at Topeka early in April.

Dagan had entertained the hope of becoming a soldier for a number of years. He is now twenty-two, and, having no one dependent upon him, he went to the recruiting station to enter the service. He passed a rigid examination save for his height, but the news that for this reason he could not become a soldier did not deter him. He had decided to become one and promptly wrote to President Roosevelt explaining the situation. He made an earnest appeal to the chief executive, and the frank, earnest manner in which he couched his plea seemed to strike the president as that of a man who would make a good soldier.

This is probably the first instance of an acceptance of an application for enlistment in the army when a discrepancy of two inches in the required height existed. The minimum height as stipulated by the war department is five feet four inches.

Dagan is of almost perfect build, weighs 130 pounds and has a five inch chest expansion. He expressed a desire to enlist in the cavalry and be sent to the Philippines. At Jefferson Barracks he will be assigned to a regiment of cavalry under orders or preparing for orders for Philippine service.

A Giant Spoon.

It is said that the largest spoon in daily use is the wooden soup stirrer at Rilo monastery. The old spoon at Rilo is famous. It has been used for more than twenty years and has had predecessors of its own kind for centuries. It has stirred soup for thousands of refugees who have sought safety in the monastery from the persecution of the Turk. The monastery was built in mediaeval times. It has a curious kitchen. It is a room twenty feet square, but nearly one hundred feet high. Its rock walls gradually slope together as they rise, forming a dome with a hole about a foot in diameter at the top. A depression in the earth floor holds the fire, made of pine logs. Over the fire is hung a great iron caldron, which holds more than twenty gallons of soup. The cook climbs up on a big square stone and stirs the soup with the great spoon. The smoke from the pine rises with the steam of the soup to the dome and out through the opening.—Boston Transcript.

Humming Birds In London.

Considerable interest is excited by the humming birds now on view at the zoological gardens. Fifty-three of these tiny, fragile birds were taken on board from Venezuela. Many died on the voyage, but the fittest survived, and twenty reached Regent's park alive. At the time of writing seventeen are shown in two large glass cages furnished with flowering plants and placed in the insect house, which can be kept at a high temperature. Moths in a cage near look bigger than these small birds. It is to be hoped that these dainty feathered gems may take kindly to their new surroundings and live long to delight the eyes of many dwellers in smoky London.—Westminster Gazette.

Remarkable Engineering Feat.

Coal has been reached at a depth of 1,321 feet in Lord Londonderry's new colliery at Seaham harbor, in England, after a remarkable engineering feat. Owing to the presence of enormous quantities of water, forming a quicksand, it was found necessary to freeze the ground to a depth of nearly 500 feet. Twenty-eight holes were bored in a circle about the shaft to a depth of 484 feet, and freezing tubes were inserted. Brine was the medium used to extract the heat from the strata. The length of time required to form a wall of ice was 185 days, the wall being maintained for 353 days. In the shaft bottom the frozen sand was so hard that it could be penetrated only by blasting.

A Pair of Elephant Tusks.

An extraordinary pair of elephant tusks lately shown in London measure in length eleven feet five inches and eleven feet respectively, but each has a girth at the base of only eighteen and a half inches, and together they weigh but 293 pounds. The great length and slenderness of these tusks as contrasted to the usual comparatively short and stout ones have suggested to Professor Rowland Ward that there may be two races of elephants in east Africa, the supposed source of the tusks. Absence of wear at the end of the tusks indicates that the elephant differed from the common ones in not digging for roots.

The Giolitti Cabinet.

Another member of the Giolitti cabinet in Italy has fallen a victim to the fatality which seems to dog its footsteps. Signor Majorana, the minister of the treasury, the youngest and most promising member of the government, who was publicly designated as his successor by Signor Giolitti last summer, has fallen ill and has gone to Sicily, leaving his resignation in the premier's hands. Thus in eleven months no fewer than four out of eleven members of the Giolitti cabinet have died or resigned from ill health, a fact which has much impressed the superstitious who believe implicitly in the evil eye.

Paring a Pineapple.

The hardest way to pare a pineapple is to keep the fruit whole and pare it from the outside, as one would an apple. A much easier method is to first cut out the blossom with a sharp knife, then cut the pineapple in two and cut the inside out close to the rind. Another easy method is to slice the pineapple crossways in inch slices and then remove the rind from each slice.

Ancient Pipes.

The British museum contains a very full collection of clay pipes, dating back as far as the sixteenth century. The custom of waxing the pipe end to prevent it sticking to the lips was introduced by the Dutch about the year 1700.

Polar Currents.

The polar currents contain less salt than those from the equator.

Spotted Cigars.

Many believe that cigars marked with light spots are indicators of the predatory habits of an insect which attacks only good leaf, but as a matter of fact, these spots are due to the combined action of rain and sun.

Sables.

Sables are becoming very rare, and on account of the great demand for them have risen considerably in price during the last few years. A coat that two years ago would have cost $20,000 would now be worth at least $30,000.

The Rose.

The Syrians regarded the rose as an emblem of immortality, the Chinese planted it over graves, and in the Tyrol it is said to produce sleep. Rose leaves are sometimes thrown on the fire for good luck. In France and Italy it is believed that rosy cheeks will come to the lass that buries a drop of her blood under a rose bush.

BONNIE BRIER BUSH.

The Bonnie Brier Bush was the offering at the Grand opera house last night and was presented by a capable and well balanced company to a large and appreciative audience.

Mr. J. Palmer Collins in the role of Lachlan Campbell, for many years personated so ably by the late veteran actor J. H. Stoddard, scored a distinct success. Mr. Collins is by his artistic ability and admirable interpretation of the stern, rugged Scotch shepherd, a worth successor to this great and renowned predecessor. His work last night was of a most finished character and faithful in every detail. Mr. Ward B. Rennselien as "Posty," a character so conspicuously portrayed for many years by Mr. Reuban Fax, is bright, original and quaint and demonstrated strong individualism and independence in his personification of a servant of the crown. The work of Mr. Collins and Mr. Rennselien cannot be too highly commended. Miss Adelaide Matthews as Kate Carnegie, gave a delightful and pleasing representation of the earnest American girl whose heart is in the right place. Miss Marion Macdonald as Flora Campbell, and Mr. Daniel Jarrett, jr., as "Lord Hay, won many friends by their efficient delineations. The remainder of the cast evidenced much skill and proficiency and the production gave unbounded satisfaction.

As the name indicates, "The Bonnie Brier Bush," is a Scotch rural play, telling of how the son of an Earl, Lord Donald Hay, wins the heart of the old shepherd's daughter, Flora Campbell, and weds her in the Scotch fashion before being taken away by his father, Lachlan Campbell, the shepherd, finds that his daughter is writing to Lord Donald Hay, and not believing in the marriage story, forbids her from the house with bitter reproaches, afterwards erasing her name from the family bible. But his old heart is sore troubled and he is on the verge of breaking down with wretchedness and the reproaches of his friends, when his daughter returns, as well as Lord Donald to claim his wife. The legality of the Scotch marriage is established by Archibald McKettrick, known as "Posty" the mail-carrier, (who has witnessed the wedding from behind a convenient haystack.

The Bonnie Brier Bush will be presented at the Grand opera house again this evening and should attract a bumper house.

AGE OF PROGRESS

Mr. Thomas A. Edison, who may fairly claim to have demonstrated that a theorist has some right to a place in the community, is now about ready to place on the market a set of moulds, with the aid of which a contractor, who knows how, can build a house in twelve hours, the whole three-storey structure, twenty-five feet by forty-five, to be in one piece, and to cost, on average, one thousand dollars. "After the cellar is dug the contractor will bring this mould, cement and crushed stone, together with his concrete, mixing machinery, the moulds and a derrick, to the spot. As fast as the concrete is made it is poured into the moulds which fit together from cellar bottom to roof tree. The workman keep on pouring in the concrete until it overflows at the top. Then they go away, and six days later they go back and take off the moulds." Mr Edison protests that there is no reason why a concrete house should not be as pretty as any other kind of a house. And in addition to being artistically attractive, it is to be fire proof, waterproof and vermin proof to say nothing of the trifling circumstances that the longer it lasts, the better it becomes.

Edison is nothing if not practical and serious, and there is nothing at all improbable about the expectation that this plan will go through. All who have addressed themselves to a study of housing conditions, especially the housing of the poor, come to realise that the best results are to be attained from laying out the work on a large scale. Edison, with his iron moulds into which a mixture of sand, stone and cement may be poured straight along until the house is complete, must be held to have solved the most serious of the problems. Add to this, the present tremendous increase in the manufacture of cement, and the concrete house, better for its cost than any of its predecessors, comes well within the range of immediate expectation.

CAUSE OF CRIME
